LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Leader of the House what expert advisers have been commissioned by her Office since 1997; on what topic each was commissioned; and whether the adviser so appointed made a declaration of political activity in each case. [246960]

Chris Bryant: Since May 2007 there have been no expert advisers commissioned by my right hon. Friend the Leader of the House. Information prior to 2007 can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The Government are committed to publishing an annual list detailing the number and costs of special advisers. Information for 2007-08 was published by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 22 July 2008, Official Report, columns 99-102WS.

TRANSPORT

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what expert advisers have been commissioned by his Department and its agencies since 1997; on what topic each was commissioned; and whether the adviser so appointed made a declaration of political activity in each case. [246961]

Mr. Hoon: The information requested is not held centrally and to compile a list would incur disproportionate cost.

The Department publishes on its website details of appointments to the public bodies which it sponsors.

Since 2003, the Government have published an annual list detailing the number and costs of special advisers. Information for 2007-08 was published by the Prime Minister on 22 July 2008, Official Report, columns 99-102W.

Luxembourg Rail Protocol

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the (a) purpose and (b) content of the Luxembourg Rail Protocol to the 2001 Cape Town Convention on International Interests in Mobile Equipment; and if he will make a statement. [247041]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport has assessed the Rail Protocol to the 2001 Cape Town Convention on International Interests on Mobile Equipment, including undertaking both formal and informal consultations of the UK's principal rolling stock companies (ROSCOs) and rail industry. We have concluded that there is no advantage to the UK in ratifying the Protocol.

Park and Ride Schemes: Middlesbrough

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what support his Department plans to give to Middlesbrough's proposed park and ride facility; and if he will make a statement. [247950]

Paul Clark: The Middlesbrough Local Transport Plan (LTP2) contains aspirations to introduce park and ride facilities. The Department for Transport is making £5.46 million available to Middlesbrough over the three financial years, 2008-11, through their LTP2 integrated transport block allocation. It is for Middlesbrough to determine how best to use this capital funding to deliver the stated outcomes of its plan.

There are also proposals to improve heavy rail services in the Tees Valley through the Tees Valley Metro project. The provision of a new station at Nunthorpe Parkway with associated car parking is an element of this package. The Department is committed to working with the Tees Valley Metro promoters to help them to develop their business case and I look forward to seeing the final document in due course. Funding for part or all of these proposals will need to be identified in the Regional Funding Advice (RFA2) transport investment programme for the North East. In this respect, the RFA2 response from the North East Region is to be submitted to Government at the end of February.

Railways: Mobile Phones

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to restrict mobile telephone signal provision to some or all carriages on rail services. [248135]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport does not micro-manage train franchises. The use of mobile phones on trains is a matter for the individual train operating companies, some of whom have placed restrictions on use by designating 'quiet coaches'.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) Taleban and (b) non-Afghan fighters have been killed by (i) UK and (ii) other NATO forces in Afghanistan since 2003. [247147]

Mr. Hutton: I have nothing to add to the answer my predecessor gave on 6 May 2008, Official Report, column 832W, to the hon. Member for Romford (Andrew Rosindell) and on 1 November 2006, Official Report, column 423W, to the hon. Member for North Devon (Nick Harvey).

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent assessment he has made of the security situation in Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [248118]

Mr. Hutton: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 75W, to the hon. Member for Kettering (Mr. Hollobone).

Colombia: Drugs

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department has spent in providing counter-narcotics assistance to members of the Colombian armed forces in each year since 2000. [247146]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: We do not divulge the details of our counter-narcotics work in Colombia, including costs, because of the risk to the people concerned. The parliamentary ombudsman has upheld this approach.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress his Department's working group on sustainable catering procurement objectives has made; what recommendations it has made; and if he will make a statement. [246136]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The original working group, which looked at a range of facilities management services, reported in July 2008, but did not make any specific recommendations in respect of sustainable catering.

The Defence Food Services Integrated Project Team has established a separate sustainability working group to look specifically at sustainable catering procurement.

Achievements to date include reducing the overall carbon footprint through reductions in storage and transport of ration packs and by amending the frequency of deliveries and routes to military establishments. The Defence Food Services Integrated Project Team has also introduced a range of ethically traded products and increased the proportion of food it sources from UK suppliers; initiatives are under way to increase this further. The team has also held a sustainability launch event which aimed to give small and medium suppliers the ability to improve their own environmental management.

Departmental Procurement

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his Department's (a) pre Main Gate and (b) post Main Gate (i) category A, (ii) category B and (iii) category C procurement projects were as at 31 March in each year since 2002. [245124]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Details of the Department's pre Main Gate and post Main Gate category A, B and C equipment procurement projects at 31 March 2002, 2003 and 2004 are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

I will place a list of the Department's category A, B and C post Initial Gate Pre Main Gate and post Main Gate pre In Service Date equipment procurement projects for years ending 31 March 2005 to 2008 in the Library of the House.

Iraq and Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much the deployment of armed forces to (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan has cost in (i) 2008-09 and (ii) each year since 2003-04; and what projection he has made of the cost in 2009-10. [246932]

Mr. Hutton: The audited net additional cost to the MOD for the cost of operations in Iraq and Afghanistan from 2003-04 to 2007-08 are set out as follows:

Iraq

	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Resource Costs	1,051	747	798	787	1,055
Capital Costs	260	163	160	169	402
Total	1,311	910	958	956	1,457

Afghanistan

					£ million
	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Resource Costs	36	58	148	560	1,071
Capital Costs	10	9	51	178	433
Total	46	67	199	738	1,504

The net additional cost of operations is volatile. Nevertheless, our current forecast of costs in Iraq and Afghanistan in 2008-09 are set out in our winter supplementary estimates as follows:

Iraq, 2008-09

	£ million
Resource Costs	1,141
Capital Costs	256
Total	1,379

Afghanistan, 2008-09

	£ million
Resource Costs	1,511
Total	2,318

Our final estimate for 2008-09 will be set out in the spring supplementary estimates. Our forecast costs for operations in Iraq and Afghanistan for 2009-10 will be published in the main estimates in spring 2009.

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what time scale his Department has set for the transfer of the Merlin helicopter from operations in Iraq to Afghanistan. [247443]

Mr. Hutton: In line with the time scales set out in the Prime Minister's statement on Iraq on 18 December 2008, Official Report, columns 1233-35, the Merlin Battlefield Helicopter Force will remain fully committed to supporting UK forces in Iraq until circumstances allow for its withdrawal. We are already doing all we can to ensure a swift transition of the Merlin Force to Afghanistan, including the procurement of necessary equipment modifications for operations there. Nevertheless, we envisage a short period of around four months for the force to prepare for operations in Afghanistan after extraction from Iraq.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many armed forces personnel in each service he expects to remain in Iraq following the completion of Operation Archive. [244623]

Mr. Hutton: As the Prime Minister set out on 18 December 2008, Official Report, columns 1233-35, we will complete our remaining military tasks in Iraq by 31 May 2009 and move to a normal bilateral defence relationship. The subsequent withdrawal of our forces will be complete by 31 July. As part of the future relationship, the Government of Iraq have indicated that they would like to continue to receive military training and education from the UK. We will shortly begin discussions to establish the precise scope of this training and education, which will inform the number and breakdown by service of any UK service personnel in Iraq after 31 July. Our current assumption is that this activity would involve around 400 UK service personnel.

Operation Archive is not concerned with the overall withdrawal of UK forces by 31 July 2009. Rather, it is the name given to the periodic removal from Iraq of equipment no longer required by UK forces.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Deprived Communities

7. Mr. McCartney: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment he has made of the results of his Department's recent research on levels of aspiration in deprived communities; and if he will make a statement. [246518]

Mr. Byrne: The Aspirations research, published jointly by the Social Exclusion Taskforce, DCSF and CLG in December 2008, is highly significant and directly informs the new Inspiring Communities programme announced in the New Opportunities White Paper yesterday.

Aspirations have an important influence on young people's educational attainment. This research found that young people in some deprived areas are less likely to develop high aspirations. These areas often feature close-knit social networks; stable populations and isolation from diverse economic opportunities. Government have made great progress in deprived areas but pessimistic attitudes can be formed over generations and are hard to shift.

The Government are investing £10.1 million in a new Inspiring Communities campaign, bringing together local businesses, schools, parents and the wider community to find innovative ways to inspire young people and tackle attitudinal barriers.

Official Statistics

8. Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment he has made of the procedures governing the release or publication of official statistics by civil servants, Government special advisers and Ministers. [246519]

Kevin Brennan: The Government consulted on new rules for pre-release access to statistics in their final form early last year. It introduced secondary legislation into Parliament in the summer and following debate in both Houses the new rules came into force on 1 December. These rules substantially improve the procedures governing the release of official statistics.

Social Mobility and Economic Growth

9. Rosie Cooper: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment he has made of the effects of the Government's policies on social mobility and economic growth. [246520]

Mr. Byrne: The recently published "Getting on, getting ahead" White Paper demonstrated that while social mobility did not increase in the eighties and early nineties, new evidence suggests this might be beginning to change.

The latest academic research shows there are encouraging signs, with educational results becoming less dependent on a person's social background, more young people from low income backgrounds going to university and evidence that mobility in work is starting to rise.

The "New Opportunities" White Paper sets out how the Government will continue to address the key drivers of social mobility.

Third Sector

10. Mr. Carswell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment he has made of the cost-effectiveness of Government policies designed to build capacity in the third sector. [246521]

Kevin Brennan: The Government invest in building the capacity of the third sector through Capacitybuilders and Futurebuilders; both have commissioned independent evaluations of their programmes. The National Audit Office has also been investigating the effectiveness, impact and value for money of Government investment in building the capacity of the third sector, and plans to report early this year.

12. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what discussions he has had with representatives of the third sector on the effect on third sector organisations of the current economic climate. [246523]

Kevin Brennan: After the third sector summit on 24 November 2008, the Government announced their intention to publish an Action Plan. The third sector was asked for input to help inform the plan and more than 80 submissions have been received from third sector organisations and individuals about the impact of the economic downturn and proposed responses. The quality of this input has been high, and we plan to publish the Action Plan in the coming weeks.

Government Statistics

11. Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of procedures to prevent the premature release of Government statistics. [246522]

Kevin Brennan: Responsibility for setting and assessing good practice regarding the release of official statistics (other than pre-release access to official statistics in their final form) rests with the UK Statistics Authority. The Authority has just published its Code of Practice for Statistics, on which it consulted last year. The Government will implement the Code as it applies to the statistics they produce and use, and will take seriously any breaches of the Code.

Information: Unauthorised Disclosure

13. Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what role (a) the Cabinet Secretary and (b) his Department has in investigating unauthorised disclosures of information from Government departments. [246524]

Mr. Byrne: The role of the Cabinet Office in leak investigations was provided to the Public Administration Select Committee (PASC) by the Cabinet Secretary on Wednesday 11 December 2008. A copy of the memorandum was placed in the Libraries of the House.

Charities: Government Assistance

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what steps the Government are taking to support charities in the economic downturn. [246362]

Kevin Brennan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for South-West Norfolk (Christopher Fraser) and the hon. Member for Kettering (Mr. Hollobone) to PQs 246147 and 246535.

Damian Green

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what role the Cabinet Office played in the circumstances leading up to the recent arrest of the hon. Member for Ashford. [241588]

Mr. Byrne: The role of the Cabinet Office in leak investigations generally and in the specific investigation relating to Home Office leaks has been set out in a memorandum provided to the Public Administration Select Committee on 11 December 2008, a copy of which is available in the Libraries of the House.

Death: Cancer

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people (a) contracted skin cancer and (b) died from melanoma in the latest period for which information is available; and if he will make a statement. [247085]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated January 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many people (a) contracted skin cancer and (b) died from melanoma in the latest period for which information is available. (247085)

The latest available figures for newly diagnosed cases of cancer (incidence) are for the year 2006 while the latest figures for deaths are for the year 2007.

Table 1 below provides the number of newly diagnosed cases of malignant melanoma of skin for 2006 and the number of deaths from malignant melanoma of skin for 2007.

Table 1: Registrations of newly diagnosed cases of malignant melanoma of skin[1] in 2006 and number of deaths from malignant melanoma of skin[1] in 2007, persons: England

	Malignant melanoma of skin
Cases diagnosed in 2006	8,658
Number of deaths in 2007	1,710

[1] Malignant melanoma of skin is coded to C43 in the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10).

Death: Weather

Sarah Teather: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people died from factors attributable to cold weather in (a) each London borough and (b) each English region in each of the last 10 years. [247032]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated January 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many people died from factors attributable to cold weather in (a) each London borough and (b) each English region in each of the last 10 years. (247032)

Estimates of excess winter deaths are based on the difference between the number of deaths during the four winter months (December to March) and the average number of deaths during the preceding four months (August to November) and the following four months (April to July). It is not possible to say whether these deaths were related to cold weather. The table attached provides the number of excess winter deaths in (a) each London Borough and (b) each government office region from 1997/98 to 2006/07 (the latest available).

Mr. Byrne: The information requested is not held centrally, but a search of available records has not found any complaints about advertisements sponsored or funded by the Cabinet Office. Disclosure of Information

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will formally request the right hon. Member for Haltemprice and Howden to return to the authorities all material which he has received as a result of unauthorised disclosure to him and which he considers so sensitive it cannot be put into the public domain; and if he will make a statement. [244693]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 18 December 2008] The appropriate action to take for anyone in receipt of an unauthorised disclosure is to return the material to the relevant Government Department.

Government Communication Network

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many staff in (a) his Department and (b) its agencies (i) are classified as Government communicators and (ii) have access to the Government Communication Network. [242219]

Mr. Byrne: The Cabinet Office does not classify staff as Government communicators. Its central communications unit currently includes 28.4 full-time equivalent professional communications staff, with a further eight employed in cross-Government roles in the Government Communication team.

Any civil servant who works in a communication role can register online as an individual to gain access to GCN and the resources it provides through its website. The Cabinet Office recruits to communication roles against GCN professional competences; it also encourages staff in these roles register for GCN to build their professional skills and experience and so help to improve Government communication.

Liam Byrne

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will place in the Library a copy of the document "Working with Liam Byrne" produced for civil servants in the Cabinet Office. [241587]

Mr. Byrne: It is not normal practice to publish internal working documents. But I am always happy to update the right hon. Member personally on matters of significance.

Life Expectancy

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the life expectancy of (a) men and (b) women in (i) North Yorkshire and (ii) England was (A) in 1987, (B) in 1992, (C) in 1997, (D) in 2001, (E) in 2005 and (F) at the latest date for which information is available. [247601]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated January 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking what the life expectancy of (a) men and (b) women in (i) North Yorkshire and (ii) England was (A) in 1987, (B) in 1992, (C) in 1997, (D) in 2001, (E) in 2005 and (F) at the latest date for which information is available. (247601)

Life expectancy figures are calculated as three year rolling averages and are available from 1991-93 onwards for local authorities and government office regions. Figures for counties are only available for 2005-07, therefore figures have also been given for Yorkshire and The Humber government office region.

The table below provides the period life expectancy at birth for (a) men and (b) women in (i) North Yorkshire county, (ii) Yorkshire and The Humber and (iii) England for 1991-93, 1996-98, 2000-02, 2004-06 and 2005-07 (the latest figures available).

Table 1: Period life expectancy at birth[1], North Yorkshire county, Yorkshire and The Humber government office region and England[2], 1991-93, 1996-98, 2000-02, 2004-06 and 2005-07[3]

Years of life

Female	83	81	82

[1] Period life expectancy at birth is an estimate of the average number of years a newborn baby would survive if he or she experienced the area's age-specific mortality rates for that time period throughout his or her life. The figure reflects mortality among those living in the area in each time period, rather than mortality among those born in each area. It is not therefore the number of years a baby born in the area in each time period could actually expect to live, both because the death rates of the area are likely to change in the future and because many of those born in the area will live elsewhere for at least some part of their lives.

[2] Using boundaries as of 2008 for all the years shown.

[3] Three year rolling averages, based on deaths registered in each year and mid-year population estimates.

National Income

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the change in UK gross domestic product was in each year since 1997-98. [247605]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated January 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question requesting details of the change in gross domestic product in each year since 1997-98. (247605)

Table A provides the latest GDP figures in real terms together with the annual growth rates for each calendar year since 1997. Data for 2008 will be first available with the publication of the Preliminary Estimate of GDP for the Fourth Quarter on 23 January.

Non-profit Making Associations

Christopher Fraser: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment his Department has made of the effects on the third sector of his Department's strategy for commissioning public services. [246142]

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment he has made of the effects on the third sector of his Department's strategies for commissioning public services. [246363]

Kevin Brennan: Following the Public Administration Select Committee's report on 'Public Services and the Third Sector: Rhetoric and Reality', the Government Response was published on 11 December 2008. This included an assessment of how far the Government's vision of the state and the third sector working together at all levels and as equal partners can bring about real change in our public services. The Government welcomed the Committee's recognition of the capacity of the sector to deliver excellent and innovative public services but also acknowledged the need to build a robust evidence base that supports the case for more public and private investment in the third sector as a delivery partner. This is why, through the Office of the Third Sector, £5 million has been invested in a new third sector research centre, led by Birmingham university, which will collect and disseminate evidence about the true social and economic value of the sector to society. Government are also investing in a four-year National Programme for Third Sector Commissioning, which is providing training for up to 3,000 commissioners of public services to ensure they get the best out of working with the third sector.

Pensioners

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many (a) men and (b) women he estimates will reach state pension age between the end of the first full week in December 2008 and the end of (i) January and (ii) February 2009. [246585]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated January 2009:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your question asking how many (a) men and (b) women it is estimated will reach state pension age between the end of the first full week in December 2008 and the end of (i) January and (ii) February 2009 (246585).

The numbers of men and women projected to reach state pension age in Great Britain are:

8 December 2008 to 31 January 2009 inclusive: 46,000 males and 56,000 females

8 December 2008 to 28 February 2009 inclusive: 69,000 males and 85,000 females

These estimates are derived from the 2006-based national population projections for Great Britain published in October 2007.

Strategic Communications Unit

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what were the running costs of the Downing Street (a) strategic communications unit and (b) digital communications unit in the most recent year for which figures are available. [241773]

Mr. Byrne: The communications budget, which includes the costs associated with the Strategic Communications Unit and the Press Office, for the financial year 2007-08 was £2.46 million. For the cost of digital communications I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister to the hon. Member for North-East Hertfordshire (Mr. Heald) on 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 1482W.

Voluntary Work

Christopher Fraser: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what recent assessment he has made of the cost effectiveness of his Department's policies on support for volunteering. [246144]

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment he has made of the cost-effectiveness of his Department's policies designed to support volunteering. [246364]

Kevin Brennan: Over the 2008-11 CSR period the Office of the Third Sector will be investing £150 million in volunteering programmes. This supports a range of programmes including v, GoldStar, Volunteering for All and strategic funding to large national organisations.

The monitoring of these projects consists of formal monitoring meetings with delivery partners, tracking of volunteering numbers through the Government's Citizenship Survey and, where appropriate, external programme evaluations.

In relation to the specific programmes, recent assessments show that v has created 875,000 volunteering opportunities since its launch in 2006, the GoldStar programme has run a programme of activities to promote good practice in volunteering and Volunteering for All has successfully delivered a number of campaigns to promote volunteering to groups at risk of social exclusion.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the reason was for the time taken to reply to the hon. Member for Thurrock's question 231272 on assistant regional Ministers, tabled on 23 October 2008; and on what date a final draft answer was submitted to him for approval. [241210]

Mr. Byrne: I have nothing further to add to the answer provided to my hon. Friend on 24 November 2008.

Young People

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many (a) male and (b) female 18-year-olds there were in each year since 2005; and how many of each there are expected to be in each year to 2015. [247129]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated January 2009:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your question regarding how many (a) male and (b) female 18-year-olds there were in each year since 2005 and what the Office for National Statistics projects the number of 18-year-olds to be in each year to 2015. (247129)

The table below shows the United Kingdom population of males and females aged 18 for each year from 2005 to 2015. The figures up to and including 2007 are population estimates. The most recent national population projections, based on the population at the middle of 2006, have been used to provide the estimated population aged 18 from 2008 to 2015.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Aimhigher Programme

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills which Aimhigher projects are focused primarily on primary school pupils; and what the cost of each was in the last 12 months. [247136]

Mr. Lammy: Aimhigher projects are delivered through the 44 area-based Aimhigher partnerships of schools, colleges and universities. Partnerships submit plans to the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE), summarising the type of activities they intend to undertake. However, they are not required to detail their activities with primary schools separately and do not set out the costs of individual activities.

From 2004 to 2007, HEFCE supported the 'Professor Fluffy' project based at the University of Liverpool. £274,000 was provided jointly from Aimhigher and HEFCE's own funds. The 'Professor Fluffy' project aims to raise awareness of higher education at an early age. In 2004, Professor Fluffy started a tour of primary schools in Greater Merseyside. In a project called 'Professor Fluffy's Greater Merseyside Primary Roadshow', year five and six pupils take part in a range of activities aimed at raising aspirations and introducing the vocabulary of higher education. The project reaches over 140 primary schools a year in Greater Merseyside of which 30 also participate in a visit into one of the colleges or universities. Professor Fluffy's resources are linked to the key stage 2 national curriculum and include the Professor Fluffy comic book, activity booklet and over 20 curriculum modules, e.g. five modern languages and a variety of STEM subjects. The children, and their parents, are also able to access Professor Fluffy's own interactive website which has had over a million pages viewed over the last couple of years. At the end of the programme each pupil receives a special Professor Fluffy certificate in a 'graduation ceremony' to celebrate their participation, together with their very own Professor Fluffy. In addition to the roadshow and university visits, a teachers' pack, offering five sessions, will be available shortly for purchase by schools. The Professor Fluffy concept and delivery models have been franchised to over 20 partners across the country. So far, Professor Fluffy has visited over 350 primary schools and talked to 30,000 primary pupils and their parents.

Higher Education: Finance

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills when he expects the higher education funding review to commence; when he expects the results of the review to be published; and what schedule has been set for the implementation of the review's recommendations. [247173]

Mr. Lammy: The assurances we have previously given this House made clear that there would be an independent review of tuition fees, reporting to the House, once we had evidence on the first three years of the variable fee regime. The first three years of operation will not be concluded until this autumn. The timing and duration of the review and the publication of its results will enable us to fulfil the commitment given to the House in 2004 that there will be no vote before 2010 at the earliest, and to enable the review to present Parliament with an evidence-based report covering the full range of the issues it has been asked to consider through its terms of reference. It will then be for the House to consider how to respond to any recommendations.

Part-time Education

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what estimate he has made of changes in the numbers of part-time students from higher education courses over the period of the next higher education funding review. [247174]

Mr. Lammy: Numbers of part-time students in England have increased by over 200,000 to some 770,000 in 2006-07 since 1997-98 and we will continue to support increased HE participation in future. Our grant letters to HEFCE set out the expected growth in core fundable students (in full-time equivalent terms); however, no distinction between full-time and part-time students is made. Our plans allow for an increase of 30,000 full-time equivalent places by 2009-10 compared with 2007-08.

PRIME MINISTER

Intelligence Services

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Prime Minister what assessment he has made of the effect of the current economic situation on the budgets of the security services. [245843]

The Prime Minister: My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Darling) set out the additional provisions for the single intelligence account for 2008-11 in the 2007 pre-Budget report and comprehensive spending review: "Meeting the Aspirations of the British People" (Cm 7227). Copies are available in the Library of the House.

Opposition

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Prime Minister what preparations are in hand to provide briefing by civil servants to the Official Opposition and the Liberal Democrats in advance of the next general election. [246510]

The Prime Minister: I have written to Opposition parties on this matter.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Attorney-General for Northern Ireland: Public Appointments

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 11 December 2007, Official Report, columns 267-8W, on the Attorney-General for Northern Ireland: public appointments, what consultations his Department had in respect of arrangements for the appointment of the Attorney General for Northern Ireland. [245013]

Paul Goggins: The appointment of the Attorney-General for Northern Ireland is a matter for the First Minister and Deputy First Minister.

Departmental Drinking Water

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland with reference to the answer of 24 November 2008, Official Report, column 881W, on departmental hospitality, which companies provided the bottled water. [243248]

Mr. Woodward: The companies that provided bottled water were as follows:

Antrim Hills Spring Water,
Ballygowan;
Classic Mineral Water.

Departmental Telephone Services

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many telephone numbers for which callers are charged at the rate applicable to 0845 numbers are used by (a) his Department and (b) its executive agencies for public access to services. [246985]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Office and its executive agencies use two telephone numbers for which callers are charged at the rate applicable to 0845 numbers. One number is used by the Department and one by an executive agency.

Inquiries

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which legal firms have worked on the Billy Wright inquiry; for what periods; who each firm represented; how much his Department has spent on legal fees for the inquiry; how much has been spent in the inquiry in each month since it was established; and when the inquiry is expect to report. [243380]

Mr. Woodward: I am advised by the Billy Wright inquiry that the following legal firms have worked on it:

Legal firm	Period of engagement	Representation
Cleaver Fulton and Rankin Solicitors	January 2006	Legal services to the inquiry
John McAtamney and Co	April 2008[1]	David Wright
Crown Solicitors Office	February 2005[1]	A number of prison governors and officers
Treasury Solicitors	April 2007[1]	Northern Ireland Prison Service, and the Northern Ireland Office
McCartan Turkington Breen Solicitors	March 2007[1]	Police Service of Northern Ireland
Diamond Heron Solicitors	January 2005[1]	Prison Officers Association

[1] To date.

In accordance with the Billy Wright inquiry's published funding protocol, witnesses to the inquiry are also entitled to reasonable legal advice at the inquiry's expense and a number of firms have represented witnesses:

Legal firm	Period of engagement
Bircham Dyson Bell Solicitors	September 2008
Campbell and Caher Solicitors	March 2006
Edwards and Co Solicitors	December 2006
Ferguson and Co Solicitors	February 2007
Hart Coyle Collins Solicitors	August 2007
John J Rice and Company	April 2007
McBurney and Company Solicitors	April 2008
Madden and Finucane Solicitors	September 2007
O'Rorke McDonald and Tweed Solicitors	March 2006
Reid Black and Co Solicitors	July 2005
Trevor Smyth and Co Solicitors	August 2006 to April 2007
Corker Binning Solicitors	November 2007
Donnelly and Wall Solicitors	November 2008
McConnell Kelly and Co Solicitors	June 2005
Morrison and Broderick Solicitors	September 2006
S.C. Connolly Solicitors	November 2007

Some of these firms have represented only anonymous witnesses, some have represented only witnesses seen in public, and some have represented both. For security (to preserve anonymity) and public interest reasons (not all the witnesses of either type have yet been called to give evidence) it is not felt appropriate to release even the names of the 'public' witnesses before the end of the hearings. Once witnesses are called to give oral evidence the name of their legal representative is published on the inquiry website.

The total cost incurred by the Billy Wright inquiry for legal fees is £6.89 million.

The monthly spend of the inquiry is as follows:

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Advertising: Complaints

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many complaints were made to the Advertising Standards Authority regarding adverts sponsored or funded by his Department and its predecessor in each year since 1997; and how many were upheld. [242077]

Mr. McFadden: Central records indicate that no complaints have been made to the Advertising Standards Authority regarding advertisements sponsored or funded by the Department or its predecessor, the DTI, in any year since 1997.

Companies: Mentally Ill

Paul Rowen: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many people have been removed from company boards on mental health grounds in each of the last five years. [241990]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 9 December 2008]: There is no statistical breakdown available for the reasons why directors ceased to hold their appointments as there is no requirement for a company to give a reason for a director ceasing to hold appointment when, as required, it notifies the registrar of any change in its directors.

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many (a) letters and (b) e-mails received by his Department had not been responded to as at 15 December 2008. [244723]

Mr. McFadden: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members/peers correspondence. Information relating to 2008 will be published as soon as it has been collated. The report for 2007 was published on 20 March 2008, Official Report, columns 71-74WS. Reports for earlier years are available in the Libraries of the House.

In respect of e-mails, this Department will not be able to provide the information without incurring disproportionate cost. To do so would require gathering information from every official in the Department.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much has been spent on (a) departmental Christmas parties and (b) staff entertainment in the last three years. [243739]

Mr. McFadden: No official funds have been used for Christmas parties in the last three years. The Department does not separately record amounts spent on staff entertainment and figures could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will make it his policy to ensure that temporary and permanent employees at the same grade and at an hourly rate by his Department are paid at the same rate. [244399]

Mr. McFadden: Staff employed by the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) on short-term contracts are paid under the same pay systems that apply to permanent staff in BERR. They are salaried workers and are not paid at an hourly rate.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much has been allocated for bonuses for staff within his Department in 2008-09. [246589]

Mr. McFadden: The Department for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform awards non-consolidated bonuses in two formats:

1. Special bonuses to recognise performance in particularly demanding tasks or situations. Staff in receipt of a special bonus may also receive an annual performance award.

2. Annual performance awards paid to highly successful performers as part of the annual pay award.

Based on the information available the total amount spent on annual performance awards in 2008-09 is £2,240,592. Information on special bonuses paid in 2008-09 is not yet available, however the maximum expenditure is 0.4 per cent. of pay bill, in 2007-08 this was approximately £693,386.

This figure includes staff who were transferred from BERR to DECC as part of the October 2008 Machinery of Government changes as these staff received a BERR pay award in 2008.

Departmental Sick Pay

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much sick pay to staff in his Department cost in the last five years for which figures are available. [242224]

Mr. McFadden: The estimated total cost of sickness absence in the Department in each year from 2003 to 2007 is as follows:

	Average cost[1] (£)
2008 (to November 2008)	1,650,240
2007	1,947,436
2006	2,213,308
2004	3,375,352

[1] Cost calculated for all years using the full-time equivalent figure for the Department in each of the last five years and the figure of £764 average cost per person sick (all staff), used in the "Analysis of Sickness absence in the civil service 2007" report published on the public civil service website at:
http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/statistics/sickness.asp
along with data for other Departments and agencies.

Japan: Trade

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps the Government are taking to promote trade between Japan and the United Kingdom. [245291]

Mr. Thomas: Through UK Trade and Investment, the Government support initiatives and provide services across a range of sectors for UK companies seeking to do business in Japan, with a clear focus on activity that delivers maximum added value for business and the UK economy.

Royal Mail

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when he plans to meet the Select Committee on Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform to discuss the Hooper report. [245821]

Mr. McFadden: I am happy to meet the Select Committee to discuss the Hooper Report when invited to do so.

My right hon. and noble Friend the Secretary of State appeared before the Select Committee for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) today.

Woolworths

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what options his Department has to assist Woolworths in the current economic climate; and if he will make a statement. [244340]

Ian Pearson: The company is in administration and the administrators are in charge. We have been closely following the administrators' efforts to find purchasers for Woolworths' stores and its wholesale business though neither Woolworths' management nor its administrators have requested any Government assistance.

The Insolvency Service is doing all it can to get payments to those employees made redundant as soon as possible.

Yorkshire Forward

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the benefit to the local economy arising from the operation of Yorkshire Forward since 2006. [246169]

Mr. McFadden: The Government have commissioned PricewaterhouseCoopers to conduct an independent evaluation of the economic impact of RDAs. Their report has just been completed and I will be presenting it to the House shortly.

TREASURY

Child Tax Credit

Steve Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many families claimed children's tax credit for 2002-03; if he will estimate the number of families who were eligible for the credit in that year; what the last date is on which claims for that year may be submitted; and if he will make a statement. [247170]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) on 14 July 2005, Official Report, column 1173W, and to paragraph 5.11 of Budget 2002, which can be found on the HM Treasury website at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/d/Budget 2002.pdf

Claims for children's tax credit for tax year 2002-03 must be submitted to HMRC by 31 January 2009.

Children: Day Care

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to his Statement of 24 November 2008, Official Report, columns 489-504, on the Pre-Budget Report, what form the proposed trials of systems to make child care payments more closely reflect child care costs are to take; where and when they are planned to take place; and when the results will be made available. [246899]

Mr. Timms: New Opportunities, published on 13 January 2009, provides further details on the pilots to make child care payments that more closely reflect child care costs at the time they are incurred. The document also announces the forthcoming publication of a refresh to the 10-year child care strategy, which will contain additional information on the pilots.

Cox Review

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) total and (b) staffing cost of the Cox review of creativity in business was. [247437]

Angela Eagle: The cost of the design, printing and distribution of the report of the Cox review of creativity in business, excluding internal staffing costs, was £34,420. half of which was met by the then Department of Trade and Industry. Any Treasury internal staffing costs associated with the review formed part of general departmental staff costs and are not therefore available separately.

Non-domestic Rates: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment has been made of the effect on the economy of the changes to business rates in ports made by the Valuation Office Agency. [245977]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

It is not the Government's practice to make any specific assessment of the overall effect on the British economy of particular tax bills issued in the normal course of business under existing legislation. The legislation under which the VOA is operating is designed to ensure fairness in the tax system, so that businesses using similar properties face equivalent tax liabilities regardless of their location.

Private Finance Initiative

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the total capital value of all (a) operational and (b) non-operational signed private finance initiative projects is for (i) Government Departments, (ii) local authorities, (iii) the NHS, (iv) police authorities and (v) Government agencies; [247606]

(2) how many signed private finance initiative projects have become operational since 1997. [247607]

Angela Eagle: The full list of all signed PFI projects can be found on HM Treasury's website at:

www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/ppp_pfi_stats.htm.

For each PFI project, this list details the project name, the capital value, the constituency, the procuring authority and the annual unitary charge that needs to be paid over the life of the contract.

Welfare Tax Credits

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) in how many and what proportion of disputed tax credit cases the liabilities were (a) wholly and (b) partly written off in each month since April 2003; [246901]

(2) how many and what proportion of tax credit claims were disputed in each month between April 2003 and April 2008. [246902]

Mr. Timms: The Tax Credit Office does not separately record whether an overpayment is written off in part or in full.

For information up to and including 2007-08, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave her on 13 October 2008, Official Report, columns 1010-11W.

The corresponding information for October and November 2008 is provided in the following table:

	Households
2008	Number of newly disputed overpayments
October	20,400
November	15,700

WORK AND PENSIONS

Airwave Service

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many Airwave handsets issued to his Department's Fraud Investigation Service have been lost in each year since their introduction; and how many handsets issued to the service have been disabled by the service provider through (a) loss, (b) breakage and (c) other reasons in each such year. [246191]

Jonathan Shaw: The information is as follows:

(a) The Airwave service went live in the DWP in August 2007, and in the 2007-08 year, one radio was lost and disabled. Since then no radios have been lost.

(b) There have been no breakages to radio terminals that have necessitated a terminal to be disabled.

(c) In one or two instances the radios fitted to surveillance vehicles can be difficult to remove, so when these vehicles are in for routine mechanical servicing the radios are temporarily disabled, as a precaution, for the duration of the service.

Cold Weather Payments: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of households in (a) Hemel Hempstead, (b) Hertfordshire and (c) the UK which will be eligible for cold weather payments if the temperature falls below the level which triggers payment of the allowance in 2008-09. [243988]

Kitty Ussher: The temperature criterion for cold weather payments is that the average temperature has been recorded as, or is forecast to be, 0° C or below over seven consecutive days at the weather station linked to the customer's postcode.

The estimated number of benefit units[1] eligible for cold weather payments is not available by local authority, parliamentary constituency or county, but only by weather station.

The estimated number of benefit units[1] eligible for cold weather payments in Great Britain in 2008-09 if the temperature criterion is met is 4.1 million.

[1] Cold weather payments are made to benefit units rather than households. For example, a disabled adult on income support living with his mother on pension credit counts as two benefit units but would be thought of as one household.

Notes:

1. The estimate is the one most recently available, but it is only an estimate.

2. Estimates of the number of benefit units eligible for cold weather payments are not available by parliamentary constituency or county.

3. Information regarding cold weather payments in Northern Ireland is a matter for the Northern Ireland office, estimates of the number of households eligible for cold weather payments are not available.

Housing Benefit

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average processing time was for (a) new housing benefit claims and (b) reassessed housing benefit claims (i) in total and (ii) in each of the smallest geographical areas for which figures are available in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [246597]

Kitty Ussher: The available information has been placed in the Library.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average length of time was for a housing benefit claim to be suspended pending a reassessment following notification of a change of circumstances (a) in total and (b) in each of the smallest geographical areas for which figures are available in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [246598]

Kitty Ussher: The information is not available.

Income Support: Ex-servicemen

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 16 December 2008, Official Report, column 616W, on income support: ex-servicemen, what proportion of the weekly payments of compensation schemes are disregarded; and if he will make a statement. [246761]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 12 January 2009]: Normally for the income-related benefits, all income is taken into account, with disregards available only in specific circumstances.

Payments to ex-servicemen attract a disregard of £10 when calculating entitlement to income support and the other income-related benefits.

This disregard, which gives war pensioners an advantage over other disabled groups, is paid in recognition of the special nature of these payments.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many individuals receiving jobseeker's allowance were (a) UK born and (b) non-UK born, broken down by (i) local authority area and (ii) Government Office region, in each year since 1997; [247165]

(2) how many individuals receiving housing benefit were (a) UK born and (b) non-UK born, broken down by (i) local authority area and (ii) Government Office region, in each year since 1997. [247166]

Mr. McNulty: The information is not available; benefit systems do not record place of birth.

Local Housing Allowance

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of local housing allowance payments have been made (a) directly to tenants, (b) directly to landlords on grounds of the tenant's vulnerability and (c) directly to landlords on the grounds that the tenant has rent arrears in excess of eight weeks, since April 2008. [247618]

Kitty Ussher: This information is not available.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department is taking to monitor the effectiveness of the implementation of provisions within local housing allowance regulations for local authorities to make direct payment to landlords in cases where claimants are vulnerable. [247619]

Kitty Ussher: The Department is undertaking a review of local housing allowance over the two years from the commencement of its national roll-out in April 2008. As part of this review, we will be monitoring the effectiveness of direct payments to landlords in cases of vulnerable claimant.

Means Tested Benefits

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which benefits provided by his Department take account of assumed interest on saving in calculating entitlements; how frequently assumed interest rates are reviewed; when the last such review took place; what the assumed rate of interest is; and if he will make a statement. [246358]

Kitty Ussher: Tariff income rules apply to all the income-related benefits for which the Department is responsible: income support; income-based jobseekers allowance; income-based employment and support allowance; pension credit; housing benefit; and council tax benefit.

For the information about tariff income, I refer the hon. Member to the written answer given to the hon. Member for Newcastle upon Tyne, Central (Jim Cousins) on 15 December 2008, Official Report, columns 418-19W.

National Workload Forecasts

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what (a) methodology and (b) assumptions Jobcentre Plus uses in calculating its national workload forecasts; and if he will make a statement; [245479]

(2) how often Jobcentre Plus updates its national workload forecasts; and what period is covered by each forecast. [245481]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 12 January 2009]: A common methodology is used to produce the projections of workloads across the benefits, based on the estimates of caseload and new awards of benefit required to forecast benefit expenditure, and published at the pre-Budget report and the Budget. The caseload and new claims are projected using the most appropriate demographic, benefit payment, operational and policy information, and project forward Jobcentre Plus management information. The projections are also adjusted to take into account any seasonality in volumes.

The underlying assumptions vary according to the benefit, but are based on projecting forward recent trends, taking into account changes in relevant factors that are expected in the future. The number of assumptions underlying the projection is very large and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Jobcentre Plus updates its national workload projection once a quarter, on 31 January, 30 April, 31 July and 31 October. Each projection covers the period up to 2020-21.

Post Office Card Account

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will place in the Library a copy of the (a) invitation to tender, (b) specifications and (c) descriptive documents relating to the Post Office card account tender process. [245474]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 12 January 2009]: As my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State announced to the House in his statement of 13 November 2008, the procurement exercise for a successor to the Post Office card account has been halted and instead another contract will be awarded to Post Office Ltd.

The tender process never reached a final conclusion. We have already published the notice that appeared in the Official Journal of the European Union (already in the Library) which set out what we intended to procure.

We do not intend to publish any other related documents.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the change in revenue which the Post Office will experience as a result of the award of the Post Office card account contract in each year of the contract period. [245475]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 12 January 2009]: The Government are in the process of agreeing the detailed terms of a new contract with Post Office Ltd. The amounts to be paid to Post Office Ltd. will depend on a number of factors including customer behaviour. The financial details of the contract will remain commercially confidential.

Poverty: Children

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many children were living in absolute low income in each region in each of the last 10 years. [244453]

Kitty Ussher: Specific information regarding low income for the United Kingdom is available in "Households Below Average Income 1994/95-2006/07".

Information on the numbers of children below 60 per cent. of 1998-99 median income by region is set out in the following table. Three survey year averages are given for each of the regions as robust single year estimates cannot be produced because of volatility in estimates.

Number of children living in households with less than 60 per cent of absolute 1998-99 median household income held constant in real terms, by region or country: 1996-97-1998-99 to 2004-05-2006-07

Notes:

1. These statistics are based on Households Below Average Income data.
2. Small differences should be treated with caution as these will be affected by sampling error and variability in non-response.
3. The reference period for Households Below Average Income figures is single financial years. Three sample years have been combined as regional single year estimates are subject to volatility.
4. The income measures used to derive the estimates shown employ the same methodology as the Department for Work and Pensions publication "Households Below Average Income" series, which uses disposable household income, adjusted (or "equivalised") for household size and composition, as an income measure as a proxy for standard of living. Median incomes are used as the national average in the publication.
5. The figures are based on OECD equalisation factors.
6. Figures have been presented on both a Before Housing Cost and After Housing Cost basis. For Before Housing Cost, housing costs (such as rent, water rates, mortgage interest payments, structural insurance payments and ground rent and service charges) are not deducted from income, while for After Housing Cost they are.
7. Data for Northern Ireland are only available from 1998-99 to 2000-01 onwards.
8. Numbers of children in low-income households have been rounded to the nearest 100,000 children.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many children lived in (a) absolute and (b) relative poverty in each year between 1979 and 1997. [246581]

Kitty Ussher: The available information on the number of children living in relative and absolute low income since 1979 is given in tables 4.3tr and 4.4tr of the Households Below Average Income publication, published in June 2008, which is available in the Library.

Information is not available for all years requested.

Social Fund

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many Social Fund cases are currently being handled clerically; and if he will make a statement. [245450]

Kitty Ussher: The information requested is not available.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent estimate he has made of the monetary value of all social fund loans awaiting recovery. [245456]

Kitty Ussher: Recoveries from social fund loans are recycled in the form of new loans. This means that, at the end of a financial year, the amount outstanding on all social fund loans is the total that the Government have invested in the social fund since its inception (apart from write-offs).

At 31 March 2008, the amount outstanding on all social fund loans in Great Britain was £906 million.

Notes:

1. social fund loans consist of Budgeting Loans and Crisis Loans.
2. The figure includes amounts outstanding on loans which have been partially repaid.

Social Fund: Funerals

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average length of time taken to process a funeral payment was in the latest period for which information is available; what the target time is; and if he will make a statement. [245816]

Kitty Ussher: The information requested is given in the table.

Average length of time taken to process a funeral payment claim in Great Britain

Time period	Achieved (working days)	Standard (working days)
November 2008	13.9	16

Notes:

1. The processing time for an individual claim is measured in whole working days from the date of receipt of the claim to the date of the decision, inclusive.
The minimum processing time recorded for an individual claim is one day, even if the claim is processed immediately.
2. The figures are based on claims processed in the relevant time period not on claims received in that time period.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Allotments

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the statement by the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State of 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 236WH, on allotments, if she will make it her policy to extend the legislative protections which prevent allotments from being classified as previously developed land to residential gardens. [246036]

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what timetable she has set for her Department's review of the practice known as garden grabbing; and whether she plans to appoint an independent panel to conduct the review. [246383]

John Healey: As I confirmed to the House during the passage of the Planning Act, on 24 November 2009, Official Report, column 532, we are committed to a review of the evidence on the extent of development on back gardens to establish whether or not there is a clear and genuine problem. If there is a problem, we will consider action to remedy the situation, only if it would not undermine our objectives on housing.

The terms of the review are due to be decided shortly, and we will publish the information.

Community Development

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's 2005 publication,

"Citizen Engagement and Public Services", what progress has been made on plans to introduce neighbourhood improvement districts. [245989]

John Healey: We have no plans to legislate for neighbourhood improvement districts at this time.

Community Relations

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many local authorities have set up the multi-agency tension monitoring groups referred to in the document, "Guidance for local authorities on community cohesion, contingency planning and tension monitoring", published in May 2008; what the estimated running cost will be of such monitoring groups is; and if she will make a statement; [245550]

(2) how many local authorities have submitted to their Government Office monthly tension monitoring reports referred to in paragraph 66 of the publication, "Guidance for local authorities on community cohesion, contingency planning and tension monitoring", published in May 2008; and what use the Government make of these monthly reports; [245551]

(3) what safeguards exist to prevent people from misusing the tension monitoring groups referred to in the report, "Guidance for local authorities on community cohesion, contingency planning and tension monitorin", published in May 2008, in relation to local grievances; [245553]

(4) what procedures will exist to enable individuals to appeal against inaccurate data about themselves gathered under the tension monitoring arrangements referred to in the report, "Guidance for local authorities on community cohesion, , contingency planning and tension monitoring", published in May 2008. [245554]

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Beckenham of 13 October 2008, Official Report, column 983W, on local authorities: surveillance, which local authorities are now undertaking tension monitoring according to records held by her Department. [245937]

Mr. Khan: Communities and Local Government does not hold a record of the number of local authorities who have set up multi-agency monitoring groups. Tension monitoring and contingency planning is about local partnership working and it is for local authorities to determine the systems they have in place and budget allocation needed to ensure they are able to effectively monitor tensions in their local areas.

The number of local authorities that submit monthly tension monitoring reports can vary each month. Communities and Local Government is therefore unable to keep a consistent record of the number of local authorities who submit monthly tension monitoring returns. We use the monthly reports to identify challenges to cohesion and to identify possible trends; this information is used to inform our strategy for supporting local authorities.

All contributors to the tension monitoring process are required to adhere to the principles of data collection set out in the Data Protection Act 1998. Each organisation that makes a contribution to tension monitoring should have local information sharing protocols in place.

The personal details of individual details are not required for tension monitoring reports. If an individual was mentioned it would be in the context of any civil arrangements brought by the local authority or as a result of any criminal procedures through the police/courts.

Council Tax

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what timetable her Department has set for council tax bills to be issued which include efficiency information. [245902]

John Healey: The first council tax demand notices served on a person in respect of the 2009-10 financial year will be required to include efficiency information. The Council Tax and Non-Domestic Rating (Demand Notices) (England) (Amendment) (No.2) Regulations 2008 (SI 2008/3264), which implement this requirement, were laid before Parliament on 22 December.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the specification for the Valuation Office Agency's council tax banding support tool. [245907]

John Healey: The specification of the Valuation Office Agency's council tax banding support tool is subject to commercial confidentiality. Accordingly, it will not be placed in the Library.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what percentage of the IT systems in (a) her Department and (b) its agencies are fully accredited to the Government's security standards. [245382]

Mr. Khan: All IT systems within CLG and its agencies that handle protectively marked data are subject to Government security standards and processes. All such systems are accredited to the appropriate Government security standard.

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department's central media and communication unit spent on public surveys in each of the last three years. [248033]

Mr. Khan: This information is not held in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Eco-Towns: Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 3 November 2008, Official Report, column 122W, on eco-towns, how much funding has been (a) provided to date and (b) committed for the future to the Town and Country Planning Association in relation to work on eco-towns; and for what purposes. [245926]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 25 November 2008, Official Report, column 1266W. This set out details about the funding and work undertaken by the Town and Country Planning Association in relation to the eco-towns programme.

Fires

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many electrical fires have occurred in newly rewired or newly built properties in England in each of the last five years. [247115]

Mr. Khan: Fire and rescue services in England do not collect information on property construction dates or a history of electrical maintenance in buildings when attending fires. Information on the number of building fires started by electrics is available in the following table. The latest statistics available are for 2007.

Housing: Low Incomes

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many responses she received to her Department's recent consultation on community land trusts; who the respondents were; and when she plans to bring forward proposals on (a) regulation and (b) funding of community land trusts. [248181]

Mr. Iain Wright: The consultation closed on 31 December 2008. The Government received 63 responses from a variety of stakeholders. We are currently analysing the responses and will be publishing a summary in the near future.

Improvement and Development Agency

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding the Improvement and Development Agency will receive from her Department in (a) 2008-09 and (b) each of the following two years. [245529]

John Healey: The funding the Department will provide to the Improvement and the Development Agency under the revenue support grant is as follows:

2008-09	28,730,000
2009-10	32,170,000
2010-11	25,335,000

Note:
As proposed in the provisional local government finance settlement 2009-10.

Local Government: Data Protection

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department has made of numbers of data losses by local authorities in the last 12 months. [246007]

Mr. Khan: This is a matter for individual local authorities who, like all public sector organisations are required to comply with data protection legislation.

The Local Government Association (LGA) have recently published "Data Handling Guidelines for Local Government" to complement the Central Government Data Handling Guidelines published by the Cabinet Office. We welcome the LGA guidelines and my officials were consulted on their publication. They are available online at:

http://www.idea.gov.uk/idk/core/page.do?pageId=9040133

Non-Domestic Rates: Licensed Premises

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 28 October 2008, Official Report, columns 887-88W, on non-domestic rates: valuation, what steps (a) her Department and (b) the Valuation Office Agency has taken to raise awareness amongst the licensees of licensed premises of the change of policy on material changes of circumstances arising from the prohibition of smoking on licensed premises. [245965]

John Healey: On 11 November 2008 I personally wrote to the main trade associations representing public house operators and occupiers to help ensure that their members are clear about the change in approach to the rating assessments for pubs following the introduction of the smoking ban.

The chief executive's office of the Valuation Office Agency (VOA) was in direct contact concerning this issue with representatives of those same trade associations back in June—very shortly after receipt of the legal advice which prompted the change of view on the validity of proposals to reduce rating assessments on account of the ban.

The VOA was in regular contact with the various representatives and in particular the rating advisor to the British Beer and Pub Association throughout the summer.

Staff in VOA local offices made every effort to contact those pubs who had made proposals earlier on, which were then treated as invalid, to tell them about the change of view. Various members of staff made presentations to local rating forums/trade groups in order to heighten awareness.

An article has recently been published in the Morning Advertiser (a widely read licensed trade magazine)—primarily this provides answers to questions about the 2010 rating revaluation, but also the opportunity was taken to further clarify the smoking ban issue.

Non-Domestic Rates: Ports

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what (a) internal and (b) external legal opinions her Department has received on (i) changes to business rates for ports and (ii) associated new forms of valuation. [246051]

John Healey: The Secretary of State and Ministers take advice from all appropriate quarters on changes to legislation.

Place Surveys

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with what frequency local authorities are required to conduct place surveys, broken down by authority (a) type and (b) tier; and what estimate she has made of the average cost of a survey to a local authority. [245988]

John Healey: The place survey will be conducted once every two years in every local authority area in England, regardless of authority type or tier. Fieldwork for the 2008 place survey took place between September and December 2008. The next place survey is therefore due to take place in the autumn of 2010.

Further information, including the timetable for the place survey, can be found at the Communities and Local Government website:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/localgovernment/placesurveymanual0809.

The latest estimate of the cost to a local authority of conducting a single years place survey puts the figure at £15,000. This estimate takes into account a range of costs related to survey administration including staffing, printing and postage costs.

Planning Obligations

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of local authorities who have access to section 106 monies for the purpose of building social housing which have not yet spent this money; and if she will make a statement. [246865]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information on the number and value of agreed planning obligations for affordable housing by each local authority is not collected centrally. However, the Department for Communities and Local Government has produced research reports into the value of planning obligations in England for 2003-04 and 2005-06 based on a sample of authorities across the country. These reports are available on the Department's website. New research covering 2007-08 has been commissioned and will be published in the summer.

The findings estimate the total value of affordable housing agreed using planning obligations has risen from around £1.2 billion in 2003-04 to £2 billion in 2005-06. Of this amount for 2005-06 £211.5 million was estimated to be attributed to agreed direct payments and the remainder account for in-kind payments. The value of affordable housing delivered in 2005-06 was estimated at £1.4 billion. The estimated value of affordable housing delivered against agreements should be considered in context, as not all of the permissions to which the agreements are attached will be implemented and some others will be renegotiated.

The Government are clear that local authorities should be open and accountable over the collection and use of s106 monies. We will explore whether more can be done to strengthen this local accountability through the Empowerment White Paper published in July 2008.

Regional Improvement Efficiency Partnerships

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many staff are employed by regional improvement efficiency partnerships (RIEPs) in each region; and how many staff in each RIEP work on cohesion-related issues. [245532]

John Healey: Information on staff employed by regional improvement efficiency partnerships (RIEPs) is not held centrally. The National Improvement and Efficiency Strategy devolves responsibility to RIEPs for identifying where resources should be spent and using their resources in the best way to obtain the help they may need to assist councils and support to drive LAA outcomes. This is in line with the 2006 Local Government White Paper's aim to devolve power to local areas and the communities they represent and so improve local service delivery and quality of life for local people.

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much each regional improvement efficiency partnership will spend on cohesion and integration issues in (a) 2008-09 and (b) each of the following two years. [245533]

John Healey: Information on how much the regional improvement and efficiency partnerships will spend on cohesion and integration issues is not held centrally. The National Improvement and Efficiency Strategy devolves responsibility to RIEPs for identifying where resources should be spent and using their resources in the best way to obtain the help they may need to assist councils and support to drive LAA outcomes. This is in line with the 2006 Local Government White Paper's aim to devolve power to local areas and the communities they represent and so improve local service delivery and quality of life for local people.

Regional Planning and Development: South East

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people have responded to the south-east plan proposals (a) via the website of the Government office for the south- east and (b) via the official consultation form. [247169]

Mr. Khan: The Government office for the south-east is still in the process of logging responses. The following is an approximation:

(a) People responding via the website: 146

(b) People responding via the official form: 3,673.

In addition we have received 4,845 by other methods. All will be considered carefully.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many responses to the south-east plan have been received from addresses in the Guildford borough council area. [247178]

Mr. Khan: We have so far identified over 4,800 responses from addresses in the Guildford borough council area. My officials need to do further work to confirm all final numbers.

Rented Housing: Greater London

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many private sector landlords in London own fewer than 10 properties; and what proportion housing stock in London such properties represent. [246803]

Mr. Iain Wright: Based on the Private Landlords Survey for 2006, indications of the number of small landlords have only been modelled at the national level. The limited sample size is insufficient to provide a robust basis for deriving model-based regional estimates.

It is estimated that 72 per cent. of all private sector landlords in England in 2006 had portfolios of fewer than 10 properties.

Rented Housing: Private Sector

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the change has been in (a) the size of the private rented sector and (b) average mortgage costs since 2000. [246827]

Mr. Iain Wright: Based on the Survey of English Housing, average private rents in England (net of charges for services) are estimated to have risen from £92 per week in 2000-01 to £123 per week in 2006-07, an increase of 34 per cent.

For households in England who were repaying a mortgage, average mortgage payments were £86 per week in 2000-01 and £131 per week in 2006-07—an increase of 52 per cent.

Social Services: Coastal Areas

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department has taken on the Communities and Local Government Committee's recommendation in its Second Report of Session 2006-07, on coastal towns, HC 351, that the Government need to take action to reduce the number of out-of-area placements and to ensure that when children are placed out of their local area there is improved communication between authorities. [244282]

Beverley Hughes: I have been asked to reply.

The Committee's report on coastal towns raised the important issue of the difficulties that can arise when looked-after children are placed away from their home area. We are determined that every looked-after child must be provided with the appropriate support by the local authorities responsible for their care.

The Children and Young Persons Act 2008 recently received Royal Assent and section 8 sets out the considerations that local authorities must have regard to when they are considering making a placement for a looked-after child. This includes giving first consideration as far as is reasonably practicable to a placement being near a child's home and within the local authority's area. We will be issuing regulations and statutory guidance on section 8 which will provide more detail about the responsibilities of placing authorities. This will include that where children have to be placed at a distance from their home areas, the placement is the most suitable to meet their needs; and that relevant information about the child is shared with the local authority in the area where the child has been placed. Furthermore, section 16 of the Act reaffirms local authority responsibilities to ensure visits to looked-after children including those placed out of authority and a long way from their homes.

Urban Areas: Research

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 13 October 2008, Official Report, column 990W, on urban areas: research, what account her Department has taken of proposals for polycentric mega-city regions in the formulation of its policy. [245939]

John Healey: The findings of the POLYNET Interreg 11B project have helped to further my Department's understanding of the dynamic and complex economic interrelationships between cities and city-regions, and their role in driving economic growth and prosperity. The study formed part of the evidence base that influenced reforms proposed in the Review of Sub-National Economic Development and Regeneration.

Valuation Office

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the purpose of the Valuation Office Agency's notification change code CL26 is. [246045]

John Healey: Notification change codes are used to indicate the reason for a change made to a council tax valuation list entry. Code CL26 is used where the list entry is amended to correct an inaccuracy.

Waste Disposal

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 29 October 2008, Official Report, column 1155W, on waste disposal, what (a) advice and (b) guidance has been issued to local authorities by (i) her Department and (ii) the Audit Commission on achieving efficiency savings by moving to alternate weekly collections of household waste. [245927]

John Healey: No advice or guidance has been issued to local authorities by the Department or the Audit Commission that specifically deals with the achievement of efficiency gains by moving to alternate weekly collections of household waste. The Department has issued general guidance to councils on the measurement of efficiencies; the current version of this guidance is available at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/local government/reportingvfmguide

HOME DEPARTMENT

Abdulmajid Hassan Ismail

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will cease proceedings to remove Abdulmajid Hassan Ismail (ref J1104674) to Sudan. [244327]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 16 December 2008]: Any request for information regarding individual cases is treated as being confidential by the UK Border Agency and is not normally disclosed to third parties. This is, of course, unless they are authorised representatives of the applicant. This is not a question of secrecy for its own sake, but simply a matter of protecting the privacy of the individual.

Alcohol Disorder Zones

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much the Government have spent on advertising costs and producing information material on alcohol disorder zones. [243322]

Jacqui Smith: The Home Office has spent a total of £9,985 producing the "Alcohol Disorder Zones: A short Guide to Setting up and Managing ADZs". This includes the editing and proof reading costs as well as the cost of printing hard copies of the guidance. No advertising costs have been incurred in respect of ADZs.

No direct costs were incurred in respect of the original version of the ADZ guidance produced earlier in 2008. The original guidance was produced by a small number of officials who have worked on this policy area, in addition to other duties. It is not possible to quantify the cost or the time that has been spent working and consulting on this policy area.

Alcoholic Drinks: Antisocial Behaviour

David Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which local authorities have designated zones where street drinking is banned. [246423]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office has been informed that 244 local authorities in England and Wales have introduced at least one designated public place order (DPPO) with 654 DPPOs being implemented overall.

A full list of the councils which have implemented the orders can be accessed at the following internet link:

http://www.crimereduction.homeoffice.gov.uk/alcoholorders/alcoholorders09.htm.

Alcoholic Drinks: Health Education

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people visited the Know Your Limits stand sponsored by her Department at the Clothes Show Live exhibition. [243605]

Jacqui Smith: The event team at the Clothes Show counted 12,145 visitors who engaged with the activities on the stand. As solely active participants in the tasks were counted, this figure does not include the spectators coming to view the stand, which we estimate to have been a significantly higher number.

In addition to the stand, Clothes Show visitors were exposed to high impact Know Your Limits posters outside changing rooms, and messages inside the cubicles and mirrors in changing rooms throughout the exhibition. The total number of attendees to the event was estimated to be 190,000.

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were proceeded against at magistrates courts for the offence of sale of alcohol to a drunken person under section 141 of the Licensing Act 2003 in 2007; how many were found guilty of the offence in all courts; and how many were issued with a penalty notice for disorder for the offence, broken down by police force area. [244846]

Jacqui Smith: Data showing the number of persons proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty of all courts for the offence sale of alcohol to a drunken person under section 141 of the Licensing Act 2003, England and Wales broken down by police force area in 2007 can be viewed in table 1.

The number of Penalty Notices for Disorder (PNDs) issued for the offence of sale of alcohol to a drunken person under section 141 of the Licensing Act 2003, England and Wales, also broken down by police force area in 2007, can be viewed in table 2.

When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Asylum: Expenditure

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was spent on the (a) assisted voluntary returns and (b) enforced returns of unsuccessful asylum seekers in each of the last five years; and how many were returned under each system. [242776]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 16 December 2008]: The information is as follows.

Asylum based assisted voluntary returns (AVR)

	AVR spend (£)	Number returning under AVR
2003-04	[1]4,787,054.00	—
2004-05	8,767,885.83	2004—2,705
2005-06	9,450,020.00	2005—3,235
2006-07	14,851,442.42	2006—5,340
2007-08	12,135,665.00	2007—2,865

[1] Assisted voluntary returns figures were not published in 2003.

Notes:

1. Financial spend figures for AVR Programme year 2008-09 are not yet available as the programme is still currently operating.

2. Financial spend figures for AVR programme years 2006-07 and 2007-08 are still subject to audit and are therefore subject to change and should be treated as provisional

3. Asylum based returns under assisted voluntary return programmes (run by the International Organization for Migration) may include some cases leaving under the Assisted Voluntary Return for Irregular Migrants Programme and some cases where enforcement action has been initiated.

4. Asylum based AVR returns figures for 2007 should be treated as provisional.

A breakdown of the spend on enforced returns of unsuccessful asylum seekers in each of the last five years is not available. The National Audit Office (NAO) give a breakdown of what it costs to enforce the removal of a failed asylum seeker in Appendix 2 of their Report "Returning Failed Asylum applicants". In this they estimate the average cost of an enforced removal as being £11,000.

Published statistics on immigration and asylum, including removals, are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration-asylum-stats.html.

British Nationality

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of people resident in the UK hold UK citizenship. [241797]

Jacqui Smith: The Home Office holds records of those people who have acquired British citizenship by registration or naturalisation. It does not hold records of those who have an automatic claim to citizenship, for example by being born here.

Crime: Economic Situation

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the likely effect of the economic downturn on levels of recorded crime. [246602]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Academic research, including a study by the Home Office, has demonstrated an association between changes in the economy and some crime. These studies cannot fully allow for the impact of policy or other interventions and hence do not predict actual levels of crime.

Since March 2003, overall crime has fallen by 18 per cent. exceeding the 15 per cent. target set out in the Home Office's public service agreement. That reduction is greater than would have been forecast based on economic factors alone, and the Department is confident that the right policies and systems are in place to continue to cut crime and that they provide the flexibility needed to respond to future economic challenges.

Crime: Victims

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many victims of crime have benefited from the Youth Crime Action Plan in (a) England and Wales, (b) the North East, (c) Tees Valley district and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland. [245011]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government are committed to driving down youth crime and keeping the communities, including young people themselves, safer and reducing youth victimisation.

Information on how many victims of crime have benefited from the Youth Crime Action Plan (YCAP) is not available either from the British Crime Survey (BCS) or police recorded crime data as the action plan has only been published for a few months. However, following a recommendation of the independent Smith review of the Home Office crime statistics, the British Crime Survey is being extended to include those aged under 16 years from 2009. This will assist in providing a clearer understanding of youth victimisation. We know that young people are more likely to be victims of other young people, and we are committed to driving down levels of youth victimisation. Through the implementation of the YCAP, we have introduced a new national objective to substantially reduce the number of young victims by 2020.

As part of YCAP, in October 2008 we announced that five areas across the country have been awarded a share of nearly half a million pounds to undertake pilot work to create the next generation of support services for young victims of crime.

These areas are Derby, Lambeth, Norfolk, Lewisham and Oxfordshire.

Also it was announced in September 2008 that £56.5 million of the YCAP money will be used to tackle youth crime across England in 69 local authority areas.

Each of the 69 areas were being offered £700,000 to implement an intensive package of action over the next three years, with an immediate cash injection of £90,000 available to each local authority in (2008).

This builds on the excellent work already under way in many local areas across the country and on the Government's track record in investing in children and young people. Measures will include:

Operation Stay Safe—using safeguarding laws to remove young people at risk from the streets at night; street-based teams of youth workers and ex-gang members to tackle groups of young people involved in crime and disorder; increased visible police patrols during after-school hours;

expanding Family Intervention Projects to respond more effectively to families at risk; providing positive activities for young people;

placing youth offending team workers in police stations so that young offenders can be dealt with and directed to the most appropriate service at the earliest opportunity; and making young offenders feel the consequences of their actions by expanding reparation during their leisure time, including on Friday and Saturday nights.

Of the 69 local authorities areas, those in the North East have agreed to deliver the following measures to tackle youth crime in their area:

- Operation Stay Safe
- Street based teams
- Youth Offending Team in custody suite

Durham

Departmental Data Protection

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many times (a) her Department and (b) the Border and Immigration Agency lost or misplaced databases relating to (i) British citizens and (ii) foreign nationals in each of the last five years; what information, relating to how many people, was held on lost or misplaced databases; and if she will make a statement. [243124]

Mr. Woolas: Home Office records do not show any incidents of lost or misplaced databases containing data on British citizens or foreign nationals since 1997.

Departmental Energy

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps her Department is taking to reduce the amount of energy it wastes. [244612]

Mr. Woolas: The Home Office (including its Executive Agencies) is conscious of the need to minimise energy consumption. Our new facilities management contractors provide proactive energy management services including the collection of better quality and more timely data.

We have also begun working with the Carbon Trust on a Carbon Management project with a view to surveying our larger buildings across the estate and implementing further energy saving measures.

The Home Office has already taken some steps in many of its larger buildings to use energy more efficiently. For example we have shortened the operating hours of our cooling and heating plant, reduced the switch-on periods of the motion detector lighting and replaced inefficient lamps.

Departmental Marketing

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many complaints about advertisements sponsored or funded by her Department were made to the Advertising Standards Authority (ASA) in each year from 1997 to 2008; and how many of these were upheld by the ASA in each year. [246641]

Mr. Woolas: Complaints made about Home Office adverts are made directly to the Advertising Standards Authority (ASA)—not the Home Office. The Home Office is only informed of a complaint if the ASA decide to investigate. We are therefore unable to provide figures for the numbers of complaints.

During the period 1 January 1997 to 21 December 2008 no complaints were upheld by the ASA about a Home Office advertisement.

Departmental Public Consultation

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on which occasions her Department has convened a citizens' jury or randomly drawn panel of people to aid the Department's policy making since 2000; whether the participants were paid in each case; and if she will make a statement. [243039]

Mr. Woolas: Since 2000 the Home Office has convened citizens' juries to inform two policy areas, both within the financial year 2007-08. One was a public consultation on crime, the other a series of public debates held across the country for UKBA. In each case participants were paid to attend.

The Department recognises the important contribution that the public can make in developing policy and carries out a wide range of activities in addition to citizens' juries which allow Ministers and officials to listen to and understand the views of the public and stakeholders in developing policy.

With regards to use of panels specifically: we are unable to separate out and identify the different research projects where panels may have been used for recruitment purposes.

Deportation: Sudan

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the Statement by Lord West of Spithead on 9 July 2008, Official Report, House of Lords, column 750, whether Mr. Abdulmajid Hassan Ismail has been deported to Sudan; and if she will make a statement. [244410]

Mr. Woolas: Any request for information regarding individual cases is treated as being confidential by the UK Border Agency and is not normally disclosed to third parties. This is, of course, unless they are authorised representatives of the applicant. This is not a question of secrecy for its own sake, but simply a matter of protecting the privacy of the individual.

Deportation: Zimbabwe

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Zimbabwe nationals are detained in detention centres awaiting deportation back to Zimbabwe; how many of these people have been convicted of a crime in the UK; and how many of those have completed their sentences. [246244]

Jacqui Smith: The UK Border Agency detains only those Zimbabwean nationals who have committed crimes within the United Kingdom and are subject to deportation action and have been assessed as unsuitable for release due to being either a threat to the public and/or are likely to abscond. There are currently around 35 Zimbabwean criminals who have been detained beyond their sentence.

All foreign criminals detained pending deportation action have their detention regularly reviewed and have the opportunity to apply for release on bail to the independent Asylum and Immigration Tribunal.

Detention Centres: Per Capita Costs

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average daily cost of detaining an illegal immigrant in a detention centre was in the most recent period for which figures are available. [246235]

Jacqui Smith: The average daily cost of detaining a person within the immigration removal centre estate is £130.

Entry Clearances

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many visas issued by posts in (a) India, (b) Pakistan, (c) Bangladesh, (d) South Africa, (e) Australia and (f) the US have been revoked in each of the last five years. [243118]

Mr. Woolas: The information could be provided only by checking individual applications which would be at disproportionate cost. The figures available for posts in India and Bangladesh, however, are given in the following table:

	India	Bangladesh
2005	90	10
2006	102	9
2007	74	14
2008	68	12
Total	348	45

[1] Figures for Mumbai only.
Note:
These figures are unpublished and should be treated as provisional.

Entry Clearances: Internet

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she has taken to facilitate visa applications online. [242887]

Mr. Woolas: An online application facility, known as Visa4UK, is provided by the UK Border Agency for visa applicants in 149 countries.

Genetics: Databases

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many people aged under 16 years have a profile on the National DNA Database; and of these how many have a conviction recorded on the police national computer; [241665]

(2) how many people aged under 10 years have a profile on the National DNA Database; and of these how many have a conviction recorded on the police national computer. [241666]

Jacqui Smith: At 30 September 2008, there were 136,709 subject profiles on the National DNA Database (NDNAD) from persons currently aged under 16 submitted by police forces in England and Wales. The estimated number of individuals represented on the NDNAD is lower than the number of subject profiles as some profiles are replicates. The subject profile replication rate is currently calculated as 13.3 per cent. The estimated number of individuals aged under 16 is 118,527.

The NDNAD does not hold information on criminal histories such as subsequent charges, cautions or convictions; this information is held on the police national computer (PNC). Information on the number of young persons aged under 16 who have a profile on the NDNAD and who have a conviction is not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. However, some information is available on the number of persons aged under 18 on the NDNAD who have a conviction. This was obtained from the NDNAD and the PNC on 9-10 April 2008. The NDNAD data indicate that, on 10 April 2008, there were 349,934 subject sample profiles relating to persons aged 10 to 17 on it. Taking the replication rate into account, it is estimated that the 349,934 profiles are equivalent to 303,393 persons aged 10 to 17. Data obtained from the PNC on 9-10 April indicate that, of those estimated 303,393 persons, 264,297 (87.1 per cent.) had a conviction, caution, reprimand or had received a final warning and 39,095 (12.8 per cent.)

had not been convicted, cautioned, received a final warning/reprimand and had no charge pending against them.

At 30 September 2008, there were 70 subject profiles on the NDNAD from children currently aged under 10 submitted by police forces in England and Wales. The profile replication rate is not likely to apply to children aged under 10 as, in England and Wales, they are below the age of criminal responsibility and they cannot be arrested, prosecuted or convicted. Samples may only be taken from them with the consent of a parent or guardian.

On 16 December 2008 I announced that the Government would take immediate steps to remove the DNA profiles of children aged under 10 from the NDNAD.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield of 27 October 2008, Official Report, columns 676-7W, on genetics: databases, if she will break down the information given by police force area. [243418]

Jacqui Smith: Numbers of profiles added to the National DNA Database (NDNAD) where the person concerned was under 18 (regardless of their current age), are shown in table 1. Numbers of profiles added to the NDNAD where the person concerned is currently under 18 are shown in table 2. Numbers of profiles added to the NDNAD where the person concerned was under 18 at the time the profile was loaded but is now over 18 are shown in table 3.

The figures provide a snapshot of the numbers added to the NDNAD by police forces in England and Wales as at 26 November 2008. In each table the numbers are broken down by gender and the police force which added the profile.

'Unassigned' means that the police representative did not complete the section of the form referring to the person's gender.

The number of profiles on the NDNAD is not the same as the number of individuals as a profile may be a replicate, that is, a profile may have been loaded on more than one occasion. This can occur if a person gives a different name, or different version of their name on separate arrests, or if a profile is upgraded. The current replication rate for the whole NDNAD is 13.3 per cent.

The replication rate for profiles added by particular police forces may vary from this. Therefore a figure is given in each table for the estimated number of individuals on the NDNAD added by English and Welsh forces, but figures are not given for the estimated number of individuals added by each police force.

Human Trafficking

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many victims of human trafficking have been rescued by the Metropolitan Police human trafficking unit in each of the last two years. [243326]

Jacqui Smith: Figures from the Metropolitan police indicate that in 2007, there were 39 crime reports involving a potential 42 victims of human trafficking. Up to 1 December 2008, there had been 31 reports alleging trafficking for sexual exploitation involving 34 possible victims.

It is not possible to break down the number of victims rescued solely by the activities of the MPS trafficking team, which is one part of the Met's wider commitment to tackling organised immigration crime including human trafficking.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) arrests and (b) convictions there have been for human trafficking offences as a result of the activity of the Metropolitan Police human trafficking unit in each of the last two years. [243327]

Jacqui Smith: Figures from the Metropolitan police indicate that in 2007-08, the MPS human trafficking unit made a total of 33 arrests for human trafficking offences The figures from the Met indicate that to date there have been eight convictions within the last two years for human trafficking with six others being convicted of related offences such as controlling prostitution.

It is not possible to detail the outcome of all cases as many are still progressing through the criminal justice system.

Human Trafficking: Children

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many trafficked children have gone missing from the care of social services in each of the last five years. [243305]

Jacqui Smith: There is no central record of the number of victims of child trafficking who have gone missing from social services over the past five years.

Human Trafficking: Sentencing

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average sentence was for those convicted of human trafficking offences over the last five years. [243300]

Jacqui Smith: The sentences imposed by the courts on those convicted of human trafficking ranges from suspended sentences to 14 years imprisonment.

The average length of sentence however for the offence of human trafficking is 4.69 years although it should be noted in many cases those convicted are serving longer terms of imprisonment as result of convictions for other related offences such as rape, inciting prostitution or immigration related offences.

Identity Cards: Foreigners

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department plans to charge foreign nationals who (a) require and (b) do not require a visa for an identity card in each of the next five years. [243297]

Jacqui Smith: The current fee for an application for a foreign national identity card made separately from an immigration application (e.g. for damaged or lost cards) for non-EEA nationals is £30. There is no additional charge for a foreign national identity card issued as part of a visa application made by a non-EEA national. The cost of making a visa application to enter the UK varies from category to category.

It is intended that the fee for an identity card issued to UK and EEA nationals in 2009-10 will be £30.

We review fees annually to ensure that they continue to contribute to the costs of an application. Fees for future years have not yet been set.

Identity Cards: Welsh Language

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions she has had with ministerial colleagues on issuing identity cards with text in both the Welsh and English languages; and what consideration she has given to the proposal. [246603]

Meg Hillier: Ministers are involved in discussions from time to time on many different aspects of the National Identity Scheme, including the format of the identity card. The initial cards issued to British citizens, starting in the second half of 2009 to airside workers at a small number of airports, including Manchester and London City airports, will have headings in English and French. This is in line with travel document standards set by the International Civil Aviation Organisation (ICAO).

The issue of Welsh language ID cards has been raised with Ministers by a number of Welsh MPs and at an ID card event in Cardiff in 2008. As a result, officials are in discussions with the Wales Office to see how Welsh language could be included on cards issued to Welsh residents.

Illegal Immigrants: Employment

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many illegal workers are estimated to be residing in the UK. [246238]

Jacqui Smith: Since the abolition of embarkation controls, which started in 1994, no Government have ever been able to produce an accurate figure for the number of people who are in the country illegally and that includes those that might be working illegally.

By the end of December 2008, the majority of foreign nationals will be counted in and out of the country.

This is one part of the biggest shake-up of border security and the immigration system in a generation which also includes the global roll-out of fingerprint visas, compulsory watch-list checks for all travellers from high-risk countries before they land in Britain and ID cards for foreign nationals.

The UK Border Agency is committed to tackling illegal migrant working and will act on any intelligence it receives that a business is employing illegal workers. Equally, if an employer is found to be employing an illegal migrant worker and they have not ensured that the person has full entitlement to work in the UK, then they may be subject to a civil penalty of up to £10,000 or, in more serious cases, criminal prosecution. If convicted on indictment, the employer may face an unlimited fine and in some cases, imprisonment for up to two years.

Immigrants: Detainees

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what compensation payments have been made by (a) her Department and (b) private contractors working for her Department to immigration detainees in (i) response to allegations of unlawful detention, (ii) response to allegations of assault and (iii) total since 2004; and if she will make a statement. [244559]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 18 December 2008]: The information requested is not collected centrally and could be obtained through examination of individual records only at disproportionate cost.

Immigration Controls: Foreign Workers

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to her statement of 21 October 2008, Official Report, column 175, what the evidential basis is for the statement that 12 per cent. fewer low-skilled workers from outside the EU would have come to the UK to work last year had Tier 2 of the points-based migration system been in place. [241595]

Jacqui Smith: We expect volumes for Tier 2 General and Intra-Company Transfers (skilled workers within the points-based System) to decrease because of the requirement to satisfy points criteria, such as prospective earnings and qualifications thresholds.

Using data from work permit applications, including on earnings, we estimated that if tighter Tier 2 rules had been in place last year, 12.1 per cent. fewer people from outside EEA would have been allowed into Britain in that category (skilled migrants).

Immigration: English Language

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment her Department made of ETS's performance before approving its test of English as a foreign language for use within the immigration system; and whether any references provided were taken up. [233990]

Mr. Woolas: The UK Border Agency undertook an assessment exercise to ensure that all the tests included on the list of approved English language tests for Tier 1 satisfied our required standards of assessment and test security. In support of their application, ETS provided information on:

- Award security features
- Test methodologies
- Test security
- Test verification procedures
- How ETS Mapped their test to the Common European Framework Reference for Languages: Learning, Training, assessment (CEFR)
- How ETS train their test markers and how marking standards are set
- The bona fides of their organisation

The results of ETS's English language tests are recognised by employers and institutions the world wide. However, the actual procurement of testing services is between ETS and the individual applicant taking their test.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she will reply to the letter to her of 28 October from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Mr. A. Benmeddall. [241696]

Jacqui Smith: I wrote to the right hon. Member on 5 January 2009.

Metropolitan Police: Human Trafficking

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers work for the Metropolitan Police human trafficking unit. [243328]

Jacqui Smith: There are 11 police officers working for the MPS human trafficking team.

This team is one part of the Met's wider commitment to tackling organised immigration crime. Other resources targeting these illegal activities, including human trafficking, include local borough policing, Operation Maxim, Swale, Golf, Paladin Child and the Clubs and Vice Unit.

Migration Impacts Forum

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff are involved in running the Migration Impacts Forum; and what estimate she has made of the costs of running the Forum in (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11. [245692]

Mr. Woolas: Four staff from the Home Office and Communities and Local Government jointly provide the secretariat for the MIF, as part of their wider responsibilities. Other staff from a number of Government Departments are involved on an ad hoc basis as required.

The MIF has no running costs other than those of staff time within the Departments and the logistical arrangements of the quarterly MIF meetings. These costs are paid for from within departmental budgets.

Offenders

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many former prisoners are employed by her Department; and what her Department's policy is on employing former prisoners. [246343]

Mr. Woolas: All people who wish to work for the Department are subject to criminal records checks as part of the National Security Vetting (NSV). The Department does not keep figures on how many former prisoners it employs and such staff cannot be distinguished from all other staff who are successfully cleared to work. Obtaining this information could be achieved only at disproportionate cost.

The policy is that potentially suitable candidates for employment who have a criminal record will not automatically be ruled out from employment with the Home Office. Each candidate is considered on an individual basis, including consideration of severity and timing of convictions.

Offenders: Deportation

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many foreign prisoners were removed under the Early Removal Scheme in the last year for which figures are available. [244462]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 16 December 2008]: The information requested is not available and can only be obtained through the detailed examination of individual case files at disproportionate cost. The Chief Executive of the UK Border Agency has regularly updated the Home Affairs Select Committee with all of the most robust information available. In her letter of 23 July 2008 she advised the Committee that the agency is now removing or deporting around a fifth of all individuals direct from prison an average of 180 days before their release date. For the remaining individuals it is taking the agency around 130 days, on average, to deport or remove them from the UK. A copy of this letter is available in the Library of the House.

Organised Crime

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she is taking to dissuade individuals from joining gangs. [246745]

Mr. Alan Campbell: In September 2007, the Home Secretary set up the Tackling Gangs Action Programme to focus renewed action in neighbourhoods in Birmingham, Liverpool, London and Manchester where guns and gangs have caused serious harm. The initial £1.5 million programme ran for six months to March 2008 but the work is ongoing.

This targeted approach delivered rapid results—a 51 per cent. reduction in firearms-related injuries across the four cities in six months. Recent quarterly statistics show that firearms offences continue to fall, with a reduction of 22 per cent. in April to June 2008 compared with the same period in the previous year.

A further £1 million of funds has been allocated to build on enforcement work, community reassurance and third sector delivery of support in the four TGAP areas. A practical guide was published in May to local partners highlighting examples of good practice on gang prevention. In September, we launched a gangs guide to parents to help prevent their children becoming involved in gangs and due to demand, a further 250,000 are being made available. More recently, £4.5 million of additional funding over the period 2009-12 was announced for local community groups in targeted areas. The new fund will provide grants for intensive work with young people most at risk of gun, gang or knife crime through mentoring and outreach work.

Police

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average crime clear-up rate was in England and Wales in 2007-08, broken down by police force; what assessment she has made of the reasons for differences in such rates between police forces; and if she will make a statement. [244301]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information requested is given in the following table. Detections (or 'clear ups') can be subdivided into sanction and non-sanction detections. Sanction detections are now the preferred method, providing a more meaningful comparison of individual force performance. From 1 April 2007 the rules governing recording of non-sanction detections were revised to reduce the scope within which they be claimed to a very limited set of circumstances. Some forces have already abandoned their use on non-sanction detections altogether. The reductions in the use of non-sanction detections are clearly demonstrated by the figures given in the table.

There are variations in detection rates across police force areas. These variations reflect a range of factors, including differing resources available to investigate crime, varying force priorities and the crime mix within the wider offence groups.

Different offence types have different detection rates so any changes in the 'crime mix' will also affect the overall rates of detection. Furthermore, the most numerous crimes have the greatest influence on overall detection rates. Sanction detections rates for individual offence groups by police force area are published in Table 7.04 of "Crime in England and Wales 2007-08' which is available at:

Police: Economic Situation

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what projections she has made of trends in the level of demand for police services as a result of the economic downturn; and what consideration she has given to allocating additional resources to police services in this respect. [246954]

Mr. Coaker: Since March 2003, overall crime has fallen by 18 per cent., exceeding the 15 per cent. target set out in the Home Office's public service agreement. That reduction is greater than would have been forecast based on socio-economic factors alone, and we are confident that the right policies and systems are in place to continue to cut crime and that they provide the flexibility needed to respond to future economic challenges.

Decisions on the distribution of local resources in response to varying demands are matters for the chief constable and the police authority for the force concerned.

The three-year funding settlement for the years 2008-09 to 2010-11 that we announced last year reflects the Government's continuing commitment to improve policing and reduce crime further. The police service in England and Wales has benefited from a significant increase in resources over a sustained period. On a like-for-like basis Government grant for the police will have increased by over 60 per cent. or over £3.7 billion between 1997-98 and 2010-11.

Repatriation: China

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many repatriations of people from the UK China has (a) accepted in each year since 2001 and (b) agreed to accept in each of the next four years. [246237]

Jacqui Smith: The information is as follows:

(a) Information on destination data of those removed from the United Kingdom has only been available since 2004.

The figures provided here are the number of Chinese nationals removed to China in each year. Figures include enforced returns, voluntary departures and assisted returns.

	Number
2004	260
2005	460
2007	1,065

(b) We do not have an agreement with China that restricts how many returnees will be accepted in coming years.

Seized Articles: Motor Vehicles

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many motor cars have been seized wrongly owing to (a) inaccuracies in and (b) omissions from the Motor Insurers' Database in the last year for which figures are available, broken down by police authority in England. [241519]

Mr. Alan Campbell: This information is not collected centrally. The police are empowered to seize any vehicle where the driver cannot produce a valid certificate of insurance and there are reasonable grounds for believing he or she is driving without appropriate insurance. In forming their opinion the police will typically refer to the Motor Insurers' Database and the dedicated police helpline provided by the Motor Insurance Bureau to help resolve any apparent discrepancy between database information and assertions by the motorist.

Serious Organised Crime Agency

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many cases were being investigated by the Serious Organised Crime Agency in which criminal confiscation action had been initiated in (a) Northern Ireland and (b) the UK as at 31 March 2008; what the estimated value of the assets restrained in those cases was; in how many such investigations SOCA has obtained a confiscation order; what the value of assets affected by such orders is; and what the estimated value of assets restrained under such orders is; [243844]

(2) how many criminal investigations were opened by the Serious Organised Crime Agency in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08; what value of assets have been restrained in such cases in each year; in how many such cases assets have been restrained in each year; what estimate has been made of the value of assets under investigation in such cases in each year; how many such cases related to criminal confiscation investigations in each year; and how many such cases resulted in persons being charged in each year. [243790]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA) undertakes a range of operational activity in order to fulfil its functions as defined in sections 2 and 3 of the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005. As referred to in its latest annual report, SOCA's contribution to the UK Serious Organised Crime Control Strategy in the two years since it was formed has been:

2007-08: 459 operations and projects. In addition, as at 31 March 2008 SOCA was undertaking 173 inquiries (single strand investigations).

Operations are multi-faceted and the activity is tailored to that which is most likely to have the greatest impact on harm at the time. During the lifetime of an operation a SOCA investigation may switch between a criminal investigation and an investigation that seeks to disrupt an individual, group, or criminal activity other than by way of a criminal investigation and vice versa, or it may look to prosecute some members of the group and use civil or other powers against others. SOCA does not therefore hold information on the number of separate criminal investigations within operations. Information on the number of arrests and convictions flowing from SOCA's work is set out in the SOCA annual report.

Every SOCA tasked operation will include a financial element and criminal confiscation will be pursued where appropriate. Where SOCA has decided to take forward a criminal confiscation investigation in conjunction with a criminal investigation, these investigations are in persona i.e. against the person not in rem i.e. against the property.

SOCA therefore does not measure each criminal investigation in terms of assets involved, but in terms of the criminal's benefit from their conduct.

Sight Impaired

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidelines her Department follows in respect of making printed materials and forms accessible to people suffering red/green colour blindness. [245718]

Mr. Woolas: The Home Department published its Overarching Race, Disability and Gender Equality Scheme: Progress Report in May 2008 in which we state that Home Department publications will be produced in accessible formats for disabled people.

Theft

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many instances of (a) burglary, (b) shoplifting and (c) handling of stolen goods were recorded in each of the last three years. [246601]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information requested is given in the following table.

Selected offences recorded by the police

Number of offences

Offence	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Burglary	645,068	622,012	583,699
Shoplifting	295,999	294,282	290,625
Handling stolen goods	12,714	11,826	11,227

UK Border Agency: Airwave Service

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Airwave handsets issued to the UK Border Agency have been lost in each year since their introduction; and how many handsets issued to the Agency have been disabled by the service provider through (a) loss, (b) breakage and (c) other reasons in each such year. [246188]

Mr. Woolas: Airwave handsets were introduced to the UK Border Agency in 2006. The number of handsets issued to the agency that have been disabled due to loss, or other reasons were: one in 2006; seven in 2007; and one in 2008.

Additionally, the number of handsets that were reported lost, temporarily disabled on network, then subsequently found and reactivated on the network were: four in 2006; 12 in 2007; and two in 2008.

UK Border Agency: Lost Property

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many files relating to applications from members of the public have been lost in transit between units of the UK Border Agency and its predecessor in each of the last three years. [241617]

Jacqui Smith: The information is not available in the format requested. If a file is shown as being in transit then it is not deemed to have been lost.

Violent and Sex Offender Register

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) licensed and (b) unlicensed taxi drivers are on the National Sex Offenders Register. [244597]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 18 December 2008]: The information requested is not available.

JUSTICE

Airwave Service: Prison Service

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many Airwave headsets issued to HM Prison Service have been lost in each year since their introduction. [246155]

Mr. Malik: No Airwave equipment has been lost by HM Prison Service since its introduction three years ago.

Alcoholic Drinks: Public Places

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people have received the maximum penalty for an offence under section 12(4) of the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 since the Act came into force. [246861]

Maria Eagle: None.

Constitution: Crown Dependencies

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the Government's policy is on the future constitutional relationship between the UK and the Crown Dependencies. [244825]

Mr. Wills: There are no plans for change to the constitutional relationship between the UK and the Crown dependencies.

Departmental Equality

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what information his Department holds on the (a) sex, (b) ethnicity, (c) age, (d) disability, (e) sexual orientation and (f) religion or belief of its staff; and what assessment he has made of his Department's performance against its targets relating to diversity in its workforce. [246014]

The MOJ is exploring ways in which we can extend this data collection to existing employees in line with the Cabinet Office "Promoting Equality, Valuing Diversity".

Assessment against targets

This is the first set of figures provided for the new Department, which shows good progress towards reflecting the society we serve. The data gathered will be used as a benchmark to assess and measure our continual progress.

The MOJ fully recognises the business case for diversity and is strongly committed to improving the diversity of its people resource. To that end we have in place initiatives designed to help us recruit, develop and retain talented and diverse staff.

Domestic Violence

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many recovery notices his Department has issued under the Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004. [247171]

Maria Eagle: None. This is an un-commenced piece of legislation, which would be subject to the affirmative resolution procedure.

Driving Offences: North West

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people were (a) cautioned and (b) fined for speeding in (i) Stockport Metropolitan Borough, (ii) Greater Manchester and (iii) the North West in each of the last five years. [246077]

Maria Eagle: Speeding offences, under the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984 and Motor Vehicles (Speed Limit on Motorways) Regulations 1973, can be dealt with by way of written warnings, court proceedings or the issuing of a fixed penalty notice.

Available information collected centrally on the Court Proceedings Database, held by the Ministry of Justice, on the number of persons given a court fine for speed limit offences within the Greater Manchester police force area and the North West region from 2003 to 2007 (latest available) is provided as follows in table 1.

Information collected centrally by the Home Office on the number of fixed penalty notices issued for speeding offences, by area, for the period 2002 to 2006 is contained in table 2. Data for 2007 are due to be published in the spring of 2009.

Formal cautions are not given for motoring offences.

Data collected centrally are available at police force area level only.

[3] Includes, Cheshire, Cumbria, Greater Manchester, Lancashire and Merseyside police force areas.
[4] It is known that for some police force areas, the reporting of court proceedings in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less than complete.
[5] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people resident in (a) Stockport Metropolitan Borough, (b) Greater Manchester and (c) the North West were (i) arrested under suspicion and (ii) convicted of driving when drunk in each quarter of the last five years. [246078]

Maria Eagle: The number of convictions, at all courts, for offences of driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs for the years 2003 to 2007, by area, is contained in the following table. Data provided covers both drink and drugs offences combined as volumes of prosecutions and convictions for driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs cannot be accurately established separately.

Information is available on a calendar year basis and at police force area level only. It does not identify where those convicted are resident.

The information requested on arrests is not collected centrally. The arrests collection held by the Home Office covers arrests for recorded crime (notifiable offences) only, broken down at a main offence group level, covering categories such as violence against the person and robbery. Offences relating to drink driving are non notifiable and do not form part of the arrests collection.

HM Courts Service: Hampshire

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many vacancies there were in (a) the Courts Service and (b) the Bailiff Service (i) on the Isle of Wight and (ii) in Hampshire in each of the last five years. [246148]

Bridget Prentice: External recruitment for all permanent staff in Her Majesty's Courts Service (HMCS) is managed through a central resourcing unit. This unit has been involved in filling external vacancies throughout the period in question. Firstly, for the former Court Service, which includes the bailiffs and following the creation of HMCS, it has also dealt with vacancies in the former magistrates courts. The following vacancies have been handled during the last five years for the Hampshire and Isle of Wight area.

In 2004, there were 22 vacancies filled through the central unit and one of these was for a bailiff in Hampshire. There were no vacancies on the Isle of Wight.

In 2005, there were 35 vacancies in total. In Hampshire there were 33 general vacancies and one vacancy for a bailiff. There was one general vacancy on the Isle of Wight.

In 2006, there were 21 vacancies in total. In Hampshire there were 18 general vacancies and one vacancy for a bailiff post. There were two general vacancies on the Isle of Wight.

In 2007, there were 33 vacancies in total. In Hampshire there were 30 general vacancies and one vacancy for a bailiff post. There were two general vacancies on the Isle of Wight.

For the current year, a total of 49 posts have been handled by the unit. In Hampshire there have been 45 general vacancies and two vacancies for bailiffs. In addition, they have dealt with one general vacancy and one bailiff vacancy for the Isle of Wight.

Prisons: Population

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the projected prison population is for each month of (a) 2009-10 and (b) 2010-11. [247077]

Mr. Hanson: The Ministry of Justice produces annual projections of the prison population, most recently in September 2008.

These project the prison population under three different scenarios, based on different assumptions about future sentencing trends: the medium scenario assumes no increases or decreases in custody rates or determinate sentence lengths. The high/low scenarios reflect a 1 per cent. per annum increase/decrease in custody rates and a 0.5 per cent. per annum increase/decrease in the average (determinate) custodial sentence lengths.

Other impacts included in the projections, such as those of legislation and processes, are applied equally to all scenarios. These cover the anticipated impacts of policy and process initiatives that have agreed implementation timetables.

Probation Service for England and Wales

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the merits of converting probation boards into probation trusts; what will happen to a probation board if it fails to convert into a probation trust within the required timescale; and if he will make a statement. [246926]

Mr. Hanson: The advantages of the creation of probation trusts were discussed through public consultation in 2005, during the passage of the Offender Management Act in 2007 and most recently in the analysis of probation services conducted by KPMG on behalf of the NOMS agency. I refer the hon. Member to my answer to the hon. Member for Ceredigion (Mark Williams) on 20 November 2008, Official Report, column 797W. Probation trusts will be contracted to provide services which reflect local needs and which have a clear focus on the achievement of outcomes. They will deliver services in partnership with providers from the private or voluntary and community sector based on the application of 'best value' principles and processes.

From April 2010, probation services will be provided by trusts delivering to contract or other providers following competition. We are currently developing the policy on what will happen to those boards who fail to become trusts, further details will be available by spring 2009.

HEALTH

British Dental Association

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many meetings Ministers in his Department have held with (a) the British Dental Association and (b) other dental organisations in the last 12 months. [246624]

Ann Keen: I have met formally twice with representatives of the British Dental Association, and once with the Chair and Chair Elect of the National Conference of Local Dental Committees over the past 12 months.

Cancer: Health Services

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress he has made towards establishing a National Cancer Intelligence Network; and what priorities for (a) routine analyses at a national level and (b) research have been determined. [247100]

Ann Keen: The National Cancer Intelligence Network (NCIN) was launched in June 2008. Its aim is to promote efficient and effective data collection at each stage of the cancer journey, and to co-ordinate the analysis and publication of comparative national statistics on diagnosis, treatment and outcomes for all types of cancer.

The core objectives of the NCIN are:

promoting efficient and effective data collection throughout the cancer journey;

providing a common national repository for cancer datasets; producing expert analyses, based on robust methodologies, to monitor patterns of cancer care; exploiting information to drive improvements in standards of cancer care and clinical outcomes; and enabling use of cancer information to support audit and research programmes.

Chapter 8 of the first annual report of the Cancer Reform Strategy, 'Cancer Reform Strategy: Maintaining momentum, building for the future—first annual report', published on 1 December 2008, contains information about the NCIN's progress and priorities. This document has already been placed in the Library.

Cancer: Screening

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress National Health Service cancer screening programmes have made towards encouraging the sharing of best practice in improving accessibility for all groups. [247103]

Ann Keen: National health service (NHS) cancer screening programmes have funded several projects around improving access to cancer screening. These include a digital video disc (DVD) on bowel cancer screening in collaboration with the South Asian Health Foundation and a DVD in sign language. Promotional materials for the bowel cancer screening programme are available on the NHS cancer screening programme's website for local services to rework as appropriate for their local populations. NHS cancer screening programmes have also produced a guidance document, 'Equal Access to Breast and Cervical Screening for Disabled Women', which is available on their website at:

www.cancerscreening.nhs.uk/publications/cc2.html.

A copy has been placed in the Library.

NHS cancer screening programmes are represented on the National Cancer Equality Initiative (NCEI) Advisory Group. The NCEI was set up as part of the implementation of the Cancer Reform Strategy, published in December 2007 (a copy of which has already been placed in the Library), to take forward a series of actions to reduce inequalities in cancer care. The NCEI is initially focusing on optimising data collection to enhance our understanding of the inequalities that exist; promoting research to fill gaps in the evidence; and spreading and sustaining good practice in NHS organisations. The NCEI has undertaken a good practice survey to identify current projects aiming to reduce inequalities in cancer care, including cancer screening. The principles behind undertaking robust projects to reduce cancer inequalities, including examples from the survey, will be issued to the NHS later this year.

Cervical Cancer: Screening

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to move to an activity-based system for funding cervical cancer screening services. [247104]

Ann Keen: The decision has been taken to explore having a tariff for cervical screening, along with breast and bowel screening, to incentivise services to encourage higher coverage. The Department is working closely with national health service cancer screening programmes on a scoping exercise to inform this work.

Childbirth

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many mothers had babies delivered at NHS hospitals in each district of the Yorkshire and Humberside strategic health authority area in each of the last five years. [245669]

Ann Keen: The information requested is not held in the format required.

However, information on total delivery episodes within Yorkshire and the Humber strategic health authority area (SHA), broken down by national health service trust, 2002-03 to 2006-07 is shown in the following table:

NHS provider	2006-07	2005-06	2004-05	2003-04	2002-03

Sheffield Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust	6,530	6,365	6,194	6,163	5,869
York Hospitals NHS Trust	3,242	3,032	3,127	2,861	2,829

Notes: The NHS Information Centre reports that the figures provided for Scarborough and North East Yorkshire Health Care NHS Trust have been redacted from the table because they appear to be significantly lower than reported. The NHS Information Centre and the Yorkshire and Humber SHA have been asked to investigate this.

Small numbers: To protect patient confidentiality, trusts with less than five deliveries have been removed. Unprocessed data: Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are unprocessed).

Data quality: Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) are compiled from data sent by more than 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. Data is also received from a number of independent sector organisations for activity commissioned by the English NHS. The NHS Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvements over time, some shortcomings remain. Assessing growth through time: HES figures are available from 1989-90 onwards. The quality and coverage of the data have improved over time. These improvements in information submitted by the NHS have been particularly marked in the earlier years and need to be borne in mind when analysing time series. Some of the increase in figures for later years (particularly 2006-07 onwards) may be due to the improvement in the coverage of independent sector activity. Changes in NHS practice also need to be borne in mind when analysing time series. For example, a number of procedures may now be undertaken in outpatient settings and may no longer be accounted for in the HES data. This may account for any reductions in activity over time.

Coverage and data quality: The maternity tail data coverage is not as complete as the rest of HES data. There are a number of reasons for the coverage and data quality issues such as:

trusts submitting a significantly higher number of delivery episodes compared to birth episodes;

trusts failing to submit data on the number of birth episodes where they record a high number of delivery episodes;

trusts failing to submit delivery—the reason for this is that approximately 20 trusts have a standalone maternity system which is not linked to the Patient Administration System; trusts identifying a high number of maternity beds available, but not recording any information about deliveries or births; trusts identifying that they have no maternity beds available, but recording a high number of birth and delivery episodes; and some trusts have space in their maternity system to record nine birth tails, whereas other systems have space for 10. As deliveries, miscarriages and abortions are all recorded in the birth tail, there are cases where nine tails is not enough to record all of the relevant data . Between 2001-02 and 2005-06, coverage of hospital deliveries was 72.6 per cent. on average, whereas that of home deliveries was 13.6 per cent. on average. The incomplete coverage problem is significantly compounded by the data quality issues outlined above.

Finished Consultant Delivery Episode (FCE): A finished consultant episode (FCE) is defined as a period of admitted patient care under one consultant within one health care provider. FCEs are counted against the year in which the FCE finishes.

Maternity events taking place in either NHS hospitals or in non-NHS hospitals funded by the NHS will be recorded as ordinary "Delivery" episodes.

"Other Delivery events" are delivery events other than those resulting in delivery or birth episodes under NHS funding or in any other facility supplied under a service agreement with the NHS.

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many mothers had babies delivered at (a) Leeds General Infirmary and (b) St. James's Hospital in each month of the last two years. [245670]

Ann Keen: The information is not available in the format requested. The following table shows the total deliveries[1] for Leeds Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust broken down by month the episode ended[2].

Notes:

Finished Consultant Delivery Episode
(FCE): A FCE is defined as a period of admitted patient care under one consultant within one health care provider. FCEs are counted against the year in which the FCE finishes. We have provided a count of total deliveries measured by delivery episode and other delivery event:
maternity events taking place in either national health service (NHS) hospitals or in non-NHS hospitals funded by the NHS will be recorded as ordinary "Delivery".
"other Delivery events" are delivery events other than those resulting in delivery or birth episodes under NHS funding or in any other facility supplied under a service agreement with the NHS.
Coverage and data quality the maternity tail data coverage is not as complete as the rest of HES data. There are a number of reasons for the coverage and data quality issues such as:
trusts submitting a significantly higher number of delivery episodes compared to birth episodes trusts failing to submit data on the number of birth episodes where they record a high number of delivery episodes some trusts have space in their maternity system to record nine birth tails, whereas other systems have space for 18. As deliveries, miscarriages and abortions are all recorded on the birth tail, there are cases where nine tails is not enough to record all of the relevant data.

Date episode ended
—This field contains the date on which a patient left the care of a particular consultant, for one of the following reasons: discharged from hospital (includes transfers) or moved to the care of another consultant.
A null entry either indicates that the episode was unfinished at the end of the data year, or the date was unknown.
Unproved data
—Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in the data, i.e.
the data are unproved.
Data quality
—HES are compiled from data sent by over 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. Data is also received from a number of independent sector organisations for activity commissioned by the English NHS. The Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.
Quality of care
—Data derived from HES cannot be used in isolation to evaluate the quality of care provided by NHS trusts or clinical teams. There are many factors that can affect the outcome of treatment and it is beyond the scope of HES to adequately record and reflect all of these.
HES figures are available from 1989-90 onwards. The quality and coverage of the data have improved over time. These improvements in information submitted by the NHS have been particularly marked in the earlier years and need to be borne in mind when analysing time series. Some of the increase in figures for later years (particularly 2006-07 onwards) may be due to the improvement in the coverage of independent sector activity. Changes in NHS practice also need to be borne in mind when analysing time series. Dental Services

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what indicators his Department uses to evaluate the oral health of patients in England; [246776]

(2) what assessment he has made of the relative level of oral health in England in comparison with previous years; [246777]

(3) what steps he is taking to improve the oral health of patients in England. [246778]

Ann Keen: The key indicators that we use are the average number of decayed, missing and filled teeth (DMFT) in children and the number of adults with no natural teeth. Information from the decennial national child dental health surveys shows that DMFT in 12-year-old children in England declined from 5.0 in 1973 to 0.7 in 2003, which means that children in this age group are among children with the best oral health in Europe. Meanwhile the adult surveys show that between in 1968 and 1998 the proportion of adults with no natural teeth fell from 37 per cent. to 11 per cent. However, we are not complacent. AH primary care trusts (PCTs) are required to undertake an assessment of the oral health needs of their populations to inform their commissioning of primary care dental services. In September 2007, we published 'Delivering Better Oral Health: An evidence-based toolkit for prevention', which provides practical, evidence-based guidance to help dental teams promote oral health and prevent dental disease. A copy has already been placed in the Library. During 2008, the Chief Dental Officer and other leading members of the dental profession contributed to three regional conferences for PCTs and dental care professionals on implementation of the toolkit. Also, through reforms made to the legislation governing the fluoridation of water, we have given communities with high levels of dental disease a real option of having their water fluoridated.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what consideration he gave to appointing a practising NHS community dentist to the Independent Group to review NHS dentistry; and if he will make a statement. [246791]

Ann Keen: One of the four review members is a practicing dentist in the community dental service delivering primary care dental services. The four members of the review are drawn from differing backgrounds. Their role is not to represent their 'sector' but to listen to the views of all parties and to look more strategically at the issues affecting national health service dental services and NHS patients.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the cost of undertaking the review of NHS dentistry in England; and if he will make a statement. [246867]

Ann Keen: We are not at this point attempting to fix the final costs of the review as this will depend on the work Professor Steele and his team decide to undertake. However, our initial estimates of the additional costs of the review are around £250,000.

Diabetes: Children

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children under the age of 16 have been diagnosed with diabetes; and if he will make a statement. [247317]

Ann Keen: Data for the number of children of school age diagnosed with diabetes are not available. However, estimates suggest there are some 20,000 children with diabetes in England (the vast majority type 1 diabetes), and some experts suggest that there may be up to 1,000 children with type 2 diabetes in England.

Drugs: Misuse

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer of 10 September 2008, Official Report, column 1898W, on drugs: misuse, how many people were discharged from treatment for drug misuse, broken down by discharge reason, in 2007-08; how many people left treatment in 2007-08; and how many people returned to drug treatment having previously been discharged as having (a) completed treatment, (b) completed treatment drug free and (c) completed treatment and been referred on. [247442]

Dawn Primarolo: The following table shows the number of individuals discharged from structured treatment for drug misuse, by discharge reason, for 2007-08. These data are taken from the National Drug Treatment Monitoring System (NDTMS) statistical release 1 April 2007 to 31 March 2008, published by the National Treatment Agency for Substance Misuse (NTA).

Discharge reason	Percentage	Number
Treatment completed drug free	11	7,324
Treatment completed	25	17,306

Total Successful Discharges	51	35,441

Total (individuals discharged)	—	69,612
Missing/inconsistent data	—	30
Total including missing/ inconsistent data	—	69,642

[1] That is where agency staff indicated that they did not know the reason for discharge

Data on individuals in structured drug and alcohol treatment are collected by the NTA via the NDTMS, using the following definitions for successful discharge reasons:

'Treatment completed drug free' refers to an individual, who the treatment provider believes has completed their treatment no longer dependent on their drug of misuse and is not using any other illegal drugs.

'Treatment completed' refers to an individual, who the treatment provider believes has completed their treatment no longer dependent on their drug of misuse, but who may be using drugs in a non-dependent way.

'Referred on' refers to an individual who, on completion of a Tier 3 or 4 service, is transferred to a Tier 2 service or support services such as housing support or employment support.

Information on the number of individuals who have re-entered structured drug treatment, after having been discharged from structured treatment for drug misuse, is not routinely calculated.

Health Education: Parents

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many parentcraft sessions were provided at (a) Leeds General Infirmary and (b) St James's Hospital in each month of the last two years. [245665]

Ann Keen: This information is not collected centrally. The Department advocates local decision making in designing appropriate services that fit with the ethos of woman-centred care, including the way in which parentcraft classes are provided locally.

Health Profesions: Manpower

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many individuals qualified as medical staff in the UK in each year since 1997; and what proportion of these currently work in the NHS. [247167]

Ann Keen: The number of individuals who graduated medical education each year since 1997 is shown in the following table. However figures for UK graduates prior to 2000-01 are not available.

Academic year	Graduate output (England)	Graduate output (UK)
1998-99	3,097	—
1999-2000	3,373	—
2000-01	3,286	4,269
2001-02	3,280	4,450
2002-03	3,522	4,641
2003-04	3,734	4,805
2004-05	3,935	5,176
2005-06	4,376	5,576
2007-08	5,569	6,873

It is not possible to say what proportion currently work in the national health service as this information is not collected. However, the following table shows the number of house officers/foundation one posts since 1997. These figures show that there has been sufficient opportunities in the NHS to meet the medical school outputs.

House officer and foundation programme year 1

	Number
1997	3,398
1999	3,606
2000	3,691
2001	3,742
2002	4,010
2003	4,003
2004	4,273
2007	5,240

Injuries: Offensive Weapons

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he was first informed by the NHS Information Centre of the publication of data relating to patients attending hospital with knife wounds, provided to 10 Downing Street. [247624]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave him on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 162W.

Learning Disability

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people aged between 14 and 18 years had a profound and multiple learning disability in each of the last five years. [245998]

Ann Keen: The Department does not hold this information centrally.

Maternity Services

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what external (a) inspection and (b) monitoring of maternity care at (i) Leeds General Infirmary and (ii) St. James's Hospital has taken place in the last two years; what recommendations were made; and if he will make a statement. [245662]

Ann Keen: There have been three external reports into maternity services at the Leeds Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust in the last two years. These include the Yorkshire and the Humber Local Supervising Authority Supervision and Midwifery Practice Audit 2007-08, the Clinical Negligence Scheme for Trusts (CNST) pilot assessment against the revised CNST Maternity Clinical Risk Management Standards in September 2008 and the Healthcare Commission Review of Maternity Services 2007.

Full copies of the resulting reports can be obtained direct from the Leeds Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust.

It is the responsibility of strategic health authorities to performance manage primary care trusts and NHS trusts on behalf of the Department against local operational plans.

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many complaints on maternity care provided at (a) Leeds General Infirmary and (b) St. James's Hospital have been received by (i) Leeds Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust and (ii) his Department in each month of the last two years. [245664]

Ann Keen: The Department does not hold information about complaints received at individual NHS organisations. This information can be obtained from the Leeds Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust directly.

Due to the way in which correspondence is logged, details regarding complaints received by the Department about maternity services at the Leeds Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Midwives

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which districts in the Yorkshire and Humberside strategic health authority area (a) have and (b) have not achieved the Healthcare Commission's recommended ratio of midwives to deliveries. [245666]

Ann Keen: Strategic health authority maternity workforce plans are based on delivering safe care and their commitment to Maternity Matters (published on 3 April 2007), a copy of which has already been placed in the Library. Safe levels of midwives to births will vary according to variations such as case mix, local models of service delivery and staffing skill mix.

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many full-time equivalent midwife agency staff have been employed at (a) Leeds General Infirmary and (b) St. James's Hospital in each month of the last two years; [245667]

(2) how many full-time equivalent midwives were in post at (a) Leeds General Infirmary and (b) St. James's Hospital in each month of the last two years. [245668] of qualified midwives and bank staff in the Leeds Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust as at 30 September each specified year.

Leeds Teaching Hospitals NHS trust

		Full-time equivalent
	Midwives	Of which: bank
2005	309	—
2006	220	5

Notes:
1. The figures above reflect data as published each year. However, 2006 data needs to be treated with caution. During the validation process for the 2007 NHS workforce census, Leeds Teaching Hospitals reported that its registered midwives for 2006 should have been 267 and not 215 (excluding bank) as submitted at the time.
2. Full time equivalent figures are rounded to the nearest whole number.
3. Data Quality: Workforce statistics are compiled from data sent by more than 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. The NHS Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data. Processing methods and procedures are continually being updated to improve data quality. Where this happens, any impact on figures already published will be assessed but unless this is significant at national level they will not be changed. Where there is impact only at detailed or local level this will be footnoted in relevant analyses.

NHS: Public Appointments

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress his Department has made on the process for appointing the new Strategic Health Authority Medical Directors as announced in the NHS Next Stage Review, High Quality Care for All, published on 30 June 2008. [245624]

Ann Keen: The strategic health authorities are making good progress in providing the medical leadership described in 'High quality care for all' and we expect that all will have a medical director in post by April 2009.

NHS: Statistics

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he (a) has taken and (b) plans to take to ensure that incomplete or unvalidated data returns for NHS bodies made available to Government departments are not used publicly by those departments. [247625]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave him on 12 January 2009, Official Report, columns 167-68W.

Patients: Safety

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer of 26 June 2008, Official Report, columns 519-22W, on NHS: personal records, how many nutrition-related adverse incidents were recorded in each month between January 2005 and December 2007 in each NHS trust. [246405]

Ann Keen: For the period between January 2005 and December 2007, it is estimated that there have been around 68,148 nutrition-related adverse incidents recorded on the reporting and learning system (RLS) at strategic health authority (SHA) level.

Detailed information on the type and size of incidents is not held or analysed centrally by the Department or the National Patient Safety Agency and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost due to the complexity associated with processing 36 months of data by each trust.

Primary Care Trusts: Manpower

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were employed as (a) managers and senior managers, (b) nurses and midwives and (c) administrative and clerical staff in each primary care trust in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08. [246558]

Ann Keen: A table showing the number of people that were employed as: managers and senior managers; nurses and midwives; and administrative and clerical staff in each primary care trust as at 30 September 2006 and 2007 has been placed in the Library. The data for 2008 will be published during March 2009.

Quality and Outcomes Framework

Dr. Naysmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent consideration his Department has given to the variability of rates of exception reporting on quality and outcomes framework (QOF) indicator CHD 08; what his assessment is of the reasons for the range in rates of exception reporting for QOF indicator CHD 08 in each year since the introduction of the framework; and if he will make a statement. [245880]

Ann Keen: Practices with extremely low or high rates, generally have small numbers of patients. For example, if there is only one patient and that patient is exception reported, then the rate will be 100 per cent. If that patient is not exception reported the rate will be 0 per cent. The highest exception rate for practices with substantial numbers of patients are almost always substantially below 100 per cent.

The exception rate for coronary heart disease (CHD) 8 for England in 2007-08 was 8.96 per cent. (compared with a rate of 5.26 per cent. across all indicators). The interquartile range of practice level exception rates for CHD 08 was 5.21 per cent. to 11.28 per cent.

There is evidence that some practices, whether in deprived or more affluent areas, are using exception reporting inappropriately. Manipulating quality and outcomes framework (QOF) data in order to increase rewards without delivering the required level of quality for patients is clearly unacceptable—and also unfair on the majority of practices who comply with QOF requirements. Primary care trusts are responsible for verifying evidence of achievement. They should analyse exception rates and recorded prevalence, investigating any outliers, correcting payments where necessary and taking action if they uncover any actual fraud.

The Government are committed to ensuring in consultation with the profession, that QOF continually develops and supports leading edge quality of care for patients based on best available evidence. We will look at exception reporting and prevalence recording patterns as part of that process.

A copy of a list of exception reporting by practice on CHD has been placed in the Library.

Shingles

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people over 50 years of age were diagnosed with shingles in each of the last five years. [247534]

Dawn Primarolo: Shingles is not a notifiable disease and the Health Protection Agency does not undertake national surveillance of shingles. Data are available from some sentinel surveillance systems such as the General Practice Research Database (GPRD). A recently published study ("Epidemiology and cost of herpes zoster and post-herpetic neuralgia in the United Kingdom") using data from the GPRD between January 2000 and the end of March 2006 reported an estimated 88,667 shingles cases in England per year in the population aged 50 and above.

Tobacco: Sales

Mr. Dhanda: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate the Government has made of the cost to small businesses of proposals to remove cigarette displays in shops. [247326]

Dawn Primarolo: The "Consultation on the future of tobacco control" included a consultation-stage impact assessment that calculated the costs and benefits of removing tobacco displays. This document can be viewed in the consultation document, which has been placed in the Library and is available online at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Consultations/Closedconsultations/DH_085120.

A revised regulatory impact assessment, taking into account additional information and evidence received during the consultation process, will be published when the Health Bill is introduced.

Transplant Surgery: Foreigners

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) in which NHS trusts have transplant operations been performed on foreign nationals in the last 12 months; which organs or tissues were transplanted in each case; and how the (a) trust and (b) NHS were remunerated for the procedure; [246830]

(2) whether NHS trusts may refuse to perform transplants for (a) non-UK citizens and (b) nationals of EU member states; [246831]

(3) whether foreign nationals receiving transplants in the UK receive organs and tissues (a) from their country of origin, (b) from the UK and (c) from other countries; [246832]

(4) how many organs the NHS received from abroad in each of the last 10 years; and how many were successfully transplanted. [246833]

Ann Keen: Departmental Directions, issued in September 2005 by authority of the Secretary of State for Health under section 17 of the National Health Service Act 1977 to NHS Blood and Transplant (NHSBT), specify that priority for transplants should be given to group 1 patients (mainly people ordinarily resident in the United Kingdom or in countries with which the UK has reciprocal health arrangements) rather than group 2 (those not in group 1). Group 1 includes European Union residents. Group 2 patients are only entitled to an organ if there is no one in group 1 who is clinically suitable. It is the responsibility of the consultant registering each patient for transplant to confirm eligibility, and NHSBT and/or transplant centres are then responsible for ensuring organs are correctly allocated based on eligibility information supplied.

The transplantation of donated organs into non-UK EU residents who qualify for NHS treatment is guided by European law, which effectively regards such patients as having equal access to the NHS. Decisions over accepting a patient on to the transplant waiting list rests with the individual transplant centre. Article 3 of Regulation 1408/71 provides for equality of treatment under the regulation. Therefore health care should be provided in the UK to another European economic area national on the same basis as it would be to a UK national. Under EU Regulation 1408/71 a citizen of a member state can seek prior authorisation (via an E112) from their health authorities to go to another member state for planned state-sector treatment. The decision about whether to authorise a referral is a clinical one by that citizen's member state, taking into account factors such as whether undue delay applies or whether it is a specialist treatment that the home state cannot supply. The citizen's member state covers the cost of the referral.

Patients receiving transplants in the UK would normally receive organs from UK donors. The exception to this would be organs supplied from elsewhere in the EU under reciprocal arrangements which exist to offer organs to other member states if there is no clinically suitable patient in the member state of origin.

Table 1 shows organs received from non-UK hospitals imported into UK hospitals and transplanted between 1998 to 2008.

Table 2 shows organ and ocular tissue transplants in the UK between 1998 to 2008, by trust of transplanting hospital, where the recipient is recorded as being resident outside the UK.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Corporate Communications

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what payments his Department has made to Corporate Communications in each of the last five years. [245038]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) has made the following payments to the Central Office of Information for work undertaken by its corporate communications section in the last five years:

	Amount (excluding VAT)
2003-04	0
2004-05	35,975

Departmental Consultants

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many external consultants work for his Department. [244728]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In the 2007-08 financial year, the Department for International Development (DFID) engaged 201 external consultants centrally. This figure includes contracts with profit and non profit companies, Civil Society Organisations, universities and research institutes. It does not include consultants engaged directly by DFID Departments or overseas offices under delegated contracting authority, as to compile this information would incur disproportionate costs.

Departmental Contracts

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what payments his Department had made on behalf of CDC to (a) LM, (b) Financial Dynamics, (c) Cubitt Consulting, (d) Bell Pottinger and (e) Merlin in each of the last five years; and what the purpose of each payment was. [244822]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development has made no payments on behalf of CDC to any of the companies listed in the last five years.

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many (a) letters and (b) e-mails received by his Department had not been responded to as at 15 December 2008. [244709]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Cabinet Office publishes an annual report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to letters from Members and Peers. Information relating to 2008 will be published as soon as it has been collated.

In respect of e-mails received by DFID, it is not possible to provide this information without incurring disproportionate cost.

DFID also publishes information on letters and e-mails from members of the public and organisations in its Annual Report. Information relating to 2007 is available to view in section 10.12 at:

http://www.dfid.gov.uk/Pubs/files/departmental-report/2008/Chapter10.pdf

Departmental Databases

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will place in the Library a copy of the list of contents of his Department's PRISM database. [245233]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: A copy of the list of contents of DFID's PRISM database will be placed in the Library.

Departmental Energy

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to reduce the amount of energy it wastes. [244614]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Government's Delivery Plan for 'Sustainable Procurement and Operations on the Government Estate', published in August 2008, provides a full account of the initiatives departments are taking to reduce their energy waste. The Government have committed to updating the delivery plan on a six monthly basis, and the first of these updates was published on 18 December 2008.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many (a) page hits and (b) visitors his Department's website received in 2007-08. [244729]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Statistics for the main Department for International Development (DFID) website for 2007-08:

Unique visitors: 898,012

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the cost was of maintaining his Department's website for the 2007-08 financial year; and what the forecast cost is of maintaining websites within his responsibility in the 2008-09 financial year. [244865]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is shown in the following table:

	Website	Cost (£)
2007-08	DFID main site (www.dfid.gov.uk)	120,420
2008-09		130,423

Departmental Publications

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Selby of 6 February 2007, Official Report, column 768W, if he will place in the Library a copy of the corporate communications strategy. [245031]

Mr. Michael Foster: The 2005 Strategy referred to by the hon. Member has been superseded by the September 2008 publication "Communication Matters". This is available on the DFID website, and a copy will be placed in the Library.

http://www.dfid.gov.uk/pubs/files/commsstrategy.pdf

Departmental Recruitment

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development for what reason the targets for the recruitment of (a) women to top management posts, (b) ethnic minority staff and (c) disabled staff in his Department differ from those set for the Civil Service overall. [244907]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development (DFID) values diversity and is committed to ensuring that this is reflected in our recruitment and selection processes. DFID welcome applications for posts from all parts of the community. In accordance with the Civil Service Commissioners Recruitment Code selection is on merit following fair and open competition. We do not set specific targets for recruitment.

Developing Countries: Drownings

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what work his Department has undertaken to reduce deaths by drowning in the developing world; and if he will make a statement; [245250]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of deaths by drowning in the developing world in the latest period for which figures are available. [245251]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development (DFID) has no specific programmes targeted to reduce the number of deaths by drowning. However, DFID makes significant investments in public health and education in developing countries, both of which will help improve accident prevention.

The UK Government do not make its own estimates of cause-specific mortality. The World Health Organisation (WHO) publishes information on cause-specific mortality for countries, regions and globally. The latest available estimates are for 2002 and show that an estimated 376,000 people drowned, making it the third leading cause of unintentional injury death globally after road traffic injuries and falls. These global burden of disease figures are an under-estimate of all drowning deaths, since they exclude drowning due to floods (cataclysms), boating and water transport. The vast majority (approximately 97 per cent.) of all drowning deaths occurred in low and middle-income countries.

Overseas Aid: Emergency Services

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the reasons were for the decision that search and rescue capability for disasters overseas will be provided to his Department by UK fire and rescue services; and if he will place in the Library the terms of the agreement between his Department and UK fire and rescue services on the provision of this service. [244758]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) needed to streamline its working arrangements with UK voluntary search and rescue groups, and place our partnership with them for humanitarian services on a similar footing to the arrangements we have with other humanitarian organisations. The voluntary groups were unable to reach agreement. However, we still needed to find a more efficient and workable arrangement and agreed with the UK Fire and Rescue Service that it would take over responsibility for organising the overseas search and rescue capability we require in disaster response, including supplementing its capacity by commissioning voluntary groups as and when required.

The terms of this agreement are set out in correspondence between DFID and the UK Fire and Rescue Service, copies of which I will place in the Library.

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will list the meetings that officials from his Department have had with (a) the UK International Search and Rescue Group and (b) UK fire and rescue services on the provision of overseas search and rescue services in the last 12 months. [244759]

Mr. Michael Foster: DFID officials met the UK International Search and Rescue Group (UKISARG), with colleagues from the UK Fire and Rescue Service, on 9 and 31 January, 4 March and 6 June 2008. DFID and UK Fire and Rescue Service colleagues additionally met once in the summer of 2008 and again on 8 October and 6 November 2008.

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what processes are in place to co-ordinate the (a) overall management and (b) operational management of overseas search and rescue services between his Department and UK fire and rescue services. [244760]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) and the Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG) have agreed that the DCLG UK Fire and Rescue Service will supply, co-ordinate and manage UK search and rescue operations if required by DFID in its overseas disaster response. The UK Fire and Rescue Service may draw on the services of UK voluntary search and rescue groups if required.

DFID retains overall lead on overseas disaster response, tasking and giving strategic direction to the UK Fire and Rescue Service for any search and rescue component.

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will publish a breakdown by main budget heading of his Department's expenditure on overseas search and rescue operations for each of the past three years; and how much is expected to be spent on such operations in each of the next three years. [244761]

Mr. Michael Foster: There has been no requirement for the Department for International Development (DFID) to support overseas search and rescue operations since the Pakistan earthquake in October 2005. Should any disaster occur in the coming years requiring international assistance with search and rescue DFID will be ready to contribute assistance.

We are in the process of agreeing a multi-annual budget with the UK Fire and Rescue Service.

Overseas Aid: Wildlife Conservation

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what projects his Department funded aimed at protecting endangered species in developing countries in 2007. [245413]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) recognises the importance of biodiversity conservation to its poverty reduction efforts and continues to channel significant financial support to the sector through a range of mechanisms. DFID is responsible for UK contributions to the Global Environment Facility (GEF)—the financial mechanism of the Convention on Biological Diversity (CBD). In 2007-08 DFID provided £35 million to the GEF—of which one-third is allocated to biodiversity conservation. DFID has Partnership Programme Agreements (PPAs) with the World Wildlife Fund (WWF) and International Institution of Environment and Development (IIED). In 2007-08 DFID provided £3.699 million to WWF and £1.793 million (2007-08) to IIED.

In addition to the PPAs, DFID support to organisations engaged in the protection of endangered species in 2007-08 included; £281,000 (2007-08) to the Royal Society for Protection of Birds, £142,312 (2007-08) to Bird Life International and £80,587 (2007-08) to the International Union for the Conservation of Nature.

Other areas of our work that contribute indirectly to endangered species protection include our advice to the Convention on Biological Diversity (CBD)—particularly on financing conservation, and on forest and fisheries governance. We are developing a new research programme we are developing on Ecosystem Services and Poverty Alleviation (ESPA) (£30 million over five years), and have recently contributed to International Crop Diversity Trust (£10 million) and the Congo Basin Forest Fund (£60 million over three years).

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much funding his Department allocated to overseas conservation organisations in 2007. [245414]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) has partnership programme agreements (PPAs) with the World Wildlife Fund (WWF) and International Institution of Environment and Development (MED). In 2007-8 DFID provided £3.699 million to WWF and £1.793 million (2007-8) to MED.

In addition to the PPAs, DFID support to overseas conservation organisations in 2007-8 also included; £281,000 (2007-8) to the Royal Society for Protection of Birds, £142,312 (2007-8) to Bird Life International and £80,587 (2007-8) to the International Union for the Conservation of Nature.

Pakistan: Education

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if his Department will assist Pakistan to broaden the curriculum of madrassahs; and if he will make a statement. [245016]

Mr. Michael Foster: While support from the Department for International Development (DFID) does not specifically focus on broadening the curriculum of madrassas, our education programmes will assist Pakistan's ambitious education reforms, which include measures to expand the national curriculum. The new curriculum will be reflected in textbooks and improved quality of teaching in both public and private schools, including madrassas. DFID support to build up the capacity within provincial education departments will also ensure better state regulation of all schools, including madrassas, to meet minimum standards of quality education.

St Helena: Airports

Meg Munn: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) for what reasons there have been a pause in negotiations on the development of the airport on St. Helena; [245027]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effect on the economy of St Helena of a delay in the development of the airport; [245026]

(3) what assessment he has made of the likely effects on the population of St Helena of a delay in the development of an airport on the island; [244814]

(4) what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs before taking the decision to pause the negotiations on the development of the airport on St Helena; [244815]

(5) what reassessment he has made of the likely effects of the delay in developing the airport on St Helena on his Department's future expenditure on assisting the people of that island; [244816]

(6) what discussions he has had with the Foreign Secretary on the decision to pause the negotiations on the development of the airport on St Helena. [245028]

Mr. Michael Foster: No decision has yet been made on the project.

The pause is to allow analysis and discussion, including with ministerial colleagues, of the affordability of options and their implications for access to St. Helena in light of the changed economic limatec.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Academies

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many new Academy Schools were opened in 2008. [247402]

Jim Knight: 47 academies were opened in 2008. A further three opened this January.

Building Schools for the Future Programme

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans his Department has for the future of the Building Schools for the Future programme; and if he will make a statement. [247025]

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has for the management of waves 7 to 15 of the Building Schools for the Future Programme; and if he will make a statement. [247196]

Jim Knight: I aim to announce the revised national programme for Building Schools for the Future shortly, based on the revised expressions of interest which authorities submitted by 30 November 2008. The most highly prioritised projects, which will access funding starting from 2011-12, should enter the programme later in 2009 where they demonstrate that they are ready to deliver.

Children in Care

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what monitoring his Department undertakes of the speed with which local authorities (a) submit care orders for processing through the courts and (b) transfer children in their care or custody into foster homes. [244504]

Beverley Hughes: It is for local authorities with social services responsibilities to determine the point at which an application is made to the court for an order under section 31 of the Children Act 1989. Each application will depend upon the unique circumstances of the individual case with which they are dealing. In some cases, it will be appropriate for an order to be sought immediately regarding a child with whom the local authority will not previously have had contact. In other cases, social services may have been involved with a family over many years before concerns arise which make a care order under section 31 appropriate. Information on the time elapsed before the application of care orders is therefore not collected centrally.

Children entering local authority care are moved into a placement immediately. The majority of children entering care are immediately placed with foster carers. Of the 23,000 children who started to be looked after during the year ending 31 March 2008, 17,300 were placed with foster carers immediately.

Children in Care: Young Offenders

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Stafford of 11 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1067-8W, on children in care: crime, what the estimated total cost of the National Association for the Care and Resettlement of Offenders has been since its inception. [240899]

Beverley Hughes: The funding provided by the Government to NACRO to support their work on reducing offending by young people, including by looked after children, is summarised in the following table. This also includes details of funding provided to NACRO for a short-term project to produce guidance about setting up and managing effective remand foster care provision.

	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	Total 2004-07
NACRO—core funding	140	100	75
Remand fostering project	50	—	—
Total	190	100	75	365

Children: Poverty

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress has been made in the pilot projects designed to test new and innovative approaches to tackling child poverty; and if he will make a statement. [246999]

Beverley Hughes: Steady progress is being made. Two projects—tax credit advisers in job centres and the family intervention projects—are already operational and another, the Work Focused Services pilot, is planned to go live at the end of the month.

We are currently considering the next tranche of pilot projects and we will be announcing the successful applicants shortly.

Children: Protection

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent steps his Department has taken in schools aimed at protecting children from domestic abuse. [244666]

Beverley Hughes: Safeguarding Children and Safer Recruitment in Education (2006) makes clear that everyone in the education service should help keep children and young people safe. They should do this by identifying those who are suffering, or likely to suffer significant harm, and take appropriate action with the aim of making sure they are kept safe both at home an in the education setting.

Through the school curriculum children are supported to develop their capacity to empathise, show respect and form positive relationships with other people. Schools have specifically reported less conflict, calmer classrooms and better relationships as a result. As part of the National Delivery Plan for Domestic Violence the DCSF continues to work with the Home Office and in June 2008, new materials were launched specifically for schools and for young people to raise awareness of forced marriage. These were sent to all secondary schools, pupil referral units, local authorities and Local Safeguarding Children Boards.

To support the most vulnerable children, including those whose childhood is being ruined by abuse of any kind, the DCSF is providing £30 million to support the expansion and integration of the NSPCC's listening services. This money will allow the NSPCC to expand their services significantly so that more children can be given the advice and help that can be so important. The Government are also investing £102.5 million over 2008-11 in the deployment of parent support advisers (PSAs) with over 1,500 PSAs and similar professionals currently working in schools. These professionals support families across a range of issues, which can include domestic abuse, and in particular focus on prevention and early intervention.

Children's Centres

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children's centres there are in England. [247233]

Beverley Hughes: There are currently 2,920 Sure Start children's centres in England providing access to services to over 2.3 million children and their families.

By 2010 there will be at least 3,500 centres, one for every community, offering permanent and universal provision to help ensure that every child gets the best start in life.

Connexions

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of Connexions services in targeting young people not in education, employment or training to ensure that they have information, advice and guidance required to understand their options. [247244]

Beverley Hughes: In 2005, my Department published its report of the "End to End Review of Careers Education and Guidance" which concluded that Connexions has made good progress with targeted services for young people not in education, employment or training (NEET), or at risk of becoming NEET. This follows similarly positive findings by Ofsted in inspections carried out between 2002 and 2004 and from a 2004 survey of young people's views. The recently commissioned Ofsted Thematic Review of Information Advice and Guidance will include a focus on IAG for young people who are not in employment, education or training and on those leaving care and will give us a more up-to-date picture of the effectiveness of these services. In addition, the Department will continue to monitor local authorities' performance in reducing the proportion of 16 to 19-year-olds not in education, employment and training, and where necessary, challenge and support them to secure improvement.

Drugs: Misuse

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress has been made to date under his Department's Drugs: protecting families and communities strategy; and if he will make a statement. [247259]

Beverley Hughes: The 10-year drug strategy "Protecting families and communities", published in February 2008, set out a series of steps to address the problems associated with young people's misuse of drugs, alcohol and volatile substances. The main action that has already been taken is as follows.

A review of drug and alcohol education has taken place and, in response to its recommendations, in October 2008 Government committed to review existing guidance on the subject by September 2009 and to conduct an independent review of how its decision to make PSHE statutory status could be translated into a practical way forward.

To continue helping to prevent drug use among young people (11 to 18) by changing their attitudes and perceptions towards drugs and drug users, a new FRANK Cocaine campaign was launched in December 2008. Awareness of FRANK remains very high: in the latest tracking study (report July 2008) 83 per cent. of young people were aware of the campaign. This figure is unchanged from 2007.

A cross-government working group has been set up, informing thinking for next Drug Strategy Action Plan, measuring impact of existing interventions with at risk families, identifying research priorities and informing the rollout of Think Family reforms at local level.

The drug strategy committed to publish guidance to help the commissioning and delivery of treatment services with a greater focus on the needs of parents and families, and to that effect the National Treatment Agency (NTA) published carers' guidance in October 2008. The NTA will also shortly be publishing updated commissioning guidance for local partnerships which will include a specific section on commissioning appropriate services for parental drug users, including pregnant drug users. The document will also provide guidance to commissioners on supporting families around drug use and involving them in the commissioning system.

To meet our commitment to provide intensive support to substance misusing parents through a range of recently established family interventions, targeting families at risk, the substance misuse agenda has been included in remit letter for local parenting support advisers; Family Pathfinder status has been awarded to 14 areas, one focussing on substance misuse; and, substance misuse has been included in the broad remit for parenting and early intervention projects. Furthermore, family intervention pilots (FIP) have been extended to 500 further families affected by substance misuse. NTA are working with DCSF in the development of the child poverty family intervention projects in 10 pilot areas during 2008-09. This will be rolled out to further areas in the next two years.

To meet our commitment toward encouraging better take-up of free child care for three and four-year-olds (and two-year-olds in pilot areas) to improve access to treatment for parents, the NTA will be publishing family friendly treatment guidance for commissioners and providers in spring 2009. NTA is also continuously working on ensuring that parents seeking access to treatment are aware of free provision.

Early Years Capital Grant

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of the Early Years Capital Grant will be made available to (a) private, voluntary and independent day care settings and (b) maintained settings in the 2008-11 spending period. [244792]

Beverley Hughes: The Quality and Access Capital Grant has three aims:

1. To improve the quality of the learning environment in early years settings to support delivery of the Early Years Foundation Stage (EYFS), with a particular emphasis on improving play and physical activities, and Information and Computer Technology (ICT) resources;

2. To ensure that all children, including disabled children, are able to access provision; and,

3. To enable providers in the private, voluntary and independent sectors to deliver the extension to the free offer for 3 and 4 year olds and to do so flexibly.

Our expectation is that the majority of the grant is used to improve the quality of the environment in private, voluntary and independent (PVI) early years and child care settings, both to support higher quality experiences for young children and to ensure that all children can access services and benefit fully from them.

However, spending on the maintained sector is not precluded and we have not set a percentage split between PVI and maintained settings. Providing that spend is in line with the three aims set out above, it is for local authorities to decide how to distribute the grant to providers.

Entry to Learning Programme

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent progress has been made in the Entry to Learning Programme; and if he will make a statement. [247254]

Beverley Hughes: The Entry to Learning pilot programme was announced in the Children's Plan in December 2007. It builds on the successful work that is already done by innovative third sector and local authority funded provision in restoring the confidence and self-esteem of young people who are not in education, employment or training (NEET). The programme aims to improve young people's progression from this provision to more formal learning to ensure that they are able to advance and gain the skills and qualifications they need to succeed.

Having developed the Entry to Learning programme with input from the Learning and Skills Council and a number of experienced third sector providers, we invited all local areas to express an interest in taking part in the pilot in July 2008. We received over 30 expressions of interest and selected four local areas for the first phase of the pilot: Brighton and Hove (with East Sussex), Birmingham, Sandwell and Lancashire.

Working closely with these areas and building on lessons from the Activity Agreement and Allowance Pilot, we developed a detailed specification for Entry to Learning to guide local areas as they developed their plans for implementing the programme.

Grant letters were issued to all four local areas in November 2008, formally beginning the pilots and allowing the local areas to recruit project managers for the programme. All four areas submitted detailed implementation plans, which were signed off by my Department in early December. The local teams are now engaged in delivery against these plans, recruiting the trusted adults who will support young people through this programme.

Families Group

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent progress the Families Group has made towards meeting its objectives; and if he will make a statement. [247802]

Beverley Hughes: The family is fundamentally important to society and is where most individuals get the support they need to progress throughout their lives. The "Children's Plan" set out the Department's strategic direction for supporting families to ensure that children are given the best possible start in life. This includes empowering parents to make informed choices; helping families out of poverty, while maintaining a work life balance for parents and families; supporting strong couple relationships; increasing the availability of parenting programmes and support to help parents improve their ability to be effective parents; and providing support to families who are struggling or where parental problems (such as drug abuse or mental health) get in the way of positive parenting to get the family back on track.

The "Children's Plan One Year On" set out recent progress towards these aims. This includes refocusing efforts to ensure that every local authority now has a parenting strategy which set out how services are available across a continuum of need from universal services through to very targeted interventions for the most vulnerable families; ensuring that the workforce understands the value of parental engagement and the specific role they can and should play; and introducing a single commissioner to lead on developing local services for parents. We have also recently announced extra support for separating parents and their children to cope better with the impact of parental separation and conflict. The Government have also made significant progress in tackling child poverty and supporting working parents through flexible working, extended maternity leave entitlement and the introduction of paternity leave.

Family Pathfinder Programme

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent progress has been made in the Family Pathfinder pilots; and if he will make a statement. [247001]

Beverley Hughes: Since the announcement of the successful Family Pathfinder areas in May 2008 all 15 have begun to implement their plans to test the Think Family model. The Pathfinders are testing innovations on a number of themes including whole family assessment, better information sharing, joint commissioning and multi-agency working in order to better identify and work with families with multiple and complex problems. The Pathfinder local authorities have all attended two events to share ideas and best practice and to gather learning on how to implement the Think Family model. DCSF have commissioned an evaluation of the pathfinders which will produce an interim report in the spring.

Foster Care

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will publish his Department's (a) draft contract for independent fostering and (b) standard contract for residential care. [247276]

Beverley Hughes: The national contract for the placement of children in independent foster care was published on 3 October 2008. Since then it has been available from the Department's website at:

www.everychildmatters.gov.uk/resources-and-practice/IG00316/.

The national contract for the placement of children in residential homes was published in early November 2007. Since then it has been available from the Department's website at:

www.everychildmatters.gov.uk/resources-and-practice/IG00315/.

Further Education: Admissions

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the September Guarantee in meeting its objectives; and if he will make a statement. [247237]

Beverley Hughes: Figures collected by Connexions services show that 94.2 per cent. of 16-year-olds who completed compulsory education in 2008 said that they wanted to remain in learning, and received an offer under the September Guarantee. This is an increase from 91.8 per cent. in 2007, the first year of the Guarantee.

The Guarantee was extended to 17-year-olds in 2008, and almost 80 per cent. of those who had been engaged on a short course or who were not in education, employment or training (NEET), also received an offer.

Statistics on the proportion of young people participating in learning, or who are NEET, are published annually by DCSF. The proportion of 16-year-olds in learning has risen steadily over the last seven years, with an acceleration in 2007 when the September Guarantee was first introduced. It is not possible to separate out the effects of the Guarantee from other factors, but feedback from local areas suggests that it had a significant impact on supporting this improvement. 2008 participation and NEET statistics are due to be published in June 2009.

Successful delivery of the Guarantee is a key step towards preparing local authorities, and their partners, for the raising of the age at which young people will participate in education or training to 17 in 2013 and 18 in 2015.

B represents pupils who were assessed by teacher assessment only.
N represents pupils who took the tests but failed to register a level.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department has spent on contracting a private company to provide pre-tests to the (a) key stage 2 and (b) key stage 3 tests for 2009; and if he will make a statement. [244530]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) is responsible for the administration of the Key Stage 2 (KS2) and Key Stage 3 (KS3) national curriculum tests, including pre-testing. Contracts are inclusive of development, pre-testing, marking and analysis and equating costs. QCA advise that specific costs for pre-tests are not available.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) key stage 1 and (b) key stage 2 test results were appealed against in 2008; what proportion of those appeals led to the results being changed; and if he will make a statement. [244532]

Jim Knight: The National Assessment Agency (NAA) is responsible for administering national curriculum tests. Key stage 1 consists of a series of tests and tasks administered by teachers and these are not marked externally. At key stage 2, the NAA has in place arrangements for marking to be reviewed where a school believes that it is inaccurate to the extent that a pupil has received an incorrect national curriculum level. The NAA is currently managing the final phase of the reviews process and expects that all results will be issued to schools in the coming weeks. The great majority of schools have already received results for their review applications. Once the final phase of review marking is complete, NAA will be able to provide full data on the volume and outcome of reviews for the 2008 national curriculum test cycle.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which key individuals from the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority led Project Tornado referred to in paragraph 2.6 of the Sutherland Inquiry report HC 62. [245833]

Jim Knight: The National Assessment Agency (NAA) Managing Director had oversight of the procurement process and chaired associated project boards.

The NAA Operations Director was the Senior Responsible Officer for Project Tornado.

National Curriculum Tests: Contracts

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the Statement of 16 December 2008, Official Report, columns 991-93, on the Sutherland Inquiry, on what dates between June 2007 to July 2008 staff of his Department drew their own assessments of risks in the Key Stage Testing Contract to the attention of Ministers in his Department; what concerns were raised; what action Ministers took in each case; and if he will make a statement. [246177] management processes which provided thorough coverage across the Department's business. Between June 2007 and early July 2008 (when the NAA alerted Ministers to the likely delays to the release of test data), DCSF officials reported their assessment of risks to DCSF Ministers on several occasions. Ministers also received regular updates on national curriculum test delivery from the QCA and NAA, who continued to reassure Ministers as late as 17 June that delivery remained on track. Ministers responded to these assessments by seeking reassurance from QCA and NAA that they had suitable action in hand to secure delivery of their contractors' obligations.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families on what occasions during 2008 referred to in the Sutherland Inquiry reference: 4.137, officials from his Department escalated their assessment of risk associated with the marking of key stage 3 and key stage 2 national curriculum tests to Ministers; and what subsequent action Ministers took on each such occasion. [246273]

Jim Knight: As Lord Sutherland reported, DCSF had comprehensive arrangements in place to monitor QCA's performance, including good project and risk management processes which provided thorough coverage across the Department's business. Between January 2008 and early July (when the NAA alerted Ministers to the likely delays to the release of test data), DCSF officials reported their assessment of risks to DCSF Ministers on several occasions. Thereafter, Ministers also received regular, and at least weekly, updates on national curriculum test delivery from the QCA and NAA, who continued to reassure Ministers as late as 17 June that delivery remained on track. Ministers responded to these assessments by seeking reassurance from QCA and NAA that they had suitable action in hand to secure delivery of their contractors' obligations.

Qualifications and Curriculum Authority: Location

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the cost of the relocating of the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority headquarters to Coventry. [245832]

Jim Knight: The current estimate of relocation costs is £48 million. An additional, £16 million provision is shown in the 2007-08 Annual Accounts relating to unoccupied lease obligations for current London offices.

Given particularly that accommodation costs in the West Midlands are lower than those in central London, the relocation of QCA is expected to deliver cost savings in the long term.

The 2004 Lyons review recommended that Government make the significant investment required to relocate organisations out of London and the South East, and concluded that there would be positive economic benefits to areas into which organisations were relocated.

Schools: Standards

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how long on average a school placed in special measures spent under those measures in the latest period for which information is available. [247415]

Jim Knight: The following table shows the average number of months that primary and secondary schools spend in special measures. The figures are based on the schools that were removed from this Ofsted category during the 2007/08 academic year and the 1997/98 figures are shown for comparison. Pupil referral units and special schools are not included in view of the small numbers involved.

	Number of months spent in special measures
Phase	2007/08	1997/98
Primary	18	23
Secondary	20	28

Note:

Secondary Education

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of secondary schools offer wrap-around care (a) before school, (b) after school and (c) before and after school in each local authority area. [247055]

Beverley Hughes: We want all schools to offer access to a core offer of extended services by 2010. Secondary schools are not expected to offer formal wraparound child care. Instead they are expected to provide access to a varied menu of activities such as study support, sports clubs, music tuition, dance, drama and art clubs in a safe place to be, before and after school from 8 am to 6 pm and during the school holidays, in response to demand.

We are making good progress with local authorities reporting that more than 15,190 schools, around 67 per cent. of all maintained schools including 2,590 secondary (77 per cent.), now providing access to the full core offer and many more already providing access to the varied menu of activities aspect of the core offer.

Specialised Diplomas

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many students who started a new diploma course in September 2008 have since withdrawn from the course; and if he will make a statement. [244533]

Jim Knight: There is usually some fluctuation in learner numbers and qualifications at the beginning of the autumn term. We asked local authorities to provide us with diploma learner number information at the end of September, in order to allow for some of the initial fluctuation to have occurred and so to gather more accurate figures. Local authorities told us that just over 12,000 young people started a diploma course this term. We collected this information for funding purposes, and we have not collected revised figures subsequently.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the progress of the 14 to 19 Partnerships in planning for the delivery of the entitlement to 17 diploma lines across the country by 2013. [247245]

Jim Knight: 14-19 Partnerships provide an assessment of their progress in delivering all areas of the 14-19 reform programme through 14-19 Progress Checks. Progress Checks assess a Partnership's ability to meet the 14-19 entitlement, including delivery of the Diploma entitlement, and help them to identify where they may need to take further action. The latest round of Progress Checks in October 2008 showed that 14-19 Partnerships are making good progress on the delivery of 14-19 reforms, with 89 per cent. of areas rated Green or Amber Green.

As part of the application process for the Diploma Gateway, 14-19 Partnerships have been asked to outline their strategy for ensuring delivery of the Diploma entitlement by 2013. The results of the Gateway will be available in March.

Vocational Training

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many 16 to 19 year olds are enrolled on an entry to employment programme; and if he will make a statement. [245602]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Entry to employment (E2E) is a tailored programme for 16 to 18-year-olds who are not yet ready or able to enter apprenticeship, employment or further education and who are not yet ready to study a qualification at level 2. E2E has been highly successful with over 25,000 young people in learning at any one time. In 2007-08, 54,717 young people started the programme and of the 51,709 who participated on the programme for the minimum length of time of four weeks to around 22 weeks or longer, depending on the requirements of the young person, 27,900 progressed into further education or employment.

This covers the 2007-08 academic year which are the latest data available from the Learning and Skills Council (LSC).

As part of the 14 to 19 education and skills reforms, we are developing the Foundation Learning Tier (FLT) to create a more coherent set of entry level and level 1 qualifications. FLT progression pathways will offer learning programmes tailored to the needs and aspirations of individuals and have been developed from best practice in E2E programmes. FLT progression pathways are being piloted in 2008-09 and 2009-10, including with some E2E providers, and will be fully evaluated to ensure they meet the needs of learners. When phased piloting is complete, the Foundation Learning Tier will encompass all current LSC funded provision for young people and adults at this level, including E2E programmes.

Young Offenders

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has for the implementation of the Youth Conditional Caution; and if he will make a statement. [247263]

Beverley Hughes: We propose to introduce the Youth Conditional Caution in stages. Pilots for 16 and 17-year-olds will begin in summer 2009. Evaluation of the pilot schemes will inform decisions on national roll out of the Caution for 16 and 17-year-olds and its application to 10 to 15-year-olds. Consultation on the statutory code of practice governing use of the Youth Conditional Caution for 16 and 17-year-olds will begin shortly and I will ensure that the hon. Member receives copies of the consultation documents.

Young People: Alcoholic Drinks

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Youth Alcohol Action Plan in meeting its objectives; and if he will make a statement. [247258]

Beverley Hughes: The Youth Alcohol Action Plan (YAAP) published on 2 June 2008 set out a comprehensive approach to address the problems associated with young people's alcohol consumption. The key steps that have already been taken are as follows.

Antisocial behaviour and violent crime related to outdoor drinking by young people is being tackled through the introduction of a number of new initiatives through the Policing and Crime Bill announced in the Queen's Speech in December 2008. Subject to parliamentary approval, this would include the introduction of a new offence of persistently possessing alcohol in a public place by under 18s; increasing the penalty for the offence of consuming alcohol in a designated public place; ensuring that when police confiscate alcohol from under 18s that they also take a record of their name and address and if they are under 16, remove them to a place of safety; and by lowering the age for direction to individuals who represent a risk of disorder powers, so that police can now disperse groups of under 16s.

The Policing and Crime Bill also would introduce a mandatory code for the alcohol retail industry which will include further action to reduce underage sales; and the offence of selling alcohol to children would be changed from on three or more to two or more different occasions. The Home Office has provided funding to encourage greater take-up and acceptance of the proof of age standards scheme.

We committed to ensuring that parents were made to be responsible for their children's alcohol related antisocial behaviour, with greater use of acceptable behaviour contracts and parenting contracts. The Home Office will shortly be launching a series of practitioner training workshops to improve the skills of frontline practitioners on the tools and powers at their disposal to tackle alcohol-related harms, which will be followed up by revised guidance to the police, health and children's services in all local areas to strengthen their approach to dealing with young people drinking in public places.

Targeted work on reducing the harm arising from young people's substance misuse, of which alcohol plays a part particularly with vulnerable young people, is being taken forward through actions set out in the drug strategy, "Drugs: Protecting Families and Communities" (published in February 2008). This includes improving the specialist treatment available to those under 18s with substance misuse problems, with alcohol dependency the main factor in over 1/3 of all those currently being helped; ensuring a focus on identifying problems early through children's services, including where a child is affected by parental alcohol misuse; and supporting the most vulnerable young people through targeted youth support and substance misuse workers in all youth offending teams. To target families at risk, family intervention pilots (FIP) have been extended to 500 further families affected by substance misuse including alcohol.

Furthermore, Government have committed to ensuring that young people and their parents are provided with appropriate information to prevent them from suffering from the risks of alcohol use. We will shortly be issuing guidance from the Chief Medical Officer what consists responsible drinking, and we expect to consult with parents and young people on what information and advice they would find useful to their decisions about young people's drinking and to help reduce harms caused by it. We anticipate that consultation on the information and advice will form part of a wider social marketing campaign on young people's drinking.

A review of drug and alcohol education has taken place and, in response to its recommendations, in October 2008 Government committed to review existing guidance on the subject by September 2009 and to conduct an independent review of how its decision to make PSHE statutory status can be translated into a practical way forward.

Young People: Education

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the percentage of 17 year-olds who will be in education in (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11. [247192]

Jim Knight: The Learning and Skills Council have published, in their Annual Statement of priorities for 2009-10, projected participation figures for the proportion of 17-year-olds who are expected to be in education and work-based learning for the academic years 2007/08, 2008/09 and 2009/10. These are:

	Proportion participating in education or work-based learning at age 17 (percentage)
2007/08	79
2009/10	84

The Department's Grant letter to the LSC for 2009-10 also stated the ambition to increase the proportion of 17-year-olds in education or training so that 86 per cent. are participating in 2010/11.

A copy of the LSC's Annual Statement of Priorities, which includes the Grant Letter, can be accessed at:

www.lsc.gov.uk/aboutus/lscstrategy/statementofpriorities/

Young People: Unemployment

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of young people was not in education, employment or training in 2007. [247486]

Beverley Hughes: Estimates of participation in education, training and employment for those aged 16 to 18 are published annually by the Department in a Statistical First Release (SFR) each June and can be found on the Department's website (http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000792/index.shtml). This publication includes the Department's official estimate of the proportion of young people not in education, employment or training (NEET). At the end of 2007, 9.4 per cent. of 16 to 18-year-olds were NEET.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Arctic

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which countries' claims to Arctic waters are disputed by (a) the UK and (b) other countries. [244489]

Gillian Merron: The UK does not have any claims in the Arctic.

The UK expects that the five coastal states bordering on the Arctic Ocean should act in accordance with the framework of international law, including the law of the sea. The Government note that in their declaration at Ilulissat on 27-29 May 2008 the five states have committed themselves to this framework, as well as to working through the International Maritime Organisation. We welcome this.

Chagos Islands

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what meetings he and his predecessors have had with representatives of the Chagossian people in the last 10 years. [245420]

Gillian Merron: Officials have been in regular contact with representatives of the Chagossian people in Mauritius, the Seychelles and also in the UK. Ministers have also had meetings with Chagossian representatives based in the UK and in Mauritius.

As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary said in his press statement following the Law Lords judgment on 22 October on the Judicial Review of the 2004 BIOT Orders in Council, the Government will keep in close touch with the Chagossian communities.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he plans to take in response to the recent House of Lords decision on the Chagos Islanders. [245423]

Gillian Merron: Following the House of Lords ruling, the two Orders in Council made for the British Indian Ocean Territory (BIOT) in 2004 stand and provide that no person has a right of abode in BIOT or the right to enter the Territory unless authorised.

The Government continue to be in close touch with the Chagossian communities and consider carefully future requests to visit the Territory. A group of six Chagossians now resident in Crawley visited Diego Garcia and the outer islands of the British Indian Ocean Territory in November 2008. This visit was organised and funded by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

Climate Change

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what additional (a) personnel and (b) financial resources his Department has allocated to addressing climate change in accordance with the undertaking given in the Written Ministerial Statement of 23 January 2008, Official Report, column 52WS, on the New Strategic Framework. [242202]

David Miliband: In accordance with new Strategic Framework for the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, I have substantially increased both the resources devoted to addressing climate change at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO). The Climate Change and Energy programme budget in the FCO's Strategic Programme Fund has been increased from £4.7 million in FY 2007-08 to £10 million for FY 2008-09, £16 million for FY 2009-10 and £21 million for FY 2010-11.

In addition, the number of staff working to deliver climate change and energy objectives has also increased. £0.8 million has been provided to create 19 new positions in London. An extra £5.732 million for diplomatic missions in priority countries has created 32.5 new positions for British diplomats on postings and 73 positions for locally-engaged members of staff.

I have stepped up the frequency of my discussions on climate change with counterparts and will continue to do so, in coordination with the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change, in advance of the critical UNFCCC (UN Framework Convention on Climate Change) Conference of Parties at Copenhagen in December 2009.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the Answer of 26 November 2008, on climate change, (1) whether there will be any change to (a) resources and (b) personnel devoted to the Climate Change and Energy programme in his Department in light of the creation of a Department for Energy and Climate Change; [242238]

(2) where each of the 73 locally-engaged members of staff are based; with which UK mission they work; and what their responsibilities are; [242239]

(3) which countries are priorities for his Department's Climate Change and Energy programme; what the (a) grade and (b) responsibilities are of the 32.5 new positions for British diplomats; and in which countries they are based; [242240]

(4) what mechanisms exist for the co-ordination of his Department's Climate Change and Energy programme with the Department for Energy and Climate Change; and if he will make a statement. [242241]

David Miliband: As I referred to in the answer I gave on 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 2138W, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has substantially increased the level of resources devoted to addressing climate change. We do not intend to alter this approach following the creation of the Department for Energy and Climate Change (DECC). Addressing climate change continues to be a top priority for the Foreign Office and is a key part of Departmental Strategic Objective (DSO) 7.

The distribution of the new locally-engaged staff and UK-based diplomats to which I referred in my previous answer will be in line with FCO priority countries for HMG's objectives on climate change. These are: Australia, Brazil, Canada, China, France, Germany, India, Indonesia, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Poland, Russia, Saudi Arabia, South Africa, South Korea, Spain, Turkey and the USA. The newly recruited staff are located in: Caracas, Bogota, Lima, Brasilia, Vancouver, Ottawa, Santiago, Mexico City, Buenos Aires, La Paz, Washington and across the US network, New Delhi, Mumbai, Kolkata, Chennai, Moscow, St. Petersburg, Beijing and across the China network, Jakarta, Singapore, Kuala Lumpar, Bangkok, Manila, Tokyo, Seoul, Pretoria, Cape Town, Berlin, Rome and Warsaw. UK-based diplomats have been recruited at grades SMS, D6 and C4. The newly recruited staff have a range of responsibilities which vary depending on the climate change and energy priorities of the mission in which they are based. These priorities are set out in each mission's business plan.

Members of DECC sit on the FCO's DSO 7 programme board and the Strategic Programme Fund Board, while the FCO sits on the cross-Whitehall International Climate Change and Energy Board, which is chaired by DECC. The International Strategy and Campaigns Unit (ISCU) was also created in early 2008 to co-ordinate HMG policy on aspects of climate change policy. The UK Government are critically aware of the need to ensure our climate change and energy policies are developed and delivered in a coherent manner.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what additional support the European Union has given to the UN mission in the Democratic Republic of Congo in respect of (a) equipment, (b) intelligence and (c) logistics since renewed fighting began in October 2008. [242810]

Gillian Merron: European member states, including the UK, continue to support the UN mission to the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) (MONUC) through contributions to the cost of running the mission. The UK also provides military technical expertise to MONUC. The EU has not provided any additional support in these three categories since the resumption of hostilities in DRC. Member states have discussed how best to respond to the UN Secretary General's request for assistance. Humanitarian support from EU member states for the victims of violence in DRC has increased, and the EU is closely engaged in diplomatic efforts to resolve the questions at its root.

Departmental Air Travel

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many official journeys (a) he and his predecessors and (b) his officials made by plane in each of the last five years. [247503]

Gillian Merron: I refer you to my answer of 19 November 2008, Official Report, column 650W which sets out all overseas visits undertaken by the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs and all FCO Ministers since June 2007 and my predecessor's answer of 5 December 2007, Official Report, column 1297W, which states that since 1999 the Government have published an annual list of all visits overseas undertaken by Cabinet Ministers costing £500 or more during each financial year. Copies are available in the Library.

For Ministers below Cabinet rank and officials, collecting the detailed information requested could not be done without incurring disproportionate cost.

Departmental Higher Education

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many staff in his Department undertook courses funded by the Department for (a) undergraduate degrees, (b) postgraduate degrees or diplomas, (c) Masters degrees, (d) MBA degrees and (e) PhD degrees in the last 12 months, broken down by pay band. [242137]

Gillian Merron: In 2008, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office human resources directorate provided funding for:

(a) Three members of staff at band A, seven members of staff at band B, one member of staff at C4, one member of staff at band D6 and two members of staff at band D7 to study for an undergraduate degree;

(b) 18 members of staff at band B3, 12 members of staff at band C4, one member of staff at band C5, five members of staff in band D6, two at band D7 and one senior management officer to study postgraduate diplomas;

(c) two members of staff at band C4 to study masters degrees;

(d) three members of staff at band B3, five members of staff at band C4, four members of staff at band C5, 17 members of staff in band D6 , to study MBAs

(e) no members of staff to study PHDs.

In addition, it is possible that other directorates in the FCO have funded members of staff to complete courses relating to a specialist area, however we do not keep figures on this and gathering the information would incur disproportionate cost.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much his Department spent on Ministerial hospitality in (a) 2004-05, (b) 2005-06, (c) 2006-07 and (d) 2007-08, expressed in current prices. [241240]

Gillian Merron: Government hospitality in protocol directorate of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) recorded the following expenditure on official hospitality for all Government Departments, including new stock purchased for the Government wine cellar, for the previous four financial years:

2005-06	809,529
2006-07	592,592
2007-08	525,568

The FCO does not maintain a central record of other hospitality expenditure, and to provide this information would incur disproportionate cost. However, all FCO staff are bound by official guidance which ensures that the provision of food and beverages at public expense is appropriate and cost effective.

Departmental Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make it his policy to ensure that those temporary and permanent employees at the same grade in his Department who are paid at an hourly rate are paid at the same rate. [244392]

Gillian Merron: All civil servants permanently employed by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) receive an annual salary. This is determined by a member of staff s grade, performance and, to some degree, length of service.

The FCO pays staff whom it employs directly on temporary contracts exactly the same rates of pay as permanent members of staff.

Some temporary staff are supplied by agencies. These staff are employed and paid by the agency concerned, which then charges a fee to the FCO. Individual agencies determine the rates of pay for their agency staff.

Departmental Secondment

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on how many occasions (a) Ministers and (b) officials from his Department have (i) met and (ii) spoken on the telephone to representatives of (A) Anglo American plc, (B) BHP Billiton plc, (C) Rio Tinto plc, (D) Vedanta plc and (E) Xstrata plc since April 2007; and how many staff from each such company have been seconded to his Department in that period. [245891]

Gillian Merron: Information is not available on the number of occasions Foreign and Commonwealth Ministers and officials met or were consulted by telephone by representatives of these companies. This information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

No one from these companies has been seconded to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office since April 2007.

Diplomatic Service: Recruitment

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what criteria internal selection boards in his Department apply to the selection of heads of mission. [244253]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) number 1 and number 2 Selection Boards appoint heads of mission at senior civil service (SCS) level. Members are appointed by virtue of their position, without further criteria for membership of the selection boards. Members of the number 1 selection board are FCO board members, that is Directors-General of the FCO. One non-executive FCO board member also sits on the number 1 selection board. Membership of the number 2 selection board is drawn by rotation from the list of FCO Directors. FCO Directors and Directors-General are appointed to those positions on the basis of merit.

The Band D selection board appoints heads of mission in the delegated grades, that is those grades below the level of the senior civil service. This board is chaired by the Human Resources Assistant Director for Operations. Its members are volunteers at SCS level, who are required to have experience of working in our missions overseas as well as in UK positions. Their membership of the selection board is approved by the trade union side.

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) takes a targeted approach to outreach activities, aimed at broadening the diversity of our work force, including through a new positive action programme, the Partner University Placement Scheme (PUPS).

The partner universities are Bath, Bristol, Cambridge, Durham, Edinburgh, Kings College, Manchester, Nottingham, Oxford and University College London, and were chosen because they scored highly both in terms of academic achievement and ethnic diversity and/or social inclusion.

The FCO also participates in Cabinet Office diversity internships taking students from the Summer Development Programme (SDP) and the Summer Placement Scheme (SPS). The SDP is an internship for students from a minority ethnic background and the SPS is for students with a registered disability.

The FCO has also attended:

Two university work experience fairs at Durham and Kings College;

Four university careers fairs at Cambridge, Edinburgh, Bath and Kings College;

The National Graduate Recruitment Exhibition in Manchester.

FCO Services, a Trading Fund of the FCO, has attended two careers fairs in Milton Keynes.

These outreach activities were specifically targeted at the recruitment of candidates for vacancies and work experience schemes. All these events contained a strong message aimed at increasing the diversity base of those who apply for roles at the FCO.

It is for the government of India and the relevant state authorities to investigate any such links and take appropriate action.

India: Terrorism

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the Indian government on the terrorist attacks in Mumbai. [242870]

Bill Rammell: Since the terrorist attacks in Mumbai my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has been in touch with Indian Foreign Minister, Pranab Mukherjee. He has expressed the UK's full support to the Indian government in its efforts to investigate the attacks and bring to justice those responsible.

Iraq: Christianity

Mr. Leigh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if the Government will urge the Iraqi government to conduct an investigation into the alleged involvement of the Kurdistan Democratic Party in the recent assassinations of Christians in Mosul, and to publish all that investigation's findings. Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on how many occasions the UK's intelligence agencies have sought assurances from their Israeli counterparts on their humane treatment of detainees in the last five years. [244378]

Caroline Flint: All staff employed by the BBC, regardless of country of origin or background, have to meet robust selection criteria, and once working for the BBC must adhere to strict editorial policies and guidelines. The BBC does not keep specific information about their previous employment.

Russia: British Council

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the reductions to the British Council's regional network in Russia are, as referred to on page 28 of his Department's Autumn 2008 Performance Report. [246263]

David Miliband: The reductions to the British Council's regional network referred to on page 28 of the Autumn Performance Report referred to the planned closures of the following British Council regional centres:

Krasnoyarsk;
Nizhny-Novgorod, Russia;
Novosibirsk;
Omsk;
Rostov-on-Don;
Samara;
Sochi; Volgograd;
Yuzhno-Sakhalinsk.

In addition to this strategic reduction, the British Council suspended its operations in St. Petersburg and Yekaterinburg in 2008. The British Council now has a single office in Moscow, without walk-in public access. The resources from its former library and information centre in Moscow were handed over to the State Library of Foreign Literature and have been made available to the public.

Sri Lanka: Armed Conflict

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of people arrested and detained in Northern Sri Lanka in connection with the conflict between the Government of Sri Lanka and the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam since January 2008. [243162]

Bill Rammell: It is extremely difficult to obtain accurate, independent information about events in northern Sri Lanka where the armed forces are engaged in active military hostilities with the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam and so we have no credible information on which to base an estimate. We nevertheless continue to be seriously concerned about human rights across Sri Lanka, including reports of incidents of the targeting and mistreatment of civilians, intimidation of the media, abductions and disappearances, arrests and detentions and the internal displacement of the population by conflict.

UN Security Council

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government has made a recent proposal to the Secretary General of the UN regarding the rotation of the countries holding a veto in the UN Security Council. [246218]

Bill Rammell: The Government have made no such proposal.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when the UK last used its veto in the United Nations Security Council (UNSC) (a) alone and (b) with one or more other members of the UNSC doing so at the same time separately or collectively, with other members of the UNSC. Bill Rammell: The UK has used its veto in the UN Security Council 30 times. It has used its veto alone five times. On the remaining 25 occasions, it used its veto at the same time as other members of the P5.

Zimbabwe: Politics and Government

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the security situation in Zimbabwe, with reference to the recent riots and protests by the Zimbabwean Army; and if he will make a statement. [242181]

David Miliband: There have been outbreaks of violence by soldiers not being able to access their pay after banks appeared to run out of cash. This is a further illustration of the deteriorating situation in Zimbabwe caused by the misrule of Mugabe's government. Restrictions on public meetings and marches persist. Abductions of individuals belonging to the MDC and others defending human rights continue to demonstrate that Mugabe has no intention of reform and genuine power sharing. The EU has unanimously condemned the current health crisis as being a consequence of Mugabe's misrule and has agreed to extend targeted measures against his clique. We are providing humanitarian support for those effected by disease and hunger. We will continue to work with the wider international community who are increasingly vocal in their calls for change in Zimbabwe.

Zimbabwe: United Nations

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is on future action on Zimbabwe by the UN Security Council; what steps are next envisaged; and if he will make a statement. [243157]

Bill Rammell: We are pursuing all available options to encourage a resolution of the crisis in Zimbabwe, including further UN Security Council discussions. We will continue to ensure that Zimbabwe remains on the Council's agenda, and that it continues to press for an urgent end to the crisis. The Security Council discussed Zimbabwe on 15 December and we will press for further discussion in the coming months. Pressure from African leaders will also help to secure a change for Zimbabwe.

Tom Brake: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many Airwave handsets issued to his Department have been lost in each year since their introduction; and how many handsets issued to his Department have been disabled by the service provider through (a) loss, (b) breakage and (c) other reasons in each such year. [246184]

Mr. Watson: No Airwave handsets issued to the Cabinet Office have been recorded as disabled due to loss, breakage or any other reason.

Departmental Computers

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what procedures his Department has put in place to ensure that laptop computers on loan from his Department to civil servants in other Government Departments are accounted for; and who is responsible for their replacement if they are lost. [246307]

Mr. Watson: The Cabinet Office operates appropriate controls to ensure the security, integrity and availability of data and IT equipment assets, and provides comprehensive IT security advice and guidance, including in exceptional circumstances where computers and laptops are loaned from my Department to civil servants in other Government Departments.

Should an IT asset be misplaced or lost, the incident will be recorded in the departmental theft/losses register and where appropriate, a replacement will be obtained. The Cabinet Office may be responsible for purchasing replacement items; however, individual evaluations will be made in each case.

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many (a) letters and (b) emails received by his Department had not been responded to as at 15 December 2008. [244699]

[242910]

Mr. Watson: Investigations into the loss or unauthorised disclosure of information have to consider everyone with access to the information in question.

By its nature, the Cabinet Office holds information across the full range of Government activity.

Information about civil servants in the Cabinet Office included in investigations concerning the loss or deliberate disclosure of data and confidential information is not held centrally. Fewer than five staff working in the Cabinet Office at the time of loss or unauthorised disclosure of data or confidential information have been suspended or dismissed following such investigations since 1998.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what percentage of contractors and suppliers to (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have reported that they are compliant with the Government's security standards following publication of the report, Data Handling Procedures in Government, and the accompanying document, Cross-departmental Actions: Mandatory Minimum Action, on 25 June 2008; [245317]

Mr. Watson: The data handling report published on 25 June 2008, Official Report, columns 25-26WS, and the cross Government minimum mandatory measures, copies of which are available in the Libraries of the House, define the responsibilities for safeguarding data. These stand alongside Data Protection legislation.

All Departments and agencies, or contractors working on their behalf, must comply with Data Protection legislation and adhere to these new arrangements. The Cabinet Office wrote to all its contractors and suppliers in September to confirm their compliance with these new arrangements and was assured that they did.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what percentage of the IT systems in (a) his Department and (b) its agencies is fully accredited to the Government's security standards. [245381]

[248075]

Mr. Watson: The Prime Minister's Office is an integral part of the Cabinet Office. Cabinet Office is committed to lifelong learning for all its employees and supports individuals throughout their learning and development.

All Cabinet Office units have delegated responsibility for spend against their training budgets and information is not collected centrally.

There has been no centrally organised coaching in a foreign language for Cabinet Office staff.

Departmental Marketing

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much has been spent by his Department on advertising in the last 12 months. [243722]

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many special advisers were employed in his Department at each pay band on 30 November 2008; and what his Department's expenditure on special advisers was in 2007-08. [243580]

Mr. Watson: The Government are committed to publishing an annual list detailing the number and costs of special advisers. Information for 2007-08 was published by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 22 July 2008, Official Report, columns 99-102WS.

Government Departments: Privacy

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which Government projects to date have had Privacy Impact Assessments commissioned. [241761]

Mr. Watson: Information on the specific Government projects where Privacy Impact Assessments (PIAs) are being conducted is not collected centrally. The Information Commissioner's office produces guidance on PIAs and is monitoring their uptake.

PIAs are a self-assessment tool for organisations and are not a statutory obligation for Government Departments. However, the Data Handling Report published on 25 June 2008 recognised the value of PIAs and required that Departments apply them to new programmes or projects from July 2008 as part of their overall risk management approach to protecting personal data.

The Department does not require applicants who have spent convictions under the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974 to provide details of those convictions when seeking employment. Applicants with current convictions are not precluded from taking up employment and each case is considered on the basis of individual circumstances.

Private Detectives

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what use the Cabinet Office has made of (a) private investigators and (b) Risk Analysis UK Ltd. since May 2005. [244794]

Mr. Watson: Cabinet Office maintains a panel of independent investigators who can be called on to undertake internal investigations. The panel is made up of retired civil and Crown servants with investigation experience and retired senior police officers. The investigators are employed in a personal capacity to carry out investigations. No private companies are contracted to do this work. The Cabinet Office has never employed Risk Analysis UK Ltd.

Sight Impaired

Tom Levitt: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what guidelines his Department follows in respect of making printed materials and forms accessible to people suffering red/green colour blindness. [245709]

Mr. Watson: We endeavour to adhere to the various guidelines recommended to us, such as those published by the Informability unit of the Central Office of Information, the Images of Disability guidelines of the Office for Disability Issues, and the See It Right guidance by Royal National Institute for the Blind.

However, the majority of Cabinet Office publications are distributed electronically through the Department's websites and we work to the W3C's Web Accessibility Initiative guidance. We use specialist software for checking sites against colour vision and to simulate how images will look to users suffering from:

Deuteranopia (red/green deficiency), Protanopia (another form of red/green deficiency) and Tritanopia (blue/yellow deficiency)

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Departmental Equality

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many staff in the Equalities and Human Rights Commission work on community cohesion issues; and what estimate she has made of the cost of employing such staff in (a) 2008-09 and (b) each of the following two financial years. [245582]

Maria Eagle: The structure and business objectives of the Equality and Human Rights Commission are such that work on community cohesion issues is not specifically allocated to one team or group of staff and is spread across the organisation. The Commission do not, therefore, have cost figures for staff working in this specific area.

Offenders

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many former prisoners are employed by the Government's Equalities Office; and what the Office's policy is on the employment of former prisoners. [246333]

Maria Eagle: The Government Equalities Office was established in October 2007 and was formed of some 60 civil servants drawn from other Government Departments. The personnel records covering those staff are confidential to the original Department and are not accessible to GEO. The GEO began its own recruitment in December 2007. Since then, none of the 40 or so staff employed are former prisoners. The GEO adheres to the Civil Service Management Code and will employ former prisoners subject to satisfactory completion of character checks and security vetting.

TRANSPORT

A1079: Noise

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his most recent assessment of the level of noise on the A1079 is; what assessment he has made of trends in noise levels over the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [247319]

Paul Clark: No assessment of noise levels on the A1079 have been carried out in the last 10 years. There has been no requirement to undertake such assessment work. Up until 2002-03, the road was the responsibility of the Highways Agency but passed to the East Riding of Yorkshire council upon de-trunking.

Bus Services: Concessions

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions (a) he and (b) his officials have had with representatives of local authorities facing funding shortfalls for the national concessionary bus fares scheme; what such meetings are planned; and if he will make a statement. [247444]

Paul Clark: To date, I have met Members of Parliament whose constituencies cover the following authorities to discuss funding of concessionary travel:

Scarborough Borough Council
East Riding of Yorkshire
Exeter City Council
Worcester City Council

In the coming weeks I am also due to meet with Members whose constituencies cover the following authorities :

Harrogate Borough Council
Fareham Borough Council
The Isle of Wight Council
Chesterfield Council

In addition to these authorities, departmental officials have either met or will shortly be meeting with representatives from the following local authorities:

Oxford City Council
Lancashire County Council
Bournemouth Borough Council

The Government remain confident that there is sufficient funding in total to meet the cost of the statutory minimum bus concession. The £212 million of extra funding that was provided to meet the additional cost of the extended concession is based on generous assumptions about fares, bus pass take up rate, extra journeys and additional operating costs. We will however continue to monitor the impact of the new concession.

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) which local authorities have not received sufficient funding to meet their expenditure on the national concessionary bus fares scheme in 2008-09; and how much the shortfall is in each such case; [247445]

(2) what estimate his Department has made of the difference between funding and expenditure on the national concessionary bus fares scheme in (a) England and (b) each local authority area in 2008-09. [247446]

Paul Clark: We are confident that there is sufficient funding in total for the statutory minimum bus concession in England. The bulk of funding for concessionary travel is still given to authorities through the formula grant process (Revenue Support Grant) but it is not separately identified within that block grant. It is therefore not possible to identify how much individual authorities receive specifically for concessionary travel.

An additional £212 million is being provided by special grant this year solely to pay for the extension of the statutory concession to cover England-wide travel. Again, we are confident that this is sufficient in total and we consulted widely on the formula used to distribute it. Data on changes in authority expenditure caused by the new concession will not be available until autumn 2009.

We will shortly be consulting on possible changes to how concessionary travel is administered and any changes may provide an opportunity to consider how best to distribute the totality of funding.

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has received from the Local Government Association about the adequacy of funding for the national concessionary bus fares scheme. [247447]

Paul Clark: Officials in the Department for Transport have had regular meetings with the Local Government Association (LGA) regarding concessionary travel. The LGA and representatives from other tiers of local government are present at regular meetings of the Department's Concessionary Fares Working Groups.

I also met with David Sparks of the LGA on 13 January 2009 to discuss this issue.

Bus Services: EU Action

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the likely effects of the EU Commission's proposal for bus passenger rights on bus passengers; and what response the Government has made to the damage liability for operators contained in the proposal. [248089]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport is currently preparing an initial impact assessment on the European Commission's proposal for a new regulation on bus and coach passenger rights, which will include an assessment of the costs and benefits to both passengers and operators. The Department will shortly be consulting on the proposal to help inform the Government's position and it is intended that the initial impact assessment will form part of that consultation. An explanatory memorandum (EM 16933/08) on the proposal was submitted to Parliament on 13 January 2009, copies are available in the Libraries of the House.

Departmental Freedom of Information

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many requests for information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 were made to his Department since 2005; how many such requests were (a) agreed to and (b) refused in each of those years; how many refusals were subject to appeal to the Information Commissioner in each of those years; how many appeals were successful; if he will place in the Library copies of the material subsequently provided in each case; how much was spent by his Department opposing each appeal; which (i) consultants and (ii) law firms were employed by his Department in connection with each appeal; and if he will make a statement. [244834]

Mr. Hoon: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by the Minister of State for Justice, my right hon. Friend the Member for North Swindon (Mr. Wills) on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 507W.

Public Transport: Greater Manchester

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will undertake an assessment of means of improving public transport serving Manchester and surrounding areas in light of the recent decision on the proposed congestion zone. [247433]

Paul Clark: Following the decision not to proceed with their proposals for the Transport Innovation Fund, it is for the Greater Manchester authorities to develop a sustainable transport strategy that is affordable within the available funding streams. We will be working closely with them as they take this forward.

Traffic Lights

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what guidance his Department has (a) produced and (b) plans to produce for local authorities on the speed at which traffic lights change from amber to red; and if he will make a statement. [247997]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport issues guidance to highway authorities on the general principles of traffic control by light signals. Guidance is contained in Traffic Advisory Leaflet 1/06 (TAL 1/06). A copy of the TAL 1/06 is available in the Library.

OLYMPICS

Dalai Lama

Tim Loughton: To ask the Minister for the Olympics if she will invite the Dalai Lama to attend the London 2012 Olympics. [245235]

Tessa Jowell: Guests and dignitaries are invited to attend the Olympic Games by the International Olympic Committee and participating National Olympic Committees, and the Paralympic Games by the International Paralympic Committee and participating National Paralympic Committees.

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how many (a) letters and (b) e-mails received by her Office had not been responded to as at 15 December 2008. [244714]

Tessa Jowell: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of departments in replying to Members/Peers correspondence. Information relating to 2008 will be published as soon as it has been collated. The report for 2007 was published on 20 March 2008, Official Report, columns 71-74WS. Reports for earlier years are available in the Library of the House. When responding to all correspondence Departments should abide by the guidance as set out in 'Handling correspondence from MPs, Lords, MEPs and Members of Devolved Assemblies' which was published by the Cabinet office in July 2005.

In respect of all other correspondence, we are unable to provide the information within the disproportionate cost limit (£750).

Departmental Internet

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Minister for the Olympics with reference to the answer of 4 November 2008, Official Report, columns 336-37W, on Government departments: information and communications technology, which IP addresses are used by (a) her Office and (b) computers in (i) her private office, (ii) the offices of its communications officials and (iii) the offices of her special advisers. [241958]

Tessa Jowell: To help defend against electronic attack, it is standard good information security practise for corporate IT systems, not to publish internal IP addresses. When accessing internet websites, the IP addresses of all of the computers on the Cabinet Office's internal office IT system are hidden behind the following IP addresses which are publicly available—195.92.40.49 and 62.25.106.209. These IP addresses are shared with other Government Departments that use the Government secure intranet.

Olympic Games 2012

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what plans she has to allow commercial organisations to seek the endorsement of the London 2012 Organising Committee for mass participation schemes. [243213]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 15 December 2008]: London 2012 official sponsors have the right to activate their sponsorship, including for mass participation initiatives. There are no plans to allow other commercial organisations to associate directly with the games, which would undermine the exclusive association for which the official sponsors have paid. In exceptional circumstances, the London Organising Committee of the Olympic games and Paralympic games and the International Olympic Committee may approve a project which has non-Olympic commercial support, provided they have absolute confidence the company will not gain any association with the 2012 games.

Non-commercial participation schemes inspired by the London Olympic games and Paralympic games, and offering opportunities in sport, culture, volunteering, education, the environment and the promotion of business opportunities, can apply to be part of the Inspire programme, London 2012's broad participation and legacy programme.

Olympic Games 2012: Construction

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics whether (a) her Office and (b) the Olympic Delivery Authority have had discussions with modular building contractors on the construction of the athletes' village for the London 2012 Olympics. [243589]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 15 December 2008]: The Olympic Delivery Authority through their development manager and preferred developer, Lend Lease, have reviewed with modular building contractors and volumetric building contractors the use of their products in the development of the Olympic village. The selected procurement and delivery route involves the use of factory prepared modular building components to be assembled on site within a site prepared structural frame.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what assessment has been made of the viability of using modular construction methods for the athletes' village for the London 2012 Olympics; and if she will make a statement. [243590]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 15 December 2008]: The viability of using modular construction methods has been assessed in some detail. Many elements of the project have been considered for modular construction techniques, and many are being implemented. Elements considered include:

Facade Cladding Panels

Stairs and landings

Bathroom Pods

Services/Utility cupboard

Internal Walls

Fit out pre-packaged ceilings, floors, doors and joinery.

Electrics

Prefabricated Multi service Vertical Risers

Prefabricated Multi service Horizontal distribution runs

Service Distribution Modules

Roof Plant Modules

All of these elements are being developed in modular form to varying degrees for incorporation into the final product.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what recent estimate she has made of the cost of construction of the athletes' village for the London 2012 Olympics; if she will estimate the cost of construction of the village using modular construction methods; and if she will make a statement. [243591]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 15 December 2008]: The costs of developing the Olympic village are currently being reviewed taking into account elements of modular construction as appropriate. As the costs are the subject of sensitive commercial negotiations it would not be appropriate to disclose costings at this time.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what assessment she has made of progress in construction of the Olympic Park and other Olympic venues; and what RAG system key has been assigned to the targets for performance on (a) budget and (b) timescale. [247380]

Tessa Jowell: The substantial progress that has been made both in the delivery of the venues and infrastructure and in the raising of funds to support the staging of the games means that, while recognising the risks, we remain in a strong position to manage delivery on time and on budget.

Progress across the whole Olympics programme is reported on a monthly basis to the Olympic board, including red, red/amber, amber green and green ratings against each element of the programme, including venues in terms of budget and time.

Olympic Games 2012: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister for the Olympics on what dates since January 2008 the Olympic Delivery Authority contacted the Treasury Funders Group on access to the Olympic contingency fund. [247356]

Tessa Jowell: The funders group met in July 2008 to consider the impact that the economic downturn was likely to have on the Olympic village project and met again in October 2008 to review the situation further.

In December the funders group were requested via correspondence to approve the release of contingency to fund additional seating requirements in the handball arena and additional building works in the Olympic Stadium.

The next London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games annual report will be produced in the near future and will include fully updated financial information, including the outcomes of agreed contingency requests. Thereafter, we will publish a quarterly financial update which will include any changes to published budgets.

Olympic Games 2012: North East

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what support is being provided to designated training facilities in the North East for athletes for London 2012 Olympics. [245861]

Tessa Jowell: The north-east region has 20 designated training facilities in the pre-games training camp guide from across the region offering 23 Olympic and Paralympic sports/disciplines.

The north-east regional coordinator for the 2012 games has brought all facilities' representatives together to develop shared plans and a marketing brochure to promote the north-east's sporting offer to National Olympic Committees and National Paralympic Committees competing in London 2012. The Coordinator is also working with the London Organising Committee of the Olympic games and Paralympic games on the wider nations and regions effort to market all UK facilities.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Occupational Health

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department spent on counselling services for new recruits to the army over the last 10 years. [247558]

Mr. Kevan Jones: We estimate that the Army spent the following on counselling services for new recruits (Phase 1 trainees) for the last five years. Information is not available for previous years.

2. Due to the implementation of the new Joint Personnel Administration System all Army data from 1 April 2007 are provisional and subject to review.
3. All Officers of Paid Rank Colonel and above are included in staff regardless of late arm/service.
4. Figures have been rounded to 10; numbers ending in '5' have been rounded to the nearest multiple of 20 to prevent systematic bias.' Due to the rounding methods used, totals may not always equal the sum of the parts.

Defence Equipment: Deployment

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the timetable is for the deployment of the remaining 174 Mastiffs to Iraq and Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [246217]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The delivery of the 174 remaining Mastiffs is expected to take place between spring and autumn 2009. Not all of these vehicles will be deployed on operations since some will be retained in a training pool.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much has been spent on (a) maintaining, (b) decorating and (c) otherwise improving departmental buildings in the last five years; how much has been spent on wallpaper since 2001; and what plans there are for further spending on departmental decorations. [248092]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The information requested is not held and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The Ministry of Defence (MOD) has a large estate in the UK and overseas comprising many kinds of buildings. While the majority of the maintenance responsibility is now carried out by Defence Estates, this has not always been the case. Much of the maintenance is still carried out by others, including private finance initiative arrangements where maintenance elements are not readily identifiable.

There are no plans to carry out major programmes of decoration unless essential except where these are already part of contractors' obligations.

Ex-servicemen: Homelessness

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many former service personnel have become homeless in (a) Leeds and (b) the UK in each of the last five years. [247885]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Ministry of Defence (MOD) does not collect this information. Independent research was commissioned from the University of York by MOD and its colleagues in the Ex-Service Action Group on Homelessness (ESAG). The research found that the percentage of veterans among London's homeless population was 6 per cent. in 2007 compared with 22 per cent. in separate research in 1997. We are exploring opportunities for further research to find out the extent of veterans homelessness in the rest of the country.

Military Aircraft: Helicopters

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his oral evidence to the Defence Select Committee on Tuesday 16 December 2008, what the out of service dates assumed in his Department's memorandum to the Committee for the (a) Agusta 109, (b) Apache AH Mk1, (c) Gazelle AH1, (d) Lynx Mk 7/9, (e) Lynx Mk 3/8, (f) Merlin Mk1, (g) Sea King Mk 4/6c, (h) Sea King Mk 5, (i) Sea King ASaC 7, (j) Chinook Mk2/2a, (k) Merlin Mk3.3a, (l) Puma HC1 and (m) Sea King Mk3/3a were, set out in tabulated format; what his most recent estimate of out-of-service dates is for each model; for what reasons the out-of-service dates have changed in each case; and on what date the decisions to change date were taken. [245850]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The most recent assumed out-of-service dates for each helicopter are shown in the following table. These dates have not changed since this information was given in the MOD memorandum provided to the House of Commons Defence Committee in November 2008. Where a life extension programme is planned to extend the out of service date of a helicopter but has not yet been approved at Main Gate, the resulting extended OSD is set out in brackets.

Any Main Gate decision to invest in the modernisation or enhancement of existing aircraft will need to be taken in a through life context, recognising the relative priorities within the whole Defence Programme.

The proposed adjustments in our planning assumption for out-of-service dates have resulted from work conducted during the Future Rotorcraft Capability programme and the 2008 planning round.

Aircraft type/mark	Current planned OSDs	Comments
Agusta 109	2009	It is expected these aircraft will be replaced during 2009 by four EC 365N3s
Apache	2030	We expect to have to invest further in this aircraft (eg to address obsolescence and meet emerging requirements) during the next decade, in order to sustain its service life up to 2030
Chinook Mk2	2015 (2040)	We expect to have to invest further in these aircraft (eg to address obsolescence, meet emerging requirements and extend the planned date of their retirement to 2040) during the next decade, although no investment decisions have yet been made
Chinook Mk2a	2025 (2040)	As above
Gazelle	2012	Where there is an enduring requirement for the capability currently provided by Gazelle we are exploring arrangements based on leased aircraft
Lynx Mk3	2013	It is expected that these aircraft will be replaced by the Surface Combatant Maritime Rotorcraft (SCMR) variant of Future Lynx from 2015
Lynx Mk8	2015	As above
Lynx Mk7	2013	It is expected that these aircraft will be replaced by the Battlefield Reconnaissance Helicopter (BRH) variant of Future Lynx from 2014
Lynx Mk9	2013	As above
Merlin Mk1	2029	We are currently preparing to upgrade these aircraft through the Merlin Mk1 Capability Sustainment Programme
Merlin Mk3	2030	We expect to have to invest further in this aircraft (eg to address obsolescence and meet emerging requirements) during the next decade, in order to sustain its service life up to 2030
Merlin Mk3a	2030	As above
Puma	2012 (2022)	We expect to have to invest further in this aircraft to extend the planned date of its retirement to 2022, when it is expected that the capability provided by these aircraft will be replaced by the Future Medium Helicopter programme
Sea King Mk3/3a	2017	It is expected that the capability provided by these aircraft will be replaced by a joint PFI service with the Maritime and Coastguard Agency
Sea King Mk4	2012 (2018)	We expect to have to invest further in this aircraft to extend the planned date of their retirement to 2018, where upon it is expected that the capability provided by these aircraft will be replaced by the Future Medium Helicopter programme
Sea King Mk6c	2010	—
Sea King Mk5	2017	It is expected that the capability provided by these aircraft will be replaced by a joint PFI service with the Maritime and Coastguard Agency
Sea King Mk7	2018 (2022)	We expect to have to invest further in this aircraft to extend the planned date of their retirement to 2022

Military Bases: Waste Management

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what military facilities are being made available for the storage of (a) domestic waste and (b) paper for recycling. [247161]

Mr. Kevan Jones [holding answer 14 January 2009]: In accordance with HM Treasury's Wider Markets Initiative, some defence land and property which is not required in the short to medium term is leased to third parties for commercial use, which might include the storage of waste. Details of such instances are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Royal Engineers

Mr. Benyon: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what his most recent estimate is of the cost of relocating the Royal School of Military Survey; [247871]

(2) what his most recent estimate is of the cost of moving the 42nd Engineer Regiment, including the cost of the movement of the Regiment's headquarters; [247872]

(3) for what reasons the (a) 42nd Engineer Regiment and (b) Royal School of Military Survey are to be relocated; [247877]

(4) on what date he expects decisions on the movement of (a) 42nd Engineer Regiment, (b) its headquarters and (c) the Royal School of Military Survey to be announced. [247878]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The cost of moving 42 Engineer Regiment (Geographic) and its headquarters from Hermitage, together with 14 Sqn of the Regiment, located at Ayrshire Barracks, Moenchengladbach, Germany, is estimated to be £18.9 million (net present value over 25 years). A decision on the date for the start of the project is expected by March 2009.

The intention is for the Royal School of Military Survey to collocate with other intelligence training organisations at Chicksands, Bedfordshire. As the project is still in its initial stage, with the investment appraisal still to be completed, no confirmed date or cost is available. Any announcement on a date for relocation is unlikely before October 2010.

The relocations will not only improve operational effectiveness by collocating intelligence capabilities at RAF Wyton and intelligence training at Chicksands, but will enable significant long term savings in estate management and support costs.

The MOD will work to minimise the impact on civilian staff at Hermitage by providing any assistance it can to those who may be affected, relocating personnel and avoiding compulsory redundancies wherever possible.

Weapons: Theft

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many cases there were of British servicemen and women being disciplined for stealing armed forces' weapons (a) abroad and (b) within the UK in the last 12 months. [246127]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 12 January 2009]: Thefts of weapons are investigated by the service police, Ministry of Defence police or the Home Department police, either jointly or independently. We do not hold comprehensive information about all cases referred to the civil courts and so the information provided is based only on cases tried by courts-martial during 2008.

No service personnel have been court-martialled specifically for stealing armed forces weapons abroad or in the UK. However, 10 service personnel have been court-martialled for offences involving the theft of ammunition; being in possession of various items ranging from weapon parts to blank rounds of ammunition, plastic explosives and detonators; or the sale of weapon parts. Of these 10 cases, one was acquitted. In all other cases, sentences ranging from a £750 fine for possession of ammunition, to 15 years imprisonment and reduced to the ranks and dismissed with disgrace for selling SA80 rifle parts, were awarded.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Seasonal Labour

8. Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent representations he has received from farmers on the availability of seasonal labour; and if he will make a statement. [247635]

Jane Kennedy: We have listened to the concerns expressed by the industry about shortages of seasonal labour and at the end of last year announced an increase in the Seasonal Agricultural Workers Scheme quota of 5,000 for 2009 bringing it up to 21,250.

Fishing Quotas

9. Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proposals he has to make changes to the fishing quota system; and if he will make a statement. [247636]

Huw Irranca-Davies: At present, I have no proposals to change the current quota management system.

The UK is actively engaged with the European Commission's current activities to reform the Common Fisheries Policy, which will include consideration of the quota and fisheries access management systems. I have publicly signalled my intention that the UK should play a leading role in shaping this reform and the future of the CFP.

Seal Products

10. Alun Michael: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to encourage EU action to ban seal products from entering EU countries. [247637]

Hilary Benn: A Commission proposal for a ban on the import of seal products into the EU was discussed for the first time by the Council of Ministers on 20 October. The UK supports a ban and we will work closely with the Council and other member states to introduce it as quickly as possible.

Horse Passports

11. Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many horses in England have been issued with passports. [247638]

Jane Kennedy: The National Equine Database records that approximately 682,000 (681,934) passports have been issued to horse owners in England.

Public Food Procurement

12. Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with Ministerial colleagues on public food procurement. [247639]

Jane Kennedy: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State regularly raises the subject of public food procurement with his ministerial colleagues.

New Forest National Park Authority

13. Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the cost-effectiveness of the New Forest National Park Authority; and if he will make a statement. [247640]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The New Forest National Park Authority has made good progress since its creation in 2005 and I believe it is now making a real contribution to the benefit of the area. The findings of the 2008 National Park Authority Performance Assessment, when available, will allow us to check that the authority is on track.

Farming: Competitiveness

14. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent steps his Department has taken to improve the competitiveness of the farming industry. [247641]

Jane Kennedy: Over the last 12 months, the rural development agencies have begun delivering a £300 million programme of investment in improving the competitiveness of farming and forestry under the Rural Development Programme for England. The Rural Payments Agency's continued progress in making payments under the single payment scheme has helped farmers' cash flow. Reducing trade distorting subsidies helps farmers better respond to the demands of the market; the recent common agricultural policy health check took another step by reducing coupled payments and regulatory burdens on farmers.

Single Farm Payment

15. Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the process for making single farm payments in 2008; and if he will make a statement. [247642]

Jane Kennedy: Continued improvements in its systems and processes have enabled the Rural Payments Agency to make good progress towards its 2008 single payment scheme targets. Latest figures show that just under £1.1 billion (67.4 per cent.) has been paid to 84,039 claimants (78.9 per cent.)

Areas of Outstanding Natural Beauty: West Sussex

16. Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his most recent estimate is of the amount of land designated as an area of outstanding natural beauty in West Sussex which will be excluded from the proposed South Downs National Park boundaries. [247643]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The final Inspector's Report, in respect of the re-opened inquiry, was received on 28 November. We are carefully considering it in detail, as you would expect.

At this stage it would not be appropriate to anticipate any decision on the creation of a park, or the extent of any park that may result.

Water Charges

17. Mr. Borrow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations his Department has received on water drainage charges for places of worship; and if he will make a statement. [247644]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Secretary of State has received a range of representations from various groups regarding surface water drainage charges. The Government are, however, very aware of the problem of affordability faced by some customers as a result of the switch to site area charging for surface water drainage and are looking at what can be done.

Asbestos: Soil Guidance Values

18. Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with the Environment Agency on the publication of soil guidance values on asbestos. [247645]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA officials have been in regular communication with the Environment Agency about the ongoing development of contaminated land guidance. The Environment Agency has been working closely with the Health and Safety Laboratory and the Health and Safety Executive to develop guidance on the investigation and analysis of asbestos in soil which it plans to consult on in the first half of 2009. It is likely that this guidance will supersede the proposed Soil Guideline Value.

Inshore Fisheries

19. Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has for the development of the inshore fisheries sector. [247646]

Huw Irranca-Davies: My aim is to achieve the vision, set out in "Fisheries 2027", of a socially, economically and environmentally sustainable inshore fishing fleet. The measures announced in December to help stabilise the fleet were a critical first step to delivering this. The Sustainable Access to Inshore Fisheries project will build on this foundation, beginning by developing a robust evidence base on the benefits of inshore fishing to help inform long term decisions.

Agriculture: Animal Welfare

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department takes to encourage consumers to purchase meat and dairy products produced (a) locally and (b) in accordance with (i) animal welfare and (ii) environmental regulations. [244682]

Jane Kennedy: While the Government believe that buying locally produced food is a matter of personal choice for consumers, we recognise that it can bring benefits to producers and consumers alike. We have helped to facilitate this choice by providing funding for a range of measures to help regional and local food producers, such as "meet the buyer" events, the encouragement of food hubs and shared distribution facilities, and training. Support is also available under Rural Development Programme for England for activities linked to the promotion of quality regional and local food, the use of native English breeds of cattle in environmental stewardship schemes and for activities linked to promoting the environmental sustainability of the livestock sector.

Agriculture: Subsidies

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of Single Payment Scheme payments for 2008 have been made in England. [246103]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 12 January 2009]: As at 31 December 2008, single payment scheme (SPS) 2008 payments of over £967.6 million have been made to 69,187 claimants. This equates to 59.3 per cent. of an estimated fund value of £1.63 billion, paid to 64.99 per cent. of the estimated number of claimants of 106,500.

Brussels

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department spent on visits by its staff to Brussels in 2007-08; and how many such visits were made by (a) air and (b) rail. [241257]

Huw Irranca-Davies: From information held centrally by the core-Department, the following expenditure was incurred on visits to Brussels in the financial year April 2007 to March 2008:

	Air spend	Rail spend
Q1: April to June 2007	6,127.67	83,055.00
Q2: July to September 2007	3,312.93	49,527.00
Q3: October to December 2007	5,678.04	73,429.00
Q4: January to March 2008	2,542.03	83,067.00

From information held centrally by the core-Department, the number of visits to Brussels in the financial April 2007 to March 2008 was as follows:

	Number of air tickets	Number of rail tickets
Q1: April to June 2007	34	465
Q2: July to September 2007	21	285
Q3:October to December 2007	34	427
Q4: January to March 2008	16	481

All travel by civil servants is undertaken in accordance with the guidelines set out in the Civil Service Management Code and departmental travel policy, which specifies the use of rail travel from London to Brussels, and London to Paris. Staff travelling outside of London are encouraged to explore rail over air travel where possible.

Climate Change

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the (a) name and (b) address of each regional climate change partnership is; and whether such bodies are classified as public authorities for the purposes of the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [245895]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Contact names and e-mail addresses for the Regional Climate Change Partnerships are listed on the Government's Adaptation website:

www.defra.gov.uk/adaptation as part of the 'Taking Action' section.

The Regional Climate Change Partnership is not subject to the Freedom of Information Act 2000 (FOI Act), as it is not included in Schedule 1 of the FOI Act. It also does not appear to meet the necessary criteria, as laid out in the legislation, for a public body to be added to the FOI Act via a Section 4 Order.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many contracts (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have which allow contractors to store personal data of UK citizens overseas; for which contracts this applies; in which countries the data for each contract are held; and how many people have their data stored overseas in the case of each such contract. [245343]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA has no contracts which allow the contractor to store personal data of UK citizens overseas. The DEFRA Agencies have one contract which relates to the control of animal disease outbreaks and allows for personal data to be stored in the Republic of Ireland. At present, information on less than 10 individuals is so held under this contract.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when his Department appointed a senior information risk owner in accordance with the report, Data Handling Procedures in Government and the accompanying document Cross-departmental Actions: Mandatory Minimum Action; and what grade the person holds within the Department. [245361]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA's Senior Information Risk Owner (SIRO) was appointed on 28 February 2008 and is a Director General who sits on the Management Board.

Departmental Legal Proceedings

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many legal proceedings naming his Department as a defending party were (a) filed, (b) concluded and (c) dismissed in (i) each of the last five years and (ii) 2008 to date. [241191]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The number of legal proceedings naming the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs as a defending party (a) filed, (b) concluded and (c) dismissed in 2008 are 58, 25 and 10, respectively.

For each of the five years before 2008, the resources needed to obtain the information would be disproportionate and over the £750 threshold.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many special advisers were employed in his Department at each pay band on 30 November 2008; and what his Department's total expenditure on special advisers was in 2007-08. [243574]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Government are committed to publishing an annual list detailing the number and costs of special advisers. Information for 2007-08 was published by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 22 July 2008, Official Report, columns 99-102WS.

Departmental Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what records his Department maintains of its expenditure on (a) official hospitality and (b) alcohol for official hospitality. [240472]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The core-Department's financial system has an expenditure category for hospitality. The system has no expenditure category for alcohol for official hospitality. The core-Department's catering services provider does not hold a licence to serve alcohol. As a general rule, expenditure on alcohol for hospitality purposes is not allowed. Were alcohol to be purchased for hospitality purposes it should be acquired through formal purchase order, or through the Government Procurement Card, both of which methods are subject to formal authorisation procedures. All expenditure, including that on hospitality, has to be incurred in accordance with the principles of Managing Public Money and the Treasury handbook on Regularity and Propriety.

Departmental Procurement

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of invoices for goods and services procured from small and medium-sized businesses were paid within 10 days of receipt by (a) his Department and (b) the agencies for which his Department is responsible in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [243352]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The core-Department's terms of payment for all valid, correctly rendered invoices submitted to the correct address(es) are 'within 30 days' or as otherwise contractually agreed, irrespective of organisational size.

On 8 October, my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister made a statement to the House that, in the current climate, the Government will aim to make SME payments within 10 days.

DEFRA, along with other central Government Departments, is aiming to pay all suppliers as soon as possible with the aim of bringing forward all approved payments to within 10 days. DEFRA is compiling 10 day payment performance figures for the month of November 2008 for BERR who will publish the data for November and December in due course. Commencing April 2009, 10 day payment performance will be reported quarterly.

For the financial years 2006-07 and 2007-08 the core-department's financial system records 10 day payment performance as 23.6 per cent. and 30. per cent. respectively (in comparison to 89.8 per cent. and 92 per cent. for 30 day payment performance).

Departmental Waste Disposal

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much was spent by (a) his Department and (b) the Environment Agency on waste management (i) for recycling and (ii) for landfill in the last 12 months; and what percentage of the overall budget this represents in each case. [240891]

Jane Kennedy: For the year 2007-08 we estimate that the internal cost of waste management for DEFRA, which includes its offices, depots, laboratories, sites etc, was in the region of £126,280 for that sent to recycling and £160,720 for that sent to landfill.

This equates to 44 per cent. of total expenditure for recycling and 56 per cent. of total expenditure for landfill.

For the year 2007-08 the Environment Agency estimates that the cost of waste management from its offices and depots was £43,580 for that sent for recycling and £60,130 for that sent to landfill.

Domestic Waste: Waste Disposal

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the answer of 17 November 2008, Official Report, column 97W, on domestic waste: waste disposal, if he will publish the project specification of each of the three EU Interreg programmes listed. [246941]

Jane Kennedy: I am arranging for the information requested to be placed in the Library of the House. The Franco-British Interreg 3A programmes are the responsibility of the Government office for the south east, while the managing authority responsible for the Interreg 4A programme is the Haute Normandie Regional Council.

Floods: Housing

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the Answer of 10 December 2008, Official Report, column 122W, on floods: housing, how many of the properties estimated to be at risk of flooding in each year are in each region. [244509]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Please find in the following table the estimated number of properties at the risk of flooding from rivers and the sea by Environment Agency Region.

Environment Agency Region	2004	2005	2006
Anglian Region	307,400	314,200	317,600
Midlands Region	214,300	222,300	222,400
North East Region	289,200	301,600	298,100
North West Region	204,600	210,000	210,900
South West Region	160,600	168,700	169,100
Southern Region	169,200	174,900	175,300
Thames Region	711,800	734,925	736,200
Environment Agency Wales	171,500	177,163	176,700
Total	2,228,600	2,303,788	2,306,300

The Environment Agency and DEFRA did not record properties by region before 2004.

The difference in the estimated number of properties at risk of flooding each year is mainly due to the improvements and refinements of the data and the modelling techniques used by the Environment Agency for the National Flood Risk Assessment.

Floods: Newcastle Upon Tyne

Mr. Henderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department is taking to investigate and help prevent instances of localised flooding, with particular reference to Newcastle upon Tyne. [244125]

Huw Irranca-Davies: On 17 December, in response to Sir Michael Pitt's Review of the floods in summer 2007, the Government announced how flooding issues will be tackled in the future.

Local action is already taking place in many areas of the country. The Environment Agency, Newcastle City Council and Northumbrian Water Limited have formed a 'strategic co-ordination group' to investigate flooding across the Ouseburn Catchment and establish what measures may reduce the impact of future flooding across Newcastle City. The group is investigating possible improvements to the surface and foul water drainage systems, and potential alterations to bridges and channel capacity in the Gosforth area to alleviate the risk of flooding.

The Environment Agency have completed 54 new flood defences since June 2007 which has increased protection to around 38,000 properties.

Fuel Poverty

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what responsibility for policy on fuel poverty is retained by his Department following the establishment of the Department for Energy and Climate Change. [242883]

Jane Kennedy: Responsibility for tackling fuel poverty now rests with the Department of Energy and Climate Change and, in line with general Government policy, the rural aspects of fuel poverty will be considered within the mainstream policy. Nevertheless, DEFRA continues to take a strong interest in this issue, as it does in all others affecting rural communities. In particular, we sponsor the Commission for Rural Communities which works closely with DECC and Ofgem on rural fuel poverty issues and which has set up a Fuel Poverty advisory group.

Geomatics Group

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the answer of 17 November 2008, Official Report, column 98W, on the Environment Agency, (1) what the expected (a) turnover and (b) profit of the Geomatics Group in (i) 2008-09, (ii) 2009-10 and (iii) 2010-11 is; and if he will make a statement; [242786]

(2) what the (a) turnover and (b) profit of the Geomatics Group was in 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [242789]

Jane Kennedy: The current anticipated total turnover of the Geomatics Group is:

2008-09	4,789,000
2010-2011	4,113,000

This includes work undertaken for the rest of the Environment Agency, which Geomatics makes no profit from. The level of profit on work undertaken for external customers is commercially confidential.

The total turnover of the Geomatics Group in 2007-08 was £3,565,000.

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the answer of 17 November 2008, Official Report, column 98W, on the Environment Agency, what proportion of the profit made by the Geomatics Group was transferred to the Environment Agency in 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [242787]

Jane Kennedy: Geomatics Group is a business unit within the Environment Agency and therefore 100 per cent. was transferred to the Environment Agency.

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the answer of 17 November 2008, Official Report, column 98W, on the Environment Agency, with whom the Geomatics Group held contracts from which it derived income in 2007-08, broken down by contract value; and if he will make a statement. [242788]

Jane Kennedy: This information is commercially confidential, as releasing it could give a commercial advantage to other organisations.

Litter: Beaches

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of changes in the levels of beach litter since 2004; and if he will make a statement. [240922]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA has made no direct assessment of changes in the levels of litter on beaches. However, DEFRA does provide grant funding support through ENCAMS (also known as Keep Britain Tidy) to the Blue Flag and Quality Coast Award schemes designed to drive up the quality of amenity beach areas. Furthermore, DEFRA also funds ENCAMS to undertake the Local Environmental Quality Survey of England which has monitored levels of local environmental quality across England since 2001.

Under section 89 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990, councils have a duty to keep their relevant land, including beaches above the high water mark, clear of litter and refuse. The statutory Code of Practice on Litter and Refuse recommends those responsible for beaches regularly monitor them and develop an appropriate cleansing regime.

Recycling

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department has spent on the development of (a) water and (b) waste recycling facilities in each of the last three years. [245867]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA spent the following amounts on water saving initiatives and waste and recycling facilities in each of the last three years:

	2006-07	2007-08	2008-09
Water saving initiatives	4,294	158,339	416,498
Waste and recycling facilities	0	19,795	92,859

DEFRA includes water saving technologies in all its major refurbishment and new building projects, to ensure that every possible water saving efficiency is addressed at the earliest stage. Technologies that are widely used throughout the estate include: rainwater harvesting for toilet flushing; low flush toilets; waterless urinals; efficient showers and passive infra-red sensor taps.

Significant investment has also been made on DEFRA's laboratory estate to replace older inefficient autoclaves with more water efficient versions. (An autoclave is a device used to sterilise laboratory equipment. The process uses significant quantities of water to produce steam). DEFRA also has an ongoing programme of leak detection surveys throughout its estate.

DEFRA recently invested in new recycling bins and waste storage areas as part of its 'Bin the Bin' binless office programme initially across the London estate, to decrease waste arisings and increase recycling. This has been an award winning initiative which, wherever possible within the constraints of each site, is being replicated across the estate.

Regional Technical Advisory Boards

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the (a) name and (b) address of each regional technical advisory board is; and whether these bodies are classified as public authorities for the purposes of the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [245894]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have been asked to reply.

The names and address of each Regional Technical Advisory Board (RTAB) are as follows:

The Secretary, East of England RTAB, East of England Regional Assembly, Flempton House, Flempton, Bury St. Edmunds, Suffolk, IP28 6EG

The Secretary, East Midlands RTAB, East Midlands Regional Assembly , First Floor, Council Offices, Nottingham Road, Melton Mowbray, Leicestershire, East Midlands, LE13 0UL

The Secretary, London RTAB, London Assembly, City Hall, The Queen's Walk, London SE1 2AA

The Secretary, North East RTAB, North East Assembly, The Axis Building, Maingate, Kingsway North, Team Valley, Gateshead, NE11 0NQ

The Secretary, North West RTAB, North West Regional Assembly, 4NW, Wigan Investment Centre, Waterside Drive, Wigan, WN3 5BA

The Secretary, South East RTAB, South East England Regional Assembly, 1st Floor, Berkeley House, Cross Lanes, Guildford, Surrey, GU1 1UN

The Secretary, South West RTAB, South West Regional Assembly, Dennett House, 11 Middle Street, Taunton, Somerset, TA1 1SH

The Secretary, West Midland RTAB, West Midlands Regional Assembly, Regional Partnership Centre, Albert House, Quay Place, 92-93 Edward Street, Birmingham, B1 2RA

The Secretary, Yorkshire and Humberside RTAB, Yorkshire and Humber Regional Assembly, 18 King St, Wakefield, West Yorkshire, WF1 2SQ

Regional Technical Advisory Boards (RTABs) are not subject to the Freedom of Information Act 2000 (FOI Act), as they are not specifically listed in Schedule 1 of the FOI Act as a public authority. Furthermore it is unlikely that RTABs would qualify as such by virtue of their composition under any provision of that Schedule.

Sewers: Private Sector

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the timetable is for the transfer of private sewers and drains in England and Wales to the ownership of the statutory water and sewerage companies. [248242]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Privately owned sewers and lateral drains in England will be transferred to water and sewerage companies from 2011. The Welsh Assembly Government have outlined how the transfer will be implemented in Wales in its Policy Position Statement on Water which it launched for consultation on 14 January.

Sites of Special Scientific Interest: Fish

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his policy is on the re-stocking with fish of lakes located within sites of special scientific interest. [247797]

Huw Irranca-Davies: When stocking fish into an inland water, prior written consent must be obtained from the Environment Agency who will assess the risk posed by each application to fisheries and the wider environment. Any application to stock a designated conservation site, is referred to Natural England and/or the Countryside Council for Wales.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Home Energy Efficiency Scheme: Essex

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many applications for Warm Front grants in Essex are awaiting determination; and if he will make a statement. [243814]

Joan Ruddock: At 19 December 2008, 183,537 applications for Warm Front were outstanding in Essex. Each of these applications is at a different stage of the process, and Warm Front is currently operating well within contractual waiting times in the Essex area.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change when he plans to reply to the letter to him dated 4 November 2008 from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Mr A. Lane. [246527]

Joan Ruddock: Departmental reorganisation has led to delays in dealing with correspondence for which Ministers apologise. The letter is currently under consideration and a reply will be sent as soon as possible.

Wind Power

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many wind turbines are operational in the UK. [247879]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: In terms of wind turbines under 100 kW ('microgeneration'), we assessed in our Element Energy research that there were 1,100 micro-wind turbines installed in the UK at the end of 2007. The research document can be downloaded at:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/energy/sources/sustainable/microgeneration/research/page38208.html

	Number
Onshore	2,461
Offshore	149
Total	2,610

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Archaeology: Manpower

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the number of field archaeologists made redundant in 2008; and what assessment he has made of the effects of such redundancies on the implementation of planning guidance. [243552]

Barbara Follett: Neither the Department for Culture, Media and Sport nor English Heritage collates data on the employment of field archaeologists. However, the Institute for Archaeologists, a professional institute for the study and care of the historic environment, is collating data on redundancies in 2008 and will make the information available in the future. The impact of any redundancies may include the potential loss of skills from the sector and pressure on standards in implementing planning guidance.

Arts: Finance

Janet Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much National Lottery funding Arts Council England has (a) received and (b) distributed in each year since its inception. [245889]

Barbara Follett: The table shows the total Lottery income and the amount of Lottery money drawn down by Arts Council England for each complete financial year, since the distributing body's inception. Drawdown from the National Lottery Distribution Fund (NLDF) is used to pay funds to successful grant applicants and meet administrative expenses.

The figures are taken from the NLDF Annual Accounts. Figures are rounded to the nearest £1,000.

Andy Burnham: The Convergence Think Tank was launched by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport and the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on 21 December 2007. It was superseded by the Digital Britain project, announced by my noble Friend Lord Carter of Barnes on 17 October 2008.

Barbara Follett [holding answer 11 December 2008]: The total amounts spent were as follows:

(a) Travel: (i) Ministers was £85 by train (ii) guests was £11,330 by air and train

(b) Overnight expenses: (i) Ministers was nil (ii) guests was £3,257.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was spent on hiring the venue for the Creativity and Business International Network event held in Liverpool on 20 November 2008. [242587]

Barbara Follett: The venue costs for the Creativity and Business International Network event held in Liverpool were £5,500.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the expenditure his Department will incur in supporting the Creativity and Business International Network in Hertfordshire in 2009; how much of that expenditure he expects to be incurred in relation to venue hire; and how the rest of the expenditure breaks down among budget headings. [242736]

Barbara Follett: The exact costs of venue hire and other areas of expenditure for the Creativity and Business International Network event at the Grove in Hertfordshire have yet to be finalised and will depend on many factors, including the number of delegates.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what agenda has been set for the Creativity and Business International Network event to be held in Hertfordshire in 2009; [242734]

(2) what conclusions were reached at the inaugural meeting of the Creativity and Business International Network; and if he will publish the minutes of the meeting. [242737]

Barbara Follett: There was no formal minute taken of the meeting but a summary of the main outcomes will be put on www.cabinetforum.org in due course. The discussion at the first meeting of the Creativity and Business International Network in Liverpool on 20 November 2008 will be used to determine the broad themes for the network in 2009. This in turn will inform the agenda for the event in October 2009 which will be published in the new year at: www.cabinetforum.org

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many staff in his Department have duties relating to the Creativity and Business International Network. [242739]

Barbara Follett: A full-time equivalent of 1.4 staff within the Department for Culture, Media and Sport have duties relating to the Creativity and Business International Network.

Culture: Coventry

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent steps the Government has taken to promote cultural activities in Coventry. [242639]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 15 December 2008]: Arts Council England advises that, in 2007-08, it invested £1,722,974 in Regularly Funded Organisations in Coventry, and £215,463 in Grants for the Arts there.

English Heritage has invested more than £2 million improving the visitor experience at Kenilworth Castle, which annually receives nearly 100,000 visitors and over 12,000 people participating in educational activities.

The Herbert Art Gallery and Museum is receiving on-going investment from central Government, principally from the Renaissance programme that is managed by the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what expert advisers have been commissioned by his Department and its agencies since 1997; on what topic each was commissioned; and whether the advisers so appointed made a declaration of political activity in each case. [244665]

Andy Burnham: The full information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Details of formal, standing bodies set up by Government to provide independent expert advice to Departments and Ministers are published annually by the Cabinet Office. These bodies, known as advisory non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs), are listed in the annual 'Public Bodies' publication. Copies of 'Public Bodies' dating back to 1999 can be viewed and downloaded from the following websites:

1999-2006: <http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/public/bodies.asp>;

2008: <http://www.culture.gov.uk/reference_library/publications/5125.aspx>.

Copies are also available up to 2007 in the Library for the reference of hon. Members.

Since 2003, the Government have published on an annual basis the appointment of special advisers.

Departmental Public Consultation

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on which occasions his Department has convened a citizens' jury or randomly drawn panel of people to aid the Department's policy making since 2000; whether the participants were paid in each case; and if he will make a statement. [243046]

Barbara Follett: My Department has not used citizens' juries or randomly drawn panels to aid the Department's policy making since 2000.

Disability Reference Group

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects his Department's Disability Reference Group to report to his Department's Board on progress in addressing actions on disability. [240950]

Barbara Follett: The Department's Disability Reference Group met twice in 2008 and provided comments on the draft DCMS Secretary of State report on Disability Equality, published on 1 December 2008, which reported on progress in all DCMS policy sectors. The experience of members covers a broad range of sectors, including arts, sport, architecture, media, tourism and general access issues.

The Disability Reference Group has drawn attention to a number of issues and will submit a formal paper on progressing disability equality to the DCMS Board in early 2009, for discussion by April 2009.

Internet

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was spent on creating the cabinetforum.org website; what the expected annual running cost of the website is; and how many staff have responsibility for the site. [242586]

Barbara Follett: The website will develop and evolve over the course of the next 10 months in the lead up to the first Creativity and Business International Network Event in October 2009. The total cost up to that point, including development and running costs is expected to be £150,000. A full-time equivalent of 0.25 staff within the Department for Culture, Media and Sport are responsible for the website.

Internet: Bullying

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps the Government plans to take to address incidences of cyber-bullying. [244891]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: I have been asked to reply.

The Government have introduced a comprehensive programme of work to prevent and tackle cyberbullying. We introduced legal provisions in the 2006 Education Act which gave school staff new powers to confiscate mobile phones, and to discipline pupils for bad behaviour outside the school gate, including cyberbullying. We published detailed guidance for schools on how to prevent and tackle cyberbullying in September 2007, and have more recently produced a resource pack for school staff which includes a DVD and a booklet for teachers. We ran a digital information campaign on cyberbullying last year aimed at 12 to 15-years-olds, and re-launched the campaign as part of this year's Anti-Bullying Week. We are currently working with the Cyberbullying Taskforce including industry representatives, law enforcement agencies, the teacher unions and children's charities to produce new guidance to prevent and tackle the cyberbullying of school staff, which we plan to launch in spring 2009. We have asked the Anti-Bullying Alliance and National Strategies to work with local authorities and schools to ensure the cyberbullying guidance is effectively implemented on the ground, and that schools make effective use of the other materials.

Mass Media

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects to publish the Convergence Think Tank's interim report on the future policy and legislative framework for the communications industries; and if he will make a statement. [240943]

Andy Burnham: The Convergence Think Tank (CTT) will report shortly on the key issues identified through its engagement with stakeholders. As announced on 17 October 2008, the CTT's work, together with other related initiatives, is being taken forward as part of the Digital Britain Report.

Media: Standards

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects to send a substantive reply to the hon. Member for Torbay's letter of 14 July 2008 on the display of nudity in television programmes and in mainstream magazines. [245100]

Andy Burnham: The hon. Member's letter of 14 July was received in DCMS addressed to my predecessor on 17 October. I understand my noble Friend the Minister for Communications, Technology and Broadcasting wrote to the hon. Member on the 30 November.

Museums and Galleries: Fees and Charges

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether the entry fees for the Cabinet War Rooms have been reduced to reflect the reduction in VAT to 15 per cent. [244785]

Barbara Follett: The Imperial War Museum has advised that the reduction in VAT to 15 per cent. has not been applied to admission prices for its branches that charge an entry fee: the Churchill Museum/Cabinet War Rooms; HMS Belfast; and Imperial War Museum Duxford. To apply the reduction would incur costs in re-printing publicity material and revising contracts with third-party ticket partners. Wherever possible, prices will be held at December 2008 levels and planned rises postponed. Where prices are increasing, these will be modest and in line with other market forces.

The Imperial War Museum has passed on the VAT reduction at shops in its branches and online, through collections licensing, corporate hospitality and for audio guides. Any increased revenue resulting from the VAT reduction will be directed towards the Museum's programmes of exhibitions, events, education and outreach work, and to maintaining its permanent displays and archives.

Public Libraries: Community Relations

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council plans to publish its final guidance on controversial publications in public libraries referred to on page 25 of Preventing Violent Extremism: Next Steps for Communities. [245585]

Barbara Follett: The Museums, Libraries and Archives Council (MLA) expects to publish its guidance on Controversial Stock in Public Libraries early in 2009. The guidance will be available on the MLA website once it has been published. The MLA will be supporting the sector in the use of the guidance by offering a series of free workshops in spring 2009, organised in conjunction with the Chartered Institute of Library and Information Professionals (CILIP).

Radio Frequencies

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps Ofcom is taking to remove radio interference affecting short wave users, with particular reference to that caused by (a) general powerline adaptors and (b) powerline adaptors provided by BT as part of their Vision system; and if he will make a statement. [242363]

Ian Pearson: I have been asked to reply.

The matter raised is the responsibility of the independent regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom), which is accountable to Parliament rather than Ministers. Accordingly, I have asked the Chief Executive of Ofcom to reply directly to the hon. Member. Copies of the Chief Executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Swimming

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding his Department plans to provide to each local authority to provide free swimming in the first year of the scheme's operation. [243054]

Andy Burnham: Details of Government funding to participating local authorities to provide free swimming will shortly be placed on my Department's website and in the Library of both Houses.

Swimming Teachers' Association

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what consideration he has given to consulting the Swimming Teachers' Association on future work and policy initiatives concerning swimming. [243961]

Andy Burnham: My officials recently met the Swimming Teachers' Association to discuss future work and policy initiatives concerning the Government's Free Swimming Programme. We will continue to involve them in future discussions as appropriate.

Swimming: Low Incomes

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps his Department is taking to ensure swimming access for people on low incomes. [247451]

Andy Burnham: Increasing overall participation in swimming, including access for people on low incomes, is one of the key aims of the Amateur Swimming Association's (ASA) strategic plan 2005-09. Sport England has contributed in excess of £9 million of Whole Sport Plan funding to this initiative.

Sport England awarded £3 million to the ASA to support its 'Everyday Swim' project during 2006-08. 'Everyday Swim' is a national project, operating at a number of sites across England. The aim is to deliver a sustained increase in participation, improving people's experience of using public pools, including those on low incomes.

In addition, the Free Swimming Programme is a £140 million coherent package designed to extend opportunities to swim and to maximise the health benefits of wider participation in swimming.

Swimming: Teachers

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps his Department is taking to ensure a sufficient supply of swimming teachers to staff its free access to swimming initiative. [247450]

Andy Burnham: We are working with Sport England, the Amateur Swimming Association and others on the detailed design and delivery arrangements for this initiative. We shall be announcing details of this shortly and in advance of the Free Swimming Programme's national launch in April.

Tourism

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the number of tourists from St Helena who have visited the United Kingdom in the last three years. [240844]

Barbara Follett: The International Passenger Survey, which randomly samples passengers entering and leaving the United Kingdom by air, sea or through the Channel Tunnel, groups St. Helena with the dependencies of Ascension Island and Tristan da Cunha, so there is no individual estimate for this individual island.

In 2007, 1,416 visits to the United Kingdom from these British Overseas Territory islands were recorded by the International Passenger Survey.

There is no recorded information from the International Passenger Survey for 2006 and 2008.

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions his Department has had with HM Treasury on the implications of the value of sterling for the British tourist industry; and if he will make a statement. [247215]

Andy Burnham: My Department has not had discussions with Treasury on this matter but meets regularly with VisitBritain and hosted a National Tourism Summit in Liverpool on 8 January to consider the ways in which the effects of the economic downturn on tourism can be minimised. VisitBritain will publish its strategic review on tourism support in February 2009 and we are confident this will improve their ability to market Britain internationally and England at home. Recently, VisitBritain and VisitEngland launched a £6.5 million 'Value for Money Campaign'. This will build on the current domestic and international Enjoy England Campaign, which positions England and Britain as good value destinations.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Iraq: Christianity

Mr. Leigh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the Government plans to make to the Iraqi government on violence against Christians in Iraq. [246815]

Bill Rammell: Ministers and officials will continue to meet representatives of the Iraqi government to discuss how Christians and all other religious communities can fully enjoy the freedom of worship enshrined in the Iraqi constitution, and are not subject to violence or intimidation. We will continue to advocate that those responsible for such attacks are held to account, regardless of their ethnic, political or religious affiliation.

I also welcome the continued work of my right hon. Friend the Member for Cynon Valley (Ann Clwyd) in her capacity as the Prime Minister's Envoy for Human Rights in Iraq on the protection of minority communities.

Mr. Leigh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if the Government will make it its policy to support the creation of a self-governing province in northern Iraq linked to Iraq's central government situated in and around the Nineveh Plains and jointly governed by the Assyrian Chaldeans, Shabak, Yezidis and other ethnic groups living in that area. [246816]

Bill Rammell: As I said in the Westminster Hall Adjournment debate on 'The Christians of Iraq' on 16 December 2008, Official Report, column 44 WH, any decisions regarding changes to the federal structure in Iraq are for the democratically elected Iraqi government and the people of Iraq to make.

However, dividing Iraq along ethnic, religious or sectarian grounds would be a vastly complicated and potentially volatile process as in many cities and areas of Iraq, people lived in ethnically and religiously mixed communities.

Mr. Leigh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if the Government will urge the Iraqi government to name publicly the suspects arrested for the recent targeted assassinations of Christians in Mosul. [246818]

Bill Rammell: The Iraqi authorities have made it clear that attacks against the Christian community are unacceptable. We have echoed that view publicly and privately in our discussions with them. Whether the suspects should be named is a matter for the government of Iraq, and the Iraqi judicial process.

We will await the findings of the Iraqi investigation until it is completed.

Libya: Terrorism

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions the Government has had with the Libyan government on compensation for victims of IRA terrorism involving arms originating in Libya. [247222]

Bill Rammell: The Government have taken regular soundings on Libya's position in respect of its past support for the IRA since the restoration of diplomatic relations, notably in 2004, 2006, in November 2007, and most recently through the United States in August 2008.

In 19 , Libya accounted for its past support of the IRA to the satisfaction of the then Government. On all subsequent occasions this matter has been discussed, Libya has stressed that it believes the matter is firmly closed. It is the Government's considered assessment therefore that Libya would not be prepared to discuss a bilateral settlement of these cases.

We will however continue to monitor the Libyan position on this issue.

Rashid Rauf

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when the Prime Minister was first informed of the suspected death of Mr. Rashid Rauf following the US air strike on the village of Ali Khel on 22 November 2008. [245659]

Bill Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister first learned of the suspected death of Mr. Rashid Rauf from media reporting coming out of Pakistan.

Thailand: Politics and Government

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will take steps in the light of the blockade of Bangkok's two main airports to ensure that UK citizens who are caught up in protests or blockades in other countries can be (a) kept fully informed and (b) returned to the UK as soon as possible; and if he will make a statement. [240322]

Bill Rammell: As we did in Thailand following the blockade of Bangkok airports, we will use Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Travel Advice and the local diplomatic mission's website to provide practical, objective, accurate and up-to-date information to British nationals caught up in similar protests and blockades. We also encourage British nationals to register their overseas travel through the FCO's online travel registration system called LOCATE. British nationals can use LOCATE to tell us where they are travelling and register their contact details. It only takes a few minutes to register with LOCATE and the facility can be found on the FCO's website, alongside our Travel Advice pages. If a British national registers with LOCATE and an incident similar to the airport blockades in Bangkok occurs, our diplomatic mission in the country and crisis response teams in the UK can use the listed contact details to keep people fully informed.

During the disruption in Thailand we have been in close contact with airlines that have the majority of British ticket holders and have consistently encouraged them to lay on additional flights and honour their responsibilities to their ticket holders. As and when additional emergency flights were scheduled during the blockade, we passed on details of those British nationals who had contacted us to the flight organisers. We understand that many British nationals were able to leave Thailand as a result. Given a similar situation in another country we would expect to take all appropriate and necessary action to ensure British nationals are given similar assistance if required.

TREASURY

Banks: Finance

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the cost to (a) building societies and (b) banks of the management expenses bill levied by the Financial Services Compensation Scheme in order to service its borrowings in respect of Bradford and Bingley and the Icelandic banks (i) in total and (ii) as a percentage of (A) the pre-tax profits for the last three financial years, (B) the retail deposit balance sheet and (C) the total balance sheet of each type of organisation. [247179]

Ian Pearson: The Financial Services Compensation Scheme is responsible for setting its levies subject to upper limits set in rules made by the Financial Services Authority (FSA). The FSA has published on its website:

www.fsa.gov.uk

a letter sent to the British Bankers' Association, the Building Societies Association and the Association of Foreign Banks on 31 December 2008 setting out some detailed information regarding the levies payable following recent deposit-taker defaults.

Child Benefit

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people claimed child benefit in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) Great Britain in each year since 1999. [247497]

Mr. Timms: For estimates of the number of families who were claiming Child Benefit in the areas requested as at the end of August in each year from 1999 to 2002, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him on 23 March 2005, Official Report, column 825W.

Corresponding estimates for each subsequent August from 2003 to 2006 are provided in the HMRC annual publication 'Child Benefit geographical statistics', available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/child_benefit_geographical.htm.

Figures for August 2007 are not yet available.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many fathers are in receipt of child benefit; and what proportion of the total number of recipients this represents. [248106]

Mr. Timms: Only limited information is available. The most recent estimate is that some 7 per cent. of those on receipt of child benefit are males.

Economic and Monetary Union

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when his Department's tests for potential entry to the euro were last used to make an assessment; and when the Government next plans to reassess performance against the tests. [248190]

Ian Pearson: The Government published the assessment of the five economic tests in June 2003. The Chancellor announced in Budget 2008 that > "the Government do not propose a euro assessment to be initiated at the time of this budget."

The Treasury will again review the situation at Budget 2009 as required by the Chancellor's June 2003 statement.

Exchange Rates

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effect of recent changes in the value of the pound against (a) the US dollar and (b) the euro on the UK (i) economy and (ii) tourist industry; and if he will make a statement. [247995]

Ian Pearson: Annex A of the 2008 pre-Budget report (Cm 7484) discusses the potential effects of exchange rate movements. The Government's objective is for a stable and competitive exchange rate in the medium term, consistent with meeting the inflation target.

Insolvency: EU Action

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received on the provisions of the EU Solvency II Directive; what assessment he has made of those provisions; and if he will make a statement. [244309]

Ian Pearson: The Government have supported the core principles of the Commission's proposal for the Solvency II Directive throughout the negotiations. In particular, capital requirements should be imposed on a consistent basis for all quantifiable risks and diversification effects should be recognised. These principles provide the basis for combining high standards of policyholder protection with value for money for consumers.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Burns: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) when he plans to reply to the letter of 10 October 2008 (reference: 3/07508/2008) from the hon. Member for West Chelmsford on Mr. Mark Osborne of Chelmsford; and what the reasons are for the time taken to reply; [247895]

(2) when he plans to reply to the letter of 20 October 2008 from the hon. Member for West Chelmsford on Mr. Peter Vickers of Chelmsford; and what the reasons are for the time taken to reply; [247894]

(3) when he plans to reply to the letter of 21 October 2008 (reference: 2/01979/2008) from the hon. Member for West Chelmsford on Mrs. G. Fisher of Chelmsford; and what the reasons are for the time taken to reply; [247892]

(4) when he plans to reply to the letters of 27 October 2008 and 5 December 2008 from the hon. Member for West Chelmsford regarding Mr. M. Whitwell of Chelmsford; and what the reasons are for the time taken to reply. [247891]

Ian Pearson: Due to the large volume of correspondence received on these issues there has been some delay in response. The Treasury hopes to be in a position to reply to the hon. Member shortly.

Official Cars: Procurement

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what public procurement contracts are planned involving the purchase of cars, vans and trucks over the next 12 months; and whether the vehicles purchased will be British-built in each case. [247026]

Mr. Timms: The majority of vehicles to be purchased by the public sector over the next 12 months will be made through the numerous existing framework agreements. There is no centrally-held list of those that are organisation-specific, but those in the following table are collaborative agreements listed on the OGC Contracts Database. The contracts are with a variety of suppliers and are based on best value for money. Some of the vehicles purchased through these contracts will be wholly or partially built in the United Kingdom, but it is illegal under EU procurement legislation to mandate British-only vehicles.

Lead Authority	Contract
Department of Work and Pensions	Motor Vehicle Purchase Framework Agreement
Yorkshire Purchasing Organisation	Motor vehicles (Purchase of)
Eastern Shires Purchasing Organisation	Commercial and Passenger Transport vehicles
Yorkshire Purchasing Organisation	Specialist vehicles (Purchase of)

Revenue and Customs: Pay

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of (a) the average full time equivalent pay and (b) the staff turnover rate of HM Revenue and Customs employees in (i) Scotland, (ii) Wales, (iii) Northern Ireland and (iv) each region of England in the latest period for which figures are available. [246366]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is as follows:

(a) The mean Full-Time Equivalent pay (using available figures) for HMRC is estimated as follows:

(i) Scotland £22,054

(ii) Wales £22,789

(iii) Northern Ireland £23,567

(iv)	£
Eastern England	26,377
East Midlands	26,383
London	34,359
North East	21,940
North West	23,689
South East	27,236
South West	25,133
West Midlands	25,828
Yorkshire and Humberside	24,530

Revenue and Customs: Wales

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made (1) of the annual savings accruing to HM Revenue and Customs as a result of the closure of its Haverfordwest office; [247839]

(2) of the costs of closing the Haverfordwest HM Revenue and Customs office and relocating staff. [247843]

Mr. Timms: The closure of the HMRC office in Haverfordwest will contribute to estimated annual estate savings of £4 million in Wales. Specific estate savings for a particular office cannot be supplied for reasons of commercial sensitivity relating to the accommodation and facility contract between HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) and its business partner, Mapeley.

Estate savings are only part of the overall savings HMRC expects to achieve as a result of business efficiencies arising from restructuring.

While HMRC recognises that there will be short-term costs, including staff relocation costs, associated with the closure of Haverfordwest, reliable figures will only be established once solutions have been found for all staff and the building has been vacated.

Stamp Duty Land Tax

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many homes have attracted the zero rate of stamp duty on zero carbon homes in each month since October 2007, broken down by stamp duty band; [248101]

(2) how much stamp duty relief has been claimed since October 2007 in relation to zero carbon home purchases. [248102]

Ian Pearson: The Government have set a deliberately stretching target that all new homes must be zero carbon by 2016. The stamp duty land tax relief (SDLT) for zero carbon homes was introduced to help kick-start the market for new highly efficient technologies in homes, both for the fabric of the building and in the use of microgeneration, and sets a gold standard for green homes. Few currently exist, but the purpose of the relief is to act as a signal. We have always made it clear that the SDLT relief for zero carbon homes would evolve and we expect to see more of these homes built in the future. Eighteen homes have qualified for the zero carbon homes relief since October 2007, broken down by month and stamp duty band as follows. The total amount of relief given since October 2007 is around £70,000.

Tax Credit

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people claimed (1) working tax credits in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK in each year since their inception; [247498]

(2) child tax credits in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK in each year since their inception. [247499]

Mr. Timms: Estimates of the average number of families benefiting from tax credits in each Government office region, local authority and parliamentary constituency, based on final family circumstances and incomes, are available in the HMRC publication "Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics. Finalised annual awards. Geographical analyses", for each relevant year. These publications are available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-geog-stats.htm

HMRC do not produce these statistics separately for child tax credit and working tax credit.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Departmental Air Travel

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many business class, work-related flights taken by members of his Department's staff through the flexible travel scheme were (a) eligible for downgrade to economy class and (b) downgraded to economy class in January 2008. [245463]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: This information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Training

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the (a) location, (b) duration, (c) purpose, (d) number of attendees and (e) date was of each of his Department's staff retreats in each of the last three years. [245464]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: This information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what guidelines his Department follows in respect of making printed materials and forms accessible to people suffering red/green colour blindness. [245720]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) seeks to follow COI Informability guidance wherever possible on the production and design of publications.

JUSTICE

Bail Accommodation and Support Service

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) if he will list the address of each property used for the Bail Accommodation and Support Service; [248084]

(2) how much has been paid to ClearSprings for the provision of bail and home detention accommodation since June 2007; [248085]

(3) if he will list the outward part of the postcode of each property used for the Bail Accommodation and Support Service; [248086]

(4) how many Bail Accommodation and Support Service properties there are in each Parliamentary constituency in England and Wales; [248087]

(5) how many (a) offenders on home detention curfew and (b) defendants on bail have used the Bail Accommodation and Support Service since June 2007. [248088]

Mr. Straw: ClearSprings has been paid £8.3 million for the provision of the Bail and Accommodation Support Service from June 2007 to the end of November 2008.

Lists of the outward part of the property post code for each property currently in use for this service and of the numbers of properties by constituency are set out in the following lists. However, we do not disclose the private addresses of defendants or offenders. The properties used in the Bail Accommodation and Support Service are the private rented homes of those receiving the service.

As at 12 January, 1,051 offenders on home detention curfew and 1,338 defendants on bail have used the Bail Accommodation and Support Service since June 2007.

Court Orders: Compensation

Mr. Timpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many compensation orders have been issued to offenders in each of the last five years for which figures are available; [248096]

(2) what the average value of a compensation order was in each of the last five years for which figures are available; [248097]

(3) what the total monetary value of compensation orders issued by the courts was in each of the last five years for which figures are available; and what percentage of this was collected by the courts and awarded to victims in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [248099]

Bridget Prentice: The available information shown in the following table shows the total number of compensation orders imposed, the average amount of those compensation orders and the total monetary value of those compensation orders in each of the last five years. Centrally held data do not cover the percentage of these orders that were subsequently collected.

Number of offenders ordered to pay compensation[1], average compensation amount and total sum of compensation orders imposed[2], 2003-07

	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007
Number of offenders	120,465	123,315	131,687	137,446	165,372
Average compensation amount[3] (£)	233	203	242	265	222
Sum of all compensation orders imposed (£)	34,091,595	25,032,945	31,868,254	36,423,190	36,323,584

[1] These data are not based on a primary disposal basis, a court can order to pay an offender to pay compensation alongside another, e.g. as well as receiving a community sentence an offender could be ordered to pay compensation to the victim.
[2] Excludes summary motoring offences.
[3] Rounded to the nearest £.
Note:
These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system.

Mr. Timpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what percentage of compensation orders issued by the courts have (a) not been paid at all, (b) not been paid in full and (c) been paid in full in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [248098]

Bridget Prentice: The requested information is not held centrally. Data on the collection of compensation orders are not held by either the Ministry of Justice or HMCS. Information on the enforcement rate of financial penalties imposed by courts cannot make the distinction between compensation orders and other financial penalties.

Departmental Telephone Services

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many telephone numbers for which callers are charged at the rate applicable to 0845 numbers are used by (a) his Department and (b) its executive agencies for public access to services. [246986]

Mr. Wills: The Department, and its agencies, use 42 0845 telephone numbers to provide a range of services to the public. These include IT support for online enquiries, customer service inquiries, contact with the jury summoning office and a small number of courts.

The 0845 numbers were introduced because, at the time, calls from anywhere in the UK were charged at a local rate making it cheaper for people to make contact rather than using the exchange number. With the expansion of the telecommunications markets, call charges are now set by the individual phone companies, often as part of wider service packages. The charges vary, and are outside the control of the Department. Where possible, customers are also given the exchange number, as depending on the individual inquirer's telephone plan, 0845 may not now be the cheapest option.

Freedom of Information Act 2000

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he plans to publish the Government's response to the consultation on extending the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [246532]

Mr. Wills: The Government continue to assess the merits of designating additional public authorities under the Act and will publish their response to the section 5 public consultation by the summer.

Offenders: Penalty Notices

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many offenders were (a) cautioned and (b) issued with penalty notices for disorder in (i) the Devon and Cornwall police force area and (ii) England in 2007. [246225]

Maria Eagle: Data reported to the Office for Criminal Justice Reform can confirm that the number of offenders cautioned in 2007 were as follows; 10,209 in the Devon and Cornwall police force area and 344,890 in England. From 1 June 2000 the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 came into force nationally and removed the use of cautions for persons under 18 and replaced them with reprimands and final warnings. These figures have been included in the above data. The cautions statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been cautioned for two or more offences at the same time the principal offence is the more serious offence.

5,703 PNDs were issued in the Devon and Cornwall police force area and 192,829 in England in 2007.

Probation Service for England and Wales

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average caseload of probation staff was in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08; and what estimate he has made of the average caseload in (i) 2008-09 and (ii) 2009-10. [246600]

Mr. Hanson: NOMS does not produce statistics on the average case load of probation staff. However, data are collected on the number of offenders supervised by the probation service and, separately, on the number of staff in post.

The total number of offenders supervised by the probation service on 31 March 2007 was 237,796. On 31 December 2007 it was 242,722.

This information is taken from the Probation Statistics Quarterly Brief, which can be found at the following website:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/probationquarterly.htm

No projections of case load are available. However, projections for the number of order and licence starts have been made. These are set out as follows:

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Bullying

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of children of school age experienced bullying in 2007-08. [247005]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: We collect data on young people's perceptions of bullying through the annual TellUs survey. The TellUs 3 survey for 2007-08 showed that 48 per cent. of children and young people experienced bullying during the previous year, either in school or in another setting. The TellUs 3 statistics are published on our website at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/STR/d000828/index.shtml

We have introduced an indicator on bullying which underpins the Child Safety public service agreement (PSA 13, NI69), and made clear that we expect the proportion of children and young people who experience bullying to go down over the Spending Review period.

Child Safety Education Coalition

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether the Child Safety Education Coalition has been established. [247011]

Beverley Hughes: On 11 November 2008 the Government announced the award of a grant of £1,619,000 over three financial years to the Royal Society for the Prevention of Accidents (RoSPA) in partnership with the National Children's Bureau (NCB) to establish a Child Safety Education Coalition.

Work is progressing well. RoSPA and NCB are recruiting and equipping a secretariat and identifying potential membership. My Department is agreeing with them full terms of reference and a statement of purpose document for the coalition. Key organisations with an interest in practical child safety education have been asked to attend a conference in February 2009 at which they will be invited to become members of the coalition. The membership of the coalition will then be formally announced and the coalition will confirm its priorities and plan of work for the period of the grant.

A copy of the press notice announcing the award of the grant to establish the coalition is available on the Department for Children, Schools and Families website (http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/pns/DisplayPN.cgi?pn_id=2008_0249).

Beverley Hughes: Employees who have management responsibilities as at December 2008 are detailed as follows:

Children in Care

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has for the implementation of his Department's Care Matters proposals; and if he will make a statement. [247255]

Beverley Hughes: The Care Matters implementation plan was published in March 2008, jointly with members of the Children's Inter-agency Group and other partners including Local Government Association including and Association of Directors for Children's Services. Since then:

We received Royal Assent in November 2008 for the Children and Young Persons Act which provides the legislative basis for many of the reforms.

We have launched nine sets of pilots set out in Care Matters and will shortly launch the Social Work Practices and the Social Pedagogy pilots.

Regional conferences have taken place across England to begin the implementation of care matters reforms. A number of regions are currently holding sub-regional conferences;

Future plans include:

Implementation of the Children and Young Persons Act along with supporting regulations and guidance, over the next year.

We will continue to work closely with partners across sectors to drive up improvements in outcomes for looked after children, building on the new inspection framework being developed by Ofsted, work by the Centre for Excellence in Outcomes and sector led initiatives.

We will review progress in an annual ministerial stocktake, with the first in autumn 2009. The stocktake will give us the opportunity to evaluate progress and ensure we are on track to deliver our aims for children in care. A short report will be laid before Parliament after each stocktake.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he is taking to improve the educational support and stability of life of looked-after children. [247470]

Beverley Hughes: Through the White Paper "Care Matters: Time for Change" and the Children and Young Persons Act 2008 the Government have put in place a range of measures to improve the educational support and placement stability of looked after children. This includes an annual personal education allowance of £500 for looked after children who are at risk of not reaching the expected standards of attainment.

To ensure that looked after children get the support they need to help them achieve their potential the governing body of all maintained schools will be required to appoint a designated teacher, and care leavers who undertake a course in higher education will be entitled to a bursary of £2,000.

We are also strengthening care planning arrangements to reduce disruption to education and training as a result of changes in care placements. Through initiatives such as the Fostering Changes training programme and the Multi-dimensional Treatment Foster Care and Social Pedagogy pilots we are also taking action to help improve the range of support and skills for foster carers and residential workers to help them meet the needs of looked after children to prevent placement breakdown.

Children: Carers

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what funding his Department has provided to the Children's Society to support professionals working with young carers in the last 12 months. [247000]

Beverley Hughes: Funding for the Children's Society's project to support and train professionals working with young carers is made available through the Department for Children, Schools and Families' Children, Young People and Families grant programme. In the last 12 months (from January 2008 to December 2008) the Children's Society has received £204,067.

The grant was awarded to enable the Children's Society in partnership with the Princess Royal Trust for Carers to draw together resources and guidance on good practice in supporting young carers and their families and, on the basis of that, to help train and inform social workers, health workers, teachers and voluntary groups in meeting their needs. The project also supports local authorities to take a whole family approach in the delivery of their support services.

Funding for the project as a whole covers three financial years running from April 2007 to March 2010. For the current financial year (April 2008 to March 2009), the agreed grant is £203,541, of which £152,655 has already been paid. In the financial year 2007-08, £206,651 was provided; in 2009-10, £208,472 has been awarded, bringing the total available for this project over the three year period to £617,644.

Children: Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what funding streams he plans to include in the individual budgets for disabled children in the forthcoming pilots; and if he will make a statement. [247736]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: We envisage that the majority of the funding supporting individual budgets in the pilot areas will be sourced from local budgets available to the Director of Children's Services and PCT managers rather than specific grants from DCSF. Determination of these budgets will be a local matter for both local authorities and partnering PCTs. There are however some local authority grants from Government which pilot areas may wish to incorporate. We will indicate in guidance to pathfinder areas that we would like them to explore how the Area Based Grant and the Aiming High for Disabled Children block within the Sure Start Early Years and Childcare Grant can be utilised within individual budgets. Further funding streams may also be indicated at a later date.

Children: Human Trafficking

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent steps he has taken to improve the protection of children who may have been trafficked. [247384]

Beverley Hughes: The Government ratified the Council of Europe convention on action against the trafficking of human beings on 17 December 2008 as part of its wider strategy set out in 'UK Action Plan on Tackling Human Trafficking' and published in March 2007. In December 2007 the DCSF and Home Office jointly published guidance on safeguarding and promoting the welfare of children who may have been trafficked.

Early identification is the key to protecting these vulnerable children, DCSF is therefore working with the Home Office and key stakeholders to develop a toolkit to help front line staff recognise the potential indicators of trafficking as part of a new National Referral Mechanism (NRM) being set up under the convention to protect all victims of trafficking.

In addition to this the DCSF has provided substantial funding for ECPAT (End Child Prostitution, Child Pornography and the Trafficking of Children for Sexual Purposes) to deliver training on child trafficking to front line practitioners dealing with children who may have been trafficked.

Children: Literacy

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress has been made under the Every Child a Writer programme; and if he will make a statement. [247395]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Improving standards of children's writing is a major priority for this Government, and will be vital in ensuring we reach our Public Service Agreement targets in 2011 for 78 per cent. of children to be reaching the expected level in English and maths.

Since September 2008 we have been piloting Every Child a Writer, a commitment from our Children's Plan, with funding of £25 million over three years. This programme aims to improve children's writing through leading teacher support for class teachers and intensive one-to-one tuition in the areas of writing children find hardest to master. Every Child a Writer is being piloted in nine local authorities and is due to scale up to reach all local authorities by 2010/11. From next year a further 60 local authorities will enter the programme.

In September we also launched new materials called Support for Writing for teaching children to write across Key Stages 1 and 2. This guidance and exemplification is available online through the Primary Framework, and is based on effective teaching strategies in the areas we know children find hardest about writing at the moment. The materials focus on ensuring children make good progress in their writing through outlining incremental small steps in learning within the year and specific classroom examples of how teachers might chose to approach each step.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he plans to publish an evaluation of the National Year of Reading. [247397]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The 2008 National Year of Reading has been led on behalf of the Department by the National Literacy Trust, who will publish an evaluation in the spring 2009.

Children: Obesity

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has to tackle obesity among children under the age of six years. [247516]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The "Healthy Weight, Healthy Lives" strategy, published in January 2008 set out the Government's comprehensive plans to reduce obesity—initially focusing on children. Every child should grow up eating well and enjoying being active and we want parents to have the knowledge and confidence to make this happen. There is no single, simple solution to reducing rates of overweight and obesity and therefore Government are taking action on a number of fronts.

The updated Child Health Promotion Programme was published in March 2008 and prioritises obesity prevention and physical activity through positive parenting during pregnancy and the early years of their children's lives while supporting families facing particular risk factors attributed to causing obesity. We are working to support as many mothers as possible to breastfeed and to continue to breastfeed for longer—helped by schools, children's centres, health and other services, all promoting healthy weight. The introduction of the Early Years Foundation Stage for 0 to 5-year-olds means that all early years education providers must promote the good health of children, by providing healthy, nutritious food and active play. The Play Strategy, launched in December 2008, sets how Government will invest £235 million over 2008-09 to 2010-11 to develop play facilities for children of all ages.

Once children start school they can benefit from school food which must meet statutory nutritional and nutrient-based standards. Nine out of 10 children aged five to 16 now take part in at least two hours of high quality PE and school sport each week, compared to one in four in 2002. Nearly all schools are currently participating in the National Healthy Schools Programme with over two-thirds with full National Healthy School Status, having demonstrated they have in place the minimum evidence for 41 criteria across four themes: emotional health and well-being; healthy eating; physical activity and personal, social, health and economic education.

The National Child Measurement Programme, which weighs and measures children in reception year and year 6 is now in its fourth year and has a participation rate of 88 per cent. From 2008, primary care trusts can routinely feed back the results to parents. All this is supported by the Change4Life campaign which aims to help families eat well, move more and live longer and which is initially focused on families with young children.

Children: Protection

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many preventable child deaths there were in 2007; and if he will make a statement. [247008]

Beverley Hughes: The reviewing of all child deaths by Local Safeguarding Children Boards (LSCBs) became mandatory in April 2008. We will shortly be collecting data on the number of deaths reviewed by each LSCB in 2008-09 and the number of these deaths which boards assessed as having been preventable. These data will be published in autumn 2009.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the implications for his Department's policy and practice of the Joint Chief Inspectors' report on safeguarding children. [247390]

Beverley Hughes: The Government published their full response to the joint Chief Inspectors' report on 15 December 2008. This accepted all of the recommendations on safeguarding. The report provided evidence of improvements in children's services and in outcomes for children and young people since the previous report in 2005, but noted that there was still more to be done to ensure that reforms were being implemented systematically by all local agencies so that children in every part of the country receive the protection they need.

On 12 November 2008 the Government announced that an independent report would be prepared by Lord Laming on progress being made across the country in implementing effective arrangements for safeguarding children. Lord Laming's work will address key features of good safeguarding practice and whether they are being universally applied across the country, including the development of the professional work force, inter-agency working and effective means of public accountability. Lord Laming will also look at what specific actions should be taken by national Government and other agencies to accelerate improvement across the country.

Children: Safety

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many home safety equipment schemes have been established in each region to date. [247391]

Beverley Hughes: The Department for Children, Schools and Families does not collect information on this topic. However, information provided by the Royal Society for the Prevention of Accidents suggests that there are around 760 local home safety equipment schemes operating in England. This information is not broken down by region.

In the Children's Plan the Government announced an £18 million National Home Safety Equipment Scheme to help disadvantaged families reduce the risk of accidents in the home. The National Home Safety Equipment Scheme will work with local partners in disadvantaged areas with the highest child accident rates to support the expansion of existing schemes and encourage the establishment of new schemes.

Baroness Morgan of Drefelin wrote to local authorities informing them of the Government's progress in delivering the National Home Safety Equipment Scheme on 21 October 2008. Since then, as part of a competitive tending process, the Department for Children, Schools and Families has received and evaluated bids to host the Scheme. A contract to deliver the scheme will be awarded shortly.

Children's Centres

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many people have been awarded the National Professional Qualification in Integrated Centre Leadership to date. [247291]

Beverley Hughes: 1,051 people have been awarded the National Professional Qualification in Integrated Centre Leadership to date.

Classroom Assistants: Pay

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) nursery nurses and (b) teaching assistants employed in Slough have not been receiving equal pay compared to Slough Borough Council employees undertaking work of equivalent value in each of the last five years; what estimate he has made of (i) the number of women affected and (ii) the potential financial liability of Slough Borough Council; and when he expects the local authority to pay back-dated compensation to the women affected. [247795]

Beverley Hughes: The information requested is not held centrally. When setting staff remuneration it is for individual local authorities, as employers, to ensure that they comply with equal pay legislation.

Departmental Advertising

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what advertising expenditure (a) his Department and its predecessors and (b) its non-departmental public bodies have incurred in each of the last five years, broken down by budget heading. [248038]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Promotional campaigns, including those using advertising, are funded from the Department's central advertising and publicity budget and from individual programme budgets held by policy directorates.

Advertising is part of a fully integrated promotional campaign. The question refers specifically to advertising and we have been able to separate the Department's spend on advertising, as this is centrally placed through the Central Office of Information. The cost of recruitment advertising for the Department has not been included as it is not possible to establish a definitive figure, except at disproportionate expense. The Department's advertising spend and that of its predecessor (DfES) since 2004 is set out in the following tables, with a breakdown of individual campaigns. All figures exclude VAT. Non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs) have their own separate funding streams and consequently administer and manage their own advertising expenditure.

Departmental Consultants

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much has been spent on consultants by (a) his Department and (b) each non-departmental public body of the Department in each of the last three years, broken down by consultancy. [240633]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Consultancy expenditure for the former Department for Education and Skills for 2005-06 and 2006-07 is shown in table 1. Following the announcement of the machinery of Government change on 28 June 2007, which created the Department for Children, Schools and Families, consultancy expenditure for 2007-08 for the new Department is shown in table 2.

Consultancy expenditure can be attributed to individual suppliers only at disproportionate cost.

Table 1: 2005-06 and 2006-07—Department for Education and Skills

	£ million
	Consultancy expenditure
2006-07	45.1

A further £8 million in 2005-06 and £14 million in 2006-07 were expended on other external expert advisers on education and children's matters to assist with policy implementation and delivery.

Table 2: 2007-08—Department for Children Schools and Families

	£ million
	Consultancy expenditure
2007-08	61.4

A further £10.3 million was spent on other external expert advisers.

The Department does not hold information on consultancy expenditure for its non-departmental public bodies.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the cost to his Department of provision of office facilities to (a) special advisers and (b) press officers (i) was in the last 12 months and (ii) has been since 1997-98. [244730]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department for Children, Schools and Families was created on 28 June 2007. The total cost on the provision of office facilities to press officers and special advisors during the last 12 months amounted to £240,758.90.

The Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) and its predecessors did not collect the information from 1997-98 onwards as requested and therefore it could be provided only at disproportionate costs.

Departmental Responsibilities

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of his Department's performance against its target to increase the number of children in lower-income working families using formal childcare by 120,000 in 2008; and if he will make a statement. [247467]

Beverley Hughes: The final assessment of this target will be based on the findings from the Department's 2008 Parents' Childcare Survey. The results of this annual survey will be available from April 2009.

Departmental Telephone Services

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many telephone numbers for which callers are charged at the rate applicable to 0845 numbers are used by his Department for public access to services. [246990]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department currently has five services, accessible to the public, which operate using telephone numbers with the 0845 prefix: the Headship Information Line; the DCSF publications helpline, Prolog; the Fast Track Teachers Programme Support and recruitment team helplines; and the National Strategies Customer Service Helpdesk.

Education: Assessments

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many responses were received to the consultation on Confidence in Standards: Regulating and developing qualifications and assessment. [247246]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The consultation on Confidence in Standards was launched on 17 December 2007 and ran until 10 March 2008. The consultation received 80 responses.

Grandparents: Parental Responsibility

Mr. Pope: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assistance his Department provides to grandparents who act in loco parentis for their grandchildren; and if he will make a statement. [247047]

Beverley Hughes: Grandparents who care for their grandchildren are entitled to the same help from services as any other relative.

Education legislation makes no distinction between parents and other carers with whom the child is living with regard to service entitlement. Grandparents are also entitled to the same family support services as any parent. Family support services may be provided by a local authority under section 17 of the Children Act 1989 to safeguard and promote the welfare of children in need in their area, including promoting the upbringing of such children by their families. These services may include financial help if that is the most appropriate way to meet the child's needs. If grandparents or any other relative are caring for a child who is looked after by the local authority, they will be approved as local authority foster carers and entitled to the same financial allowances and support services as any other foster carer.

We are also seeking to improve services and supports to relative carers through a number of measures as set out in the "Care Matters" White Paper. The Children and Young Persons Act, which received royal assent in November 2008 makes it easier for relative carers to obtain an order giving them parental responsibility for the child and to receive financial support on a longer term basis where this is seen to be the most appropriate way to safeguard and promote the child's welfare.

Headteachers

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the report by Pricewaterhouse Coopers commissioned by his Department on school leaders. [247461]

Ed Balls: I welcomed the Pricewaterhouse Coopers report on school leadership. My Department has since provided funding of £10 million to the National College of School Leadership (NCSL) for succession planning. I have also made the development of new models of leadership one of the key priorities for the NCSL.

Health Education: Alcoholic Drinks

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what peer-designed materials are used within schools to ensure young people are aware of the implications of alcohol abuse. [247666]

Beverley Hughes: The Department does not collect information on what peer-designed materials are used within schools.

Alcohol education should be delivered (along with other drug education) through well planned personal, social, health and economic (PSHEE) education. The Department's guidance, "Drugs: Guidance for Schools" (DFES 2004) makes it clear that schools should work closely with pupils' parents and carers in the development of their drug education programme, so that it is relevant and sensitive to the needs and diversity of its pupils.

Health Education: Sex

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the outcomes of the review of sex and relationship education in schools; and if he will make a statement. [247257]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Government's response to the review of sex and relationships education (SRE) in schools was published on 23 October. A copy of the response is available at:

http://www.teachernet.gov.uk/docbank/index.cfm?id=13030.

The Government believe all children and young people should receive a comprehensive, age-appropriate programme of SRE, to give them the knowledge and skills to make safe and healthy choices about sex and relationships.

National Curriculum Tests: Contracts

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) whether Ministers from his Department had access to the documents and information associated with the procurement of the contract with ETS Europe to deliver the key stage 2 and key stage 3 national curriculum tests; [246274]

(2) whether Ministers from his Department were consulted on the terms of the contract drawn up between the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority and ETS to deliver the key stage 2 and key stage 3 national curriculum tests. [246192]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) is responsible for the delivery of National Curriculum tests. The QCA Board took decisions on the procurement and award of contracts. Throughout the procurement process, officials from the Department for Education and Skills (DFES) participated as observers, commenting and asking questions. QCA shared copies of documentation with officials who offered comments. DFES observers did not have voting rights or decision making powers in relation to the procurement. The QCA Board approved ETS as preferred bidder on the 14 December 2006. Ministers were informed of the QCA's choice of preferred bidder on the same day, prior to the commencement of contract negotiations. Ministers were not consulted on the terms of the contract between QCA and ETS. Lord Sutherland has found that the procurement was sound but the QCA did not manage the contract it held with ETS effectively.

National Healthy Schools Programme

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of schools are involved in the Healthy Schools Programme. [245753]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: As at 19 December 2008, 97 per cent. of schools were participating in the Healthy Schools Programme with 71 per cent. having achieved full Healthy School status.

National Safeguarding Unit

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether the National Safeguarding Unit for the Third Sector has been established; and if he will make a statement. [247383]

Beverley Hughes: Following a competitive tendering process, the Department for Children, Schools and Families has recently awarded a contract to deliver the National Safeguarding Unit for the Third Sector. An announcement on this will be made shortly. The Unit will be established and launched by March 2009.

Office of the Children's Commissioner

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what funding the Office of the Children's Commissioner received from his Department for financial years (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09. [247465]

Beverley Hughes: The annual budget for 11 Million (formerly the Office of the Children's Commissioner) is £3 million for both these financial years. The Children's Commissioner for England publishes his annual report and accounts, copies of which are laid before Parliament and available in the House Library.

Ofqual: Public Appointments

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will ensure that appointments to Ofqual will be subject to select committee scrutiny in line with the proposals on page 29 of the Governance of Britain Green Paper of July 2007. [247064]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Government's response to the House of Commons Liaison Committee report on Pre-appointment hearings by Select Committees was published in June 2008 (ref: First Special Report of Session 2007-2008 HC594). It contains a revised list of all posts that the Government consider suitable for pre-appointment hearings by parliamentary Select Committees.

The post of chair of Ofqual, the new independent regulator of qualifications and tests which, subject to parliamentary approval will be established in the Children, Skills and Learning Bill in the current session, is included in the list.

Parents: Advisory Services

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has for the launch of the Parent Know How suite of services; and if he will make a statement. [247249]

Beverley Hughes: Parent Know How is a suite of services for mothers, fathers and other carers which consists of telephone helplines, text and instant messaging, web-based services and advice through print media, all of which became operational between April and October 2008. These services will be supplemented by a new online directory of local and national services available for parents due to go live in September 2009. The Department has recently advertised its intention to contract for a further round of innovative technology-enabled services and assets which should be developed later in 2009.

Pupil Exclusions

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children under the age of (a) five, (b) 10 and (c) 15 years were temporarily excluded from state schools in England and Wales for (i) attacking another pupil or teacher, (ii) having drunk alcohol at or before school or having alcohol with them and (iii) carrying an offensive weapon in each year since 1997, broken down by local education authority area. [241270]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The requested information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Information on the number of episodes of fixed period exclusion broken down by reason for each local authority is available as additional information to SFR 14/2008: "Permanent and Fixed Period Exclusions from Schools in England 2006/07" and can be found at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000793/index.shtml

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children between the ages of four and 11 years have been (a) suspended and (b) suspended more than once from school in (i) the Ribble Valley, (ii) Lancashire and (iii) England in 2008. [243269]

Pupil Exclusions: Children in Care

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many (a) male and (b) female pupils who were children in care received one or more fixed period exclusions in each of the last 10 years; [241716]

(2) how many pupils who were children in care were given a fixed period exclusion in the last 12 months, broken down by national curriculum year group; [241722]

(3) how many and what proportion of pupils in care were given (a) a permanent exclusion and (b) a fixed period exclusion in each of the last 10 years. [241738]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The OC2 data collection collects information on a range of outcomes for looked after children from local authorities. This information has been published in the Statistical First Release "Outcome Indicators for Children Looked After, 12 months to 30 September 2007—England" (SFR 08/2008), which is available on the Department's website via the following link:

This publication contains figures for the period 2005-07.

Information on exclusions from school can be found in table A which shows the number of permanent exclusions during the previous school year. The OC2 data collection is an aggregate data collection from local authorities and it is therefore not possible to provide this information broken down by national curriculum year group.

Information on exclusions for looked after children was first collected in 2000, figures for earlier years are also published on the Department's website and can be found via the following links.

Pupil Referral Units: Standards

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will introduce legislative proposals to require local authorities to replace failing pupil referral units with a specified alternative. [247261]

Beverley Hughes: We intend to introduce the power for the Secretary of State to direct a local authority to replace a pupil referral unit that is in special measures with a specified alternative in the forthcoming Children, Skills and Learning Bill, which was announced in the Queen's Speech on 3 December 2008.

This will fulfil the commitment we made in the White Paper, 'Back on Track', which was published in May 2008.

Pupils: Disadvantaged

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress has been made under the London Challenge initiative in addressing the needs of pupils who receive free school meals; and if he will make a statement. [247234]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Since London Challenge was introduced the proportion of London pupils eligible for FSM who achieve five or more GCSEs at A*-C including English and maths has risen from 22.2 per cent. in 2002 to 33.8 per cent. in 2008.

Pupils: Discipline

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children between the ages of four and 11 years (a) suspended and (b) suspended more than once from school in (i) West Chelmsford constituency, (ii) Essex and (iii) England in 2008. [243970]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry [holding answer 15 December 2008]: The information requested is shown in the table for the latest period available.

Qualifications and Curriculum Authority

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he last (a) met and (b) spoke to Mr. Ken Boston of the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) about the QCA's work; and if he will make a statement. [245705]

Jim Knight: The Secretary of State last met Dr. Ken Boston on 2 June 2008, in a meeting also attended by Sir Anthony Greener, former chair of QCA.

As Minister responsible for QCA, I have met and spoken to Dr. Boston on a number of subsequent occasions since that meeting.

Schools

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effects of giving International School Awards for those schools which have begun to integrate global issues and international awareness into the curriculum; and if he will make a statement. [247270]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The International School Award (ISA) is administered by the British Council on behalf of my Department.

In 2006, an OFSTED review concluded that:

"It was clear from scrutiny of the self-evaluation forms and the reports that in many schools which had an ISA a significant amount of teachers' and pupils' time was involved in international work. Almost all schools which had completed a SEF mentioned their international work or their ISA within it."

The report is available at:

www.ofsted.gov.uk/Ofsted-home/Publications-and-research/Browse-all-by/Education/Leadership/Governance/Evaluating-internationalism-in-schools/(language)/eng-GB.

An evaluation report conducted for the British Council in 2008 found that there was:

"...strong evidence of the benefits that international work is bringing to the curriculum in schools and to pupils' engagement with learning."

I have placed copies of the evaluation report in both Libraries.

Schools: Transport

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether the specification for the Home to School Transport ICT solution has been developed alongside the process to appoint a solution supplier. [247205]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: An ICT functional specification, aimed at assisting schools in identifying travel needs, carrying out risk assessments and the approval and procurement of a transport solution, has been developed by contractors engaged by the Department. No decision has yet been taken to develop and implement a solution based on that specification or not, and no supplier has been commissioned to do so.

Secondary Education: Absenteeism

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress has been made against the target to ensure that no local authority has more than five per cent. of its secondary school pupils as persistent absentees by 2010-11; and if he will make a statement. [247412]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: In 2007/08 (combined autumn and spring terms), eight local authorities (LAs) had persistent absence in maintained secondary schools of over 10 per cent., down from 14 in the same period of 2006/07, and 128 had persistent absence of over 5 per cent., down from 137 in 2006/07. 2008/09 (combined autumn and spring terms) data will be available in October 2009.

The National Strategies are providing intensive support and challenge to 42 LAs with high persistent absence, ensuring that all of the targeted schools in their authority are implementing agreed actions to reduce their absence rates. The National Strategies are also working with a further 59 LAs to improve their use of data to support and challenge schools with high persistent absence.

Social and Emotional Aspects of Learning Programme

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of schools has implemented a Social and Emotional Aspects of Learning programme. [247413]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Data collected in July 2008 by National Strategies showed that about 80 per cent. of primary schools and about 30 per cent. of secondary schools have implemented a Social and Emotional Aspects of Learning (SEAL) programme. The Department expects that by July 2009 about 90 per cent. of primary schools and about 45 per cent. of secondary schools will have implemented a SEAL programme.

Social Workers: Training

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he expects the review of training and continuing professional development of the social care workforce under the National Minimum Standards review to be completed. [247278]

Beverley Hughes: The Care Matters White Paper sets out our plans for improving the training and support to foster carers and residential care workers. This commitment is also being taken forward by the Children's Workforce Development Council (CWDC) who introduced training, support and development standards to support foster carers from approval through the first two years of service. These give fostering providers a framework for their foster carers' training and professional development. CWDC are currently working with stakeholders to develop a professional development framework for social care workers, this will incorporate the foster care training support and development framework. CWDC are also developing core standards specific to residential care workers that will raise the quality of care and support a child can expect to receive in the home. We will be linking this work to the National Minimum Standards (NMS) as part of our review of the NMS. We will be consulting on changes to these during 2009.

Specialised Diplomas

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he expects diploma courses in (a) business, administration and finance, (b) hair and beauty, (c) hospitality, (d) environmental and land-based studies, (e) manufacturing and produce design, (f) public services, (g) retail, (h) sport and leisure and (i) travel and tourism to become available. [247241]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Diplomas in Business, Administration and Finance; Hair and Beauty Studies; Hospitality; Environmental and Land-Based Studies; and Manufacturing and Product Design will all be available for first teaching from September 2009.

The Diplomas in Public Services; Retail Business; Sport and Active Leisure; and Travel and Tourism, will all be available for first teaching from September 2010.

Teenage Pregnancy

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Teenage Pregnancy Strategy in meeting its objectives; and if he will make a statement; [247256]

(2) what progress his Department has made against its target to reduce the under 18 conception rate by 50 per cent. by 2010; and if he will make a statement. [247468]

Beverley Hughes: The latest annual data (for 2006) show that since the 1998 baseline year, the under-18 conception rate has fallen by 12.9 per cent. to its lowest level for over 20 years. The 2007 annual data will be published in February 2009.

While I welcome the steady decline in England's teenage pregnancy rate, we need to accelerate progress if we are to achieve our challenging target to halve the under-18 conception rate by 2010. Consequently, we have issued guidance to all local authorities and PCTs, which sets out what is working in the most successful areas (some of whom have achieved reductions of over 30 per cent.) and encourages all areas to refresh their strategies to incorporate these findings.

At a national level, our focus is on:

close monitoring, strengthened performance management and intensive support to the most challenged areas; maximising the use of the additional funding for improved provision and use of effective contraception; and strengthened communications to young people, parents and delivery partners.

Young People: Education

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many 17-year-olds participated in education and training in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08. [247478]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Estimates of participation in education for those aged 16-18 are published annually by the Department in a Statistical First Release (SFR) each June and can be found on the Department's website (http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000792/index.shtml). We estimate the numbers of 17-year-olds participating in education and training at the end of 2006 and 2007 were 537,400 and 555,100 respectively.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Admiralty House

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the right hon. Member for Kingston upon Hull, East paid rent in respect of his residence in Admiralty House during the period of time he resided there while not holding ministerial office. [246041]

Mr. Watson: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to him on 18 February 2008, Official Report, column 117W, and the answer given to him by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 4 July 2007, Official Report, column 1023W.

The right hon. Member for Kingston upon Hull, East (Mr. Prescott) was not charged rent during the short period of time finalising arrangements to move and recovering from his illness.

Asylum Seekers: Homelessness

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) asylum seekers and (b) failed asylum seekers are registered as homeless in (i) Leeds and (ii) the UK. [247884]

Mr. Iain Wright: Communities and Local Government does not collect information on asylum seekers or failed asylum seekers who are homeless. Communities and Local Government collects data from all local housing authorities in England about their activities under the homelessness legislation (part 7 of the Housing Act 1996), including the number of applicants accepted as statutorily homeless, but these data do not identify whether those accepted as statutorily homeless may be asylum seekers. Asylum seekers who claimed asylum after 2 April 2000 are not eligible for assistance under the homelessness legislation; neither are failed asylum seekers.

Community Relations: Departmental Coordination

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many staff in each Government Office work on cohesion and integration related issues; and what the cost of employing these staff is expected to be in (a) 2008-09 and (b) each of the two subsequent years. [245520]

Mr. Khan: The following table shows the number of staff in each Government office working on the cohesion and integration agenda over the next three years with the related staff costs.

Council Housing

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to allocate any surplus in the housing revenue account subsidy system in (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11 to housing for council tenants. [243888]

Mr. Iain Wright: The cost of running council housing varies across the country, and so we have a system which redistributes surpluses in some authorities to deficits in others. We have this system to ensure that rents remain affordable.

In recent years the system of council housing subsidy has been in deficit throughout the country, with the Treasury making up the shortfall. It is only from 2008-09 that the position has reversed with the overall system moving into surplus. In this financial year the Treasury plans to allocate around £5.9 billion in total for housing expenditure, considerably more than the resources flowing back to Treasury.

Communities and Local Government, jointly with the Treasury, is currently conducting a Review of Council Housing Finance, including looking in depth at key issues such as the cost of running council house stock, rents, management and maintenance costs, redistribution and the use of surpluses. The Review will report to Ministers in spring 2009, and will inform the next spending review with consultation thereafter .

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the official engagements of (a) the Minister for London, (b) the Minister for Yorkshire and the Humber and (c) the Minister for the South East in their role as regional ministers were from 1 December to 31 December 2008. Departmental Telephone Services

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what use (a) her Department and (b) service providers under contract to her Department make of (i) 0844 and 0845 telephone numbers and (ii) revenue-sharing telephone numbers for calls from members of the public; for which services such numbers are used; what prefixes are used for revenue-sharing numbers; how much revenue has accrued from revenue-sharing numbers in each of the last five years; what consideration her Department has given to introducing 03-prefixed telephone numbers for calls to all such services; and if she will make a statement. [247337]

Mr. Khan: Communities and Local Government do not require the public to make telephone calls on numbers which charge more than the national rate. Neither Communities and Local Government or its service provider (Siemens) generate any income from calls. The only 0845 number used is the Neighbourhood Renewal helpline (0845 0828383). However, calls to this number are diverted to the main Communities and Local Government switchboard and are charged at a local rate to the caller. Later this year, CLG will introduce the new 0300 number range when it commences a new contractual telephony arrangement.

Fire Prevention

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the Fire Kills campaign. [247392]

Mr. Khan: Provisional figures show that in 2007 there were 190 accidental dwelling fire deaths in England, down 18 per cent. from the 2006 figure of 233 accidental dwelling fire deaths. This is the lowest figure for accidental dwelling fire deaths in England since 1981.

The fire safety campaign has been running under the Fire Kills brand for the last 10 years and has been a pivotal part of the Government's success in reducing domestic fire deaths. The success of the Fire Kills campaign has been largely due to a series of national advertising campaigns, focused on the use and maintenance of smoke alarms. There is strong evidence that the public respond positively to the campaign's messages, and have bought smoke alarms as a result of them.

The most recent campaign, 'Pull Your Finger Out', first ran from January to March 2008. The smoke alarm industry reported a significant increase in sales during this period, while pre- and post-tracking research has shown that the percentage of people who could recall fire safety advertising without being prompted rose from 46 to 64 per cent.

Fire Services: Standards

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to publish the Audit Commission's comprehensive performance assessment reports for 2006 on fire and rescue services in England. [248182]

Mr. Khan: The Audit Commission undertook a comprehensive performance assessment of fire and rescue authorities in 2005, the results of which were published in July 2005. The Commission followed this up with annual performance assessments of each fire and rescue authority, determining the extent of improvement or deterioration in service delivery over the previous year, how well the authority manages its finances and how effectively it plans and responds to emergencies and incidents.

The performance assessment for 2006 was published in April 2007 and the one for 2007 in January 2008. I understand that Commission is proposing to publish the annual performance assessment for 2008 next month.

Home Information Packs

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent assessment she has made of the effects of the cost of home information packs on people seeking to sell houses. [247180]

Margaret Beckett: The most recent assessment made of the effects of the cost of home information packs on people seeking to sell houses was independent research carried out by Europe Economics, published in November 2007. They found no evidence of any impact of HIPs on transactions and prices and only a short-term impact of HIPs on new listings which would be marginal compared to wider factors.

Homelessness: Economic Situation

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment her Department has made of the effects on levels of homelessness of the economic downturn; and if she will make a statement. [247886]

Mr. Iain Wright: We allocated over £200 million to local authorities and the voluntary sector between 2008-09 to 2010-11 to tackle homelessness effectively. This is the biggest ever cash injection for homelessness and rough sleeping services. The latest statutory homelessness statistics were published on 11 December 2008, and includes statistics up to the July to September quarter. This showed that local housing authority homelessness acceptances fell compared to the previous quarter and year, with 14,340 during the quarter, and the number of households placed in temporary accommodation has continued to fall, for the twelfth consecutive quarter, to 72,130 by the end of September.

We also recently announced a £200 million Mortgage Rescue Scheme to help vulnerable homeowners. This scheme is available to all local authorities and will aim to help up to 6,000 of the most vulnerable households avoid the trauma of repossession and possible risk of homelessness over the next two years. This scheme is now operational.

Alongside this, the new Homeowner Mortgage Support Scheme, which was announced in the Queen's Speech, will enable households that experience a significant and temporary loss of income as a result of the economic downtown to defer a proportion of interest payments on their mortgage for up to two years. The Government will guarantee the deferred interest payments in return for banks' participation in the scheme.

We will continue to monitor developments on all of the above in the light of the economic downturn.

Homelessness: West Yorkshire

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people were recorded as homeless in (a) Leeds, (b) West Yorkshire and (c) the UK in each of the last five years. [247887]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information about English local authorities' actions under the homelessness legislation (part 7 of the Housing Act 1996) is collected quarterly at local authority level. The Department does not hold statistics for the devolved Administrations. Local authorities within West Yorkshire are as follows; Bradford, Calderdale, Kirklees, Leeds, and Wakefield.

Data collected include the number of households accepted by local housing authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty (to secure that suitable accommodation is available). If a settled home is not immediately available, the authority must secure temporary accommodation until a settled home becomes available.

Information is also collected on the number of people who sleep rough—that is, those who are literally roofless on a single night.

Summary tables showing the total number of households (a) accepted as owed a main homelessness duty and (b) in temporary accommodation for each year since 1997-98, and (c) rough sleeper estimates for each year since 1998, for each local authority, were provided in my answer given to the hon. Member for West Suffolk (Mr. Spring) on 26 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1499-1500W, and are available in the Library. An extract showing data for the last five years for the local authorities within West Yorkshire is provided in the following tables:

Figures for acceptances and temporary accommodation can be found in our quarterly statistical release on statutory homelessness. This is published on our website and placed in the Library each quarter. Liverpool Corporation Act 1902

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what powers the Secretary of State has in respect of the Liverpool Corporation Act 1902; and what responsibilities she has in respect of breaches of the Act. [248091]

Mr. Khan: The Liverpool Corporation Act 1902 makes certain provisions in relation to the Local Government Board whose functions, which were transferred to Ministers by the Ministry of Health Act 1919, are now exercisable by the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (save for some health functions and Wales). Breaches of any Act, including the Liverpool Corporation Act 1902, are matters for the court.

Local Government Finance Division

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what working groups there are within her Department's Local Government Finance division. [245995]

John Healey: Local Government Finance division co-ordinates the following working groups:

Settlement Working Group

Capital Programmes Working Party

Central Local Information Partnership

Local Government Pension Scheme 111 Health Review Group

Firefighters' Pensions Committee

Local Government Pension Scheme Policy Review Group.

Minerals: Planning Permission

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what changes have been made to planning guidance issued by her Department on mineral extraction since 1997. [246384]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following new or revised minerals planning guidance has been issued since 1997:

Minerals Planning Guidance Note 4 (MPG4): Revocation, Modification, Discontinuance, Prohibition and Suspension Orders—Town and Country Planning (Compensation for Restrictions on Mineral Working and Mineral Waste Depositing) Regulations 1997 (August 1997).

Minerals Planning Guidance Note 2 (MPG2): Applications, Permissions and Conditions (July 1998)/

Minerals Planning Guidance Note 3 (MPG3): Coal Mining and Colliery Spoil Disposal (March 1999).

Minerals Planning Guidance Note 5 (MPG5): Stability in Surface Mineral Workings and Tips (January 2000).

National and Regional Guidelines for Aggregates Provision in England 2001-2016 (June 2003).

Minerals Policy Statement 2 (MPS2): Controlling and Mitigating the Environmental Effects of Minerals Extraction in England, including Annexes on Dust and Noise (March 2005).

Minerals Policy Statement 1 (MPS1): Planning and Minerals (November 2006).

In addition, national planning policies set out in a number of Planning Policy Guidance Notes and Planning Policy Statements published since 1997 may also be relevant to developments involving mineral extraction. My Department has also published practice guidance to support national planning policies set out in Minerals Planning Guidance Notes. These documents are available on the Department's website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/planningandbuilding/planning/planningpolicyguidance/mineralsandwaste.

National Community Forum

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the National Community Forum's main priorities are for 2008-09; how many staff the Forum employs; and what the annual running cost of the Forum will be in (a) 2008-09 and (b) each of the two following years; and if she will make a statement. [245524]

Mr. Khan: The National Community Forum's (NCF) current work programme focuses on two main areas; 'Anchoring Resources in the Community', which looks at approaches to social enterprise within local communities, and 'Community Wellness', which is developing an understanding of healthy, sustainable communities.

The NCF is made up of members who live or work in deprived communities across England. Their direct experience ensures that there is a broad range of knowledge and understanding of how policy works on the ground. From January 2009, there are 16 members, including the chair. NCF have recently appointed an interim advisor until April 2009, to help to ensure the Forum provides timely and credible advice to Government Departments by supporting members in their discussions.

The annual budget for NCF in 2008-09 is £130,000.

Non-Domestic Rates: Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent discussions she has had with the Parliamentary Secretary to the Treasury on the subject of empty property business rates. [246048]

John Healey: The Department has no record of any representations from the Parliamentary Secretary to the Treasury in regard to empty property rates. However the Parliamentary Secretary to the Treasury has made representations to Her Majesty's Treasury in his role as Minister for the North East.

Non-Domestic Rates: Ports

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many and what proportion of new valuations of British ports for business rates by the Valuation Office Agency (a) have been completed and (b) remain incomplete. [245992]

John Healey: Initial reviews of all 55 major ports in England and Wales have now been completed. The rating list has been updated for 50 of these. In the remaining five ports, the Valuation Office notified the ratepayers of its conclusions by 28 November, inviting them to discuss the proposed changes in advance of the rating list being formally amended—which it would expect to do no later than 31 January.

The Valuation Office must continue to maintain the rating lists throughout their five-year life to reflect changes affecting properties or their manner of occupation included within ports. As changes are identified which necessitate a revision of individual assessments, port ratepayers, like as any other business ratepayer, will again be notified of the Valuation Office's intentions and invited to discuss proposed changes in advance of the rating lists being formally amended.

Travelling People: Caravan Sites

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 22 April 2008, Official Report, column 1903W, on Travelling people: council tax, what guidance has been given to local authorities on whether unauthorised Traveller sites should receive rubbish collection services. [246039]

Mr. Iain Wright: Local authorities are responsible for the collection and disposal of waste in their local area. Communities and Local Government has not produced guidance on whether unauthorised developments and encampments should receive waste collection services. However, 'Guidance on Managing Unauthorised Camping', published in 2004, gives guidance on dealing with waste and fly-tipping when managing an unauthorised encampment, including the use of Codes of Expected Behaviour.

Local authorities may want to consider whether the provision of means to enable Gypsies and Travellers on unauthorised encampments to dispose of their rubbish and waste, for an appropriate fee, is appropriate in individual circumstances. Such action was recommended by the Independent Task Group on Site Provision and Enforcement and could help to minimise costs to the authority.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Public Prosecution Service for Northern Ireland

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans the Department of Public Prosecutions in Northern Ireland has for action in civil recovery; when these will be implemented; and what budget has been set aside for such civil recovery work in (a) 2008-09 and (b) 2009-10. [243927]

Paul Goggins: This is an operational matter for the Director of Public Prosecutions. I have asked him to reply directly to the hon. Member, and will arrange for a copy of the letter to be placed in the Library of the House.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many (a) letters and (b) e-mails received by his Department had not been responded to as at 15 December 2008. [244708]

Mr. Simon: The information requested is as follows:

(a) The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of departments in replying to Members/Peers correspondence. Information relating to 2008 will be published as soon as it has been collated. The report for 2007 was published on 20 March 2008, Official Report, columns 71-74WS. Reports for earlier years are available in the Library of the House. When responding to all correspondence the Department abides by the guidance as set out in 'Handling correspondence from MPs, Lords, MEPs and Members of Devolved Assemblies' which was published by the Cabinet office in July 2005.

(b) To retrieve the information relating to emails can only be achieved at a disproportional cost.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what percentage of contractors and suppliers to (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have reported that they are compliant with the Government's security standards following publication of the report, Data Handling Procedures in Government, and the accompanying document, Cross-departmental Actions: Mandatory Minimum Action, on 25 June 2008. [245326]

Mr. Simon: (a) All of the Department's suppliers and contractors who handle personal or sensitive data comply with Government security procedures, and the Data Handling Procedures in Government report.

(b) The agencies have passed on the requirements to their contractors, and are monitoring their progress towards full compliance.

New contracts placed by the Department or its agencies will incorporate the advice issued following the Data Handling report.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many contracts (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have which allow contractors to store personal data of UK citizens overseas; for which contracts this applies; in which countries the data for each contract are held; and how many people have their data stored overseas in the case of each such contract. [245347]

Mr. Simon: The controls in place ensure that contractors do not store personal data overseas.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills when his Department appointed a senior information risk owner in accordance with the report, Data Handling Procedures in Government and the accompanying document Cross-departmental Actions: Mandatory Minimum Action; when the appointment was made; and what grade the person holds within the Department. [245365]

Mr. Simon: The Senior Information Risk Owner (SIRO) was first appointed in February 2008. The SIRO holds a Director General position.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what percentage of the IT systems in (a) his Department and (b) its agencies are fully accredited to the Government's security standards. [245389]

Mr. Simon: For systems that require accreditation according to Government's security standards:

(a) All systems (100 per cent.) fully accredited.

(b) All systems at the National Weights and Measures Laboratory are accredited. At the Intellectual Property Office, all externally facing and 3rd party provided systems are accredited. Accreditation of the internal systems is ongoing.

Departmental Marketing

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much has been spent by his Department on advertising in the last 12 months. [243717]

Mr. Simon: The Department has spent £3 million on the Student Finance Campaign for the year 2008-09.

Departmental Telephone Services

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many telephone numbers for which callers are charged at the rate applicable to 0845 numbers are used by (a) his Department and (b) its executive agencies for public access to services. [246977]

Mr. Simon: The Department does not offer any 0845 numbers.

The Department is responsible for two agencies: National Weights and Measures Laboratory and the UK Intellectual Property Office.

National Weights and Measures Laboratory does not offer any telephone numbers for which callers are charged at the rate applicable to 0845 numbers for public access to services.

UK Intellectual Property Office offers three 0845 numbers. The caller incurs a local rate charge which is set by their service provider.

Further Education: Finance

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what entitlement individuals over the age of 25 wishing to study a course at a further education college have to (a) grants and (b) income-dependent loans. [243373]

Mr. Simon: Individuals over the age of 25 studying in further education colleges can apply for an Adult Learning Grant which pays up to £30 a week for those on low incomes studying full-time for a first full Level 2 and for a first full Level 3 qualification.

There is no Government funded income contingent loan scheme available for students undertaking FE courses. Students may apply for Career Development Loan which is a commercial loan where the Department pays the interest during the period of learning. Students who wish to study on HE courses, including foundation degrees, delivered at FE colleges are eligible to be assessed for support under the HE package of maintenance grants and loans for living costs.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what advice on funding is available to individuals over the age of 25 wishing to study a course at a further education college. [243374]

Mr. Simon: Every adult in England can access free information and advice about careers, learning and work, including help about funding available for those wishing to study at a further education college, such as Adult Learning Grants, Career Development Loans and discretionary support for additional costs of learning such as child care and transport costs.

Advice and support is available by telephone or online through the national Careers Advice Service, or face to face from local nextstep services. All learners participating in LSC funded learning can also receive information and advice from their learning provider.

Higher Education: Standards

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps he plans to take to maintain the international reputation of the UK's higher education sector. [247970]

Mr. Lammy: We have a world class system of higher education in this country, with rising student numbers, high levels of student satisfaction and graduate employability, and an increasing world share of citations and high-impact research papers. Government investment in higher education is 23 per cent. higher than in 1997. That is in sharp contrast to the 36 per cent. fall in funding per student in the previous 10 years. We have also doubled investment in research.

As part of our debate on the future of higher education, we have received contributions from a range of individuals and organisations in the sector. These contributions stress the importance of internationalisation, and of ensuring that we maintain our leading position in higher education internationally.

We want to ensure that our higher education system remains world class, and we are clear that international competition will increase. To do this we need to have a long-term approach. We will publish a framework during 2009 which will set out our vision for higher education over the next 10 to 15 years. However, it will not be a rigid plan: it will be capable of being adjusted over time as the world changes, but will set a compelling vision of long-term success.

Institute for Animal Health Pirbright Laboratory

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much capital expenditure was incurred for each separate project of works at the Institute for Animal Health Pirbright Laboratory in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09 to date. [240667]

Mr. Lammy: The capital expenditure incurred for each project at the Institute for Animal Health Pirbright Laboratory from 2007-08 to date is set out in the following table.

Learning and Skills Council: Finance

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the adult Learning and Skills Council budget for (a) the North West, (b) Greater Manchester, (c) the West Midlands and Birmingham and (d) London was in the latest year for which figures are available. [247548]

Mr. Simon: The London Adult Skills budget for 2009-10 was set out in the latest Grant Letter to the Learning and Skills Council published on 18 November 2008; as £635 million.

The Adult Skills budget allocations process for 2009-10 is currently underway. This involves discussions with FE Colleges and providers, partners and other organisations which will inform final decisions. This ensures that the needs of the local communities are met and that the activity delivered supports the Council's key priorities and targets. Mark Haysom, the Council's Chief Executive, will write to the hon. Member with further information including the most up to date figures. A copy of his reply will be placed in the House Library.

Offenders

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many former prisoners are employed by his Department; and what his Department's policy is on employing former prisoners. [246341]

Mr. Simon: The Department undertakes employment history, Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) and Disclosure Scotland checks as appropriate. If these checks identify any issues around people with criminal records then suitability for employment is considered with the Department's interest paramount. In addition, all individuals recruited to a regulated post, or to a post where they have access to personal or sensitive data about children or vulnerable adults are subject to an enhanced CRB check.

Although the information is used as part of the recruitment process, we do not then transfer any details on criminal records to the central personnel record and as such the information requested could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many staff in his Department left under (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 2005-06; how many of them in each case were paid (i) up to £25,000, (ii) £25,001 to £50,000, (iii) £50,001 to £75,000, (iv) £75,001 to £100,000 and (v) over £100,000 in the year before they left; and how much (A) was spent in each of those years and (B) is planned to be spent on such schemes in (1) 2008-09 and (2) 2009-10 by (y) his Department and its predecessor and (z) each of his Department's agencies. [242252]

Mr. Simon: The Department was created in 28 June 2007. Since its inception, there were seven early releases in 2007-08, at a total cost of £512,000 and two in 2008-09 at a total cost of £90,000. There are currently no early releases planned for 2009-10. Information related to costs is not available in the form requested and could be obtain only at disproportionate cost.

The Department has two agencies. The National Weights and Measures Laboratory has not had any early releases during the period requested and none are planned during 2009-10. However, UK-IPO has had early releases. Since 2005-06, 58 people have left under voluntary exit schemes, including four to 31 October 2008 in 2008-09. The breakdown of the value of payments was (i) 24, (ii) 17, (iii) 6, (iv) 2 (v) 9.

On an accruals basis there were 53 departures for 2005-06 costing £2,571,000, none in 2006-07 and one in 2007-08 at £55,000. Approximately 89 are expected in 2008-09 at an estimated cost of £6,865,000. There are currently no early releases planned for 2009-10. Information related to costs is not available in the form requested and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Students: Finance

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much the average maintenance grant payment to eligible undergraduate students was in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07 and (c) 2007-08. [247130]

Mr. Lammy: The information requested is as follows:

Average Higher Education Grant and Maintenance Grant (£)[1]

	2005/06	2006/07	England 2007/08
Higher Education Grant[2]	870	890	890
Maintenance Grant[3]	n/a	2,010	2,090

[1] Figures rounded to nearest £10.
[2] Average amount for those awarded a Higher Education Grant.
[3] Average amount for those awarded a Maintenance Grant.

The Maintenance Grant for living costs was introduced in 2006/07, replacing the Higher Education Grant for new entrants.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what procedures are in place for informing (a) students and (b) recent graduates about the change to student loan interest rates implemented on 5 December 2008. [247131]

Mr. Lammy: The Student Loans Company (SLC) published details on the change to student loan interest rates implemented on 5 December 2008 on their website and in national newspapers. Borrowers receive details of new interest rates in their statement each year from the SLC. Information on the interest rate change was also published on the Directgov website.

Following the latest reduction in the Bank of England base rate by the Monetary Policy Committee on 8 January 2009, all the specified banks[1] have now reduced their base rates to 1.5 per cent. The SLC has therefore now reduced the interest rate for income contingent loans from 3 per cent. to 2.5 per cent. with effect from 9 January 2009 until further notice. The SLC has accordingly published this information on their website and in national newspapers.

The interest rate for loans taken out before 1/9/98 (known as "mortgage style loans") is not affected as these loans are governed by different legislation.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Alcoholic Drinks: Sales

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent discussions he has had with pubcos on their policy in providing discounts on beer sold to (a) traditional pubs and (b) supermarkets. [247159]

Mr. Thomas [holding answer 14 January 2009]: I have not met with Pubcos to discuss their pricing policies. This is a commercial matter for the businesses concerned. Ensuring that markets operate freely and fairly is a matter for the independent competition authorities, rather than for Government. The Office of Fair Trading (OFT) has the powers to investigate and take action if companies are abusing a dominant position in a market or behaving anti-competitively, including referral to the Competition Commission.

Electric Cables

Chris Huhne: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the (a) volume and (b) monetary value was of imports to the UK of fire-resistant electric cable from (i) the EU, (ii) non EU countries and (iii) China and India in each of the last five years. [247117]

Mr. Thomas: The information requested is not available because the system of classification used to record trade does not separately identify fire-resistant electric cable.

The UK's imports of all types of electrical wire, cable and other conductors, are as follows:

2003
Total imports	1,140	325,039

Electronic Equipment: Waste Disposal

Mrs McIntosh: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent discussions his Department has had with the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on implementation of the Waste Electrical and Electronic Waste Directive; with what outcomes; and if he will make a statement. [242801]

Ian Pearson: This Department has worked consistently with the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) on the implementation of the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment (WEEE) Directive. DEFRA have more recently played a key role in the review of the UK WEEE system announced in July 2008. We will continue to work closely with DEFRA, as the UK WEEE system matures, to ensure that we maximise the separate collection of WEEE within the UK and reach the highest standards of treatment and reprocessing.

Non-profit Making Associations

Chris Ruane: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many social enterprises there are in each region (a) in total and (b) per 10,000 population. [244861]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

The most recent figures suggest that there are at least 55,000 social enterprises in the UK. Social enterprises are not, however, defined by a particular legal form and as a result are not required to register with any one body. Information on the number of social enterprises in each region is, therefore, unavailable. Based on the most recent estimates, there are about 11 social enterprises per 10,000 adult population (over 16 years).

Official Visits: Russia

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 471W, on official visits: Russia, if he will place in the Library the list of the Secretary of State's engagements during his visit to Russia in October 2008. [246762]

Mr. Thomas: A copy of the list of my noble Friend the Secretary of State's engagements during his visit to Russia in October 2008 will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Overseas Trade: Libya

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the value of British (a) exports to and (b) imports from Libya was in each of the last five years. [247221]

Mr. Thomas: Data on recorded trade in goods with Libya are shown in the following table:

£ million

	UK export of goods to Libya	UK import of goods from Libya
2003	241	202

Estimates of trade in services are not available for the full five years. ONS data published in the UK Balance of Payments Pink Book 2008 were:

£ million

	UK exports of services to Libya	UK imports of service from Libya
2006	167	56

Small Businesses: South East

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many small and medium-sized enterprises there were in (a) Southampton, (b) Test Valley Borough, (c) Eastleigh Borough and (d) Romsey constituency in each of the last five years. [243917]

Ian Pearson: Estimates of the number of small to medium-sized enterprises are not available below the regional level in each of the last five years.

Only data for businesses of all sizes registered for VAT are published by BERR. It is estimated that the majority (97.9 per cent.) of these will be small (with fewer than 50 employees) and a further 1.7 per cent. will be medium-sized (with 50 to 249 employees).

The number of businesses registered for VAT in Southampton Unitary Authority, Test Valley and Eastleigh local authorities and Romsey constituency for the start of 2004 to the start of 2008 is shown in the following table.

Start of year stock of VAT-registered businesses, 2004-08

	2004	2005	2006	2007	2008
Southampton Unitary Authority	4,770	4,845	4,945	4,990	5,070

The number of VAT-registered businesses in Romsey parliamentary constituency rose from 3,575 at the start of 2004 to 3,755 at the start of 2008.

VAT registrations do not capture all business activity. Businesses are unlikely to be registered if they fall below the compulsory VAT threshold, which was £64,000 at the start of 2007. Only 1.96 million out of 4.7 million UK enterprises (42 per cent.) were registered for VAT at the start of 2007.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many businesses were registered for VAT in North West Cambridgeshire in each year since 1997. [242877]

VAT registrations do not capture all business activity. Businesses are unlikely to be registered if they fall below the compulsory VAT threshold, which was £64,000 at the start of 2007. Only 1.96 million out of 4.7 million UK enterprises (42 per cent.) were registered for VAT at the start of 2007.

VAT: Essex

Bob Spink: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many businesses were registered for VAT in (a) Castle Point constituency and (b) Essex in each of the last five years. [243678]

Ian Pearson: The number of businesses registered for VAT in Castle Point constituency and in Essex for the past five years is shown in the following table.

The number of VAT-registered businesses in Castle Point constituency rose from 2,440 at the start of 2004 to 2,685 at the start of 2008—a rise of 10 per cent., compared with a rise of 9 per cent. in both Essex and across the whole of the UK.

VAT registrations do not capture all business activity. Businesses are unlikely to be registered if they fall below the compulsory VAT threshold, which was £64,000 at the start of 2007. Only 1.96 million out of 4.7 million UK enterprises (42 per cent.) were registered for VAT at the start of 2007.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Shop Theft: Appeals of Sentence

7. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Solicitor-General how many appeals against sentences imposed in shop theft cases where the Crown Prosecution Service was the prosecuting body have been made in each of the last three years. [247662]

The Solicitor-General: While Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) records include some information about cases proceeding to appeal, it is not possible separately to identify cases of theft from shops. To obtain this information, by reference to individual case files, would incur disproportionate cost (Code of Practice on Access to Government Information, part 2, clause 9).

Both the Office for Criminal Justice Reform and the Ministry of Justice have confirmed that the information is not available from their departmental records.

Mortgage Fraud

8. Rob Marris: To ask the Solicitor-General what steps she is taking to prevent mortgage fraud. [247663]

The Solicitor-General: In November, the Attorney-General's new agency, the National Fraud Strategic Authority, published a national action plan to bring together the public and private sectors to tackle mortgage fraud.

Fraud: Small and Medium-sized Companies

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Solicitor-General when she next expects to meet representatives of small business organisations to discuss measures to combat serious fraud schemes aimed at small and medium-sized enterprises. [247661]

The Solicitor-General: I have contact with and receive representations from small business organisations. Reducing the harm caused by fraud to individuals and businesses of all sizes is a key priority for the NFSA. The Authority will be working with private and public sector contacts to develop and deliver the National Fraud Strategy.

The development of the National Fraud Reporting Centre will be to perceive the nature of frauds as they develop. It will put together intelligence packages that it will then distribute to try to help businesses to spot the fraud before it happens, and to disrupt it in order to ensure that people are well informed of the tactics used. The SFO investigates serious and/or complex fraud against whomever it is aimed.

I recognise the particular need to do what we can to support small and medium-sized enterprises in the current economic climate.

Crown Prosecution Service

Rob Marris: To ask the Solicitor-General in respect of how many cases the Crown Prosecution Service in England and Wales (a) advised the police, (b) discontinued after charge but before trial and (c) proceeded to trial in (i) 2005, (ii) 2006 and (iii) 2007. [243064]

The Solicitor-General: The following table shows at (a) the number of defendants in respect of whom the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) advised the police or took a pre-charge decision in each of the three years in question.

The table also shows the number of defendants prosecuted by the CPS, together with the outcome of proceedings. These cases include both those charged or summonsed by the police, and those in which a pre-charge decision to charge was made by the CPS. Case outcomes include at (b) the number and proportion of defendants whose case was dropped by the CPS before evidence was heard by a court, including those formally discontinued in advance of a hearing. Shown at (c) are the number and proportion which proceeded to a trial, together with the outcome of the trial. Finally, the table shows the number and proportion of defendants whose case resulted in a conviction (including guilty pleas as well as convictions after trial) and unsuccessful outcomes, representing all outcomes other than a conviction.

[1] Administrative finalisations comprise outcomes where the defendant cannot be traced, or has died, or been found unfit to plead.
[2] Prosecutions dropped are all proceedings halted before evidence is heard.
[3] Trials comprise cases where the defendant pleaded not guilty and evidence was heard by the court.

Rob Marris: To ask the Solicitor-General what the average time taken by Crown Prosecution Service lawyers in England and Wales (a) preparing a case for trial and (b) attending at trial was in (i) 2005, (ii) 2006 and (iii) 2007. [243065]

The Solicitor-General: The Crown Prosecution Service maintains no central record of the time committed by lawyers to the preparation of cases for trial or to trial attendance. The information is not recorded on individual case files.

Human Trafficking: Prosecutions

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Solicitor-General what progress the Crown Prosecution Service has made in prosecuting those engaged in human trafficking. [247660]

The Solicitor-General: The Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) is working to improve the number of prosecutions, and the number of offences prosecuted under human trafficking legislation is increasing year on year. The number of prosecutions should also increase further as a result of our ratification of the Council of Europe Convention on Action against Trafficking in Human Beings in December 2008. The Convention will assist investigations and provide support for victims of trafficking in the course of criminal proceedings.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Solicitor-General how many people have been prosecuted by the Crown Prosecution Service for offences relating to the trafficking of people into the UK for sexual exploitation since 2003. [247798]

The Solicitor-General: The records held at discrete offence level by the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) identify the number of offences of trafficking into the United Kingdom for sexual exploitation in which a prosecution commenced, rather than the number of defendants prosecuted. During the four years for which figures are available the number of these offences was as follows:

	Number
2005	9
2006	7
2007	30

HEALTH

Arthritis: Drugs

Mrs. Riordan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will instruct the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to take account of the effects on society and on public expenditure when evaluating treatments of rheumatoid arthritis which enable patients to continue to work or to return to work. [247296]

Dawn Primarolo: The process by which the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) appraises drugs and treatments is a matter for the institute. NICE undertakes a wide consultation, on a regular basis, on the methods and processes in follows in health technology appraisal. The latest guidance to its methodologies was published on 23 June 2008 and details can be found on NICE's website at:

www.nice.org.uk

The methodology guidance NICE uses takes account of the impact of treatments on publicly-funded social care costs and, where relevant, can look at health-related benefits to carers. NICE can also conduct sensitivity analyses to expose potentially significant impacts on other areas of public spending.

Mrs. Riordan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the proportion of rheumatoid arthritis patients who fulfil the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence requirements for anti-TNF treatment but who do not receive anti-TNF treatment. [247297]

Dawn Primarolo: We have made no estimate of the number of people with rheumatoid arthritis meeting the National Institute for Clinical Excellence guidelines who are not receiving anti-TNF treatment.

Blood: Contamination

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many haemophiliacs known to have been infected with HIV through contaminated blood products administered to them under NHS treatment are still alive; and if he will make a statement. [247048]

Dawn Primarolo: The number of haemophiliacs known to still be alive after being infected with HIV through contaminated blood products administered to them under national health service treatment is 345. In addition, there is a very small number of women with bleeding disorders still alive who have acquired HIV through this route.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department is planning to respond to the forthcoming report by Lord Archer on contaminated blood and blood products and to its specific recommendations; and if he will make a statement. [247054]

Dawn Primarolo: We await Lord Archer's report with interest. We will decide whether and how the Department may need to respond when the report is available.

Cancer: Drugs

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects the National Cancer Director to publish his evaluation of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence approved cancer drug usage. [247106]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Cancer Director, Professor Mike Richards, has undertaken his third analysis of usage of cancer drugs approved by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence. The findings were made available in chapter 4 of the first report of the Cancer Reform Strategy, "Cancer Reform Strategy: Maintaining momentum, building for the future—first annual report", published on 1 December 2008. This document has already been placed in the Library.

Cancer: Medical Treatments

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) which primary care trusts responded to the survey of exceptional funding requests described in appendix 1 of the report to him by the National Cancer Director, Improving access to medicines for NHS patients, published on 4 November 2008; and, for each primary care trust, what the (a) number of exceptional circumstances requests made in the last 12 months was, (b) number of exceptional circumstances requests made for cancer treatment in the last 12 months was, (c) proportion of all exceptional circumstances requests made in the last 12 months which were approved was and (d) proportion of all exceptional circumstances requests made in the last 12 months for cancer treatments which were approved was; [245619]

(2) with reference to the answer of 24 November 2008, Official Report, columns 927-28W, on NHS: drugs, which primary care trusts responded (a) in full and (b) in part to the Department of Health survey on exceptional funding procedures; and if he will place in the Library copies of all responses. [245648]

Alan Johnson: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 24 November 2008, Official Report, columns 927-28W.

Departmental Billing

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of suppliers his Department has paid within 10 days of invoice in the last three months. [247880]

Mr. Bradshaw: In accordance with directives issued by the Department of Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, Government Departments do not measure payment performance against the dates that appear on invoices, but rather against the date on which invoices are received at the address quoted on purchase orders or similar documents. This is also in line with the requirements of the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1998.

The Department paid 93.27 per cent. of its suppliers within 10 days of the receipt of an invoice at our nominated address during the period from 1 October 2008 to 31 December 2008.

Food: Safety

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the estimated cost is of implementing the national Scores on the Doors scheme over the next three years. [247540]

Dawn Primarolo: The national Scores on the Doors (SotD) schemes (one for England, Wales and Northern Ireland and one for Scotland) are being established by the Food Standards Agency (FSA).

The most significant costs of implementing the SotD schemes are those of the FSA. These costs are for providing support to local authorities operating the scheme, a communications strategy, and for establishing a web-based information technology platform for disseminating scores to consumers. These costs are estimated to be between £3 million and £5.7 million over the first three years.

Costs for local authorities and the food industry will depend on the number of local authorities that choose to implement the SotD schemes. For businesses covered, there will be a one-off cost for familiarisation which is estimated at £16 per business. For local authorities there will be time costs associated with the FSA-funded training that are estimated at £125 per officer trained. There will also be annual costs per authority of an estimated £3,000 for printing and issuing of certificates, and an estimated £600 for handling appeals. There may also be costs for re-inspection or re-visits for the purposes of re-scoring for which local authorities may charge, along with costs associated with any legal challenge.

It is estimated that there will be an economic saving of around £12.3 million over a three year period associated with a one per cent, decrease in food-borne illness resulting from operation of the SotD schemes.

Health Education

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress he has made in developing further indicators of success in achieving the new ambition on healthy weight. [247110]

Dawn Primarolo: Progress on tackling obesity and overweight will be measured against data on Body Mass Index, included in the Health Survey for England and the National Child Measurement Programme.

In addition, we are identifying 'proxy indicators' to assist us in monitoring national progress against the public service agreement trajectory. These will be set out in the Healthy Weight, Healthy Lives annual report this spring.

Health Services: Disadvantaged

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress he has made towards meeting the target to reduce health inequalities by 10 per cent. by 2010; and if he will make a statement. [246993]

Dawn Primarolo: The national health inequalities public service agreement target (PSA) aims to reduce inequalities in health by 10 per cent. by 2010, as measured by infant mortality (by socio-economic group) and life expectancy at birth (by geographical area).

Since the 1997-99 baseline the infant mortality gap has widened, and latest 2005-07 data show the infant mortality rate among the Routine and Manual group was 16 per cent. higher than in the total population. However, the gap has narrowed in recent years and if the rate observed since 2002-04 continues, the infant mortality element of target will be met.

Life expectancy in England and in the Spearhead Group (the 70 local authority areas with the worst health and deprivation indicators, and the 62 primary care trusts mapping to them, and a focus of action for this element of the target) is at record levels. If the rest of England still had the life expectancy it had in 1995-97 (the target baseline), Spearhead areas would not just have narrowed the gap by 10 per cent., they would have closed it completely. However, the increase in Spearhead areas is not as great as in non-Spearheads so the gap has not narrowed. The latest 2005-07 data show that the percentage gap in life expectancy between the Spearhead Group and the England average has increased to 4 per cent. above baseline for men and 11 per cent. above baseline for women (the target is a 10 per cent. narrowing for both).

The health inequalities target was deliberately set to be ambitious. Some progress has been made. However, we acknowledge that more remains to be done. "Health Inequalities: Progress and Next Steps" (June 2008), a copy has already been placed in the Library, reaffirmed our commitment to tackling inequalities, and meeting this PSA target. Our focus now is to provide tailored, intensive, support to the Spearhead areas, and areas with high infant mortality, including:

an additional £34 million in spending for inequalities programmes in 2008-09;

investing more in the National Support Team for health inequalities to reach all Spearheads by summer 2009, enhancing the National Support Team for Tobacco Control, and establishing new National Support Teams for Alcohol and Infant Mortality; and support to local partners for planning and commissioning of services through the "Health Inequalities Intervention Tool".

Influenza: Vaccination

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the proportion of (a) people aged over 65, (b) people in other at risk groups, (c) health care workers and (d) poultry workers who received the seasonal influenza immunisation in each of the last five winters. [245639]

Dawn Primarolo: Flu vaccination data are in the following table.

Percentage

	People aged 65 and over	People in clinical at-risk groups	Health care workers	Poultry workers
2007-08	74	45	13.4	14.2
2006-07	74	42	14	13.4
2005-06	75	48	19.4	[1]—
2004-05	71	40	15.4	[1]—
2003-04	71	[1]—	14.8	[1]—

[1] Those years when data was not collected or policy was not in place.

England has one of the best uptake rates of the flu jab in Europe for those aged 65 and over.

This year the Department has reminded health professionals of the importance of protecting younger patients in other risk groups and we will look carefully at the results when final vaccine uptake data for 2008-09 is available.

In 2008 research was carried out with adults in at-risk groups. It identified that there are a number of challenges to improving vaccine uptake in younger at-risk groups and that because the use of the term 'flu' and 'cold' had become almost interchangeable, flu was not regarded as a serious concern.

The Department is planning to introduce a new flu vaccination advertising campaign for the 2009-10 flu season. One of the aims of the new advertising approach is to improve targeting of the message to people aged under 65 with long-term conditions, while maintaining uptake rates among those aged 65 and over. These research findings are being fed into the development of the new campaign.

Uptake among health care workers is low in most developed countries and this is a concern that is not specific to the UK. To address low uptake in health care workers, the Department held a flu conference in June 2008 for flu leads working in PCTs and also in occupational health. The conference focused on sharing ideas for improving vaccine uptake among health professionals.

We also launched a new flu vaccine leaflet for health care workers and are currently working on a communications strategy that will provide support to occupational health departments in delivering all occupational health vaccinations, because immunising health care workers with the flu vaccine is the responsibility of the employer.

The poultry workers programme has a slightly different focus to the other seasonal flu programmes. Its purpose is to reduce the risk of a poultry worker being exposed to an avian flu virus at the same time as they were infected with seasonal flu virus. It is theoretically possible that the two viruses could mix to produce a new strain of flu virus which could possibly lead to a pandemic. This programme is primarily aimed at reducing the risk of a pandemic virus emerging in this country.

Local Area Agreements

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made in meeting the targets set by local area agreements to which Ministers in his Department have subscribed; and if he will make a statement. [245739]

Phil Hope: 150 local area agreements (LAAs) covering priorities in every locality in England from 2008-09 to 2010-11 were agreed in June 2008. It is too early to make an assessment of progress against targets in the LAAs but Government offices for the regions will take stock of emerging findings early in 2009. From April 2009, the comprehensive area assessment (CAA) will bring together assessments of performance across each local area and these may apply to anything done by local authorities acting alone or in partnership. It will place particular emphasis on delivery against identified LAA priorities for the local area. The first findings under CAA are likely to be reported in autumn 2009. Data which is used to measure the performance of different places with respect to key Government targets will be available at:

http://www.fti.communities.gov.uk/fti/Welcome.aspx

Individual targets were monitored by Government offices for the regions and strategic health authorities but no comprehensive assessment was made against the health targets in the previous rounds of LAAs in place since 2005-06. To do an assessment of the thousands of health-related targets in these LAAs would involve a disproportionate cost to the Department.

Medical Treatment (Prevention of Euthanasia) Bill 1999-2000

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what files his Department holds on the Medical Treatment (Prevention of Euthanasia) Bill of Session 1999-2000; and if he will make a statement. [247749]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department holds one file in respect of the Medical Treatment (Prevention of Euthanasia) Bill of the 1999-2000 session. The file is entitled "Withdrawing and Withholding Medical Treatment; Medical Treatment (Prevention of Euthanasia) Bill" and extends to four volumes.

Mental Health Services

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent progress has been made in the development of a public mental health framework for creating well-being; and if he will make a statement. [240719]

Phil Hope: We expect to publish a public mental health framework early in 2009. The framework is intended to provide health care commissioners, providers and a wider cross-governmental audience with evidence-based advice on promoting good mental health and well-being.

Mental Health Services: Young People

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the Government's undertaking that by November 2008 no child under the age of 16 years would be treated on an adult psychiatric ward has been met. [245752]

Ann Keen: The latest available figures, for July to September 2008, show children and young people under 16 spent only four bed days on adult psychiatric wards, the lowest level since collection started in 2005. This supercedes the figure given in reply to the hon. Member for North Norfolk (Norman Lamb) on 19 November 2008, Official Report, column 528W, when I regret as a result of data error, five bed days were originally reported for this quarter.

Figures for October to December 2008 will not be available until February 2009.

MMR Vaccine

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department plans to take to increase the effectiveness of the MMR vaccination catch-up programme. [247013]

Dawn Primarolo: Since we launched the measles, mumps and rubella (MMR) vaccination catch-up programme in August 2008, we have provided extra funding to primary care trusts (PCTs), sourced additional supplies of vaccine and provided extra technical support to general practitioners to help them identify children who have not received the MMR vaccine.

We also held a meeting of PCT immunisation co-ordinators to emphasise the importance of reducing measles cases through improving vaccination uptake.

A public relations campaign is planned to be implemented and rolled out shortly. Key messages will include how serious and infectious measles is and how it is never too late to have the MMR vaccine. A measles leaflet is already available which can be viewed and downloaded from:

www.immunisation.nhs.uk/Vaccines/MMR/Resources/MMR_catchup_programme

A copy of the leaflet has been placed in the Library.

NHS: Public Participation

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will undertake an investigation of the public interest implications of local authorities withholding money for administrative purposes from LINKs budgets. [247680]

Ann Keen: We have no plans to do so.

In line with wider Government policy to encourage greater local accountability, funding to support the establishment and operation of local involvement networks (LINks) has been given to local authorities as part of the annual area based grant. Local authorities with social services responsibilities are under a duty (set out in the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act, 2007) to make arrangements for the activities of LINks to be carried on in their area. It is for each local authority to decide how to use the allocated funding to fulfil this duty.

Personal Health Budgets

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding streams he plans to include in the personal health budgets due to be piloted from 2009; and if he will make a statement. [247735]

Mr. Bradshaw: The focus of the pilots will be the use of national health service funds.

Where appropriate, we hope personal health budgets will align with personal budgets for those eligible for social care so that the budget appears as seamless as possible to the individual using health and social care services, and to support a holistic approach to the planning of care and support. One of the goals of piloting personal health budgets is to understand how this could work and we hope local authorities and primary care trusts will work closely together on this issue.

The Government will shortly be launching the personal health budget programme formally, seeking expressions of interest in the pilots and local proposals for how personal budgets could work.

Shingles

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate has been made of the cost to the NHS of treating shingles and post herpetic neuralgia in people over 50 years of age in the most recent period for which figures are available. [247535]

Dawn Primarolo: The Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (JCVI) is currently in the process of estimating the cost of treating shingles and post herpetic neuralgia (PHN) within the wider context of the benefits of shingles vaccination, including whether a vaccination programme would be cost effective. It will provide advice in due course.

Sunscreens: VAT

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what discussions he has had with the Treasury on the effects on the level of use of sun protection products for (a) children and (b) adults of the rate of value added tax charged on such products; [247083]

(2) what guidance his Department issues to (a) parents in respect of their children and (b) adults on the use of sun protection lotions; and if he will make a statement. [247084]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government keep taxes under review and introduce reduced VAT rates only where they offer the best targeted and most cost-effective support for its objectives. The Government also work in partnership with Cancer Research UK, which runs SunSmart, the national skin cancer prevention and sun protection campaign, on behalf of the UK Health Departments. The campaign aims to raise awareness and provide information on the risks to health related to ultraviolet radiation exposure.

To enjoy the sun safely, the SunSmart code recommends:

S pend time in the shade between 11 and 3;

M ake sure you never burn;

A im to cover up with a hat, t-shirt and sunglasses;

R emember to take extra care with children; and

T hen use factor 15+ sunscreen or higher.

Further information about sunscreen advice is available on the Cancer Research UK website at:

http://info.cancerresearchuk.org/healthyliving/sunsmart/staysafe/sunscreen/

Tobacco: Children

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent representations he has received on making the purchase of cigarettes under age a criminal offence; and if he will make a statement. [248645]

Dawn Primarolo: We published a report on the "Consultation on the future of tobacco control" on 9 December last year. A copy has already been placed in the Library. This summarised responses, and noted that some respondents suggested there should be new offences for those underage who try to buy tobacco, or who smoke in public.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Children: Maintenance

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether the two major projects on child maintenance debt referred to by the Comptroller and Auditor General in July 2008 have now been completed; what their main findings were; and if he will place in the Library copies of each project. [241560]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 9 December 2008]: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance system. I have therefore asked the Child Maintenance Commissioner to write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty;

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, whether the two major projects on child maintenance debt referred to by the Comptroller and Auditor General in July 2008 have now been completed; what their main findings were; and if he will place in the Library copies of each project. [241560]

In response to the annual audit of its client funds accounts the Child Support Agency commissioned PricewaterhouseCoopers to lead two reviews of how the Agency reported child maintenance debt in its Annual Report and Accounts. The first review concerned the accuracy of the reported debt balance and the associated receipts and payments. The second review concerned the collectability of the child maintenance debt balance as reported in the Agency's Annual Report and Accounts.

The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission, which is now responsible for the Child Support Agency has yet to receive the final reports. The Commission expects to be in a position to make the outcome of these reports available in the first quarter of the New Year.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Habitual Residence Test

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many British citizens did not pass the habitual residency test in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [241561]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 9 December 2008]: In the 12 months to the end of November 2008, 2,948 habitual residence tests were failed by British nationals.

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking how many (a) fixed term temporary staff and (b) casual temporary staff Jobcentre Plus employs. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

As at November 2008 Jobcentre Plus employed 1443 full time equivalent fixed term staff and 1336 full time equivalent casual temporary staff. The Office of National Statistics criteria define those staff on a fixed term contract of less than 12 months as temporary and those on a contract over 12 months as permanent. Therefore, of the 1443 fixed term appointments, 1108 are defined as temporary and 335 as permanent.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what performance targets have been set to measure the quality of service given to members of the public calling Jobcentre Plus helplines; and if he will make a statement. [245448]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what performance targets have been set to measure the quality of service given to members of the public calling Jobcentre Plus helplines; and if he will make a statement. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Contact Centres are measured against a range of internal performance indicators which support and underpin the Jobcentre Plus targets. All Contact Centre Customer Service Agents have key work objectives which are put in place to support, contribute and feed into the achievement of the following six national Jobcentre Plus targets:

Job Outcome Target—This is the measure of our success in helping people in to work. It is based on an automated reporting system, which reports movements into work and off benefit by matching Jobcentre Plus and HMRC data.

Customer Service Target—This measures Jobcentre Plus' performance in meeting the standards and commitments set out in the organisation's customer and employer charters.

Monetary Value of Fraud and Error—Contact Centre Directorate has a direct impact on this target by taking appropriate action when fraud is suspected during interaction with the customer and more specifically through the referrals that are generated from calls to the National Benefit Fraud Hotline.

Average Actual Clearance Times—This is measured through the processing of claims within specified average actual clearance times, for Incapacity Benefit, Income Support and Jobseeker's Allowance—18 days, 11 days and 12 days respectively.

Employer Engagement Target—This is measured by "mystery shopper" calls made by an independent organisation and is a measure for professionalism and information provided over the phone.

Interventions Delivery Target—This is a measure of the efficiency of Jobcentre Plus in booking customers in for work-focused interviews within set timescales to provide effective employment support and advice.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the policy of Jobcentre Plus is on the use of recorded messages on helplines used by members of the public. [245453]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking, what the policy of Jobcentre Plus is on the use of recorded messages on helplines used by members of the public. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus has standard messages on all its 0845 and 0800 numbers that conform to recognised business telecom practices. This ensures that messages are coherent and that there is consistency in greeting—which includes information to customers concerning call costs and why calls are monitored and recorded, whilst taking into account customers with accessibility and diversity needs. Messages are kept as short as possible, while ensuring customers are directed to the most suitable source of help for their needs.

Notes:
1. Individuals and decisions based figures are rounded to the nearest 10. Totals may not sum due to rounding.
2. The most recent adverse sanction is shown for each individual.
3. Figures include all individuals who have had all or just part of their JSA payments sanctioned or withdrawn.
4. Varied length sanctions are sanctions of between one week and 26 weeks imposed for leaving employment voluntarily without just cause, refusing employment without good cause, or losing employment through misconduct. The actual period in each case is at the discretion of the Adjudication Officer who makes the decision.
5. Fixed length sanctions are sanctions of two weeks (four weeks if repeated within 12 months, and 26 weeks if already received a four week sanction within last 12 months) imposed for refusal, without good cause, to attend an employment programme or carry out a Jobseeker's direction. Payment of benefit continues in full pending the Adjudication Officer's decision on a sanction question.
6. Entitlement sanctions apply to questions on which entitlement to JSA depends. For example, if there is doubt around whether the Jobseeker's agreement (JSAg) is suitable, whether they are actively looking for work or making themselves available for work. In most cases payment of JSA will be suspended by benefit processing until the doubt is resolved.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what his Department's projections of the number of jobseeker's allowance claimants are for each month of the next three years; and if he will make a statement; [244140]

(2) what his Department's latest projections are for (a) unemployment and (b) claimant count in each month in each of the next three years, (i) in total and (ii) broken down by the lowest possible geographical area for which projections are available. [246630]

Mr. McNulty: The Government do not publish forecasts of unemployment, on either an ILO or jobseeker's allowance claimant count basis, but the jobseeker's allowance expenditure forecast is based on the planning assumption published by HM Treasury in the pre-Budget report.

Notes:

1. The figures quoted in the pre-Budget report are seasonally adjusted UK Claimant unemployment. This is a cautious assumption based on the average of external forecasts and is not the Treasury's economic forecast.

2. The pre-Budget report 2008 assumption can also be found at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/d/pbr08_annexb_262.pdf

(p188. Table B1).

3. The planning assumption is used for budgetary planning at a national level, and is not disaggregated into sub-national areas.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (a) how much was spent on working-age recipients of jobseeker's allowance and (b) income support in each of the last 10 years. [246722]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested can be found in the annual Department for Work and Pensions Departmental Reports since 2004, copies of which are available in the Library.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many unprocessed jobseeker's allowance claims there were in each of the last six months, broken down by (a) region and (b) Jobcentre Plus district; what the average claim processing time was in each case; and if he will make a statement. [246903]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking how many unprocessed Jobseeker's Allowance claims there were in each of the last six months, broken down by region and Jobcentre Plus district and what the average claim processing time was in each case. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus calculates the number of unprocessed Jobseeker's Allowance claims on a monthly basis by carrying out a count across the benefit processing system on the last working day of the month. On any given day a small number of claims will be in transit between offices, so the count will slightly understate the total number of unprocessed claims.

The target for Jobseeker's Allowance Average Actual Clearance Time (AACT) is 11.5 days. This is calculated from the customer's initial date of contact to the date a decision is made on their claim. Our benefit processing system calculates the AACT by taking each claim's clearance time using the dates as described and calculates an average across the volume of claims processed.

A copy of the latest available information has been placed in the Library. Data is available to Benefit Delivery Centre level and I have also given a national figure. This data has not been available by Jobcentre Plus district level since April 2006.

Personal Injury: Compensation

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) on how many occasions the Compensation Recovery Unit (CRU) took action (a) against insurance companies who failed to report settlement of personal injury claims to the CRU and (b) to recover benefits from insurance companies in (i) 2005, (ii) 2006 and (iii) 2007; [243062]

(2) in how many personal injury cases the Compensation Recovery Unit (CRU) identified that insurance companies had failed to report settlement of a claim to the CRU in (a) 2005, (b) 2006 and (c) 2007; [243063]

(3) what steps the Compensation Recovery Unit has taken to ensure that insurance companies report promptly all personal injury claims which are settled (a) out of court, (b) in court by negotiation and (c) by judgment. [243066]

Kitty Ussher: The Compensation Recovery Unit have not identified any cases where insurance companies failed to report settlement of a claim. The Social Security Administration Act 1992 Section 110, gives DWP inspectors the right to examine the records of compensators and employers to verify that they are complying fully with the provisions of the Social Security (Recovery of Benefits) Act 1997. We work closely with the Association of British Insurers and other insurance associations and we scrutinise claims. There has been nothing to date to indicate enforcement action is required on compliance, although we continue to monitor the position.

Post Office Card Account: Contracts

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his latest estimate is of the cost to his Department of reimbursing participants in the Post Office Card Account tendering process for their reasonable bid costs. [248004]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave to the hon. Member for Huntingdon (Mr. Djanogly) on 10 December 2008, Official Report, column 105W.

Poverty: Cancer

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what research his Department has (a) undertaken and (b) evaluated on the number of cancer patients in poverty; and if he will make a statement. [245069]

Kitty Ussher: The information requested is not available.

Our poverty statistics, published in the Households Below Average Income series, do not allow for a breakdown by illness type. Information is therefore not available for the number of cancer patients living in low income.

Poverty: Children

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his Department's latest estimate is of the number of disabled children living below the poverty line in (a) the UK, (b) Wales, (c) Scotland and (d) England in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [241195]

Figures for Scotland and Wales are not available due to sample size volatility, while data for the United Kingdom are only available from 2002-03. Figures for Great Britain are available for earlier years and have been provided.

n/a = Not available.

Notes:

1. These statistics are based on households below average income data which is sourced from the Family Resources Survey.
2. Small differences should be treated with caution as these will be affected by sampling error and variability in non-response.
3. The reference period for households below average income figures is single financial years.
4. The income measures used to derive the estimates shown employ the same methodology as the Department for Work and Pensions publication 'Households Below Average Income' series, which uses disposable household income, adjusted (or "equivalised") for household size and composition, as an income measure as a proxy for standard of living. Median incomes are used as the national average in the publication.
5. The figures are based on OECD equivalisation factors.
6. Figures have been presented on a before housing costs basis. For before housing costs, housing costs (such as rent, water rates, mortgage interest payments, structural insurance payments and ground rent and service charges) are not deducted from income, while for after housing costs they are.
7. Numbers of disabled children in low-income households have been rounded to the nearest 100,000 children.
8. The disability definition up to 2001-02 defines disability as having a long-term illness, disability or infirmity that limits the activity of the individual in some way. This definition changed from 2002-03 to be more in line with the Disability Discrimination Act's definition of disability which defines disability as having a long-term illness, disability or infirmity that leads to a significant difficulty with one or more areas of the individual's life. The change in the definition has only a very minor impact on the statistics.

Redundancy: Essex

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what advice, support and assistance he is providing to people in Essex who are facing redundancy. [243668]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question concerning what advice, support and assistance he is providing to people in Essex who are facing redundancy. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

We offer a wide range of support for people facing redundancy. This includes helping support employers to retain their staff through retraining; and encouraging staff to gain vocational qualifications to prepare for the economic recovery rather than having to make staff redundant. We work with partners such as Business Link (who have reduced many of their fees for Small and Medium Enterprises) and directing employers to Train to Gain for a business check-up and funding for training.

We also offer advice on how employees can claim benefits and support employers where they need to go into short time or temporary stop working and we are tailoring our advice to meet the their needs. We will also visit employees facing redundancy at their place of work to explain the support and benefits available to them. Employees can also access the vacancies we hold nationally by visiting our website at www.jobcentreplus.gov.uk or by telephoning us on 0845 6060 234 and by using the jobpoints at their local Jobcentre.

A strengthened Rapid Response Service was launched on 12 November, doubling national funding from £3 million to £6 million. The service is being promoted through relevant press and online. The pre-Budget report announcerd a further doubling of Rapid Response Service funding—£12 million will be available in 2009-10.

Through the Rapid Response Service, Jobcentre Plus has access to funds to enable those individuals made redundant to receive the necessary help to get them back into work. Such measures could include:

Skills Transfer Analysis (to help identify an individual's transferable skills and training needs relevant to the local labour market);

Job-Focused Training (to assist individuals with appropriate training and certification linked to employment or self-employment linked to the needs of the local labour market).

We work with partners such as Response to Redundancy who have access to funding via the East of England Development Agency to assist employees with re-training and CV writing. We can also arrange for a Business Link representative to advise staff on self-employment.

We have recently decided that our customers in Essex can have access to CV writing, Jobsearch advice and support through our Programme Centres immediately rather than waiting six months. We have also produced a leaflet for employers and partner organisations such as Business Link and local authority Economic Development Officers to ensure they are aware of the support we can provide.

In November we contacted 13 businesses to offer our assistance and support following notification of possible redundancies. Eleven accepted our assistance while two had already made provision for their staff to be redeployed within their own companies. Our staff visited and talked to five of these businesses and we sent copies of our Job Kits to the remaining six companies. Our Job Kit provides practical help and advice to employees when applying for jobs. We also issue employees with a leaflet that describes how to claim benefits, find work and re-train.

I have asked Neil Brettell, the District Manager for Essex, to meet with you to discuss the range of provision available in the Essex area.

Redundancy: Woolworths

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assistance his Department plans to provide to the Woolworth's workforce; and if he will take steps to ensure that Woolworth's observes its statutory obligations with regard to its workforce. [244452]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what assistance his Department plans to provide to the Woolworths workforce; and if he will take steps to ensure that Woolworths observes its statutory obligations with regard to its workforce. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

When Woolworths went into administration Jobcentre Plus made contact immediately with the administrators and Woolworths management to prepare the Rapid Response Service support for any redundancies.

The key components of the Rapid Response Service are Skills Transfer Analysis, Job-Focused Training and the Action Fund. Jobcentre Plus will embark upon a Skills Transfer Analysis with former Woolworths employees to identify those with transferable skills and training needs relevant to their own local labour market. Where necessary, Job-Focused Training will be put in place for those requiring training or certification. Finally, should an individual have a personal barrier preventing them from taking up employment or training the Action Fund will be used to overcome that.

Jobcentre Plus has also ensured that each and every Woolworths employee will receive appropriate literature within their personal redundancy pack. This literature will provide advice on navigating the benefits system and introduce the various Jobcentre Plus services that will enable them to find alternative employment.

Social Security Benefits

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost of processing (a) jobseeker's allowance and (b) income support was in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08. [244541]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question concerning what the cost of processing (a) Jobseeker's Allowance and (b) Income Support benefits was in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Information on the staff costs of processing new claims for each benefit is provided in the table below.

Social Security Benefits: Administration

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much has been allocated to cover the costs of processing applications for each benefit that the Department administers in each of the next three years; and if he will make a statement. [246628]

Kitty Usher: The Department's published three year plan is available in the Library and sets out the planned expenditure of Jobcentre Plus and the Pension, Disability and Carers Service over the CSR2007. The Pre-Budget Report announced additional funding for the Department over the CSR2007 to continue delivering effective support for the unemployed to find a job. The Department will publish a revised plan before the end of the current financial year providing further details of its plans, which will include planned Jobcentre Plus and Pension, Disability and Carers Service expenditure.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average cost to his Department is of processing a benefit application for each benefit that his Department administers; and if he will make a statement. [246629]

Kitty Ussher: Information on the staff costs of processing a new claim for each benefit in 2007-8 is provided in the following tables:

Social Security Benefits: Databases

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether benefit payment systems are able to record total benefits received by (a) individuals and (b) households. [246684]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department has a number of systems which are used in the administration of the various benefits for which it is responsible. Where appropriate, officials can establish which benefits are paid to an individual or their dependants and at what rate. However, information is not recorded by household.

Additionally, housing benefit and council tax benefit are administered by over 400 local authorities, each of which is responsible for its own systems. Arrangements are in place that allow officials to establish the amount of local authority administered benefits in payment to an individual where there is a legitimate reason to do so.

Social Security Benefits: Fraud

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate his Department has made of the amount lost by his Department as a result of (a) benefit fraud and (b) administrative error in Torbay constituency in each of the last five years. [244539]

Mr. McNulty: The information is not available in the format requested.

DWP Fraud and Error estimates, published in the Fraud and Error in the Benefit System series, provide fraud and error estimates at a national level. The estimates are derived from the examination of a sample of benefit payments. The sample sizes are too small to produce valid estimates below the national level. Estimates are therefore not available at constituency level.

Social Security Benefits: Interviews

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many work-focused interviews for each category of benefit he estimates will be conducted in each of the next five years. [244201]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not available.

Social Security Benefits: Overseas Residence

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 420W, on social security benefits: overseas residence, how many of the 1,700 requests for payment of (a) the core component of disability living allowance, (b) attendance allowance and (c) carer's allowance from those who had previously lived in the UK and are now living in another EEA state or Switzerland have been granted. [245824]

Jonathan Shaw: As explained in my written answer of 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 420W, we are still considering the implications of the European Court's decision on paying disability living allowance, attendance allowance and carer's allowance to people who claim from another EEA state or Switzerland. We will publish the entitlement criteria on the Directgov website as soon as the details have been finalised. As a result, we are not yet in a position to make decisions on individual awards for these customers.

Social Services: Finance

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which funding streams he plans to include in the individual budget pilots due to be tested in trailblazer public authorities from 2010; and if he will make a statement. [247734]

Jonathan Shaw: The Welfare Reform Bill introduced on 14 January 2009 sets out the framework for a new legislative right for disabled people. The Bill enables the Secretary of State to make regulations to give disabled people greater choice and control over support provided by the state. This will be referred to as the right to control.

The right to control will be tested in a small number of trailblazing public authorities in England from 2010.

We will consult on how Department of Work and Pensions funding, particularly Access to Work, the Independent Living Fund and elements of our specialist disability employment programmes, could be included in the trailblazers. The inclusion or alignment of further Government services, including the Disabled Facilities Grant and Adult Social Care, will be considered during this phase.

We will also consult locally and nationally ahead of the trailblazers to investigate which other sources of support could be included. The services and funding streams to be included in the pilots will be set out in secondary legislation.

Unemployment: Coastal Areas

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of all benefit claimants have been out of work for more than 10 years in (a) each of the principal seaside towns of England and Wales and (b) each lower layer super output area (LSOA) of the seaside towns of England and Wales, giving each LSOA area. [244296]

Mr. McNulty: The information is not available.

Unemployment: North East

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people are unemployed in (a) the North East and (b) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency; and what estimate his Department has made of projected trends in these levels in each of the next 12 months. [244932]

Mr. McNulty: In November 2008 there were 61,815 jobseeker's allowance claimants in the north-east Government office region and 2,185 in Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland parliamentary constituency.

Notes:

1. Figures are rounded to the nearest five.

2. Data are published at:

While we do not predict future levels of unemployment, we are planning for the impact of higher levels of jobseeker's allowance claims in the coming months. Clearly this is a sensible approach given the expected trends during a time of slower economic growth.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) individuals and (b) establishments have been prosecuted for selling alcohol to under-age people in (i) Stockport Metropolitan borough, (ii) Greater Manchester and (iii) the North West in each of the last five years. [246070]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The number of persons and other defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts for offences relating to selling alcohol to under age persons in the Greater Manchester police force area and the North West region, from 2003 to 2007, the latest available, are given in table 1. The number of Penalty Notices for Disorder (PNDs) issued to persons for this offence are given in table 2 from 2004, when the scheme commenced, to 2007.

The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Data collected centrally are available at police force area level only; therefore data for Stockport Metropolitan borough cannot be supplied.

Borders: Personal Records

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects the e-borders programme to be fully operational. [247158]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 14 January 2009]: The e-Borders programme is being rolled out in phases.

By December 2010, the e-Borders system will be receiving and processing at least 95 per cent. of passenger and crew movements in advance of travel into the UK. The system will be fully operational, processing 100 per cent. of passenger and crew movements, by March 2014.

Crime: Wales

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many incidents of (a) vehicle theft, (b) domestic burglary and (c) violent crime there were in each police force area in Wales in each of the last 17 years, broken down by sub-category of crime. [244186]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The available information relates to offences recorded by the police and data is given in the tables for 1998-99 to 2007-08. A number of changes have been made to recorded crime in response to suggestions in the two reviews of crime statistics. One such change is that the term 'violent crime' is no longer used in connection with the recorded crime statistics and we now provide figures for violence against the person.

In 1998-99, the recorded crime coverage was extended and substantial revisions were made to the counting rules. Figures prior to that date are therefore not directly comparable and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Criminal Records Bureau

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what assessments she has made of the efficiency of the process of completing a Criminal Records Bureau check in the last five years; [243610]

(2) what the average waiting time for a Criminal Records Bureau check to be completed is; [243611]

(3) what change there has been in the average waiting time for a Criminal Records Bureau check to be completed was (a) in the last 12 months and (b) in the last five years; [243612]

(4) what percentage of those who apply for Criminal Records Bureau clearance waited for more than (a) 28 days and (b) two months over the average time taken to process a check in the last 12 months. [243613]

Meg Hillier: The Home Office sets the Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) a number of performance targets each year and the efficiency of the process of completing a CRB check is measured within the context of these targets.

The CRB currently operates to a set of published service standards (PSS) which include to issue 90 per cent. of standard disclosures within 10 days and 90 per cent. of enhanced disclosures within 28 days.

The following table illustrates the CRB's performance for the last five years against the published service standards (PSS) target.

Published service standards

	Standard		Enhanced
	Target (percentage)	Actual (percentage)	Target (percentage)	Actual (percentage)
2007-08	90 in 10 days	99.7	90 in 28 days	93.6
2006-07	90 in 10 days	98.8	90 in 28 days	84.9
2005-06	93 in 14 days	99.6	90 in 28 days	84.4
2004-05	93 in 14 days	97.6	90 in 28 days	89.9
2003-04	93 in 14 days	93	90 in 28 days	92.5

Data concerning the average time taken to complete a disclosure are not a performance target and are not collated by the CRB.

Average figures do not give an accurate indication of performance, since the times taken to complete checks may be affected by a number of factors, including but not restricted to the length of time it can take for an employer to deal with the initial application; the accurate completion of the application form; the clarity of the information provided; the existence of conviction or non-conviction information and the operational effectiveness of the Disclosure Units of the police forces involved in the enhanced disclosure process.

Drinking Banning Orders

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans she has to introduce drinking banning orders. [246714]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government intend to commence the legislation relating to Drinking Banning Orders (DBOs) on application. Officials will shortly begin this process by consulting the judiciary on the draft guidance for this power, and we expect that DBOs would become available to frontline practitioners from summer 2009.

Driving Offences: Insurance

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) successful prosecutions, (b) cautions and (c) issues of fixed penalty notices there were for use of a motor vehicle uninsured against third party risks in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008. [244799]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 18 December 2008]: Available information provided by the Ministry of Justice for the number of findings of guilt, at all courts, for offences of using a motor vehicle uninsured against third party risks, for 2006 and 2007, are given in the following table.

Data on court proceedings for 2008 will be available in the autumn of 2009.

Additionally, there were 6,651 fixed penalty notices issued for the offence in 2006. Data on FPNs issued in 2007 are due to be published in early 2009.

Total number of findings of guilt at all courts for offences of using a motor vehicle uninsured against third party risks, England and Wales, 2006 and 2007[1, 2]

	Number
2006	267,673

[1] It is known that for some police force areas the reporting of court proceedings, in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less than complete.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Human Trafficking

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what protocol is used by the police for dealing with people who are identified as having been trafficked. [241133]

Mr. Alan Campbell: We have in place existing collaborative ways of identifying, referring and supporting victims whereby the police can seek advice from the specialist United Kingdom Human Trafficking Centre in the identification of victims. Forces are also advised as to the appropriate support services available for those who are identified as victims.

On 17 December 2008 we ratified the Council of Europe Convention on Action against Trafficking in Human Beings. By April 2009 at the latest we will introduce a reflection period of 45 days and a renewable one year residence permit for identified victims of human trafficking. Additionally, we are introducing formal identification measures under a National Referral Mechanism by which victims are systematically identified by a Competent Authority and referred to appropriate support.

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research her Department has commissioned on the links between migration and human trafficking. [244772]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The links between migration and human trafficking form a central part of the work undertaken by the Serious Organised Crime Agency as part of its work to produce the annual UK Threat Assessment. This work is underpinned through two SOCA programmes of activity that focus on organised immigration crime.

Within this framework SOCA works closely with both international and domestic partners including the UK Human Trafficking Centre.

Human Trafficking: Moldova

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she plans to take to improve co-operation between the UK and Moldova to prevent trafficking of human beings. [243705]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 16 December 2008]: I shall be meeting the Moldovan ambassador to discuss issues around organised immigration crime including human trafficking.

Human Trafficking: Victims

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will hold discussions with her counterparts in other EU member states to seek to establish systems to provide safety, support and advice for trafficking victims discovered in the UK and returned to other EU member states. [243824]

Mr. Alan Campbell: We are in regular dialogue with international partners and we have played an active role in the G6 initiative to assist in enhancing international co-operation, increase knowledge of human trafficking and develop victim care capabilities.

This work has built on the EU plan on best practices, standards and procedures for combating and preventing trafficking in human beings (EU action plan on trafficking) which was introduced under our presidency of the European Union and will be further taken forward under the Council of Europe convention on action against trafficking in human beings which we ratified on 17 December 2008.

Metropolitan Police Estates Strategy

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Metropolitan Police Estates Strategy will be published. [247124]

Mr. Coaker: This is a matter for the Metropolitan Police Authority and the Metropolitan Police Commissioner.

Police National Computer: Standards

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the replication rate is of records on the Police National Computer and the National DNA Database, broken down by records relating to people aged (a) under 10 years, (b) 10 to 17 years and (c) 18 years and older; and if she will make a statement. [246638]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Approximately 13.3 per cent. of records on the National DNA Database are estimated to be duplicates or replicates. It is not possible to break this figure down by age.

On 16 December 2008, my right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for the Home Department, announced that the Government would take immediate steps to remove the DNA profiles of children aged under 10 from the NDNAD.

The replication rate of records on the Police National Computer is not known. When a replicate record is discovered, the records are combined to make a single definitive record.

Police Stations: Closures

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which police stations in London are earmarked for closure as part of the draft Metropolitan Police Estates Strategy; in which year it is proposed that they be closed; what estimate has been made of the capital receipts that will be obtained from their closure; what new police stations are proposed as part of the draft strategy; and in which year it is proposed that they be opened. [247123]

Mr. Coaker: The management of the Metropolitan police estate and allocation of resources are matters for the Metropolitan Police Authority and the Metropolitan Police Commissioner, who are responsible for assessing local needs.

Police: Firearms

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police firearms from each police force have been lost or stolen in each year since 1997. [247493]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not collected centrally by the Home Office.

Police: Urban Areas

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much has been spent on policing urban areas on Friday and Saturday nights in each of the last five years. [247689]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not held centrally. This is a matter for the police authority and chief constable for each force concerned to determine in the light of operational priorities.

Police: Weapons

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which weapons are available for use by police forces; and how many of each type are available to each force. [247696]

Mr. Coaker: Weapons deployed by forces are an operational matter for chief officers. The Home Office Scientific Development Branch maintains a database, on behalf of the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO), of firearms and ammunition used by authorised firearms officers in the 43 forces in England and Wales. The Attenuated Energy projectile is also available for use by police forces, and Tasers are available for use by authorised firearms officers and specially trained units in line with ACPO Policy and Guidance. Forces also deploy incapacitant spray—both CS and PAVA based—and batons.

Proceeds of Crime

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the information on the performance of the Serious and Organised Crime Agency's (SOCA's) asset recovery functions she plans to publish will include assets recovered by another agency principally as a result of SOCA activity or information supplied by SOCA. [246715]

Mr. Alan Campbell: In addition to publishing information on its own asset recovery operations the Serious Organised Crime Agency will report on "international assets denied". This figure will reflect the wider impact of SOCA's activity and relates to assets which overseas authorities have frozen, seized or confiscated from criminals as a result of SOCA intelligence or activity.

Serious Organised Crime Agency: Assets Recovery Agency

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases the Assets Recovery Agency had under investigation with a view to civil recovery or taxation action in which no action to restrain assets had yet been taken as at 31 March 2008; what the estimated value of the assets under investigation in those cases was; how many of those investigations were subsequently terminated by the Serious and Organised Crime Agency without court action; what the reasons for the termination were in those cases; what the estimated value of assets in terminated cases was; and in respect of such terminated cases, what steps have been taken to remove relevant assets from criminals. [243622]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Data relating to the transfer of cases from the Assets Recovery Agency to the Serious Organised Crime Agency were not collated to this level of detail, as there would be no operational value and some cost in doing so. This information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost (through manual collation from case files). SOCA has terminated 10 cases since the merger, in which no Property Freezing Order/Interim Receiving Order or Recovery Order had been granted as at 31 March 2008. The reasons for terminating these cases were:

no assets to recover (1)

insufficient evidence to link assets to criminality (5)

further evidence of criminality found—case referred for criminal investigation (3) case erroneously referred—criminal case still under appeal (1).

In these cases either there were no assets to recover, or insufficient evidence, or an ongoing criminal investigation which rendered any assets outside the scope of the civil recovery powers.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases the Assets Recovery Agency transferred to the Serious and Organised Crime Agency (SOCA) on 31 March 2008 in which proceedings for civil recovery on taxation investigation had been initiated; what the estimated value of assets restrained in those cases was; how many of those cases were terminated by SOCA without asset recovery; what the reasons were for termination in each such case; what the estimated value of assets in cases so terminated was; how many such inherited cases not terminated have been completed by obtaining a civil recovery order or consentor; in how many such cases (a) a tax settlement been agreed and (b) a judgment from Special Commissioners has been obtained; what the value of such orders and settlements is; and what the value of assets restrained in such cases is. [243791]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Data relating to the transfer of cases from the Assets Recovery Agency to the Serious Organised Crime Agency were not collated to this level of detail, as there would be no operational value and some cost in doing so. This information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost (through manual collation from case files). SOCA has terminated one case without recovering assets, where civil recovery proceedings had been initiated as at 31 March 2008. The reason for terminating the case was that there were no assets left to recover. As regards the value of civil recovery orders and tax settlements, figures for SOCA's UK-wide performance on asset recovery for the financial year 2008-09 are subject to internal validation and will be included in its Annual Report for 2008-09, when published.

Terrorism: Internet

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps the Government takes to prevent gambling internet sites being used by terrorist organisations to raise funds. [247160]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 14 January 2009]: The Government are determined to do all they can to prevent funds from reaching terrorists. Operators located in Great Britain who wish to offer gambling through internet websites must apply for a Remote Operating Licence from the Gambling Commission. The Gambling Commission undertakes a strict examination of an operator's suitability before determining their application.

Furthermore, operators licensed by the Gambling Commission who offer casino games through websites form part of the regulated sector covered by the Money Laundering Regulations 2007. These regulations implement the terms of the Third EU Directive on Money Laundering and Terrorist Financing, and include a duty to verify the identity of customers. A breach could constitute a criminal offence.

The Gambling Commission is the supervisory authority for casinos and operators must act in accordance with the Gambling Commission's guidance on anti-money laundering, The Prevention of Money Laundering and Combating the Financing of Terrorism—Guidance for remote and non-remote casinos'. This guidance is available at:

http://www.gamblingcommission.gov.uk/Client/media detail.asp?mediaid=326 and a copy will be placed in the House Library. The operators of all gambling websites should ensure their staff are made aware of their duties under the Terrorism Act 2000 for the reporting of suspicious activity relating to terrorist finance offences.

UK Border Agency: Correspondence

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects the UK Border Agency to reply to the letter of 9 December 2008 from the hon. Member for Walsall North, reference P1120638 and CTS of M 20970/8. [248178]

Mr. Woolas: The regional director for the north-west, Gill Mortlock, wrote to my hon. Friend on 13 January 2009.

CHURCH COMMISSIONERS

Pay

Grant Shapps: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners how much has been spent by the Church Commissioners on staff reward and recognition schemes in each of the last three years. [248725]

Sir Stuart Bell: In each of the last three years for which fully audited figures are available (i.e. 2005-07) the salary and pension contribution cost of staff for whom the Church Commissioners were the managing employer was £3.7 million.

PRIME MINISTER

Departmental Marketing

Grant Shapps: To ask the Prime Minister how much has been spent by 10 Downing Street on advertising in the last 12 months. [243718]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by the Parliamentary Secretary to the Cabinet Office, my hon. Friend the Member for West Bromwich, East (Mr. Watson) on 15 January 2009, Official Report, columns 869-70W.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Prime Minister how many complaints about advertisements sponsored or funded by his Office were made to the Advertising Standards Authority (ASA) in each year from 1997 to 2008; and how many of these were upheld by the ASA in each year. [246657]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by the Parliamentary Secretary to the Cabinet Office, my hon. Friend the Member for West Bromwich, East (Mr. Watson) on 14 January 2009, Official Report, column 744W.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Internet

Jo Swinson: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission on what date the decision was taken to upload videos of parts of the tour of Parliament to a YouTube channel; on what date the decision was taken to restrict access to that channel to members of a private YouTube group; and if he will make a statement. [249395]

Nick Harvey: Videos of parts of the parliamentary tour were posted on the parliamentary YouTube channel:

http://uk.youtube.com/ukparliament linked from the main UK Parliament website:

http://www.parliament.uk

on 6 January as part of our ongoing development of the website. They were removed from it on 9 January when some issues with their content were identified.

The YouTube videos were published to the UK Parliament channel as part of specific groups of videos focused on the tours. The functionality of YouTube does not allow these groups to be deleted. To remove them from public view required making the groups private, thereby restricting access.

It is not our policy to restrict access in any way to our content, including YouTube, and this was done in order to prevent inaccurate content from being in the public domain.

They will be reinstated once they meet the required quality standards. As a result of this incident we have reviewed quality control procedures and built in additional checks before material is signed off for release on the website.

SCOTLAND

Charities

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland to which (a) charities and (b) voluntary organisations his Department has provided funding in the last five years; and how much funding was provided to each. [247372]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office, along with the Wales Office and Ministry of Justice, has funded a series of reports on devolution from University College, London. The Scotland Office agreed to contribute £25,000 over three years towards this work.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much has been spent on (a) maintaining, (b) decorating and (c) otherwise improving departmental buildings in the last five years; how much has been spent on wallpaper since 2001; and what plans there are for further spending on departmental decoration. [248066]

Ann McKechin: Under the terms of its building leases the Scotland Office is required to maintain its buildings to an acceptable standard of decoration and repair. Over the period of the last five years, the Office has shared its accommodation with a number of other Government Departments. The following figures show the gross total for repairs and maintenance of Scotland Office buildings, but does not include the contribution by the Departments towards their share of the costs.

The Office does not separately record the amount spent on wallpaper. The plans for further decoration have not yet been finalised, however any costs will be in line with the terms of the building leases.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what (a) directly-operated and (b) franchised catering outlets his Department provides for staff. [249082]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office has no in-house canteen or other catering facilities.

Departmental Data Protection

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many members of staff in his Department have been (a) investigated, (b) suspended and (c) dismissed for losing (i) memory sticks, (ii) laptop computers, (iii) desktop computers and (iv) mobile telephones belonging to his Department in each year since 1997. [248256]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland office was established on 1 July 1999. Since this date no members of staff have been investigated, suspended or dismissed for losing memory sticks, laptop computers, desktop computers or mobile phones belonging to the office.

Departmental Internet

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department has spent on broadband internet in each of the last five years. [245496]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office does not separately record expenditure on broadband internet.

Departmental Coaching: Languages

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many (a) Ministers and (b) civil servants in his Department received coaching in a foreign language in the last 12 months; what expenditure his Department incurred in providing such coaching; and in what languages such coaching was provided. [248074]

Ann McKechin: No Ministers or civil servants received coaching in a foreign language in the last 12 months.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many members of staff were (a) employed by and (b) seconded to the Scotland Office in (i) Scotland and (ii) London in each quarter since 1999. [248510]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office was established on 1 July 1999. The office does not directly employ staff, all staff in the office are on secondment from other Government Departments, mainly the Scottish Executive and Ministry of Justice. Information on staff numbers is published in the office's annual report, copies of which are in the House Library. The office does not keep central records in a form that would allow staff numbers to be broken down by each quarter since 1999.

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what the responsibilities of each member of his media and communications team are; when each member of staff was recruited; and what the salary of each member of staff is. [248514]

Ann McKechin: The responsibilities of the Press Office at the Scotland Office are shared by two staff, recruited in September 2006 and March 2007. Both are on secondment from the Ministry of Justice.

The Press Office is responsible for a wide range of civil service communications functions.

To protect the privacy of individual staff, data relating to fewer than five people are not disclosed.

Departmental Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make it his policy that temporary and permanent employees of his Department employed at the same grade receive the same hourly rate of pay. [248418]

Ann McKechin: I refer the hon. Member to the answer that I gave him on 17 December 2008, Official Report, columns 763-64W.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much has been spent by his Department on staff reward and recognition schemes in each of the last three years. [248705]

Ann McKechin: Staff in the Scotland Office are seconded from the Scottish Executive (SE) and the Ministry of Justice (MOJ) who each have bonus schemes in operation. Under the special bonus scheme of the SE and the reward and recognition scheme of the MOJ, the office may directly authorise bonus payments (or in the case of the MOJ scheme; small and instantaneous awards e.g. vouchers) for recognising special effort, achievement and commitment. The following table shows the number and cost of non-pensionable bonuses paid under these schemes:

Financial year	Total number of bonuses	Total cost of bonuses (£)
2005-06	8	3,750
2006-07	17	4,750
2007-08	6	2,150

Departmental Catering

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at his Department and its agencies in

(a) 2007 and (b) 2008; and how much was spent on such bonuses in each of those years. [249861]

Ann McKechin: Members of the senior civil service in the Scotland Office are seconded from the Scottish Executive and the Ministry of Justice, their bonuses are assessed under a framework set by the Cabinet Office. The office does not hold central information on such bonuses.

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland which (a) food and (b) drinks companies have supplied his Department in each of the last three years; and how much was paid to each of those suppliers in each of those years. [248792]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office does not record the information in the form requested.

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department's central media and communication unit spent on public surveys in each of the last three years. [247919]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office Press Office have not incurred any costs on public surveys in any of the last three years.

Departmental Temporary Employment

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland which companies were used by his Department for providing temporary staff in each of the last five years; and what the value of contracts with each such company was in each of those years. [245296]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office paid the following amounts to recruitment agencies for temporary staff in the last five years:

	Number of staff	Total cost (£)
2003-04
Adecco	3	11,952.41
Pertemps	12	18,721.46
Select Appointments	1	22,961.65

2006-07
Kelly Services	2	7,500.12
2007-08
Pertemps	3	7,239.74

[1] No staff were recruited in this year, however the cost of a late invoice from the previous financial year was incurred.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Bankruptcy

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many individuals were declared bankrupt in each year between 2000 and 2007. [247597]

Mr. McFadden: Table 1 shows the number of bankruptcies in England and Wales between 2000 and 2007. This information is also available on the internet at:

http://www.insolvency.gov.uk/otherinformation/statistics/insolv.htm

Table 1: England and Wales

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what expert advisers have been commissioned by his Department and its agencies since 1997; on what topic each was commissioned; and whether the advisers so appointed made a declaration of political activity in each case. [246658]

Mr. McFadden: A list of expert advisers used by BERR since 1997 is not held centrally and any information on such advisers could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Since 2003, the Government have published, on an annual basis, the names and overall cost of special advisers and the number in each pay band. This is published in the form of a written ministerial statement by the Prime Minister before each summer recess.

I have approached the chief executives of the Insolvency Service and Companies House to respond to the hon. Member directly.

Letter from Gareth Jones, dated 16 January 2009:

I am responding on behalf of Companies House to your recently tabled Parliamentary Question to the Minister of State for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

Whilst we have engaged a number of consultants on various programmes and projects during this period, we have not engaged any third party 'expert advice' to help form organisational strategy or policies.

Letter from Stephen Speed, dated 16 January 2009:

The Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform has asked me to reply to your question (2008/448) what expert advisers have been commissioned by his Department and its agencies since 1997; on what topic each was commissioned; and whether the advisers so appointed made a declaration of political activity in each case.

A list of expert advisers used by The Insolvency Service since 1997 is not held centrally and any information on such advisers could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the cost to his Department of provision of office facilities to (a) special advisers and (b) press officers (i) was in the last 12 months and (ii) has been since 1997-98. [244724]

Mr. McFadden: BERR does not hold sufficiently detailed information to answer this question and to produce it would involve disproportionate cost.

Small Businesses: Billing

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what his latest assessment is of the implementation of the Government's commitment to pay suppliers within 10 days. [247881]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 15 January 2009]: BERR is currently collecting data from other Government Departments and from its own delivery partners on performance in making payments to suppliers within 10 days of receiving a correctly rendered invoice. Although complete figures are not yet available, Government Departments and public bodies have embraced payment within 10 days and are working to implement this across their own organisation and to encourage suppliers to pass on these terms.

During November and December 2008, the first two months of recording the new target, BERR paid 93.1 per cent. and 96.9 per cent. of invoices within 10 working days respectively. Formal reporting by all Government Departments commenced at the start of January 2009 and will be reported to BERR on a quarterly basis.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Departmental Telephone Services

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what use (a) his Department and (b) service providers under contract to his Department make of (i) 0844 and 0845 telephone numbers and (ii) revenue-sharing telephone numbers for calls from members of the public; for which services such numbers are used; what prefixes are used for revenue-sharing numbers; how much revenue has accrued from revenue-sharing numbers in each of the last five years; what consideration his Department has given to introducing 03-prefixed telephone numbers for calls to all such services; and if he will make a statement. [247340]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Since its formation on 3 October 2008, the Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC) has made no use of 0844, 0845 or revenue-sharing telephone numbers for calls from members of the public. DECC already makes use of a 03-prefixed number, charged at the standard national rate, for general inquiries. The Department is not at present party to any contracts, as the Transfer of Function Order related to the creation of DECC has not yet come into force.

Electricity Generation

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much electricity was generated from each primary source in the most recent year for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [248438]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The most recent year for which figures are available is 2007. The following table shows generation from the main sources in 2007. Provisional figures for 2008 will not be available until the end of March 2009.

	Electricity generated (GWh)
Gas	164,473
Coal	136,685
Oil	4,693
Other Thermal[1]	13,030
Primary electricity	73,402
Of which:
Nuclear	63,028
Hydro, wind, wave and solar PV	10,374
Other fuels[2]	3,859
Total	396,142

[1] Includes non-biodegradable wastes, coke oven gas, blast furnace gas, and waste products from chemical processes.

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what percentage of electricity generated in the UK was produced by (a) renewables, (b) coal, (c) gas and (d) nuclear energy in 2008. [248540]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Energy statistics for the calendar year 2008 will not be available until the end of March 2009. These will be provisional until the publication of the Digest of United Kingdom Energy Statistics, 2009 at the end of July 2009. The latest available annual data are for 2007 and are as follows:

	Percentage
Renewables	5.0
Coal	34.5
Gas	41.5
Nuclear	15.9
Other fuels[1]	3.1
Total	100.0

Fuel Poverty

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent estimate he has made of levels of fuel poverty in (a) Chorley, (b) Lancashire and (c) each county; and if he will make a statement. [245064]

Joan Ruddock: The most recently available sub-regional split of fuel poverty relates to 2003, and shows that in Chorley there were 2,600 fuel poor households and around 31,000 fuel poor households in Lancashire. Clearly, rising prices will have increased those figures significantly.

Fuel poverty estimates are available for all counties can be seen in the following table:

Housing: Insulation

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the (a) energy savings and (b) emissions reductions which would arise if (i) 60 per cent., (ii) 80 per cent. and (iii) 100 per cent. of UK households were thermally insulated. [242464]

Joan Ruddock: As of April 2008, the remaining potential for insulation measures in Great Britain totalled 7.75 million wall cavities; 6.33 million lofts (where less than 100 mm of insulation is already present); and 6.3 million homes in need of solid wall insulation (excluding homes in conservation areas).

We project that, if all remaining measures were installed (with solid-wall insulation achieving a 'U' value of 0.45 W/m2K), this would save 20.6 million tonnes of carbon dioxide ($MtCO_2$) per year. In terms of energy savings (comprising gas, electricity and oil), this would represent 230.89 TWh per year.

The savings delivered from treating 80 per cent. and 60 per cent. of homes would depend on the combination of measures installed. The following table therefore provides the figures for savings from insulating cavities, lofts and solid walls separately for each of these percentage scenarios.

	Cavities	Lofts from < 100 mm	Solid wall insulation
Remaining potential in GB, April 2008 (Million)	7.75	6.33	[1]6.30
Potential carbon savings if 100 per cent. filled ($MtCO_2$/year)	4.9	1.5	14.2
Potential carbon savings if 80 per cent. filled ($MtCO_2$/year)	3.9	1.2	11.4
Potential carbon savings if 60 per cent. filled ($MtCO_2$/year)	2.9	0.9	8.5
Potential gas savings if 100 per cent. filled (TWh/year)	20.02	5.99	57.53
Potential gas savings if 80 per cent. filled (TWh/year)	16.0	4.8	46.0
Potential gas savings if 60 per cent. filled (TWh/year)	12.0	3.6	34.5
Potential electricity savings if 100 per cent. filled (TWh/year)	1.41	0.41	4.36

	Cavities	Lofts from < 100 mm	Solid wall insulation
Potential electricity savings if 80 per cent. filled (TWh/year)	1.1	0.3	3.5
Potential electricity savings if 60 per cent. filled (TWh/year)	0.8	0.2	2.6
Potential oil savings if 100 per cent. filled (TWh/year)	1.58	0.47	4.52
Potential oil savings if 80 per cent. filled (TWh/year)	1.3	0.4	3.6
Potential oil savings if 60 per cent. filled (TWh/year)	0.9	0.3	2.7

Hydroelectric Power

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what research his Department has commissioned on the use of small-scale hydro-power generation; and what his most recent assessment is of its potential contribution to power generation by 2020. [248770]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The 2008 "Growth Potential for Microgeneration in England, Wales and Scotland" report completed by Element Energy was part funded by the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) and included research as to the number of micro-hydro installations currently in operation. Their follow up report, "Numbers of microgeneration units installed in England, Wales, Scotland, and Northern Ireland", looked in more detail at the number of installations across the UK and estimated that there were 73 micro hydro installations in the UK generating over 4GWh per annum. Both reports are available from the BERR website at:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/energy/microgeneration/research.

In Scotland a study has been undertaken by the Forum for Renewable Energy in Scotland (FREDS), looking at the potential for hydropower in Scotland. This study shows this potential to be in the region of 657MW. The FREDS report can be found on the Scottish Executive website at:

http://www.Scotland.gov.uk/Resource/Doc/917/0064958.pdf

This Department, along with the Welsh Assembly Government and in partnership with the British Hydropower Association are currently undertaking a study into the potential for micro and small scale deployment hydropower in England and Wales. This is due to be published later this year.

Natural Gas

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what alternative gas supplies to those previously obtained from Russia are being considered by the Government. [248374]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The UK imports less than 2 per cent. of its gas from Russia. UK gas demand is met from a diverse range of sources including indigenous UK continental shelf production, imports from Norway and from continental Europe including from the Netherlands and LNG imports. In addition, the UK has gas storage. The market can respond to changes in the availability of imports from particular sources, including gas sourced from Russia, to ensure that overall demand is met.

Nuclear Power: France

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what discussions have taken place with the government of France on UK-French co-operation on nuclear power following the President of France's visit to the UK in 2008. [248542]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Discussions on nuclear co-operation have continued to take place since the President's visit to the UK: a meeting will take place between officials across a range of issues on 3 February 2009; the exchange programme between the safety regulators continues; and the safety regulators have been in regular contact with relation to Generic Design Assessment.

Nuclear Power: Insurance

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change pursuant to the answer of 12 January, Official Report, column 124W, on nuclear power: insurance, for what reasons the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority has located its wholly-owned subsidiary, Rutherford Indemnity Ltd, in Guernsey. [249359]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Nuclear Decommissioning Authority (NDA) did not make a decision to locate Rutherford Indemnity Ltd. in Guernsey. It was located there when it was owned by BNFL before it was transferred to the NDA, when the NDA became the owners of the plant and facilities of BNFL with effect from 1 April 2005.

Sellafield: Management

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of management at the Sellafield nuclear facility before the transfer of responsibility for the site to Nuclear Management Partners. [247140]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Nuclear Decommissioning Authority is responsible for the management of sites in its ownership.

The new Parent Body Organisation for Sellafield Ltd., Nuclear Management Partners Ltd., was awarded the contract after a competitive procurement process.

The outgoing Parent Body Organisation, BNFL, did not tender for the contract. However, the effectiveness of the previous management arrangements, including cost and efficiency, was used by the NDA as a benchmark to assess value for money in the tenders received during the competition.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the value is of contracts relating to the handover of responsibility for the Sellafield site to a new private body organisation. [247141]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Under the terms of the Parent Body Agreement signed with the NDA, Nuclear Management Partners (NMP) and Sellafield Ltd., NMP was appointed as the Parent Body Organisation and owner of the shareholding in Sellafield Ltd, on 24 November 2008. The Parent Body Agreement, which has no direct monetary value, is for an initial term of five years. The agreement contains extension options for two further five-year terms and one two-year term, totalling a potential 17 years, which the NDA is entitled to exercise in any order. During this contract period, NMP are entitled to receive dividends based on the fee earned by the Site Licence Company (SLC), Sellafield Ltd. This fee is dependent on the quality and effectiveness of the SLC's performance. The fee is currently anticipated to be worth around £50 million a year.

Severn Barrage: Finance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the costs to the public purse of building the Severn Barrage in the event of all funding being provided from that source. [248168]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Severn tidal power feasibility study has produced cost estimates of a number of different tidal power projects in the Severn Estuary, and considered how these could be funded and delivered. We expect this work to be published shortly as part of a three-month public consultation.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Environment Protection: Day Care

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what environmental protection legislation governs daycare centres which offer educational training for people with learning disabilities; and if he will make a statement. [246321]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The types of centres described are subject to the same environmental protection legislation that applies to businesses generally. The activities carried out by a business will determine which legislation applies in particular to the business and its activities.

Examples of legislation which could particularly affect these types of centres are the waste management legislation set out in Part 2 of the Environmental Protection Act and the Environmental Permitting Regulations 2007. A further example is the statutory nuisance legislation set out in Part 3 of the Environmental Protection Act which addresses any activities prejudicial to health or a nuisance: for example, emissions of smoke, fumes, light and noise. A full list of the environmental protection legislation that applies to businesses can be found on the Environment Agency's NetRegs website:

www.netregs.gov.uk

Flood Control

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he plans to introduce an independently verified kitemark for the flood resilience of properties. [247488]

Huw Irranca-Davies: We have no plans to set up an alternative Quality Mark scheme to that run by the British Standards Institute. In principle, we have no objection to the development of alternative Quality Marks, supported by appropriate independent verification, provided that they deliver good quality products appropriate to the intended use and are easily understood by the public.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received on his Draft River Basin Management Plans consultation. [247490]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The consultation on draft River Basin Management Plans is being conducted by the Environment Agency which is the Competent Authority and has responsibility for producing the plans under the Water Framework Directive regulations. The consultation which started on 22 December 2008 will close on 22 June 2009.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the financial impact on each (a) individual water company, (b) farmer and landowner, (c) local authority, (d) highway authority and (e) other interested party affected by the proposals in the Draft River Basin Management Plans consultation if brought into effect; and if he will make a statement. [247491]

Huw Irranca-Davies: An updated national impact assessment for the water framework directive was published in February 2008 and is available at:

www.defra.gov.uk/corporate/consult/river-basin/IA-river-basin-v2.pdf.

Each of the draft River Basin Management Plans is accompanied by a draft impact assessment which includes an analysis which estimates the likely impact of different options on different sectors. All the major sectors are included that are expected to be impacted by the water framework directive measures, such as the water sector and agriculture and land management. It also includes an assessment of the impact on small and medium sized businesses within each River Basin District.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what economic impact assessment he has made of each individual river management system set out in the Draft River Basin Management Plans consultation if brought into effect; and if he will make a statement. [247492]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Each of the draft River Basin Management Plans impact assessments includes a sector analysis which estimates the likely impact of different options on different groups. An analysis by individual river management system has not been undertaken but could be achieved by aggregating measures for each water body in each river catchment. It is not possible to undertake this work at this level of detail at present as many water bodies still require further work to determine the reasons for not achieving good status.

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Environment Agency on flood protection policy. [248590]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA officials and I work closely with the Environment Agency and meet regularly to discuss a range of issues, including flood protection policy. Most recently, I met Paul Leinster (chief executive) and Lord Smith (chairman) for a bilateral on 11 December.

Flood Control: Departmental Responsibilities

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which Minister will be responsible for joint action between the Environment Agency and the Meteorological Office on flood warning and prediction matters; and if he will make a statement. [248522]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Flood Forecasting Centre (FFC), announced by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State on 17 December 2008, will have no impact on existing ministerial responsibilities. The FFC is staffed by experts from the Environment Agency and the Meteorological Office and will ensure better integration of weather and flood warnings and related information.

Forestry Commission: Scotland

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions his Department has had with the Scottish Executive on (a) the (i) statutory duties and (ii) functions of the Forestry Commission and (b) proposals in the draft Climate Change (Scotland) Bill which relate to the Forestry Commission. [248741]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Officials in both DEFRA and the Forestry Commission England are in regular contact on a wide range of issues relating to forestry matters. This includes keeping in touch in general terms with relevant developments such as those relating to the Forestry Commission in Scotland. No detailed discussions have however taken place on the Scottish Climate Change Bill.

Manchester Is My Planet

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding his Department has provided to Manchester is my Planet in the last 24 months. [245892]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

This information is not held centrally by the Department of Energy and Climate Change and so would incur disproportionate cost.

Marine and Fisheries Agency: Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of potential (a) job losses, (b) voluntary redundancy payments and (c) involuntary redundancy payments at the Marine and Fisheries Agency following its replacement by the Marine Management Organisation. [247912]

Huw Irranca-Davies: An estimate of potential job losses, voluntary and involuntary redundancy payments at the MFA is not necessary, as staff not wishing to relocate with the MMO will be supported in finding employment elsewhere or reassigned within DEFRA.

Marine Management Organisation

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the cost of setting up the planned Marine Management Organisation headquarters in each of the short-listed locations. [247909]

Huw Irranca-Davies: My officials have identified the potential funding required for a relocation, which will be taken into account when 2009-10 budget allocations within DEFRA are agreed.

The one-off funding required for the relocation will be very similar for any of the short listed locations—although ongoing costs such as accommodation will vary between locations.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to announce the decision on the location of the headquarters for the Marine Management Organisation. [247910]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I will announce the decision shortly.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what criteria will be used in deciding the location of the headquarters for the Marine Management Organisation; and what weight will be given to the desirability of a coastal location. [247911]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The business criteria, which all have the same maximum weighting, used in arriving at the short list for the location for the MMO HQ were as follows:

Coastal Location;

Location in terms of wider Government agendas on Relocation (Lyons and Economic Deprivation);

Proximity to Marine Stakeholder Clusters;

Proximity to Institutions with Marine Specialisms; and Good transport links in particular to key stakeholders and Brussels

The Quality of Life criteria include education, cost of housing, unemployment, health care and crime and these also shared the same maximum weighting for this criteria.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what powers he proposes the Marine Management Organisation should have in relation to the authorisation of (a) coastal barrages and (b) other large capital projects which will affect the marine environment. [248185]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Marine Management Organisation (MMO) will have the powers necessary to authorise most developments in the relevant marine areas, including coastal barrages, but with some exceptions, such as 'nationally significant infrastructure projects' as defined under part 3 of the Planning Act 2008.

Nationally significant infrastructure projects will be handled by the Infrastructure Planning Commission (IPC) established under the Planning Act. As the centre of marine expertise, the MMO will advise the IPC on proposals for nationally significant infrastructure projects and other developments which may affect the marine environment.

The MMO will have a particular role in advising the IPC on conditions that should be imposed to mitigate any adverse impact any development may have on the marine environment or other uses of the sea. The MMO will also be responsible for the subsequent monitoring and enforcement of developments approved by the IPC.

Nature Conservation: British Antarctic Territory

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress has been made under the Agreement on the Conservation of Albatrosses and Petrels to help reduce the numbers of seabird deaths caused by longline fishing in the British Antarctic Territory; and whether the treaty covers other British Overseas Territories in the region. [247707]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The waters around the British Antarctic Territory are wholly within the area covered by the Convention on the Conservation of Antarctic Marine Living Resources (CCAMLR). It is mandatory for all long-line fishing vessels to undertake measures to minimise seabird by-catch and to deploy an international scientific observer to monitor compliance with these requirements. In recent years, there has been no by-catch of seabirds in legal fisheries in these waters. There has thus been no need for the Agreement on the Conservation of Albatrosses and Petrels (ACAP) to work to reduce by-catch in these waters and it has instead focused its efforts on by-catch reduction in other parts of the oceans. In those areas the Parties to the Agreement have begun to work with regional fisheries management organisations to advance the use of mitigation technologies as well as to improve by-catch monitoring and have agreed a strategy to take this forward.

The UK's ratification of ACAP includes all UK Overseas Territories in the range of the albatrosses and petrels covered by ACAP, for example, the Falkland Islands, Tristan da Cuhna, South Georgia and South Sandwich Islands and British Antarctic Territory.

Pigs

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what support his Department is providing to pig farmers and the pig industry in 2008-09; and what account he took of minimum UK welfare standards in determining that support. [247560]

Jane Kennedy: The Government have been very supportive of a number of initiatives taken by the pig industry itself to address the challenging issues that have faced it during 2008-09. For example we are continuing to develop the public food sector procurement initiative and are currently producing a model specification to enable public bodies to take account of animal welfare in their contracts for pork and bacon products.

The Department is also pursuing, with all parties including supermarkets, how best to provide better origin information so that consumers can make more informed choices, without imposing additional legislation on the industry.

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the long-term economic sustainability of the pig industry; and if he will make a statement. [247563]

Jane Kennedy: Industry organisations such as the British Pig Executive (BPEX) and the National Pig Association (NPA) have kept me fully appraised of the current state and future economic prospects of the English pig industry. At their invitation I have "walked the pigmeat supply chain" to gain a fuller understanding of its economic and environmental sustainability.

DEFRA also routinely monitors the profitability of UK pig production on an annual basis through our 'Agriculture in the UK' publication.

The Environment, Food and Rural Affairs Committee published their report on 'The English Pig Industry' on 13 January. We welcome the report and we shall be making a full response to its recommendations in due course.

Plastic Bags

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to enable local authorities to require local retailers to reduce significantly their use of single-use carrier bags; and whether he plans to enable local authorities to prohibit the use of single-use carrier bags in (a) their areas and (b) specific circumstances. [248338]

Jane Kennedy: The Government have no such plans. It would be illegal under EU law to prohibit the use of bags, and the Government have no plans to do so or to empower local authorities to do so. A very significant reduction in the number of single-use carriers distributed by supermarkets is in prospect following the agreement reached between the Government and the British Retail Consortium in December, under which leading supermarkets have pledged to reduce bags by 50 per cent. by the spring.

Recycle Now Campaign

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the cost per compost bin of the sales promotion under the Recycle Now Campaign was in each of the last two years. [245823]

Jane Kennedy: The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) has run a home composting programme since 2004. During this period it has sold nearly two million home composting bins through partner local authorities. WRAP has also provided advice and support to those householders who have adopted home composting as an effective means of reducing their waste.

For the last two complete calendar years, the cost per compost bin spent on direct sales literature and local advertising was £3.13 in 2006, and £3.02 in 2007.

Rural Areas

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs by what means his Department advises other Government departments on rural proofing. [248187]

Huw Irranca-Davies: It is established Government policy that the needs and interests of rural people, businesses and communities should be appropriately reflected in all Departments' mainstream policies and delivery plans. Rural proofing is one of the main tools available to departments to achieve this. DEFRA works with other Government Departments to advise and encourage them to take account of rural interests in developing and implementing their policies, including meeting the requirement to address rural implications in published impact assessments.

DEFRA also sponsors the Commission for Rural Communities which publishes detailed rural proofing guidance, and works closely with Departments on the rural implications of their policies. DEFRA and the Commission for Rural Communities are currently working together to refresh and relaunch the support arrangements and materials available to national, regional and local government to improve rural proofing.

Rural Areas: Community Development

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has for further review of the effects of the policies set out in the Rural White Paper on rural communities. [248208]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Rural White Paper 2000 set out a vision of a living, working, vibrant and protected countryside in which people had fair and equitable access to the jobs and services they require. That vision is underpinned by the Rural Strategy 2004, and continues to be reflected in the Government's mainstream policies as they affect rural areas. The Government established the Commission for Rural Communities in 2005 to monitor and advise on the impact of its policies on rural areas, and currently has no plans to carry out any separate review.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps have been taken by (a) his Department and (b) the Commission for Rural Communities to measure (i) community involvement and (ii) community activity in rural areas. [248210]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Government are committed to supporting community involvement and activity in all areas, including rural ones, and is seeking to promote this through the initiatives announced in the Community Empowerment White Paper. DEFRA does not measure levels of community engagement, but the Department for Communities and Local Government has a range of mechanisms for this.

In addition, the Commission for Rural Communities has undertaken a number of activities in relation to community engagement, including a participation inquiry which looked at the role of local councillors as democratic champions acting on behalf of their communities.

Rural Community Buildings Network

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he plans to bring forward proposals to assist the rural community buildings network; and what funding is being made available to the networks. [248152]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA supported the formation of the Rural Community Buildings Network which was set up in July 2006 to improve communication on matters that affect rural community buildings, share information and best practice, and provide a unified voice to influence local and central government.

DEFRA does not fund this network, and has no plans to bring forward new proposals for it. However, DEFRA will continue to organise and host its regular meetings, and work with the group to promote the benefits of community buildings in rural areas.

Sustainable Development: Housing

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to ensure developers and contractors in the housebuilding industry consider the whole-life costs in the production process of housing; and whether he plans to introduce producer responsibility requirements for (a) construction industry and (b) housebuilding industry products. [244110]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA has no plans to introduce new regulatory requirements with respect to whole-life costs in the production process of housing. However, the higher levels of the Code for Sustainable Homes contain standards that encourage developers voluntarily to use materials with lower environmental impacts over their lifecycle. DEFRA has also worked with BSI and the Carbon Trust to develop a method (the PAS 2050) for any business to assess the lifecycle carbon emissions of a product or service. This was published on 29 October 2008.

Fly-posting

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of legislation governing fly-posting. [247550]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA funds Keep Britain Tidy to undertake the annual Local Environmental Quality Survey of England which assesses a variety of local environmental quality indicators, including fly-posting. The survey shows that fly-posting levels over the last four years have been low and judged as "good".

Since the introduction of the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003, local authorities have had the power to issue fixed penalty notices (FPNs) for fly-posting offences. The number of FPNs issued has increased from 883 with a payment rate of 59 per cent. in 2005-06 to 1,133 with a payment rate of 78 per cent. in 2006-07.

Waste Disposal: Gloucestershire

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects Gloucestershire County Council to provide its full business case for its waste strategy. [248209]

Jane Kennedy: Gloucestershire county council submitted their outline business case to DEFRA at the end of April 2008 and private finance initiative (PFI) credit support for their project was provisionally approved by the Under-Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change, my hon. Friend the Member for Lewisham, Deptford (Joan Ruddock), in August 2008. The project was considered by the cross-departmental Project Review Group (PRG) at its meeting on 21 October 2008 and provisionally approved subject to certain conditions. DEFRA made an announcement on this PFI application on 12 November 2008.

It is standard practice for PFI projects to submit final business cases to the sponsor Department, before the appointment of preferred bidder. In this case, this is expected to be in late 2010.

Water Charges

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent representations he has had seeking an exemption for churches, charities and community groups from surface area water charges; and if he will make a statement. [247769]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs has received a range of representations from various groups regarding surface water drainage charges. The Government are aware of the problem of affordability faced by some customers as a result of the switch to site area charging for surface water drainage and is looking at what can be done.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many hon. Members have written to (a) his Department and (b) Ofwat to complain about water companies charging schools, places of worship and community buildings based upon the surface water drainage use, compared to the previous system of flexible charges. [248149]

Huw Irranca-Davies: From 1 January 2008 to 31 December 2008, DEFRA received correspondence from approximately 60 Members of Parliament on behalf of either schools, places of worship or community buildings regarding changes to charging for surface water drainage.

For the same period, Ofwat received correspondence from 33 Members of Parliament on the subject.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions has he has had with Ofwat on its decision to encourage water companies to charge schools, places of worship and community buildings according to site area. [248151]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Secretary of State meets Ofwat regularly to discuss a range of issues. The Government are aware of the problem of affordability faced by some customers as a result of the switch to site area charging for surface water drainage and is looking at what can be done.

OLYMPICS

Total Costs

4. Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what recent estimate she has made of the total cost of staging the London 2012 Olympics. [248294]

Tessa Jowell: The cost of staging the games will be met from LOCOG's £2 billion budget.

It is intended that this budget will be self-financed—with the exception of a contribution from public funds towards the staging the Paralympic games. For this there is a provision of £66 million in the £9.325 billion public sector funding package.

7. Mr. Robathan: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what her most recent estimate is of the total cost of the London 2012 Olympics. [248297]

Tessa Jowell: The estimate of public expenditure on the London 2012 games remains within the £9.325 billion package that I announced in March 2007.

I provided further details of the budget in my statement of December 2007; and my progress updates of January and July 2008. My next progress report will be in early February.

Economic Downturn

5. Mr. Swire: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what assessment she has made of the effect of the economic downturn on the budget for the London 2012 Olympics. [248295]

Tessa Jowell: The recent economic climate has affected the financing of the Olympic Village and the International Broadcasting Centre/Main Press Centre (IBC/MPC) projects.

However the venues and infrastructure for the games—including the Olympic Village and the IBC/MPC—are still on track to be delivered within the £9.325 billion public sector funding package.

King George's Fields Legacy

6. John Mann: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what assessment she has made of the relevance of the King George's Fields legacy to the planning of the legacy for the London 2012 Olympics. [248296]

Tessa Jowell: As part of the legacy of the 2012 games we are aiming to have two million more physically active people and to get more young people into sport.

Playing fields can play a vital role in enabling people to be more active and I will be working with other departments to see what role playing fields can have in delivering this legacy.

Ticketing Policy

8. Simon Hughes: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what ticketing policy has been developed for the London 2012 Olympics; and if she will make a statement. [248298]

Tessa Jowell: The London Organising Committee (LOCOG) is responsible for developing its ticketing strategy for the London 2012 games.

I have held detailed discussions with the chairman and Director of Ticketing at LOCOG about the developing strategy, which will be published in 2010. Tickets will go on sale in 2011.

Olympic Games 2012: Digital Broadcasting

Tom Brake: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what discussions she has had with (a) the London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games and (b) other partners on coverage of the London 2012 Olympics on digital radio. [247046]

Tessa Jowell: The broadcasting rights to the Olympic games, which include digital radio rights, are managed by the IOC as part of their intellectual property rights. The UK broadcasting rights to the 2012 Olympic games were awarded to the BBC, as a member of the European Broadcasting Union. The broadcasting rights to the 2012 Paralympic games are yet to be awarded.

Olympic Games 2012: North East

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how many (a) schools and (b) students are making use of the pre-games training camps set up in the North East region in preparation for the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games. [248128]

Tessa Jowell: The North East region has identified 20 Olympic and eight Paralympic venues to be used by the athletes of visiting National Olympic and Paralympic Committees preparing for London 2012. The full range of the sporting facilities and services they can offer are contained in the Pre Games Training Camp Guide produced by the London Organising Committee of the Olympic and Paralympic Games.

In the majority of cases the pre games training camps are existing facilities with established community use programmes and as a consequence they are available for school and student organisations to utilise.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Benefits

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many and what proportion of income support claims have taken more than the target processing time in each month of the last two years, broken down by benefit delivery centre; [242208]

(2) how many and what proportion of jobseeker's allowance claims have taken more than 12 days to process from when the application was first received in each month of the last two years, broken down by (a) benefit delivery centre and (b) number of days to process. [242212]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus. I have asked the acting chief executive, Mel Groves to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions - "how many and what proportion of Income Support claims have taken more than the target processing time in each month of the last two years, broken down by Benefit Delivery Centre", and "how many and what proportion of Jobseekers Allowance claims have taken more than 12 days to process from when the application was first received in each month of the last two years, broken down by (a) Benefit Delivery Centre and (b) number of days to process". This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The target for Income Support (IS) Average Actual Clearance Time is 10 days. This is calculated from the date all the evidence requirements are met by the customer to the date a decision is made on their claim.

For Jobseekers Allowance (JSA) the Average Actual Clearance Time (AACT) target is 11.5 days. This was reduced from a 12 day target in 0708 to 11.5 days for 08-09. The AACT is calculated from the date of the initial contact made by the customer to the date a decision is made on the claim.

Our benefit processing systems calculate the AACT for both IS and JSA by taking each claim clearances time using the dates as described and calculates an average across the volume of claims processed. The Management Information system in support of these targets generates reports around percentages and volumes cleared within set time bands. While this provides the business with additional management information it is not in direct correlation with the AACT data as they are calculated in different ways.

For IS the time bands recorded are claims processed in 0-5 days, 0-13 days and all claims processed. The JSA time bands recorded are claims processed in 0-5 days, 0-10 days, 0-16 days, 0 -21 days and all claims processed.

The information for October 2006 to October 2008 broken down by Benefit Delivery Centre has been placed in the House Library. The data recorded is to two decimal places as this is how we receive the raw data, when we formally report our targets we round those figures up to one decimal place.

Departmental Air Travel

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend, East of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 58W, on departmental air travel, whether figures for 2007-08 have now been calculated. [242014]

Jonathan Shaw: The air travel figures for the Department for 2007-08, and which are due to be paid imminently to the 'GCO_2F Government Carbon Offsetting Fund', are provided in the following table.

All departmental official travel is undertaken in accordance with civil service management code.

April 2007 to March 2008

	KMs travelled	Miles travelled	tCO_2e (CO_2 emissions)	Offsetting cost[1] (£)
Domestic air travel	12,599,850.34	7,825,994	2169.95	21,504.17
Short-haul air travel	1,047,032.91	650,331	297.64	2,949.63
Long-haul air travel	1,397,087.16	867,756	321.62	3,187.26
Total	15,043,970.41	9,344,081.00	2789.21	27,641.06

[1] To be paid by DWP to GCO_2F.

Departmental ICT

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to page 36 of the Departmental Framework 2008, if he will place in the Library a copy of the future work programme for the Customer Information System. [240331]

Mr. McNulty: To place the work programme for the Customer Information System in the Library would make public information that may jeopardise the security of the Customer Information System and the personal information it holds. Its disclosure would not be in the public interest. I refer the hon. Member to the answer of 17 December 2008, Official Report, column 826W, which sets out the Department's approach to data and information security.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what computer systems his Department uses to store (a) financial and (b) non-financial data, broken down by (i) version number, (ii) supplier, (iii) system name, (iv) underlying database and (v) operating system. [241313]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department has 149 major application systems currently supported by its existing hosting contract(s) as listed in the following table. They store and/or access a wide range of financial or non-financial data.

It is not in the public interest to provide the information requested for each system and I refer the hon. Member to the answer on 17 December 2008, Official Report, column 826W, which sets out the Department's approach to data and information security.

Software versions are governed by the Department's Enterprise Architecture which specifies that they should be no more than one version older than the current baseline version, so that systems are up to date and support is available.

Employment and Support Allowance

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what his Department's estimate is of the number of people who will be in receipt of employment and support allowance (a) in total, (b) in the work-related activity group and (c) in the support group in each of the next five years; and if he will make a statement; [241197]

(2) what his Department's estimate is of the number of people who will be on employment and support allowance (ESA), broken down by (a) income-based ESA and (b) contributory-based ESA in each of the next five years; and if he will make a statement. [241199]

Mr. McNulty: We expect 10 per cent. of new employment and support allowance customers will flow into the support group, and 90 per cent. of new employment and support allowance customers will flow into the work-related activity group. However, we expect that at least 20 per cent. of customers in the longer term employment and support allowance caseload will be in the support group, because these people will be much less likely to leave the benefit than those in the work-related activity group.

Information on estimated caseloads up to the end of the Government's spending plan period, to 2010-11, is in the following table.

Employment and support allowance: estimated benefit caseloads

1. Figures for 2008-09 relate to six months only; employment and support allowance was introduced on 27 October 2008.
2. Figures are rounded to the nearest 10,000. Components may not sum to totals due to rounding.
3. Figures are consistent with autumn/pre-Budget report 2008 benefit expenditure tables, to be published shortly on the DWP website. These will be accessible via the following link: http://www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd4/expenditure.asp

Employment: Lone Parents

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average income of a lone parent with a single child in receipt of income support was at the latest date for which information is available; and if he will make a statement. [244143]

Kitty Ussher: The median net total weekly income for lone parents with a single child in receipt of Income Support is £210.

Notes:

1. The Family Resources Survey is a nationally representative sample of approximately 26,000 households.
2. Data for 2006-07 was collected between April 2006 and March 2007.
3. The figures are based on a sample of households which have been adjusted for non-response using multi-purpose grossing factors which align the Family Resources Survey to Government Office Region populations by age and sex. Estimates are subject to sampling error and remaining non-response error.
4. Weekly income is based on self-assessment and therefore may be subject to misreporting.

Employment: Yorkshire and the Humber

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he plans to take to maintain levels of employment in Yorkshire and Humberside. [242683]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide my hon. Friend with the information requested.

Letter from Ruth Owen:

The Secretary of State has asked Mel Groves to reply to your question concerning what steps he plans to take to maintain the level of employment in Yorkshire and Humberside. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to Mr Groves as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus. Mr Groves is currently on annual leave. I am replying on his behalf as Chief Operating Officer.

Jobcentre Plus has a key role in helping both individuals and employers in the current economic situation. Our priority is to ensure people receive the benefits they are entitled to and the support and training necessary to get back to work as soon as possible and help employers fill their vacancies with suitably qualified people.

As you know we have seen a rise in the number of people claiming Jobseeker's Allowance across the region. Jobcentre Plus is very well placed to help people who have recently lost their jobs to move back into work as soon as possible. While around 28,000 new customers claimed Jobseeker's Allowance in November across the region, over 34,000 new vacancies were notified to us and 21,700 customers moved off the register.

We continue to actively engage with employers across the region to help them meet their local recruitment needs. We have had a magnificent response through our Local Employment Partnerships initiative with 3,120 employers now signed up to offering work opportunities for our most disadvantaged customers and newly redundant people, resulting in 6,417 jobs. We are also working closely with local employers and partners, for example, in the call centre, care and retail sectors to offer bespoke pre employment training to fill their significantly increased vacancies. We also offer a wide range of support for people facing redundancy. This includes helping support employers to retain their staff through retraining; and encouraging staff to gain vocational qualifications to prepare for the economic recovery rather than having to make staff redundant. We also support employers where they need to go into short time or temporary stop working and we are tailoring our advice to meet their needs.

A strengthened Rapid Response Service was launched on 12 November 2008, doubling national funding from £3 million to £6 million. Through the Rapid Response Service, Jobcentre Plus has access to funds to enable those individuals made redundant to receive the necessary help to get them back into work. Such measures could include:

Skills Transfer Analysis (to help identify an individual's transferable skills and training needs relevant to the local labour market);

Job-Focussed Training (to assist individuals with appropriate training and certification linked to employment or self-employment linked to the needs of the local labour market).

We will also visit employees facing redundancy at their place of work to explain the support and benefits available to them. Employees can also access the vacancies we hold nationally by visiting our website at www.jobcentreplus.gov.uk or by telephoning us on 0845 6060 234 and by using the jobpoints at their local Jobcentre. Additional information is also available through our 'Job Kit' which provides guidance and support for customers on benefits and how to look for a job and our 'Find your way' leaflet for employers.

The Government announced on 12 January 2009 that it is enhancing the support available to customers who are unemployed for six months from April 2009. This includes further support from Jobcentre Plus advisers, plus options to take up subsidised employment, self employment, training or voluntary work. This will all be available in the Yorkshire and Humber Region, delivered through Jobcentre Plus and partners.

Jobcentre Plus is also represented on the Regional Economic Delivery Group, chaired by the Yorkshire and Humber Regional Minister Rosie Winterton. The group is working to secure and coordinate public sector infrastructure investment and steer the regional response to the economic climate. Reporting to this group is the Yorkshire and Humber Financial Services Task force led by Yorkshire Forward (the Regional Development Agency). This group is co-ordinating the region's response to potential job losses and producing a long term strategy to secure the future of high skilled employment in the sector. This working group is currently developing an action plan to support Bradford and Bingley Building Society. The group will be widening its remit to cover other industrial sectors.

In addition to this support we recently decided that our customers in Yorkshire and the Humber can have access to CV writing, Jobsearch advice and support through our Programme Centres immediately rather than waiting 6 months.

I have asked Ian Hunter, District Manager West Yorkshire, to meet with you to discuss the help Jobcentre Plus are providing to maintain the level of employment across the region.

Housing Benefit

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average (a) daily, (b) weekly and (c) monthly level of housing benefit claimed per claimant was (i) in total and (ii) in each of the smallest geographical areas for which figures are available, in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [246594]

Kitty Ussher: The available information has been placed in the Library.

Jobcentres

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the Answer of 26 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1993-94W, on jobcentres, what estimate he has made of the number of people using jobcentres in each year since 2002. [241038]

Mr. McNulty: The information is not available.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of jobseeker's allowance claimants who had better off in-work calculations carried out by Jobcentre Plus in the last year were found to be (a) worse off, (b) between £0 and £9 a week better off, (c) between £10 and £19 a week better off, (d) between £20 and £29 a week better off, (e) between £30 and £49 a week better off, (f) between £50 and £74 a week better off, (g) between £75 and £99 a week better off and (h) more than £100 a week better off; and if he will make a statement. [242187]

Mr. McNulty: The information is not available.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what the average time between application and payment of (a) jobseeker's allowance and (b) income support was in each month of the last two years; [242207]

(2) what the average time taken to complete the processing of (a) jobseeker's allowance and (b) income support claims from when the initial application was received in each month of the last two years, broken down by benefit delivery centre. [242213]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus. I have asked the acting chief executive, Mel Groves to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions:

"what the average time between application and payment of (a) jobseeker's allowance and (b) income support was in each month of the last two years"

"what the average time taken to complete the processing of (a) jobseeker's allowance and (b) income support claims from when the initial application was received in each month of the last two years, broken down by benefit delivery centre"

This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The target for Jobseekers Allowance (JSA) Average Actual Clearance Time (AACT) is 11.5 days. This is calculated from the date of initial contact made by the customer to the date a decision is made on their claim.

The target for Income Support (IS) AACT is 10 days. This is calculated from the date all the evidence requirements are met by the customer to the date a decision is made on their claim.

In other words only JSA clearance times are calculated from the date of initial application date.

Please see attached at annex 1 data that displays the AACT for JSA and IS for each month in the last two years. The data recorded is sometimes to two decimal places as that is how we receive the raw data, when we formally report our targets we round those figures to one decimal place.

Poverty: Children

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what definition his Department uses of child poverty; when this was last amended; what recent discussions he has had with Ministerial colleagues on the definition; what recent representations he has received on the definition; and if he will make a statement. [261164]

Kitty Ussher: The Department uses three indicators to monitor levels of child poverty; they were established in 2003 following a lengthy period of consultation.

Absolute low income measures whether the poorest families are seeing their income rise in real terms. The threshold is fixed as equal to the relative low income threshold for the baseline year of 1998-99 expressed in today's prices.

Relative low income measures whether the incomes of the poorest families are keeping pace with the growth of incomes in the economy as a whole. This indicator measures the number of children living in households below 60 per cent. of contemporary median equivalised income. This is the indicator which is used to measure performance against the public service agreement target to halve child poverty by 2010-11.

Material deprivation and low income combined provides a wider measure of people's living standards. This indicator measures the number of children living in households that are both materially deprived and have an income below 70 per cent. of contemporary equivalised median income. More details can be found in the consultation conclusion document, Measuring Child Poverty, available in the Library.

Since 1998 progress has been made against all of the indicators. 600,000 children have been lifted out of relative low income between 1998-99 and 2006-07, a shift from 3.4 million children to 2.9 million children. The number of children living in absolute low income has halved from 3.4 million to 1.7 million. Between 2004-05, the first year data was available, and 2006-07 the number of children in the UK defined as poor using the combined indicator of relative low income and material deprivation fell by 200,000 from 2.2 million to 2.0 million on the particular material deprivation threshold that was chosen.

Low income is not the only dimension to poverty and a child's quality of life, including access to health care, education and a safe environment, are critical. The three indicators are therefore underpinned by the broader Opportunity for all indicators. Opportunity for all is the Government's report on poverty and social exclusion which includes a wide range of poverty and social exclusion indicators for children and young people (as well as working age adults, older people and communities) including health, education and housing. Details can be found on the Opportunity for all website at:

While we have made substantial progress in tackling child poverty we are not complacent. Despite the scale of the challenge the Government's commitment is stronger than ever. The Prime Minister's recent announcement of our intention to legislate on child poverty gives us renewed impetus.

The Secretary of State meets regularly with Cabinet colleagues and others on the issue of child poverty. The Child Poverty Unit was established at the end of 2007 to put a sharper focus on cross-Government working to develop a truly integrated approach to tackling child poverty. The Government are committed to working with stakeholders to develop a strategy and move forward with legislation.

Social Security Benefits: Lone Parents

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the average sum to be lent under the Lone Parent Transition Loans in the next 12 months; what assessment he has made of the effect on this figure of changes to the eligibility rules for income support; and if he will make a statement. [246907]

Kitty Ussher: No such estimate has been made. However, we have now decided to amend social fund crisis loan directions to enable lone parents to receive payment of a transition loan of up to 100 per cent. of their personal allowance rather than 75 per cent. as is the case with existing crisis loans.

Unemployment Benefits

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what guidance has been issued to staff at Jobcentre Plus on whether claimants should be awarded employment and support allowance or jobseeker's allowance; and if he will make a statement. [246130]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what guidance has been issued to staff at Jobcentre Plus on whether claimants should be awarded Employment and Support Allowance or Jobseeker's Allowance. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus has provided its business delivery areas, i.e. Contact Centres, Jobcentres and Benefit Delivery Centres, with detailed guidance that clearly sets out the criteria and conditionality for claiming and awarding Employment and Support Allowance, and the administrative procedures for dealing with these claims.

Corresponding guidance on other benefits such as Jobseeker's Allowance has been revised to reflect the introduction of Employment and Support Allowance to provide clarity and consistency across benefits, which enables staff to identify potential entitlement to the appropriate benefit, and advise customers accordingly.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Crime: Offensive Weapons

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Solicitor-General if she will make a statement on recent trends in rates of prosecution of knife crime in (a) Northamptonshire and (b) England. [248589]

The Solicitor-General: The Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) holds no comprehensive record covering all offences in which a knife was a factor. Relevant offences may be prosecuted under a range of legislation, and cannot be distinguished as a discrete body of information.

CPS records do provide a count of the number of offences of possession of an offensive weapon, including knives and other bladed articles, in respect of which a prosecution commenced. Figures for the last three calendar years are summarised on the table below. The figures also include offences of possession of weapons other than knives and bladed articles, but CPS records do not allow these proceedings to be identified separately. Figures are shown separately for CPS Northamptonshire, for England, and for England and Wales in total.

The level of prosecutions for these offences in total has risen somewhat over the last three years. In Northamptonshire the number of offences in which a prosecution commenced rose by 25, or 12.3 per cent. between 2006 and 2008, although there was no change between 2007 and 2008. In England, prosecutions rose over the three year same period by 1,648 (7.2 per cent.), and in England and Wales they increased by 1,656 (6.9 per cent.).

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much has been spent on ammunition for operations in Helmand province in each month since 2001; and if he will make a statement. [245682]

Mr. Hutton: Operation Herrick (Afghanistan) costs are prepared and audited on an annual basis for the whole of the operation and do not identify separately information on the cost of ammunition used in Helmand Province, where UK operations began in 2006-07. The un-audited internal data on the consumption of ordnance-related stock for the whole operation in 2006-07 and 2007-08 is:

Afghanistan	2006-07	£ million 2007-08
Guided weapons, missiles and bombs	47	57
Armament Stores	69	121
Total	116	178

Notes:
1. These costs include the use of ammunition expended during pre-deployment training.
2. Armament stores mainly relate to ammunition and shells but can also include such items as the issue of small arms.

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his most recent estimate is of the cost to the public purse of UK military intervention in Afghanistan in each year since it began. [248734]

Mr. Hutton: The total annual audited cost of operations in Afghanistan are set out in the following table:

Afghanistan

	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08	2008-09	Total to date

Total	221	311	46	67	199	738	1,504	2,318	5,404

MOD identifies the costs of operations in terms of the net additional costs it has incurred. The costs that would have been incurred regardless of the operation taking place, such as wages and salaries, are not included. Savings on activities that have not occurred because of the operation—such as training exercises—are taken into account in arriving at the net figures.

Note: The figures for 2008-09 are unaudited estimates reflected in the Winter Supplementary Estimates published in November.

Aircraft Carriers

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what fuel will be used to power the new aircraft carriers; and what their home port will be. [248692]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The Future Aircraft Carriers (HMS Queen Elizabeth and HMS Prince of Wales) will be powered using marine diesel fuel. Their home port will be Her Majesty's Naval Base Portsmouth.

Armed Forces: Housing

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the most recent estimate is of the number of (a) single living accommodation and (b) service families accommodation units containing asbestos. [248657]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Although information on asbestos in accommodation is available, it is not held centrally or in a consistent form and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many complaints were made to Modern Housing Solutions on the quality of repairs undertaken on service families accommodation in the last 12 months. [248660]

Mr. Kevan Jones: A total of 508 complaints were received by Modern Housing Solutions (MHS) between 1 January and 31 December 2008 specifically about the standard of workmanship.

MHS is responsible for the maintenance and repair of approximately 45,000 service family accommodation properties in England and Wales.

Armed Forces: Internet

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) whether (a) the Army and (b) his Department has received (i) complaints from members of the public and (ii) communications from police forces about content posted on internet social networking sites by serving Army personnel; [248688]

(2) what measures (a) the Army and (b) his Department have in place to monitor content posted on internet social networking sites by serving Army personnel; how many instances of sectarian or racist postings by soldiers have been identified; and whether any Army personnel have been disciplined as a consequence of such activities. [248694]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: While certain websites are monitored to gauge opinion in response to events, neither the Army nor the Ministry of Defence has procedures routinely to monitor material posted by Army personnel on internet social networking sites.

There are no records of the Army or the Ministry of Defence having received communications from police forces about content on such sites, but during 2008, the Ministry of Defence received a very small number of complaints from members of the public regarding postings allegedly by serving Army personnel. Of those, only two cases were found actually to involve serving personnel and alleged sectarian or racist behaviour. In both cases, following thorough investigations, formal disciplinary action was deemed inappropriate.

Armed Forces: Manpower

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) required and (b) actual trained strength of each (i) regular infantry and (ii) Royal Marine battalion is. [248693]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Figures for Infantry battalions are shown in the following table:

Armed Forces: Training

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many personnel at each grade or rank are working within his Department and the armed services on the delivery of the defence training contract awarded to Metrix. [247065]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The number of Defence personnel who are employed in the Defence Training Review (DTR) Package 1 Integrated Project Team to deliver the DTR Package 1 contract are as follows:

Military Personnel:

Brigadier x one
Captain RN x one
Commander x one Wing Commander x one
Lt Colonel x two Major x one
Warrant Officer two x two Lt Commander x two Squadron Leader x one
Ministry of Defence Police Chief Inspector x one

Civil Service Personnel:

B1 x two B2 x three
C1 x 10
C2 x five
D x four E1 x two

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what revisions have been made to the timetable and the budget for the delivery of package 1 of the defence training contract awarded to Metrix; and if he will make a statement. [247066]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: No further revisions have been made to the timetable and budget for defence training review package 1 since my statement on 9 October 2008, Official Report, column 453.

The Metrix consortium's revised proposals have been received and are being evaluated. Only once the evaluation process has concluded can any definitive judgment be made for the future programme.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the requirements are that form the basis of the request his Department has made to Metrix to submit a revised plan for package 1 of the defence training contract. [247067]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The requirements of the request to Metrix were to formally establish an affordable package 1 and confirm that the project can be delivered, and is commercially and technically compliant. The request did not seek a full resubmission of the Metrix bid, but instead asked for responses to a number of key project issues across work streams that have changed since the Preferred Bidder announcement and have the potential to affect the project's performance, cost or timetable.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles

David Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what assessment he has made of the effect of the Warrior Fightability and Lethality Improvement Programme on the Defence Support Group; and what partnering arrangements are being considered; [247775]

(2) what procurement arrangements have been made for the Warrior Fightability and Lethality Improvement Programme; and if he will make a statement. [247776]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The Warrior Fightability and Lethality Improvement Programme is part of the wider Warrior Capability Sustainment Programme (WCSP), which will upgrade the Warrior Infantry Fighting Vehicle to meet the current and future requirements of the British Army. The programme is in the early stages of its Acquisition Cycle and, as it progresses into its Assessment Phase, it is planned that bidders will develop hardware demonstrators of their turret proposals, along with supporting technical and commercial submissions for further consideration. As the programme has not yet passed the Initial Gate approval point, I am unable to comment further on the proposed procurement arrangements or on the programme's effect on the Defence Support Group at this time.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the reasons were for the decision to restructure the Future Rapid Effects System programme. [248363]

Mr. Quentin Davies: I refer the hon. Member to the Equipment Examination written ministerial statement given on 11 December 2008, Official Report, column 65WS.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what representations he has received on commercial conditions affecting General Dynamics UK's ability to procure the Piranha V contract; and if he will support General Dynamics UK in bidding for the contract. [248365]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The withdrawal of General Dynamics (UK)'s provisional preferred bidder status for the Future Rapid Effect System (FRES) Utility Vehicle Design was announced to this House by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State on 11 December 2008, as part of a statement outlining the results of the Equipment Examination. This decision followed a period of intensive negotiations with GD (UK), including correspondence with the company, to address a number of commercial issues, during which it became clear to both parties that it would not be possible to reach agreement on the commercial conditions required to enable further progress on the basis of the current procurement strategy. The Department will now consider how and when to reset the Utility Vehicle competition to ensure we provide Defence with the best possible capability at the best value for money. General Dynamics (UK) will have an opportunity to compete in any future Utility Vehicle competition.

Charities

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence to which (a) charities and (b) voluntary organisations his Department has provided funding in the last five years; and how much funding was provided to each. [247363]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The information is not held in the format requested. Data has been collected, however, as part of a special annual survey exercise carried out across Government on behalf of the Office of the Third Sector (OTS), Cabinet Office. The information provided to the OTS shows the following payments have been made to charities and voluntary organisations in the five years 2001-02 to 2005-06:

Ministry of Defence	2005-06	2004-05	2003-04	2002-03	2001-02

Museums	4,800,000	4,600,000	4,442,000	6,063,000	2,577,000

Notes:

1. Expenditure on "Forces welfare including sport and other voluntary cadet groups" includes organisations to support service personnel. Their families and veterans, e.g. SSAFA, WRVS, Pre-school Learning Alliance, NAAFI, The Naval Families' Foundation, Help Information Voluntary Exchange (HIVE) and sports bodies.
2. Museums include, for example, the RAF museum and the National Army museum.
3. Voluntary cadet groups refer to those groups run by volunteers in schools, rather than groups based in, for example, Territorial Army premises, and which receive a contribution from the MOD; also to Sea Scouts. These count as uniformed voluntary youth groups, and are accepted as such by MOD and OTS.
4. The figures do not include expenditure by any MOD agencies/NDPBs, e.g. Commonwealth War Graves Commission, Royal Hospital, Chelsea, or the Met Office.
5. Information on the expenditure to voluntary bodies for the years 2006-07 and 2007-08 is in the process of being collected by MOD.
6. Neither MOD nor the Cabinet Office can guarantee that the figures provided cover the total expenditure with the charities and voluntary sector. The MOD is aiming to provide more comprehensive figures in the collection process which is currently underway for 2006-07, 2007-08 and future years.

Defence Equipment: Procurement

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what progress has been made on developing high performance steel armour; and what plans the Government has to purchase such steel for the armed forces; [247017]

(2) if his Department will make it its policy to obtain new steel armour from UK manufacturers. [247018]

Mr. Quentin Davies: High performance steel has been a key constituent of armour for many years. A collaboration between the Defence Science and Technology Laboratory (DSTL), Cambridge university and QinetiQ has resulted in the development of a new, high performance armour steel known as Super Bainite. Successful production trials have been completed and we are engaging with UK industry to take production and exploitation forward.

We have no current plans to alter our policy of sourcing steel armour from suppliers worldwide. This approach ensures the best armour solutions for defence and the best deal for the taxpayer.

Defence Support Group

David Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the synergy study on the Defence Support Group will be published. [247777]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Work is continuing on the synergy study, with the Defence Support Group currently undertaking to examine the similar work activities carried out at its Sealand, Stafford and Donnington sites. This study's aim is to explore the potential benefits for Defence resulting from the merger of the Army Base Repair Organisation and the Defence Aviation Repair Agency to create the Defence Support Group. I will write to my hon. Friend when this work is complete.

Defence Support Group: Apprentices

David Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what level of new apprenticeships the Defence Support Group plans to commission at Donnington, Shropshire in 2009; and what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on expanding the programme to support West Midlands manufacturing in the current economic climate. [247774]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Defence Support Group management team at Donnington is currently discussing what intake of new apprentices is required for 2009. Intake numbers will be determined by the future needs of the business as well as age profiling of the existing work force. No discussions have taken place about expanding our apprentice programme to support other local manufacturing organisations beyond what is currently being offered.

Departmental Air Travel

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many official journeys (a) he and his predecessors and (b) his officials made by plane in each of the last five years. [247505]

Mr. Kevan Jones: This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, I can confirm that all travel by Ministers and civil servants is undertaken in accordance with the Ministerial Code and the Civil Service Management Code respectively.

Departmental Catering

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which (a) food and (b) drinks suppliers have been used by his Department in each of the last three years; and how much his Department paid to each such supplier in each of those years. [248387]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Food and drink provision across MOD establishments is usually met through facility management multi-activity contracts, or is contracted out under the Pay As You Dine initiative, in which catering contractors are responsible for sourcing their own food and drink. Details of each supplier and costs are not held centrally and therefore could be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

Food and drink for personnel on overseas operations, on UK exercises, and serving on ships and submarines is provided by the MOD single food supply contract with Purple Foodservice Solutions Ltd. (PFS). PFS is required to seek value for money in the open market, consistent with meeting MOD quality standards. Additionally, suppliers of ration pack and in-flight meals and snack components are listed in the following table.

Departmental Equality

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what information his Department holds on the (a) sex, (b) ethnicity, (c) age, (d) disability, (e) sexual orientation and (f) religion or belief of its staff; and what assessment he has made of his Department's performance against its targets relating to diversity in its workforce. [246015]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Ministry of Defence's assessment of its performance against its targets relating to the diversity of our workforce is contained in the annual report against our Equality and Diversity Scheme 2008-11. The report covering the period 2007-08 will be published early January, and will be available both in the Library of the House and on the website:

www.mod.uk.

Departmental Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make it his policy that temporary and permanent employees of his Department employed at the same grade receive the same hourly rate of pay. [248409]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 98W.

Military Aircraft

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Tucano aircraft are in service with the Royal Air Force; and what plans have been made to manage the retirement of the fleet. [248174]

Mr. Quentin Davies: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Woodspring (Dr. Fox) on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 105W.

The run-down of the Tucano fleet will be managed so as to achieve a smooth transition to any replacement capability delivered as part of the UK Military Flying Training System and will ensure that training commitments are met.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many air-to-air refuelling sorties were flown by the (a) Tornado and (b) Harrier fleets in the United Kingdom in each month of each of the last five financial years; [248571]

(2) what the rate of rejection of eco-engines from first line in the United Kingdom was in each week of each of the last five financial years; [248526]

(3) how much aviation fuel was transferred to the Tornado air defence and ground attack fleets during air-to-air refuelling operations in the United Kingdom in each week of each of the last five financial years; [248527]

(4) how much aviation fuel was used by the Tornado air defence and ground attack fleets in the United Kingdom in each week of each of the last five financial years; [248528]

(5) how much aviation fuel was consumed by the Harrier fleet in the United Kingdom in each week of each of the last five financial years; [248577]

(6) what the rate of rejection of RB 199 aero engines from first line was in the United Kingdom in each week of each of the last five financial years. [248585]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I will write to the hon. Member.

Military Intelligence

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when his Department plans to begin the next phase of the Intelligence, Surveillance, Target Acquisition and Reconnaissance capability. [248581]

Mr. Quentin Davies: ISTAR capability is being developed through a range of programmes which are at different stages. Accordingly it is not possible to identify a distinct and comprehensive phase of ISTAR capability.

Our general approach to ISTAR capability was set out in the MOD Memorandum published in the HCDC report on 'The contribution of Unmanned Aerial Vehicles to ISTAR capability' (Thirteenth Report of Session 2007-08).

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what upgrades were made to Brimstone air to surface missiles during 2008; and what further upgrades his Department has planned. [248175]

Mr. Quentin Davies: During 2008 the Brimstone missile was upgraded to provide an air-launched low-collateral variant that could be used against static and moving ground targets. In addition, we are currently considering the development of an Insensitive Munition variant of Brimstone.

Trident

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Trident II systems his Department is planning to build; and what estimate he has made of the likely length of time between the delivery of each Trident II. [247539]

Mr. Hutton: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 111W.

Turkey: Defence Sales

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much the public purse has received for the sale of the three Type-42 destroyers Glasgow, Cardiff and Newcastle to a Turkish ship breaker. [248812]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The final sale price for the T42s will be dependant on the volume of metals salvaged and its market price following recycling. The arrangement entered into by the MOD, secured following a competitive tender, will provide a minimum guaranteed price and potentially a further payment depending upon the prevailing market conditions.

UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what reservations his Department is seeking to make in relation to the ratification of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities; and if he will make a statement. [248192]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Reservations and/or interpretative declarations in respect of the UN convention on the rights of persons with disabilities are being considered by four Departments: Home Office, Ministry of Defence, DCSF and DWP. This information is in the public domain and was most recently referred to in an answer to Lord Morris of Manchester by Lord McKenzie of Luton, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State Department for Works and Pension on 18 December 2008, Official Report, column WA65.

The precise details of the reservations/interpretative declarations are being finalised by the four Departments, and will be subject to clearance by DA Committee before the necessary Explanatory Memorandum for ratification of the convention is laid for parliamentary scrutiny.

The Ministry of Defence has indicated that there is a need to enter a reservation in respect of the armed forces reflecting the relevant provisions of EC Framework Directive Employment (2000/78/EC) and the Disability Discrimination Act (DDA). MOD officials are working closely with DWP officials to finalise the wording of the armed forces' reservation which is required to preserve the combat effectiveness of the armed forces.

Unmanned Air Vehicles

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will introduce plans to trial further technology demonstrator unmanned aerial vehicles. [247761]

Mr. Quentin Davies [holding answer 15 January 2009]: The Mantis and Taranis UAV technology demonstrator programmes are already progressing. UAVs have proved their worth on current operations and we recognise the role they are likely to play in the future mix of military capability. Details of further relevant research activities are contained within our Defence Technology Plan, due to be published shortly.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Predator or Reaper systems have been purchased by the Government; and how many are still flying. [248691]

Mr. Quentin Davies: We have purchased one Reaper system (also known as Predator B), comprising air vehicles, ground stations, communications infrastructure and HQ facilities. I am withholding information on the number of air vehicles currently in use as its disclosure would, or would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Veterans: Pensions

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many veterans who have been diagnosed as having less than 12 months to live, have applied for a serious ill-health lump sump payment under an armed forces pension scheme; and if he will make a statement. [244828]

Mr. Kevan Jones: No veterans, diagnosed as having less than 12 months to live, have applied for a serious ill-health lump sum payment under armed forces pension scheme 2005.

Warships: Procurement

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) surface ships and (b) submarines are on order; and when each is due to be (i) completed and (ii) entered into service. [247016]

Mr. Quentin Davies: We are in the middle of a very large programme of investment in new warships, centred on the Type 45 Destroyers, the Future Aircraft Carriers and the Astute Class submarines.

Of the six Type 45 Destroyers on order, two, Daring and Dauntless, have been built and commenced their sea trials. The other four vessels, which are in various stages of build, are expected to reach similar stages in the coming years: Diamond in 2009, Dragon in 2010, Defender in 2011 and Duncan in 2012. Daring is expected to enter into service next year with the other five at a rate of approximately one a year thereafter.

The two new Aircraft Carriers, Queen Elizabeth and the Prince of Wales, were originally due to enter service in 2014 and 2016 respectively. The Equipment Examination found that there is scope to improve alignment with the Joint Combat Aircraft project. This is likely to mean delaying the in-service dates of the new carriers by one to two years.

The four Astute Class submarines that have been ordered (Astute, Ambush, Artful and Audacious) are in various stages of production. The planned in-service dates are subject to ongoing detailed review. There has, however, been some delay to the programme and we are in the process of re-baselining the programme timetable and an announcement will be made in due course. We intend to note a further three submarines in this class.

TRANSPORT

Air Routes

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport under what circumstances he would consider designating the air link between London Gatwick and Plymouth as a Public Service Obligation (PSO) route as defined in European Regulation 2408/92 and 95/93; and if he will make a statement. [248094]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 15 January 2009]: The criteria for imposing a PSO were set out in "Guidance on the Protection of Regional Air Access to London", published by the Department in December 2005. It can be found on the DfT website at:

www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/aviation/domestic/praa/

Under the Guidance, it is for regional stakeholders or devolved Administrations to apply to the Secretary of State for a PSO to be imposed. No application has been received in relation to the Plymouth to Gatwick route.

The EU rules governing the imposition of PSOs on air routes have been refined by Regulation EC 1008/2008. The Department will be revisiting the 2005 guidance in the light of this, but we do not anticipate making large scale changes.

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his policy is on the designation of the air service between London Gatwick and Plymouth as a public service obligation route in accordance with EC Regulation 2408/92 and 95/93; and if he will make a statement. [249383]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The criteria for imposing a PSO were set out in "Guidance on the Protection of Regional Air Access to London", published by the Department for Transport in December 2005. It can be found on the DFT website at:

www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/aviation/domestic/praa/.

Under the guidance, it is for regional stakeholders or devolved Administrations to apply to the Secretary of State for a PSO to be imposed. No application has been received in relation to the Plymouth to Gatwick route.

Aviation

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of UK regional air services are operated by each airline in each region. [248095]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 15 January 2009]: The information requested is set out in the following table, which has been compiled by the CAA.

Major airlines' percentage share of UK terminal airport passengers (scheduled and charter) by DFT planning region in 2007

	Scotland	Wales	Northern Ireland	North of England	Midlands	South West	South East	Percentage Total UK excluding Channel Islands

[1] MyTravel and Thomas Cook Airlines have now merged.
[2] Thomson and First Choice Airways have now merged.
[3] XL Airways filed for bankruptcy in September 2008.
[4] Airlines which don't have at least a 2 per cent. share of passengers in any regions (may include subsidiaries of named airlines).

Notes:
1. Terminal passengers are sourced from CAA Airport Statistics, and includes all reporting UK airports.
2. A one-way domestic trip is counted twice, on departure from one airport, and on arrival at the other.
3. Using other measures of airline activity, such as flights, or passenger or seat kilometres, will give a different picture.
4. Individual airlines are listed where they hold a unique air operator certificate. However, some may have common ownership, such as the three bmi airlines.

Aviation: Monopolies

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what percentage of overall airline activity in a region would have to be provided by one operator for the position to be considered a regional monopoly; and if he will make a statement. [248093]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 15 January 2009]: The provision of air services is subject to general UK competition law. The EC treaty and the Competition Act 1998 both prohibit, in certain circumstances, conduct by one or more undertakings which amounts to an abuse of a dominant position in a relevant market.

Any assessment of whether an undertaking is dominant in a relevant market, including an airline in the provision of air services, would be a matter for the Office of Fair Trading. Whether an undertaking is dominant will be dependent on both the relevant market definition and the ability of the undertaking to act independently of its competitors, customers and consumers rather than any overall percentage share of a market.

Channel Tunnel Railway Line

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what charges are levied on freight companies for use of the high-speed Channel Tunnel Rail Link between London St. Pancras and Ebbsfleet International; and how much freight has been moved on this line since it was commissioned in 2007. [249304]

Paul Clark: The future charges for freight companies to use the Channel Tunnel Rail Link have been subject to recent consultation and High Speed 1 is discussing these charges with freight companies and industry representatives as part of their consideration of that consultation. Further details can be found on the HS1 website at:

www.highspeed1.co.uk

Freight services have yet to commence on the new line, and no significant freight has been moved on it since 2007.

Dartford-Thurrock Crossing: Tolls

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will extend the boundary for exemption from the Dartford Crossing toll to residents of Billericay, Sevenoaks, Erith and Thamesmead, Gravesham, Bexleyheath and Castle Point. [248856]

Paul Clark: The purpose of the charge at the Dartford crossing is to tackle congestion. The local discount areas of Dartford and Thurrock were established following a consultation process, and were the maximum that could be justified to enable us to maintain a kerb on increasing levels of traffic using the crossing. But we said that we would keep the local discount scheme under review. The scheme has been in operation for only two months and it is too early yet to review either its operation or eligibility.

Departmental Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at his Department and its agencies in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; and how much was spent on such bonuses in each of those years. [249863]

Mr. Hoon: The number of bonuses awarded to senior civil servants in the Department for Transport in (a) 2007, (b) 2008 and the amount spent in each of those years is set out in the following table:

	Number of bonuses	Total cost of bonuses (£)
2007	152	1,282,100
2008	139	1,344,831

Driving Tests

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many drivers passed their driving test on the (a) first, (b) second and (c) third or later attempt in (i) England, (ii) the North West and (iii) Stockport Metropolitan Borough Council in each year since 1997. [247155]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 14 January 2009]: The Driving Standards Agency has provided details of the number of drivers who passed their driving test by attempt at GB level, dating back to 2004. The DSA cannot provide any further information without incurring disproportionate costs.

GB figures

		Attempt 1	Attempt 2	Attempt 3	4 plus attempts
2004-05	Passed	370,281	197,596	85,595	53,546
2005-06	Passed	329,400	206,573	114,961	129,091
2006-07	Passed	331,137	201,883	112,134	131,175
2007-08	Passed	344,276	207,076	110,756	121,524
2008-09	Passed	271,782	158,214	83,638	95,483

Driving Tests: Motorcycles

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many motorcycle testing sites with (a) areas capable of conducting Module 1 tests and (b) areas for whole part tests in England he plans to provide by March 2009; if he will make a statement. [248579]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The consultation exercise, on proposals to improve delivery for the new practical motorcycle test by splitting it into two modules, ended on 9 January. Module 1 would be the specified manoeuvres element and module 2 would be the road riding element. The responses are still being analysed.

If the test is split into two modules, current estimates are that the Driving Standards Agency will have in place around 61 operational sites for module 1 and around 100 locations from which module 2 tests will be delivered.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department (a) has spent since 2000 and (b) proposes to spend in future years in (i) Poole and (ii) England on the implementation of changes to motorcycle testing required by the Second European Directive on Driving Licences. [248580]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The amount spent on the Multi-Purpose Test Centre project in England is £40,684,467.

So far £100,666 has been spent on searching for suitable sites in Poole and conducting feasibility studies. The planning application for the identified site is currently at appeal. If successful, then the development of the site will proceed as a private developer scheme with an annual rental to The Driving Standards Agency (DSA) of £170,000 exclusive of VAT.

The forecast spend in England over the next two years is £14,185,989.

Driving: Insurance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions he has had with the organisers of the Young Marmalade scheme to encourage additional training for young, newly qualified drivers in return for lower insurance premiums. [249638]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Managing Director of Young Marmalade has had two meetings with officials, and some associated correspondence, to present the company's products and information about their customers, who are encouraged to take Pass Plus or other post-test training.

Freight: Birmingham

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the findings of the pilot study on freight options of British Waterways in respect of the Birmingham area; and if he will make a statement. [247519]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The pilot study undertaken by British Waterways and Brumcan in Birmingham was a local initiative designed to show other local businesses the benefits of using the canal network to move their goods.

The Department for Transport promotes the use of waterborne transport, where this is feasible and delivers clear environmental benefits, through the Sustainable Distribution Fund.

Fuels: Businesses

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much transport fuel used by businesses in the UK was purchased in each other EU member state in the most recent period for which figures are available. [247119]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government do not have specific data on how much transport fuel used by business in the UK is purchased in other EU member states or in which states.

However, HMRC do estimate the cross-border shopping market share for diesel in Great Britain and the non-UK-duty paid market share for petrol and diesel in Northern Ireland. These are presented in the HMRC publication 'Measuring Indirect Tax Gaps—2008':

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/pbr2008/mtg-2450.pdf

HMRC does not estimate how much aviation fuel used in the UK originated overseas.

HMRC provisionally estimate that in 2006, 650 million litres of diesel consumed in Great Britain was purchased abroad—equivalent to 3 per cent. of the GB diesel market. For Northern Ireland there is no split between cross-border shopping and the illicit market. HMRC estimate that the total non-UK-duty paid market share is 335 million litres for diesel and 75 million litres for petrol.

Haulage

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his estimate is of the contribution to gross domestic product the road haulage industry has made in the last 10 years. [247556]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The contribution of the road haulage industry to gross domestic product is provided in the following table.

	£ million
1998	8,176
1999	9,241
2000	9,384
2001	9,322
2002	8,954
2003	9,266
2004	8,444
2005	9,974
2006	10,343
2007 (provisional)	11,457

Source: Annual Business Inquiry, Office for National Statistics

The table includes only those businesses whose economic activity is classified as 'freight transport by road'. It would exclude, therefore, companies in other economic sectors (e.g. retail) if their main business is not haulage.

Heathrow Airport: Railways

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he plans to support an application for European funding for the proposed Heathrow rail hub. [247157]

Paul Clark [holding answer 14 January 2009]: I refer the hon. Member to my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State's oral statement of 15 January 2009, Official Report, columns 355-76. Subject to Government's decisions following High Speed Two (HS2) Ltd.'s report at the end of the year, work will be taken forward on funding plans for the proposed Heathrow International interchange.

Lorries: Safety

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his assessment is of the merits of the Fresnel lens to improve vision for drivers of (a) UK and (b) foreign heavy goods vehicles; and if he will make a statement. [247089]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Fresnel Lenses provide a useful short-term solution to the problem of the blind-spot adjacent to some HGV cabs. When properly fitted a Fresnel Lens provides drivers of foreign HGVs good vision into the adjacent carriageway whilst overtaking; the lens can also offer improved vision to the nearside for UK drivers.

We are currently completing a study considering the safety aspects of a range of supplementary devices on large goods vehicles, including the Fresnel Lens. We will be using the results of this work to support our proposal to amend the relevant international vehicle construction regulations to reduce these blindspots. In the meantime the Department for Transport is continuing to hand out Fresnel Lenses free of charge to left-hand-drive vehicles arriving at UK ports.

Motor Vehicles: Insurance

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions he has had with the motor insurance industry on the costs of hire cars during periods when accident insurance disputes and repairs are taking place. [247725]

Jim Fitzpatrick: There have been no discussions. Any such costs would be a matter between insurers and their policyholders.

Motorways: Accidents

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many accidents resulting in death or serious injury have occurred on the hard shoulder of motorways in England in each of the last five years. [248851]

Paul Clark: Hard shoulder accidents are those defined as involving a vehicle on, entering or leaving a hard shoulder or lay-by on a motorway.

There were 160 accidents resulting in death or serious injury that have occurred on the hard shoulder of motorways in England in the last five years detailed as follows.

	Accident severity
	Fatal	Serious
2003	11	23
2004	3	27
2005	12	28
2006	9	16
2007	10	21
Total	45	115

Network Rail: Disclosure of Information

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will encourage Network Rail to respond to requests for information held as if they were subject to the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [249220]

Paul Clark: Network Rail is an independent company. It is not covered by the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) 2000 because it is not part of the public sector.

Overseas Lorries

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the maximum charge is per day for a foreign haulage vehicle to enter the UK. [247431]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government do not charge foreign haulage vehicles to enter the UK.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many foreign vehicles arrived in the UK each (a) day, (b) week and (c) month of the last two years. [247432]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport does not collect information on the total numbers of foreign vehicles entering the United Kingdom. However quarterly figures are published on the number of road goods vehicles travelling to mainland Europe and these are broken down by whether the vehicles are registered in the UK or not. These figures include vehicles travelling by ferry and through the Channel tunnel and exclude traffic across the border between Northern Ireland and the Irish republic. The web link to the latest figures is:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/statistics/datatablespublications/freight/secroadweur/roroq32008

The following table gives the data for the last two years and excludes unaccompanied trailers.

Road goods vehicles travelling to mainland Europe

Railways: Fares

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent increase in rail fares has been announced by each train operating company. [247081]

Paul Clark: The Association of Train Operating Companies issued a press release citing the average fares rises for January 2009. This was published in November 2008 and is available from their website:

www.atoc.org

Railways: Timetables

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to encourage Network Rail to release to the hon. Member for Lewes the information he has requested from the company in respect of trains arriving at their scheduled destination at least one minute after the scheduled arrival time but within the timescale that allows them to be classified as on time. [249219]

Paul Clark: This is an operational matter for Network Rail as the owner and operator of the national rail network. The hon. Member should contact Network Rail's chief executive at the following address for a response to his question:

Iain Coucher
Chief Executive
Network Rail
Kings Place
90 York Way
London, N1 9AG.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will place in the Library a copy of the information his Department holds on very seriously delayed and cancelled trains in the last 12 month period for which figures are available, broken down by train operating company. [249310]

Paul Clark: The latest period for which cancellation figures are available for England and Wales is 9 December 2007 to 6 December 2008. The number of franchised passenger trains cancelled for their whole journey is given by train operating company in the following table:

Train operating company	Number of cancellations
Arriva Trains Wales	1,213
c2c	1,193
Chiltern	604
First Capital Connect	4,060

Train operating company	Number of cancellations
First Great Western	4,699
National Express East Coast	644
Merseyrail	1,799
Northern Rail	6,284
National Express East Anglia	6,975
Southeastern	4,878
Southern	5,722
Stagecoach South West Trains	4,017
TransPennine Express	1,082
Virgin Trains	1,266
Crosscountry	1,151
East Midlands Trains	1,630
London Overground	1,215
London Midland	6,174
Total	54,675

The total number of trains cancelled represents 0.9 per cent. of those scheduled to operate over the period in question. This is a reduction on the equivalent period the previous year when 1.2 per cent. of scheduled services were cancelled.

The Department for Transport does not have information on "very seriously delayed trains". This is collected and processed by Network Rail. The hon. Member may wish to contact the chief executive of Network Rail at the following address:

Iain Coucher
Chief Executive
Network Rail
Kings Place
York Way
London
N1 9AG

Roads: Accidents

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of (a) serious and (b) fatal road accidents involved (i) foreign and (ii) UK road hauliers in the latest period for which information is available; and if he will make a statement. [247088]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number and percentage of (a) serious and (b) fatal reported personal injury road accidents in 2007 involving at least one (i) foreign and (ii) UK registered heavy goods vehicle (HGV) are given in the table.

	Number of accidents
	Fatal	Serious
Accidents involving at least one foreign registered HGV	28	101
Accidents involving at least one UK registered HGV	174	1,246
Accidents involving at least one UK or foreign registered HGV	193	1,331
Percentage involving at least one foreign registered HGV	7	8
Percentage involving at least one UK registered HGV	93	94

The percentages do not sum up to 100, because both foreign and UK registered heavy goods vehicle could be involved in the same accident.

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many reported deaths as a result of road traffic accidents there were in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex in each year since 1997. [248828]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The numbers of fatalities from reported personal injury road accidents in (a) Eastbourne and (b) East Sussex in each year since 1997 are given in the table:

	Number of fatalities
	Eastbourne	East Sussex[1]
1997	4	43
1998	2	44
1999	2	48
2000	2	57
2001	4	41
2002	1	50
2003	2	47
2004	7	48
2005	2	58
2006	1	46

Severn Bridge: Tolls

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of disabled people who used (a) the Severn Bridge and (b) the Second Severn Crossing who qualified for exemptions from tolls in the last 12 months; what estimate he has made of the level of exemptions fraudulently claimed in that period; and if he will make a statement. [248523]

Paul Clark: UK and EU Disabled Badge users are exempt from charges on the Severn bridge tolls. In 2008, it is estimated that the number of disabled badge holders passing through (a) the Severn bridge was 119,663 and (b) the Second Severn Crossing was 329,957.

Severn River Crossing plc who operate the tolls do not keep records of fraudulently claimed disabled badges, however checks on the validity of disabled badges, held by users, are made by toll collectors at toll booths.

Speed Limits

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps his Department is taking to ensure that (a) 20 miles per hour and (b) home zones are enforced. [247676]

Jim Fitzpatrick: A 20 mph zone is required by law to contain traffic calming measures placed at regular intervals to ensure compliance with the speed limit. Additional police enforcement is considered unnecessary.

Designation of a road as a home zone does not introduce any enforceable restrictions. The design of a home zone, and any measures implemented, should aim to achieve low vehicle speeds so that permitted activities can be enjoyed safely. The enforcement of any complementary restrictions, for example speed limits or parking, is a matter for the relevant authority, which may be the police or the local authority.

Speed Limits: Cameras

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been raised in fines (a) from each speed camera and (b) in total from speed cameras in (i) Essex and (ii) Basildon district in each of the last 10 years; and what funds relating to speed cameras have been made available by his Department to (A) Essex County Council and (B) Basildon District Council in each of the last 10 years. [248486]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Information about fine revenue raised by individual cameras is not held by the Department for Transport. The Department only holds information about speed cameras operating under the National Safety Camera programme which ended on 31 March 2007. Separate information for the Basildon district of Essex is not held. Essex joined the Safety Camera Programme on 1 April 2000. Figures from the audit certificates for the Essex Safety Camera Partnership are contained in table A as follows and show the fine revenue from conditional offer of fixed penalties for offences detected by speed and red light cameras operating under the then National Safety Camera Programme.

Table A

2000-01	1,864,480
2001-02	3,524,120
2002-03	5,672,220
2003-04	5,137,740
2004-05	4,710,300
2005-06	4,732,860
2006-07	3,917,040

Under the then netting off funding arrangements, safety camera partnerships reclaimed expenditure directly attributed to the prevention, detection and enforcement of offences. The amount reclaimed by the Essex partnership in these financial years is set out in table B as follows. The surplus was returned to the Consolidated Fund.

Table B

2000-01	1,864,480
2001-02	3,179,304
2002-03	5,150,286
2003-04	5,037,293
2004-05	4,622,413
2005-06	4,257,190
2006-07	3,739,853

On 1 April 2007 the specific road safety grant replaced the system of funding safety cameras through fine income. Essex received £3,363,428 of this grant in 2007-08 and £3,215,679 in 2008-09.

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much was raised in fines from speed cameras in (a) Bolton and (b) Greater Manchester in the last year for which records are available; how much of that income was spent in (i) Bolton and (ii) Greater Manchester; and if he will make a statement. [248684]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport information about speed cameras operating under the National Safety Camera Programme which ended on 31 March 2007. Separate information for the Bolton area is not held. The audit certificate for the Greater Manchester Safety Camera Partnership for 2006-07 shows the fine revenue from fixed penalty tickets for offences detected by speed and red light cameras operating under the then National Safety Camera Programme to be £4,054,680. Under the programme funding arrangements, safety camera partnerships re-claimed expenditure directly attributed to the prevention, detection and enforcement of offences. The amount re-claimed by the Greater Manchester partnership in 2006-07 was £3,431,191. The surplus was returned to the Treasury Consolidated Fund.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much was raised in fines from speed cameras in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire in the last year for which records are available; how much of that revenue was spent in (i) Hemel Hempstead and (ii) Hertfordshire; and if he will make a statement. [249036]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport only holds information about speed cameras operating under the National Safety Camera Programme which ended on 31 March 2007. Separate information for the Hemel Hempstead area is not held. The audit certificate for the Hertfordshire Safety Camera Partnership for 2006-07 shows the fine revenue from fixed penalty tickets for offences detected by speed and red light cameras operating under the then National Safety Camera Programme to be £2,565,540. Under the programme funding arrangements, safety camera partnerships re-claimed expenditure directly attributed to the prevention, detection and enforcement of offences. The amount re-claimed by the Hertfordshire partnership in 2006-07 was £2,516,862. The surplus was returned to the Treasury Consolidated Fund.

Traffic Lights: Cameras

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport at what locations, on what roads, in (a) the Metropolitan Police area of London, (b) Essex and (c) Hertfordshire where red light cameras are (i) in place and (ii) will be in place within the next 12 months for the purpose of monitoring vehicles for offences other than speeding. [247998]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport information about the locations of red light cameras operating under the National Safety Camera Programme which ended on 31 March 2007. Accurate and up to date information may be held by the London, Essex and Hertfordshire road safety partnerships who are responsible for the operation and placement of red light cameras.

Vehicle and Operator Services Agency: Surveys

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether his Department has conducted any customer service surveys relating to the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency following its reform. [247890]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) are committed to monitoring customer opinions of the service they deliver, which they monitor through annual customer satisfaction surveys covering the key service delivery areas of testing, enforcement and licensing. This information can be found at:

http://www.vosa.gov.uk/vosacorp/contactus/customerfeedbac/customrsfactionsurveys.htm#P7_549.

Vehicles: Carbon Emissions

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many registered road vehicles of each (a) engine size and (b) level of carbon dioxide emissions there were in each (i) region and (ii) constituency in each year from 2004 to 2008. [247494]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Tables providing the requested information for 2004, 2005, 2006 and 2007 have been placed in the Libraries of the House.

National statistics regarding the number of licensed vehicles as at the end of 2008 are not yet available, but are due to be published in April 2009.

Vehicles: France

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of French-licensed road vehicles with long-range fuel tanks being used to undertake business solely within the UK. [247120]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Using data made available by Eurostat, the most recent estimates (for 2006) show that French hauliers operating in the UK were responsible for 0.2 billion tonne kilometres of cabotage activity. Information on the amount of fuel carried by these vehicles is not routinely collected.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Closed Circuit Television

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether there are any outstanding requests to his Department for CCTV cameras at interface points in Northern Ireland. [248932]

Paul Goggins: There are currently no outstanding requests for CCTV at Interface points in Northern Ireland.

Crime

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many incidents of hate crime were recorded in Northern Ireland in 2008. [248426]

Paul Goggins: This is an operational matter for the Chief Constable. I have asked him to reply directly to the hon. Member, and a copy of his letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what expert advisers have been commissioned by his Department and its agencies since 1997; on what topic each was commissioned; and whether the adviser so appointed made a declaration of political activity in each case. [246963]

Mr. Woodward: Information on expert advisers commissioned by my Department and its agencies since 1997 is not held centrally and to obtain this information would incur disproportionate cost.

The Northern Ireland Office (NIO) has 11 Executive and advisory NDPBs which are regulated by the Office of the Commissioner of Public Appointments (OCPA). Declarations of political activity/interest are a customary part of this process.

The NIO also has a number of other public bodies including independent monitoring boards and international bodies. Information regarding appointments to these bodies is not held centrally.

Since 2003, Government have published an annual statement with details of special advisers. The most recent information was published on 22 July 2008, Official Report, columns 99-102WS.

Departmental Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make it his policy that temporary and permanent employees of his Department employed at the same grade receive the same hourly rate of pay. [248417]

Mr. Woodward: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 199W.

Departmental Vehicles

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland with reference to the answer of 24 November 2008, Official Report, column 883W, on departmental vehicles, what types and makes of vehicles were maintained in each year. [243236]

The type of car chosen reflects a range of factors including fuel efficiency, safety standard and practical usage. Where possible, when a lease is up for renewal, we could consider all options in reducing costs to the Department while maintaining the standard required.

District Policing Partnerships: Expenditure

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the cost of funding district policing partnerships in Northern Ireland was in the year ended March 2008. [248930]

Paul Goggins: That is an operational matter for the Northern Ireland Policing Board, which is independent of Government. The hon. Gentleman may wish to write to Dr. Debbie Donnelly, acting Chief Executive of the Policing Board.

Inquiries

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether the Wright Inquiry has informed him of the reasons why the inquiry's former Senior Counsel Derek Batchelor QC vacated his post; and what plans he has to review the circumstances surrounding his departure. [249014]

Mr. Woodward: Instructing Inquiry Counsel is a matter for the Inquiry Chairman. I have no plans to review the circumstances surrounding Mr. Batchelor's departure.

Offenders

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many former prisoners are employed by his Department; and what his Department's policy is on employing former prisoners. [246337]

Mr. Woodward: As part of the recruitment process, staff joining the Northern Ireland Office are subject to character checks and security vetting, which includes examination of criminal records. Consideration is given to each individual case, taking into account the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974 and the Rehabilitation of Offenders Order (NI) 1978. Once this check is completed, the number of staff recruited who are former prisoners is not monitored.

Police Stations: Construction

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he expects the new prison at Magilligan to be completed; and at what cost. [248931]

Paul Goggins: Work is expected to begin on the new prison build at Magilligan in late 2011 or shortly afterwards and to take at least four years to complete. The Northern Ireland Prison Service is currently putting in place the requisite programme management, design and business case services.

The estimated costs are in the order of £200 million inclusive of VAT and 30 per cent. optimism bias.

Police Stations: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much the recent maintenance and refurbishment work at Garvagh Police Station, County Londonderry, cost. [248425]

Paul Goggins: That is an operational matter for the Chief Constable. I have asked him to reply directly to the hon. Member, and a copy of his letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Prisoners Release

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many sentenced foreign prisoners were released from prisons in Northern Ireland in the last 12 months for which data is available. [244482]

Paul Goggins: Between 1 December 2007 to 1 December 2008, 178 sentenced foreign national prisoners were released from prisons in Northern Ireland.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Business Improvement Districts

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield of 19 November 2008, Official Report, columns 508-09W, on local authorities: business, what additional business rate multiplier is applied in each of the business improvement districts. [246947]

John Healey: There are no additional business rate multipliers applied to each of the business improvement districts (BIDs). Businesses within the BID area agree to pay an additional levy on top of their standard business rate bill.

Charities

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government to which (a) charities and (b) voluntary organisations her Department has provided funding in the last five years; and how much funding was provided to each. [247364]

Mr. Khan: A complete list of funding to charities and voluntary organisations could be made available only at a disproportionate cost.

However, I refer the hon. Member to a related question that I answered on 11 December 2008, Official Report, columns 243-45W.

Community Development: Finance

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government through which funding streams her Department plans to contribute towards (a) supporting housing, (b) countering social exclusion and (c) regeneration in (i) 2008-09 and (ii) 2009-10. [246368]

John Healey: The following table sets out the funding streams and amounts that the Department plans to contribute towards supporting housing, and regeneration in 2008-09 and 2009-10. Some funding streams for supporting housing, clearly contribute also to regeneration.

A number of the Department's programmes potentially contribute to countering social exclusion, however, it is not possible to quantify the amounts specifically involved.

[1] These programmes are now part of the new Homes and Communities Agency (HCA).
[2] Community Infrastructure Fund programme is jointly managed with the Department for Transport.
[3] The figures include both Departmental Expenditure Limits and Annually Managed Expenditure where appropriate.
Note:
Expenditure on the Olympics (2008-09 forecast £256.4 million and 2009-10 plan £766.6 million) potentially supports all three of the objectives listed in the question, but it is not possible to attribute the spend between them.

In addition, the Department is responsible for managing the funds received by the UK from the European Regional Development Fund, which supports regeneration in a number of the English regions.

Council Tax: Valuation

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make publicly available the location-related datasets for (a) the 10,000 localities drawn up by the Valuation Office Agency for council tax valuations and (b) the 90,000 sub-locations drawn up by the Valuation Office Agency for business rates valuations as referred to on page 29 of her Department's location strategy. [246385]

Mr. Timms: I have been asked to reply.

Map data held by the Valuation Office Agency (VOA) for localities are used, among other things, in the provision of commercial valuation services. Publication of this information would weaken the VOA's competitive position. No map data exist for sub-locations, which are codes used by the VOA to group properties with similar characteristics for non-domestic rating purposes.

Councillors: Arun

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reasons the Audit Commission has requested councillors of Arun Council to provide details of their personal bank accounts. [246374]

John Healey: This is an operational matter for the Audit Commission and I have asked the chief executive of the Audit Commission to write to the hon. Member direct.

Letter from Steve Bundred, dated January 2009:

Your Parliamentary Question on what reasons the Audit Commission has requested councillors of Arun Council to provide details of their personal bank accounts has been passed to me for reply.

This matter relates to the data collected for the Audit Commission's data matching exercise, known as the National Fraud Initiative (NFI). The NFI is designed to assist in the prevention and detection of fraud and is one of the ways in which the Audit Commission meets its responsibility of promoting economy, efficiency and effectiveness in the use of public money. We estimate that since it started in 1996 the NFI has helped to detect around £450 million in fraud and overpayments.

The processing of data by the Commission in a data matching exercise is now carried out under powers in Part 2A of the Audit Commission Act 1998, which were enacted in the Serious Crime Act 2007. The Audit Commission does not itself investigate instances of fraud; this is the responsibility of the bodies participating in the NFI and supplying data sets for matching.

Mandatory participants such as local councils, police authorities, probation boards, fire and rescue authorities and NHS bodies are required to submit a number of different dataset types for NFI. One of these datasets is payroll data, that is, all individuals currently being paid a salary/wage/members allowance on a payroll at a particular point in time.

The data sought is limited strictly to those fields that are required for data matching plus any that will assist the investigator in selecting matches where an inconsistency is indicated from the data match that requires further investigation. The fields are set out in a 'data specification'. The bank account and sort code are included on the payroll data specification; however the name in which the bank account is held is not collected so the Audit Commission cannot make a connection to other account holders.

Bank details (bank account number and sort code) are important for the investigation process, but they are not displayed in the reports that NFI participants receive; instead the matching process looks at whether the bank account number and sort code is the same or different across the sets of data provided for NFI and then converts this information into a flag (Yes or No). It is then the flag that is included in the NFI reports. This intelligence helps investigators prioritise investigative resources on cases where employment income has, for example, potentially been withheld (e.g. in an undeclared bank account). This data is highly significant in the fight against fraud.

The Audit Commission's Head of NFI has met elected members at Arun Council to explain why these fields are collected, referring to a number of case studies that not only involve public sector employees but also elected members who have been guilty of benefit fraud by not declaring allowances.

A copy of this letter will be placed in Hansard.

Departmental Catering

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which (a) food and (b) drinks suppliers have been used by her Department in each of the last three years; and how much her Department paid to each such supplier in each of those years. [248379]

Mr. Khan: All procurement is undertaken in line with the European Commission's procurement rules and to obtain value for money.

Catering services are provided as part of the Department's Integrated Facilities Management contract. There are a number of third party suppliers used by our caterers and to provide the information requested would be disproportionately costly.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what percentage of contractors and suppliers to (a) her Department and (b) its agencies has reported compliance with the Government's security standards following publication of the report, Data Handling Procedures in Government, and the accompanying document, Cross-departmental Actions: Mandatory Minimum Action, on 25 June 2008. [245319]

Mr. Khan: CLG and its Agencies are using the new standard Office of Government Commerce clauses in new contracts that involve the handling of personal data and reviews of documentation on existing contracts are being carried out.

The Department and its Agencies have assessed their delivery chains and have conducted reviews of contractors' adherence to data handling requirements. All contracts are currently assessed as compliant or close to compliance.

In some cases CLG HQ security staff have been or are directly involved in visits to contractors to assess data handling procedures.

Departmental Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy that temporary and permanent employees of her Department employed at the same grade receive the same hourly rate of pay. [248408]

Mr. Khan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 16 December 2008, Official Report, column 581W.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much has been spent by her Department on staff reward and recognition schemes in each of the last three years. [248715]

Mr. Khan: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for Twickenham (Dr. Cable) on 25 June 2008, Official Report, column 343W.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on how many occasions in the last 12 months Ministers in her Department have used their discretion to rule that a parliamentary question for written answer should be answered because it would be in the public interest to do so, even though to do so would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold of £700. [249135]

Mr. Khan: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Disabled Facilities Grants

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield of 25 January 2008, Official Report, columns 233-4W, on local authorities: grants, what the grant per capita to each local authority (a) was in 2008-09 and (b) is expected to be in 2009-10; and what the average grant per capita to (i) district councils, (ii) unitary councils, (iii) county councils, (iv) metropolitan councils and (v) London boroughs (1) was in 2008-09 and (2) is expected to be in 2009-10. [246805]

John Healey: I have placed in the Library of the House a table showing this information for 2008-09 budget estimates. The information for 2009-10 budget estimates is not yet available.

Eco-Towns

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many eco-towns she expects to be constructed. [246046]

Margaret Beckett: As set out in the draft Eco-towns Planning Policy Statement, published on 4 November 2008, the eco-towns initiative has been developed with the aim of getting exemplar projects off the ground. I have made clear that I am not committed to a particular number at this stage, but that we will look at bringing forward up to 10 schemes.

Energy Performance Certificates

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what information required to be provided in energy performance certificates is not required to be provided under Part L of Building Regulations. [248397]

Margaret Beckett: Part L of the Building Regulations applies only to new buildings. Energy performance certificates are required for all buildings being marketed. An Energy Performance Certificate additionally provides an A to G rating similar to the label provided with domestic appliances so that the energy efficiency of buildings can be readily compared. An Energy Performance Certificate is also accompanied by a Recommendation Report that lists measures to improve the energy rating.

Fire Services

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many fire engines there were in operation in each year since 1997. [247687]

Mr. Khan: Available figures for the number of front-line fire engines in England, for the years 1997 to 2008 is set out as follows.

Fire Services: Taunton

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the cost of maintaining the regional fire control centre in Taunton was in December 2008. [248521]

Mr. Khan: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 240W.

We expect accommodation costs to remain at that level for the immediate future.

Fire Services: Working Hours

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent assessment she has made of the effect of the provisions of the EU Working Time Directive on the retained duty system in fire and rescue services in England; and if she will make a statement. [248673]

Mr. Khan: Application of the working time directive, by setting a 48-hour maximum to the working week, would be likely to greatly reduce the hours which firefighters working the retained duty system could be available for duty, especially the substantial numbers who work full-time for their primary employer. The UK Government therefore places great importance on retaining its opt-out from the directive, a position that was acknowledged by the European Union Council of Ministers in June when it agreed in the Common Position that it should be retained, and will continue to defend it.

The amendments to the Common Position voted by the European Parliament on 17 December are the latest step in a complex negotiation, the next phase being for the Council of Ministers to consider the amendments, followed by a process of conciliation between both parties, the presidency and the Commission. Officials from my Department will be consulting a range of fire and rescue service stakeholders to ensure that the potential impact is assessed fully; and working with the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, which has the UK lead on the working time directive, to inform the ongoing debate and ensure MEPs and EU member states are briefed appropriately.

Home Information Packs

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will revoke the requirement on property vendors to provide home information packs. [247181]

Margaret Beckett: No.

Homes and Communities Agency: Finance

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the interim operating budget for the Homes and Communities Agency is in the four month period ending at the end of March 2009. [247489]

Margaret Beckett: In agreement with Her Majesty's Treasury, the Homes and Communities Agency's (HCA) budgets for 2008-09 have been agreed on merger accounting principles. This means that the HCA is deemed to have existed since 1 April 2008 and a full 2008-09 budget has been set. For 2008-09, the HCA will receive funding from my Department of £3.9 billion (of this £86 million is for administrative running costs). A budget of £2 billion has been estimated to cover the four month period ending at the end of March 2009.

Housing: Databases

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what use her Department has made of data held on the (a) home condition report and (b) energy performance certificate register. [246373]

Margaret Beckett: Data on numbers of HCRs lodged to date has been used to inform policy decisions on condition information in the HIP, including the recent announcement to establish a working group to explore options for making sure that consumers have appropriate information about a property's condition.

The Department has used the data held on the energy performance register to monitor the application of and compliance with the Regulations. The Department is considering further how to make best use of this data in furthering its aims for improving the energy efficiency of buildings and reducing carbon emissions.

Housing: Low Incomes

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield of 19 November 2008, Official Report, columns 507-8W, on housing: low incomes, what type of property attribute or information the field, valuation cloned or not, signifies. [246946]

John Healey: The cloned valuation field indicates whether or not a valuation provided by a landlord in the National Register of Social Housing data for a particular dwelling was produced directly from a survey of that dwelling or by comparison with similar dwellings with a previously determined valuation.

Housing: Prices

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average price of a (a) post-1960s detached house and (b) post-1960s flat within a block of flats in England was according to records collated by the Valuation Office Agency in each six month period since January 1997. [246377]

John Healey: The VOA does not calculate a national average price for properties but does publish twice yearly in its Property Market Report individual average price estimates of a range of properties.

Copies of the Property Market Report covering the period 1997 to 2008 are available in the House of Commons Library. The Property Market Report from 2001 onwards is also available electronically on the VOA website at:

www.voa.gov.uk/publications.

Jenny Watson

Mr. Purchase: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for how many days a year Ms Jenny Watson is contracted to work for the Audit Commission; and what remuneration she receives for that work.[1] [246858]

John Healey: Ms Jenny Watson is not a contractor working for the Audit Commission, but holds office as a member of the Audit Commission having been appointed by the Secretary of State. There are no specific requirements of board members as to the time they should devote to work for the Audit Commission but there is an expectation that this will, on average, equate to two days per month during the course of the year. Ms Jenny Watson receives remuneration of £14,146 per annum, which is the amount specified by the Secretary of State for payment to the majority of the Audit Commission board members.

TSB on 1 December. The same group is due to meet again on 19 January. These meetings have been arranged as a direct consequence of the economic downturn and have been used to gain a regional picture of how banks are supporting businesses in the region.

The Minister for the North East, held a meeting with representatives of the banking, financial and accounting sectors on 21 November 2008 to discuss and address key concerns in relation to the current economic difficulties. Representatives of Lloyds TSB were invited but did not attend.

Local Government: Bank Services

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield of 19 November 2008, Official Report, column 511W, on local government: bank services, what estimate has been made of the financial losses to local authorities from the collapse of the Bank of Credit and Commerce International. [246940]

John Healey: According to the liquidators for the Bank of Credit and Commerce International, local authorities held deposits of £77.243 million on the date the bank entered liquidation in January 1992. This was approximately $143 million at the rate of exchange in January 1992.

Dividends have been paid out in US dollars. Fluctuations in the exchange rate between dollars and sterling means that local authorities (and other claimants with funds originally held in sterling) have received almost 97 per cent. of their original balance, if converting their US dollars back into pounds at the rate applicable on the date of the declared dividend. This is higher than the 86.5 per cent. set out in my previous answer, which is the percentage in US dollars.

It is anticipated that there will be a final dividend paid out, but the liquidators are currently unable to confirm when this will become available or what the value will be.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department has made of the amount of interest local authorities have foregone on money frozen in Icelandic banks. [247022]

John Healey: Estimates of the amounts of interest local authorities have foregone on money frozen in Icelandic banks are not held centrally.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how much money local authorities have deposited in Icelandic banks; [247023]

(2) which local authorities have funds frozen in Icelandic banks. [247024]

John Healey: The Local Government Association has compiled information supplied by individual local authorities that have deposits in Icelandic banks. It has published this information on its website:

www.lga.gov.uk.

In addition, Communities and Local Government is in the process of collecting data on local authorities that had deposits in Icelandic banks at the end of 2008 as part of our routine financial data collection programme. These data will be published once they have been fully validated and quality assured.

Local Government: Databases

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what data which her Department used to gather from local authorities is no longer gathered as a result of the adoption of the national indicator set. [246379]

John Healey: The Department has recently published an update to its simplification plan, which is available at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/corporate/pdf/1094604.pdf

This contains a list of data which the Department has already stopped collecting for local authorities and also sets out other activity under way to reduce the burden of data collection.

Further reductions may be identified as a result of the ongoing review of data collections which was referred to in the answer of 28 January 2008, Official Report, column 112W. Departments have until May 2010 to identify and implement reductions which contribute to the cross-Whitehall 30 per cent. target for reduction in data burdens announced on 9 October 2007 as part of the comprehensive spending review.

Local Government: Manpower

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people were employed by local government in England in each year since 1996-97. [246389]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend, Minister of State for the Third Sector (Kevin Brennan) on 5 November 2008, Official Report, column 501W.

Local Government: Reorganisation

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to make a statement on the structure of Suffolk and Norfolk local government. [246690]

John Healey: The Boundary Committee has been requested to provide advice to the Secretary of State no later than 13 February 2009 on proposals for unitary local government in Norfolk and Suffolk. The Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 provides that where the Secretary of State has requested such advice, she may not make any decision in relation to any proposals received until at least six weeks after the date by which she has specified that advice must be provided.

Non-Domestic Rates

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the average non-domestic rates bill in England in (a) 2007-08, (b) 2008-09 and (c) 2009-10. [246380]

John Healey: The average non-domestic rates bill in England is estimated as £10,333 in 2007-08 and £11,357 in 2008-09. It is not yet possible to estimate the average non-domestic rates bill for 2009-10.

The data, which refer to the local lists only, are taken from NNDR returns submitted by billing authorities.

Average non-domestic rates are calculated by dividing the net rate yield from local authorities' lists by the number of hereditaments on local lists as at 31 December of the previous year.

Comparisons across years should be treated with caution as figures will reflect changes in the number and type of hereditaments as well as changes to rateable values and multipliers.

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the net revenue from non-domestic rates in (a) 2007-08, (b) 2008-09 and (c) 2009-10. [246382]

John Healey: Data on the net revenue from non-domestic rates are available on the Communities and Local Government website.

Outturn data for 2007-08 can be found in the Statistical Release "National non- domestic rates collected by local authorities in England 2007-08" that was published on 17 September 2008 and can be found in table 1 at:

http://www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/ctax/ndr078o.htm

These data are taken from NNDR3 forms submitted annually by all billing authorities in England.

Budget estimate data for 2008-09 can be found in the Statistical Release "National non-domestic rates to be collected by local authorities in England 2008-09" that was published on 8 May 2008 and can be found in table 1 at:

http://www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/ctax/ndr089.htm

These data are taken from NNDR1 forms submitted annually by all billing authorities in England.

Details of the estimated revenue from non-domestic rates in 2009-10 was published as part of the 2009-10 Local Government Finance Settlement and can be found at:

http://www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/0910/dacalcs.xls

Non-Domestic Rates: Business

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what cap she plans to impose on the rate at which supplementary business rates are imposed. [246392]

John Healey: The Business Rate Supplements Bill currently before Parliament proposes an upper limit for BRS levied by a local authority in a financial year of 2p per pound of rateable value.

Non-Domestic Rates: Empty Property

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what definition of empty her Department uses for the purposes of determining empty property exemptions for business rates. [246376]

John Healey: The definition used by Communities and Local Government and English local authorities to determine empty property exemptions for business rates can be found in the Non-Domestic Rating (Unoccupied Property)(England) Regulations 2008. No. 386.

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many and what proportion of empty properties have a rateable value of less than £15,000. [246387]

John Healey: The Government do not hold this information. However VOA records show that 70 per cent. of all properties are under the £15,000 threshold and if empty will be exempt.

Non-Domestic Rates: Greater London

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the financial value of the threshold level of rate relief in London for small firms in relation to (a) small business rate relief, (b) exemption from empty property business rates and (c) exemption from supplementary business rates will be in 2009-10. [246386]

John Healey: The rateable value thresholds for rate relief in London are:

In regard to Small Business Rate Relief in London, there are three tiers to the current system; (i) eligible businesses occupying a property with a rateable value of less than £5,000 receive a reduction of 50 per cent. in their rates liability, (ii) eligible businesses occupying a property with a rateable value between £5,000 and £10,000 are entitled to relief on a sliding scale—for every £100 increase in rateable value, relief decreases by 1 per cent. (iii) eligible businesses occupying a property with a rateable value between £10,000 and £21,500 have their liability calculated with the small business multiplier and do not pay the supplement to fund the scheme.

In regard to empty property rates the current exemption threshold of a rateable value of £2,200 is to be increased to £15,000 for the financial year 2009-10.

As set out in clause 27(i) of the Business Rates Supplement Bill currently before Parliament, no business rates supplement may be levied before 1 April 2010.

Non-Domestic Rates: Ports

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 351W, on non-domestic rates: ports, what the aggregate rateable value in respect of each port in England and Wales affected by the change in valuation was (a) before and (b) after the change. [245932]

John Healey: The Financial Secretary to the Treasury and I submitted a memorandum to the Treasury Select Committee on 5 November 2008 which included a table showing the aggregate changes in rateable values in ports from the review. I have placed this in the Library. It represents the most up to date complete table currently available.

A revised table will be available at the end of January 2009 once the rating lists for the five remaining ports have been formally amended, in the light of any representations received in response to the notifications sent out by the respective valuation officers by 28 November.

Non-Domestic Rates: Small Businesses

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether small businesses will be automatically exempted from supplementary business rates. [246375]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Beckenham (Mrs. Lait) on 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 350W.

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what business rate multiplier she plans to use for (a) small firms and (b) medium and large firms in (i) 2008-09 and (ii) 2009-10. [246378]

John Healey: The current small business rate multiplier for 2008-09 is set at 0.458 (45.8 pence in the pound) and will rise to 0.481 (48.1 pence) for 2009-10.

The non-domestic multiplier (for larger businesses) is currently 0.462 (46.2 pence) for 2008-09 and will rise to 0.485 (48.5 pence) in 2009-10.

Opencast Mining: Planning Permission

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many applications for open cast coal mine developments were referred to the Secretary of State in each year since 1990, broken down by constituency of location. [247448]

Mr. Iain Wright: Planning applications for opencast coal developments that have been referred to the Secretary of State since 2001 are:

Application	Date of referral	Constituency
Mansfield Conical Tip	April 2001	Mansfield
Eldon Deep Extension	February 2002	Bishop Auckland
Delhi Opencast Coal Site	June 2007	Hexham
Land adjacent to Longhirst Lane	October 2008	Wansbeck

Data on planning applications referred between 1990 and 2001 could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many applications for open cast coal mine developments were successful in each year since 1990; and in which constituency each was located. [247449]

Mr. Iain Wright: Responsibility for determination of planning applications lies in the first instance with the appropriate mineral planning authority for the area concerned. Information on the number of planning applications for open cast coal mine developments since 1990 is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Regional Development Agencies

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what timetable she has set for the designation of regional development agencies as regional planning bodies. [246390]

John Healey: Under the provisions set out in the Local Democracy, Economic Development and Construction Bill, there would be no regional planning bodies. Regional development agencies and local authority leaders' boards would be jointly responsible for producing and revising regional strategies.

Valuation: Information and Communications Technology

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much (a) the Valuation Office Agency (VOA) and (b) agents working on behalf of the VOA have spent on the automated valuation model since September 2005. [246391]

John Healey: Since September 2005 approximately £6.2 million has been spent by (a) the Valuation Office Agency (VOA) to secure the investment in its automated valuation model (AVM).

This includes payments made to the VOA's IT supplier, Capgemini, a proportion of which covers their expenditure with third party IT suppliers (under separate contracts). As the VOA is not party to these separate contracts, it is not possible to provide the amount spent by (b) agents working on their behalf. Staffing costs associated with developing and maintaining the AVM are not recorded separately.

Vital Villages Programme

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effect on rural communities of the Vital Villages programme. [248184]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I have been asked to reply.

DEFRA sponsored the Countryside Agency, now partly superseded by the Commission for Rural Communities. The Countryside Agency ran the Vital Villages programme from 2001 until 2004. In 2005, they published 'Judging the success of the Vital Villages grants programme'. It concluded that it had been a successful scheme which had achieved its aims and brought a wide range of benefits to people in rural communities. Consequently, the lessons learnt from this programme are now being mainstreamed by Government and the third sector at the central, regional and local levels.

One button access to audio description from the remote control handset is now a mandatory requirement for the most costs effective option offered under the scheme.

My Department is supporting this initiative which will help theatres fill their seats while building the audience of the future.

Barbara Follett: Arts Council England announced on 17 December that approximately 618 000 free theatre tickets for under 26-year-olds would be available between February 2009 and March 2011. Over 200 venues will be involved in the scheme, which is due to officially launch on 16 February. My Department is supporting this initiative which will help theatres fill their seats while building the audience of the future.

Sport Participation

11. Mrs. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people participated in regular sport in (a) 2008 and (b) 2007. [248272]

Mr. Sutcliffe: DCMS's Taking Part survey measured participation in regular Sport and Active Recreation as part of PSA3.

Broadcasting: Language Standards

13. Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions he has had with representatives of broadcasting companies on language standards in broadcasting. [248274]

Andy Burnham: I regularly meet representatives of broadcasting companies to discuss a range of issues.

Sports Clubs: Water Rates

14. Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what representations he has received on the impact on sports clubs of changes in the method of calculation of water rates. [248275]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department is aware of this issue and I will—along with my hon. Friend the Minister for the Natural and Marine Environment—be seeking a meeting with Ofwat to establish what options are available to ensure community sports clubs are not disproportionately affected by these charges.

I have also asked Sport England and the Central Council for Physical Recreation to see whether there is any systematic help they can provide to ensure community sports clubs' water charges have been calculated correctly.

Sporting Talent

15. John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps he is taking to increase the opportunities for the development of young sporting talent; and if he will make a statement. [248276]

Andy Burnham: We are passionate about developing our young talented sports people including those with disabilities. The Government support Sport England, the Youth Sport Trust and UK Sport who work with schools, clubs and national governing bodies to identify, support and provide guidance to talented young athletes. £2.3 million per year through the Gifted and Talented programme and £3 million per year through the Talented Athlete Scholarship Scheme will provide a strong structure to help young people fulfil their potential and progress as far as possible along their chosen sporting pathway.

Stadiums: South West

16. Mr. Heath: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the provision of stadiums for major events in the south-west. [248277]

17. Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he next expects to meet local authorities to discuss measures to encourage sport in schools. [248278]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I regularly visit local authorities to see their excellent work for children and young people's PE and sport.

Local authorities have an important role to play in delivering the PE and Sport Strategy for Young People and free swimming for under 16s. They and primary care trusts, working through Children's Trusts, have the lead in planning, resourcing and co-ordinating services for children and young people. Therefore they will provide close support to school and county sport partnerships in schemes such as the Sport Unlimited Workstrand within the strategy.

Officials and our delivery partners will continue to work closely with local government to increase sporting opportunities for children and young people.

Betting Shops: Licensing

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the Answer of 12 January 2008, Official Report, column 415W, on betting shops, how many premises licence applications for betting shops have been refused by local authorities on the grounds of proximity in relation to existing betting shops in the locality in the last 12 months. [248847]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Local authorities are not permitted to refuse applications for premises licences on the grounds of proximity in relation to existing betting shops in the locality. They must base their decisions on the licensing objectives of the Gambling Act 2005, guidance issued by the Gambling Commission, and their own three year licensing policy statement.

Broadband Stakeholders Group

[246121]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 12 January 2009]: Sport England invested £2 million in the Cricket Foundation's 'Chance to Shine' programme between November 2005 and March 2007. The formation of the National Sports Foundation led to an agreement that 'Chance to Shine' would receive investment of £2.5 million for the 2007-08 financial year. The National Sports Foundation has now been wound-down and its funds integrated with the new Whole Sport Plans. As a result 'Chance to Shine' will be funded through the ECB's Whole Sport Plan. The details of this plan, like the plans of all national governing bodies, are still under discussion and will be finalised in due course.

Mr. Sutcliffe: I replied to the letter of 5 November from the hon. Member for Walsall, North on 15 December 2008. I will arrange for a copy to be sent.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 16 December 2008, Official Report, column 549W, on the Departmental internet, what the initial costing of including return path functionality in digital set-top boxes made by the technical experts on his Department's Emerging Technology Group was; and if he will make a statement. [247357]

Andy Burnham: The technical experts' estimate was that introducing return path functionality to a set-top box to provide internet connectivity would add an additional £40-£80 to the cost per box. Departmental Plants

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport with reference to the answer of 10 March 2008, Official Report, column 138W, on departmental plants, how much his Department has spent on (a) pot plants since March 2008 and (b) flowers in each of the last five years. [247359]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department has spent the following amounts on:

(a) Pot Plants

April 2008 to December 2008: £10,110.01

(b) Flowers

April 2006 to March 2007: £652.05

April 2007 to March 2008: £665.76

April 2008 to December 2008: £499.32

Information prior to 2006 is not available.

Departmental Procurement

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what proportion of invoices for goods and services procured from small and medium-sized businesses were paid within 10 days of receipt by (a) his Department and (b) the agency for which his Department is responsible in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [243449]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 16 December 2008]: Until October 2008, the Department was required to monitor and publish payment performance against a 30-day payment target and does not therefore currently publish information about payment within 10 days. However, following the Prime Minister's commitment of 8 October that central Government Departments will make payment within 10 days, we will additionally report 10-day payment performance from the period January to March 2009.

The Department does not publish information about size of suppliers. We do not discriminate by size because many SMEs can be found within larger supply chains.

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department's central media and communication unit spent on public surveys in each of the last three years. [247914]

Barbara Follett: The total expenditure on public surveys for each of the last three year is:

2006-07	24,400
2008-09	10,000

Digital Broadcasting

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what will happen to the transmitter at Winter Hill when the digital switchover is complete. [247019]

Andy Burnham: The Winter Hill site and mast will continue to be used after switchover with new transmitter equipment installed to broadcast the digital services.

Digital Broadcasting: Finance

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding his Department is providing for support and advice under the digital switchover help scheme in 2008-09. [248347]

Andy Burnham: The Digital Switchover Help Scheme is entirely funded by the TV licence fee. As detailed within the Scheme Agreement, I have agreed with the BBC Trust that the £603 million estimated cost of the scheme will be divided into annual amounts to be set aside from the licence fee for the purpose of funding the scheme. In nominal terms the provision made for 2008-09 is £67.6 million.

Digital Broadcasting: North West

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the estimated cost of digital switchover will be in the North West. [247021]

Andy Burnham: The bulk of expenditure by Digital UK on digital switchover is on advertising and communications to members of the public.

I therefore refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Orkney and Shetland (Mr. Carmichael) on 18 February 2008, Official Report, column 324W. Copies of the letter are available in the Libraries of both Houses.

Digital Radio Working Group

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the (a) total and (b) staffing cost to his Department has been of the Digital Radio Working Group since its establishment. [247423]

Andy Burnham: (a) The total costs to the Department of the Digital Radio Working Group (excluding staffing costs) have been approximately £29,700.

(b) The group was supported by the equivalent of 1.4 full-time DCMS staff. Using capitation rates[1] this equates to approximately £68,400.

[1]Capitation rates cover average pay, national insurance and pension contribution costs, by grade, incurred by the Department, including taking account of a pay rise from 1 August 2008.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on what date the Digital Radio Working Group was set up; on what date it published its interim report; and when he expects it to publish its final report. [247424]

Andy Burnham: The Digital Radio Working Group was established in November 2007. The group's interim report was published on 23 June 2008, and the final report was published on 19 December 2008. Both reports are available on my Department's website.

Gambling

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent steps the Government has taken to support businesses within the gambling industry. [248316]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Government have taken a number of recent steps to support businesses within the gambling industry. We have proposed to increase from four to eight the number of category B3 gaming machines which bingo clubs may offer. We have also proposed to double the maximum proceeds for individual society lottery draws to £4 million (which would allow for a £400,000 maximum prize per draw). In addition, the Government announced on 22 December 2008 its revised proposals in respect of increased stakes and prizes for certain category C and D gaming machines.

We have introduced all of the above measures in response to the difficult trading conditions the industry has been experiencing. In doing so, we have balanced the needs of the gambling industry with the licensing objectives of the Gambling Act 2005, in particular the protection of children and vulnerable adults.

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he will announce decisions following the consultation on the Gambling Act (Variations of Monetary Limits for Gaming Machines) Order 2008. [248699]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The consultation on the Gambling Act (Variations of Monetary Limits for Gaming Machines) Order 2008 closes on 19 January 2009. A decision will be announced shortly after this date.

Gambling: Advertising

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many gambling operators have been (a) investigated and (b) penalised for irresponsible advertising under the gambling advertising codes introduced in September 2007. [248321]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Advertising Standards Authority (ASA) have advised that since 1 September 2007 they have received 334 complaints about 274 advertisements for betting and gaming products and services.

Of these, the ASA considered there were grounds to formally or informally investigate 43 complaints about 36 advertisements. Of those, 27 complaints about 25 advertisements were upheld or upheld in part.

An ASA compliance survey of gambling advertisements across media in 2007, after the tightened gambling codes came into effect to coincide with the Gambling Act 2005, revealed a 99 per cent. compliance rate with the Advertising Codes.

ICT: Reviews

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many of his Department's staff have provided support for the Digital Britain Review. [248892]

Andy Burnham: To date, seven members of the Department's staff have been working full-time on the Digital Britain project, and three part-time. Additional support has been provided on an ad hoc basis by other policy officials and by the Department's corporate services, but has not been recorded separately.

Legacy Trust

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what proportion of funding dispersed by the Legacy Trust to date has been spent on (a) cultural and (b) sporting projects. [247573]

Andy Burnham: The Legacy Trust UK was established with a £40 million endowment from the Big Lottery Fund, the Arts Council England and the Department for Culture, Media and Sport to support a wide range of innovative cultural and sporting activities for all, which celebrate the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games and leave a lasting legacy in communities throughout the United Kingdom.

While the Legacy Trust UK (LTUK) has made a number of decisions regarding the allocation of their funding, those projects are a long way from completion and it is not possible to give an accurate breakdown of the activities provided at this stage. However, the Trust aim for approximately 70 per cent. of its endowment to be spent on cultural activities, with the remaining 30 per cent. on sports projects.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what projects have received funding from the Legacy Trust of more than £100,000 to date. [247574]

Andy Burnham: The Legacy Trust UK was established with a £40 million endowment from the Big Lottery Fund, the Arts Council England and the Department for Culture, Media and Sport to support a wide range of innovative cultural and sporting activities for all, which celebrate the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games and leave a lasting legacy in communities throughout the United Kingdom.

While the Legacy Trust UK (LTUK) has made a number of decisions regarding the allocation of their funding, to date, only the following grants (of above £100,000) have been made to projects:

National Programmes

UK School Games 2008: £2.3 million

LTUK's other three national programmes are currently under development. Announcements on these programmes will be made throughout 2009.

Nations and Regions Programmes

East Midlands: £140,000

While the LTUK has made decisions on eight of the 12 Nations and Regions grants, totalling over £16 million, these projects are, on the whole, still in a development phase and project expenditure has been minimal. LTUK are waiting for grant recipients to draw down the funds against their four-year business plans.

Members: Correspondence

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he will reply to the hon. Member for Luton South's letter of 10 July 2008 about Mr R. Fisk of Luton. [247675]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I apologise for the delay in replying to the hon. Member. The Department has no record of receiving the original correspondence. A duplicate copy was requested and received on 17 October 2008. I responded on 13 January 2009.

Playing Fields: Planning Permission

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport with reference to the answer of 1 November 2006, Official Report, column 421W, on playing fields, how many planning applications have been approved affecting sites which either were too small or of the wrong shape to accommodate a playing pitch as currently defined in each year since 2004-05. [245462]

Andy Burnham: Sport England has advised that, for the years in which figures are currently available, the following number of applications were approved where the land affected was either too small or the wrong shape to accommodate a playing pitch:

	Number of approved applications
2004-05	245
2005-06	314

Sport England does not hold any figures on applications where the playing field area may contain only a pitch less than 0.4 ha, as these would not be referred to them under the statutory instrument.

Public Libraries

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what proportion of households in each local authority area lived within (a) one mile and (b) two miles of a static library in each of the last three years. [247576]

Barbara Follett: The information requested is published annually by the Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy (CIPFA) in Public Library Statistics. The House of Commons Library holds copies for the period in question.

Public Service Agreement

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he plans to publish his final assessment of progress made towards meeting his Department's public service agreement performance targets since the Spending Review in 2004. [247588]

Andy Burnham: The latest assessment of progress made towards meeting my Department's outstanding public service agreement performance targets from the Spending Review 2004 was published in December 2008 in my Department's Autumn Performance Report 2008, which can be found at the following website address:

http://www.culture.gov.uk/reference_library/publications/5686.aspx

and in the Libraries of both Houses.

Sport England: Finance

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what undertakings have been made to non-Olympic sports in respect of their Sport England funding over the period 2008 to 2012. [246123]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 12 January 2009]: Sport England recently announced its National Governing Body funding decisions for 2009-13. Awards have been made to 46 national governing bodies, with a total in excess of £155 million being made available to 15 non-Olympic sports as follows:

Angling	1,561,906
Baseball and Softball	2,700,000
Bowls	756,750
Cricket	37,776,725
Golf	12,851,500
Lacrosse	2,210,993
Mountaineering	1,287,850
Movement and Dance	741,552
Netball	17,300,000
Orienteering	2,275,000
Rounders	2,200,000
Rugby League	29,408,341
Rugby Union	30,724,908
Squash	12,600,000
Waterskiing	951,373

Sport England will also operate other funding streams to replace the existing Community Investment Fund and support the creation of a world leading community sports system. These will be open to all recognised national governing bodies and other sports organisations, including clubs, and will include 'themed' funding rounds, a small grants scheme, a facilities fund and an innovation fund.

Sports Legacy Board

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when the first meeting of the Sports Legacy Board will take place. [247355]

Mr. Sutcliffe: We are currently finalising the date of the first meeting and anticipate that it will be held in the spring.

Television: North West

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many households are still operating on analogue television in the North West. [247020]

Andy Burnham: The Digital UK and Ofcom Switchover Tracker Survey for the Third Quarter of 2008 estimates that approximately 330,000 households in the Granada region are watching analogue television on their primary TV set.

Tourism

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent assessment he has made of progress made towards reaching his Department's target to improve productivity in the tourism, creative and leisure industries. [247587]

Andy Burnham: The most recent assessment of progress against the target to improve productivity in the tourism, creative and leisure industries was published in December 2008 in my Department's Autumn Performance Report 2008, which can be found at the following website address:

http://www.culture.gov.uk/reference_library/publications/5686.aspx

and in the Libraries of both Houses.

In summary, there has been a slight downturn in the productivity trend for the creative industries. For the leisure industries, there has been some reasonable productivity growth; however, this is counteracted by decreases in the productivity of travel agencies/tour operators caused by big reductions in employment.

VisitBritain: Finance

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding the Government has provided directly to VisitBritain in each of the last three years. [247206]

Barbara Follett: The following table shows the grant in aid final outturn figures for VisitBritain in each of the last three years. These figures are published in the Department for Culture, Media and Sport Resource Accounts which are audited by the NAO.

Visit Britain grant in aid

	Outturn (£000)
2005-06	48,900
2006-07	49,900
2007-08	50,650

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan: Reconstruction

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which organisation has managed each project funded by his Department in Helmand province since 2005; what the budget of each was; how much has been spent in each case; what monitoring, impact assessments and evaluations have been undertaken; and if he will make a statement. [245773]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) began its programme of bilateral support to Helmand in 2006, committing to spend £30 million in the province from 2006-07 to 2008-09. DFID spent £23.7 million from 2006-07 to 2007-08, and will spend around £23 million in 2008-09, meaning a spend of around £46 million over the three-year period. Itemised details of spend are listed. For security reasons, a number of our implementing partners prefer to keep a discreet profile and therefore we maintain confidentiality about their identities.

The primary channel for DFID support is the Helmand Agriculture and Rural Development Programme (HARDP). The programme is implemented by the government of Afghanistan (both the Ministry for Rural Rehabilitation and Development and the Ministry for Agriculture Irrigation and Livestock). £14.8 million has so far been disbursed through this programme in 2006-08. The government of Afghanistan is responsible for the allocation of funds to, and evaluation of, the hundreds of individual projects under HARDP. Once complete, each phase of HARDP is subjected to a formal DFID Project Completion Report. An independent review published in September 2008 concluded that the programme's accomplishments had been significant.

DFID has been funding UN Habitat since early 2007 to undertake community and municipal development work in central Lashkar Gah. UN Habitat works directly with the government of Afghanistan's municipal authority and with locally-selected Community Development Councils: a two-year programme worth £2.4 million is being implemented until 2010, including the creation of community development councils and projects such as drainage ditches, gravelled roads and waste disposal.

Monitoring and evaluating activity in Helmand brings particular challenges. Many parts of the province remain insecure, and access by international staff to many areas is impossible. DFID has consequently developed a range of strategies to ensure programmes are properly monitored. These include working closely with military colleagues to access insecure areas, and identifying implementing partners from local communities, who can travel relatively freely within the regions where they live. We are in the process of contracting a third-party organisation to provide independent evaluation of our work and its impact.

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the outcomes of each project undertaken by his Department in the areas of development and reconstruction in Helmand province were in each of the last three years. [245779]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) will spend around £46 million in Helmand over the three-year period 2006-09. Mainly channelled through the government of Afghanistan, this has supported many hundreds of individual projects at community level and helped the government of Afghanistan to establish a presence and a capability in the province. Given the number of projects involved, we assess our impact through broader programme outcomes.

Our support has resulted in the construction of 2,451 wells, benefiting over 400,000 people. Irrigation has been restored to 13,800 hectares of land, 5,800 hectares have been newly irrigated and 59 km of road completed. These government of Afghanistan-led programmes have delivered cleaner water and better sanitation for 1,500 families in Lashkar Gah. DFID's £1.5 million commitment to the Governor of Helmand's wheat seed distribution programme this year helped the government to offer over 30,000 families a viable alternative to poppy cultivation.

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which sectors in Afghanistan are covered by his Department's Helmand road map; how much is to be spent on the road map; how its effectiveness will be measured; and if he will make a statement. [245781]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Helmand Road Map contains eight strands of activity: politics and reconciliation; security; governance; rule of law; economic development; counter narcotics; strategic communications; and district reconstruction and development.

£28 million has been made available from the tri-Departmental Stabilisation Aid Fund in 2008-09 to support the Helmand Road Map. DFID has made available an additional £23 million to be spent in the province in 2008-09.

An internal review of progress towards meeting the conditions required to stabilise Helmand is made every six months, drawing in views from the Civil Military Mission and Task Force Helmand. The Mission is seeking to improve the quality of the measures of effect used to identify trends in progress against the Road Map, using a combination of hard data (for example, the use of basic state functions such as health and education services), proxy indicators (for example, the numbers of vehicles moving on specific roads as an indicator of improved security), polling data, and assessments of progress in building the capability of Afghan institutions.

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department's objectives in Helmand province are for the next two years. [245782]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development's (DFID) Afghanistan country plan for 2009-13 is currently under development. All activity will be guided by the UK strategy for Afghanistan announced by the Prime Minister in December 2007. In Helmand, DFID is committed to playing a full part in the UK effort set out in the Helmand Roadmap. DFID's role in the province is to support stabilisation, to lay the foundations for long-term development and to influence other donors to focus their work in the province. Our goal is to manage the eventual transition of support in Helmand from short-term stabilisation funding to more sustainable, long-term provision of development assistance in line with the priorities of the government of Afghanistan.

Africa: Overseas Aid

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what aid the UK has provided to (a) Zimbabwe and (b) sub-Saharan Africa in each of the last five years; what he expects UK's aid commitment to his region to be in each of the next three years; what assessment he has made of the work undertaken by (i) the UK and (ii) the international community to further the United Nations Declaration on the New Partnership for Africa's Development; and if he will make a statement. [246808]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Department for International Development (DFID) assistance to Zimbabwe and the sub-Saharan Africa over the last five and next three years is as follows:

£ million

Financial year	Total aid to sub-Saharan Africa	Aid to Zimbabwe	Comments
2003-04	677.942	36.006	—
2004-05	827.566	27.355	—
2005-06	1,099.875	35.376	—
2006-07	1,186.467	34.072	—
2007-08	1,301.764	43.266	—
2008-09	1,278.14	44.00	Forecast expenditure
2009-10	1,500.00	40.00	Planned expenditure
2010-11	1,750.00	40.00	Planned expenditure

No allocations have yet been set for 2011-12 onwards, as this falls into the next comprehensive spending review period. Our assistance to Zimbabwe in future years may be significantly revised in the event of positive political developments there.

In September 2002, the United Nations General Assembly adopted a Declaration on the New Partnership for Africa's Development (NEPAD), welcoming NEPAD as an African Union led, owned and managed initiative. It recognised that primary responsibility for implementation rested with the African Governments and peoples and affirmed that international support for implementation was essential.

The UK Government are playing their part in providing international support to NEPAD programmes. We have committed funds to support the Comprehensive Africa Agriculture Development Programme (CAADP), which aims to improve food security, nutrition and incomes. We support the Africa Peer Review Mechanism (APRM). This support, along with funds from other donor countries, is managed by the UN Development Programme and used to support the APRM Secretariat. We also provide support to NEPAD's Infrastructure Project Preparation Facility, which helps African countries, Regional Economic Communities and related institutions mobilise resources for the preparation of regional infrastructure projects and programmes.

In July 2003, the Africa Union (AU) adopted a declaration by which NEPAD was to be fully integrated into the structures and processes of the AU. This should help to streamline the African regional institutional architecture. The UK Government are working with others to assist the AU, including through funding a programme to improve systems and communications at the AU Commission. A stronger AU could play a major role in delivering the African led development envisaged by NEPAD.

Commonwealth Scholarship Commission: Equality

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many people of each (a) sex and (b) ethnicity were appointed to the Commonwealth Scholarship Commission in the last five years. [246914]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: A gender breakdown of appointments to the Commonwealth Scholarship Commission over the last five years is given as follows:

	Male appointees	Female appointees	Total ethnic minority appointees	Total appointees
2004	2	1	0	3
2005	—	—	—	[1] —
2006	3	1	0	4
2007	—	—	—	[1] —
2008	3	3	1	6

[1] None.

Departmental Buildings

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recommendations have been made by the Carbon Trust to his Department following energy audits conducted on its buildings; and what progress has been made on implementing these recommendations. [246916]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Reports were commissioned via the Carbon Trust on our two UK offices. The main recommendations made, and the actions taken, are as follows:

Improved control over our Building Management Systems—this has been achieved in both offices by upgrading the software on the computer systems which operate the plant, and which in turn allow us to monitor and adjust more effectively the performance of heating and cooling equipment.

Reduce incoming voltage—this has been achieved in our London office through investment in dedicated equipment in February 2008 which has reduced our electricity consumption in the building by 15 per cent.. Similar equipment is due to be installed in our East Kilbride office in February 2009.

Improved control over lighting—all lighting in both offices is now of modern energy efficient design, and we have improved the control over movement sensors and lighting controls to eliminate unnecessary usage. We have upgraded the lighting in the plant level of our London Headquarters which in itself is now saving approximately 1 per cent. of the electricity use in the building.

Turning off electrical appliances when not in use—we carry out awareness campaigns among staff, and unused PCs are turned off at weekends by security staff.

Improved space utilisation—we have reduced the amount of space occupied by staff since the reports were produced, and are currently planning for a further reduction.

As a result of these and other changes made, our energy consumption decreased by 5 per cent. in 2007-08 over the previous year, and we are currently on track to achieve a larger reduction this financial year. We are also continuing to work with Carbon Trust to assess the feasibility of other specific energy efficiency measures including a wind turbine, biomass boiler and microgeneration.

Departmental Committees

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development with reference to his Department's Annual Report 2008, chapter 10, point 10.4, how many times each committee met during 2006-07; and what expenses were incurred in holding those meetings. [246920]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Four of the five sub-committees outlined in the 2008 Departmental annual report were active during the period 2006-07. The Investment Committee was under development in late 2007 and had its inaugural meeting on 29 February 2008. Details of the number of meetings held and the expenses incurred are outlined in the following table:

Committee	Number of meetings in 2006-07	Expenses incurred (£)
Development Committee	5	103.16
Audit Committee	5	4,060.50
Investment Committee	0	0
Human Resource and Strategy Committee	6	0
Senior Civil Service Management and Pay Committee	14	0

The higher level of expense incurred by the Audit Committee is due to work undertaken by the non-executive directors above and beyond their pro bono contributions.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many times the departmental-wide working group established to provide comments and contribute to organisational directions for the Corporate Plan has met; who chairs the group; and what the names and positions are of each member of the group. [246923]

Mr. Michael Foster: Instead of a corporate plan, the Department for International Development (DFID) launched a change programme 'Making it Happen' in April 2008. The programme was shaped by meetings of DFID's Leadership Group, including the directors responsible for DFID's 13 divisions. There are board level champions or director-level Senior Responsible Offices for each element of 'Making it Happen'. Progress is discussed on a monthly basis by DFID's Management Board, and by the Leadership Group, both chaired by the Permanent Secretary. All members of the senior civil service whether based in the UK or overseas have been encouraged to discuss various Making it Happen themes with their staff making clear what this means for them in practice and providing feedback to the central Change Unit.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what percentage of contractors and suppliers to his Department have reported that they are compliant with the Government's security standards following publication of the report, Data Handling Procedures in Government, and the accompanying document, Cross-departmental Actions: Mandatory Minimum Action, on 25 June 2008. [245308]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: To ensure compliance with the new data handling procedures in Government, the Department for International Development has introduced the mandatory data handling clauses into all relevant contracts issued from the 1 July 2008. An exercise to review existing contracts is also underway.

Departmental Disabled Staff

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether his Department has made workplace adjustments to accommodate employees with a disability. [246912]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development (DFID) has looked at the needs of persons with a range of disabilities—e.g. mobility problems, impaired hearing, hidden disabilities, etc. and has made a number of workplace adjustments across the Department to accommodate staff with a disability and comply with the requirements of the Disability Discrimination Act.

Departmental ICT

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what provision has been made to train his Department's staff on the implementation and use of the new Quest system; and what the cost of such training per staff member will be. [246884]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Quest Electronic Document and Records Management (EDRM) System project was completed in 2007. All staff were provided with a minimum of one and a half days of training, and more specialist training was provided as needed.

The cost per staff member cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate cost.

Departmental Official Cars

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what policies his Department has to monitor his staff's vehicle usage. [246870]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department For International Development (DFID) has a travel policy which discourages the use of private motor vehicles for official travel where public transport is available.

Employees who travel by private vehicle for official travel must ensure that their car insurance provides cover for business travel and they have approval to use the vehicle for official trips.

DFID also actively encourages car sharing for employees commuting as part of our environmental initiatives.

Any vehicle mileage claims are checked in line with standard Government accounting procedures.

Departmental Temporary Employment

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department spent on agency temporary staffing for its UK offices in the last three years. [246915]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer provided to the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban) on 28 October 2008, Official Report, column 935W.

Guatemala: Women

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what (a) funding and (b) other support his Department is providing in 2008-09 for organisations in Guatemala that seek to increase the number of investigations and prosecutions of violent offences against women in that country. [246415]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In 2008-09, DFID is putting £60,000 into the International Commission Against Impunity in Guatemala (CICIG). The CICIG aims to increase the number of investigations and prosecutions of violent offences, including those against women. The objectives of the project are to support, strengthen and assist state institutions responsible for investigating and prosecuting crimes, and to contribute to the dismantling of illegal security forces and clandestine security organisations and the criminal prosecution of individuals involved in their activities.

In addition, the British embassy in Guatemala City is providing Oxfam GB with £10,000 this financial year for two projects which aim to educate women (mainly indigenous women) on their human rights and specifically on their rights of access to justice within the Guatemalan legal system. The embassy is also funding a project with the International Commission of Jurists (ICJ). While this is not specifically targeting women, it does aim to strengthen the administration of justice and the rule of law. It involves training for judges, lawyers and prosecutors on international human rights law with the objectives of increasing judicial independence, decreasing impunity and abolishing the death penalty. The embassy is providing the ICJ with £10,000 in 2008-09.

Offenders

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many former prisoners are employed by his Department; and what his Department's policy is on employing former prisoners. [246342]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development is unable to confirm if any employees are former prisoners. All new recruits are required to declare unspent criminal convictions which are checked as part of the Cabinet Office mandated Baseline Personnel Security Standard process, before they are offered a contract of employment. Where appropriate national security vetting checks are also undertaken and these include a review of spent convictions. Declarations of criminal convictions, which may or may not involve prison sentences, are not collated centrally but retained on classified individual personnel security files.

The Department does not discriminate against former prisoners. Appointments are made on merit and on the basis of fair and open competition, in accordance with the Civil Service Commissioners' Recruitment Code, equal opportunities legislation, the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act and an assessment in the round of any security factors presented.

Poverty

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what major measurable indicators his Department is contributing to addressing international poverty, as referred to in the Public Service Agreement. [246887]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: A summary of performance against the agreed indicators for the 2008-11 Public Service Agreement 29 on international poverty reduction was published in DFID's Autumn Performance Report in December. The report is available in the Library and on the DFID website:

http://www.dfid.gov.uk/pubs/files/aut-perf-report-08.pdf.

Public Service Agreements

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether his Department will have met all of its Public Service Agreement targets by the end of the 2005 to 2008 plan. [246886]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Details of the Department for International Development's (DFID) progress on its public service agreements are available in the Autumn Performance Report published in December 2008. The report is available in the Library and on the DFID website:

http://www.dfid.gov.uk/pubs/files/aut-perf-report-08.pdf.

St. Helena: Airports

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his most recent estimate is of the length of time which will be required for the proposed airport on St. Helena to be brought into service once approval has been granted. [244744]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: No decision has been made on the project. It would therefore be inappropriate to provide further information at this stage.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his most recent estimate was of the cost to the public purse of the proposed St. Helena airport before the pause in negotiations on the airport was announced. [246301]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: It would be inappropriate to release any financial information, including cost estimates, relating to improving access to St. Helena as these could influence future negotiations.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when he plans to publish the environmental impact assessment of the proposed St. Helena airport development. [246313]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The environmental statement for the proposed St. Helena airport and supporting infrastructure was published in May 2008. It is available at:

www.sainthelenaaccess.com

Zimbabwe: Cholera

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent discussions he has had with his international counterparts on the cholera outbreak in Zimbabwe. [246204]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The humanitarian situation in Zimbabwe continues to deteriorate. The cholera epidemic is the biggest in Zimbabwe's history. The UN is predicting that as many as 60,000 could be affected in the coming weeks. DFID is funding a £10 million package to help fight the cholera outbreak and support life-saving health services.

Tackling this outbreak represents a major coordinated international effort, led by the World Health Organisation and UNICEF with support from a wide range of bilateral partners (including USAID, ECHO, the Netherlands, Japan, Switzerland, France, Canada and Australia) and local and international NGO's. The response is co-ordinated in Harare and the UK is actively engaged.

Zimbabwe: Diamonds

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether it is the Government's policy to support calls for a suspension of Zimbabwe from the Kimberley Process for diamonds. [246304]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Reports of violence and state-sponsored murder in and around Marange diamond mine are a major cause for concern. The UK Government, who are represented in the Kimberley Process by the European Union (EU), is working with their partners, the diamond industry and civil society groups, to investigate this illegal trade and stem the flow of illicit diamonds from Zimbabwe.

Zimbabwe: Overseas Aid

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of distribution of humanitarian aid in Zimbabwe; and if he will make a statement. [246158]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Deliberate aid obstruction (in the form of a government ban on NGO activities) was a feature of the election period in 2008. This coupled with long-term policy failures and economic mismanagement by the government of Zimbabwe means that the country is facing its largest ever cholera epidemic and over five million people—in this highly fertile country—are receiving international food assistance.

Occasional localised instances of humanitarian obstruction can never be entirely ruled out but, according to latest UN reporting, there have been no impediments to humanitarian access reported by partner organisations on the ground in recent weeks. The UN monitors this situation closely and is quick to respond to any problems with obstruction or political interference in aid delivery.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many UK humanitarian workers have been refused visas to enter Zimbabwe since November 2008; and if he will make a statement. [246300]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The UK Government generally do not consider the Government of Zimbabwe to be a credible development or humanitarian partner and we do not receive systematic reports on visa and other issues related to humanitarian work. However, there have been a number of reports of international NGO workers being refused or having difficulty in securing temporary employment permits which allow for longer stays.

This kind of behaviour is unfortunately symptomatic of a Government which has little or no regard for the welfare of its people. We are working as part of a co-ordinated international effort to tackle the worst cholera crisis in Zimbabwe's history, to provide food aid to over 5 million people and to meet other basic humanitarian needs. As part of this, any obstructive behaviour by the Government of Zimbabwe will be raised with them directly through UN channels.

TREASURY

Car Allowances

John Barrett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the rate for approved mileage allowance payment was last set. [248685]

Mr. Timms: The current rates for approved mileage allowance payments were introduced in April 2002.

Charities

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer to which (a) charities and (b) voluntary organisations his Department has provided funding in the last five years; and how much funding was provided to each. [247370]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury does not provide any direct funding to charities or voluntary organisations. Government funding for a charity or voluntary organisation would be delivered through the Department with policy responsibility for the area in which the organisation operates.

Child Benefit

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average period between approval of an application for child benefit and the first benefit payment was in the last period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [247321]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for West Ham (Lyn Brown) on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 328W.

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the average time taken to process applications for child benefit in the most recent period for which information is available; and what steps he plans to take to reduce that time. [248670]

Mr. Timms: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for West Ham (Lyn Brown) on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 328W.

Churches: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will publish the names of those on the inter-departmental working group set up to look into the repair of church buildings and the bodies they represent. [248146]

Yvette Cooper: Following the commitment made in Budget 2007 to examine how the Government can help churches and heritage buildings, officials and Ministers from: HM Treasury; Communities and Local Government; the Office of the Third Sector; the Department for Culture, Media and Sport and the Department for the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs have met with the Church of England Archbishops' Council to consider ways in which church buildings might benefit from existing departmental programmes in order to support the Government's community objectives.

Clear Line of Sight Programme

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what progress has been made on the Clear Line of Sight project; and if he will make a statement. [247226]

Yvette Cooper: Good progress continues to be made in taking forward the Clear Line of Sight project. The Government submitted an initial Memorandum to Parliament in November 2008, setting out the high level principles and proposals underpinning the project. The Government plan to submit formal proposals in a second Memorandum to Parliament in due course, reflecting comments received from the Parliamentary Committees on its initial proposals, as well as the outcome of an external consultation exercise conducted during the autumn of 2008.

Debts

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had with the International Monetary Fund on its assessment of (a) public and (b) private debt in the UK. [248191]

Ian Pearson: The Chancellor maintains regular contact with international financial institutions. As President of the G20, the UK is actively working with the International Monetary Fund to strengthen international macro-economic and financial surveillance.

Departmental Air Travel

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many official journeys (a) he and his predecessors and (b) his officials made by plane in each of the last five years. [247502]

Angela Eagle: The information requested could not be provided within the disproportionate costs threshold.

Departmental Catering

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which (a) food and (b) drinks suppliers have been used by his Department in each of the last three years; and how much his Department paid to each such supplier in each of those years. [248377]

Angela Eagle: The catering company providing facilities within the Treasury is contracted under the Department's PFI contract and not directly employed by the Department. The contractor's suppliers and amounts spent are commercially sensitive and are not available for publication.

Departmental ICT

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what IT systems used by his Department access data from the central Frameworks Database; and what the stated purpose of each system is; [248103]

(2) what calculations of (a) tax, (b) tax allowances and (c) tax credits undertaken by his Department access data from the central Frameworks Database; [248104]

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much his Department's central media and communication unit spent on public surveys in each of the last three years. [247923]

Economic Situation

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will adopt a public procurement policy to assist British companies during the current financial situation. [247090]

Angela Eagle: Public procurement is subject to EU and international regulations set in place to open up markets and prevent discrimination. The Government's procurement policy is to achieve value for money for the taxpayer, usually achieved through competition.

Within those policy and legal obligations the Government are committed to being a good customer to industry. Since publication of the Treasury report Transforming Government Procurement in 2007, a number of measures have been set in place to improve procurement capability and professionalism.

Specific measures implemented in response to the downturn include the announcement of a target for Government Departments to aim to pay all invoices within 10 working days. Also, the European Commission has announced a relaxation of the timescales under the public procurement rules to allow for faster procurement processes where this will be of benefit to industry in the current climate. These changes have been promulgated to purchasing authorities.

Landfill Tax

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of (a) the total tonnage of waste and (b) the revenue from landfill tax on waste sent to landfill in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008, broken down by (A) non-recyclable materials and (B) recyclable material in the form of (1) glass, (2) paper, (3) plastics, (4) organic waste, (5) wood, (6) metals, (7) textiles and (8) electronic items. [248046]

Angela Eagle: Total tonnage of waste and landfill tax receipts for 2006-07 and 2007-08 are published by HM Revenue and Customs at:

http://www.uktradeinfo.com/index.cfm?task=bulllandfill.

Please note the revenue figures for 2008 are not yet available. HM Revenue and Customs will publish these figures at the end of May. There are no data available for non-recyclable materials and recyclable materials that have been sent to landfill.

Yvette Cooper: The Government set out their spending plans twice a year, in the Budget and the pre-Budget report. Latest figures on spending plans are published in Table B10 of PBR08. Outturns are reported monthly in the Public Sector Finance Release published jointly by HM Treasury and the Office for National Statistics.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the Government's public sector current expenditure was in each year since 1997-98; and what the planned public sector current expenditure is for (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11. [247604]

Revenue and Customs: Yorkshire and the Humber

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the savings from the reorganisation of HM Revenue and Customs office space in Yorkshire and the Humber; and if he will make a statement. [247322]

Mr. Timms: The reorganisation of HM Revenue and Customs' (HMRC's) office space in Yorkshire and the Humber will yield estimated annual estates savings of £12.6 million. These are however only part of the overall savings HMRC expects to achieve from the restructuring of its business and estate. The main reason for the reorganisation is to allow HMRC to achieve operational efficiencies and better customer service across the UK by consolidating staff and work in fewer locations and introducing new and more efficient working practices.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received from local authorities on proposed tax office closures in Yorkshire and the Humber; and if he will make a statement. [247324]

Mr. Timms: Treasury Ministers and officials receive representations from a wide range of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such representations.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the likely effect of the HM Revenue and Customs reorganisation programme on levels of employment in Yorkshire and the Humber; and if he will make a statement. [247325]

Mr. Timms: HMRC is reorganising its business across the UK so that it can operate more efficiently, and provide better customer service, with fewer staff. Its offices in Yorkshire and the Humber have been reviewed as part of the programme to align estate with future business requirements. Staff in offices that are due to close will wherever possible relocate to one of the long-term locations. If they cannot do so, alternative redeployment options will be considered, including redeployment to another public service employer.

Tax Allowances: Self-Employed

Stephen Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost to the public purse was of tax relief for training by the self-employed allowable under PAYE in 2007-08. [247546]

Mr. Timms: Training costs are an allowable expense against profits for the self-employed but the amount claimed is not separately identified on their self-assessment tax returns, so estimates of the cost are not available.

Valuation Office: Cole Layer Trumble

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the agreement between Cole Layer Trumble/Tyler Technologies and the organisation which acts as the agent of the Valuation Office Agency, redacting any commercially confidential information. [245959]

Mr. Timms: The Valuation Office Agency is not a party to the agreement and so is not able to provide a copy of it.

VAT: Sunscreens

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make it his policy to reduce value added tax on suncare products which give children protection against the effects of the sun. [247086]

Mr. Timms: All taxes are kept under review and any changes are announced by the Chancellor as part of the Budget process.

The case for a VAT reduction for sun care products has been looked at carefully, but we consider the most effective approach to be the promotion of the broad range of precautions necessary for sun protection, not just sun care products, for example, through Government support for Cancer Research UK's "SunSmart" skin cancer advice and awareness raising campaign.

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received on proposals to reduce the rate of value added tax for suncare products; and if he will make a statement. [247087]

Mr. Timms: Treasury Ministers and officials receive representations from a wide range of organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such representations.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many families claiming tax credits in 2006-07 experienced an income increase of between (a) £2,500 and £5,000, (b) £5,001 and £7,500, (c) £7,501 and £10,000, (d) £10,001 and £15,000 and (e) £15,001 and £25,000. [249193]

Mr. Timms: The following table shows the average number of families who were claiming tax credits in 2006-07, split by income rise in each specified band.

Income increase bands for 2006-07 finalised awards

Income rise bandings (2005-06 to 2006-07)	Number of awards (Thousand)

Between £10,001 and £15,000	139.8
Between £15,001 and £25,000	82.2
All	1,062.2

The income rise has been derived from the 2005-06 and 2006-07 incomes which were used to finalise the awards.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the documentation relating to the Tax Credit Transformation Programme. [249196]

Mr. Timms: Information on the programme has been published in a number of documents and reports, including:

Tax Credits: Improving delivery and choice—a discussion paper (May 2008)

Budget 2008 (March 2008)

HMRC Departmental Report 2008 (July 2008)

HMRC Autumn Performance Report 2008 (December 2008)

These documents can be found on HM Treasury and HMRC websites.

Employment

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many (a) jobs, (b) private sector jobs and (c) public sector jobs there were in the UK in each year since 1979. [246807]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated January 2009:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning how many (a) jobs, (b) private sector jobs and (c) public sector jobs there were in the UK in each year since 1979. (246807)

Statistics on jobs in the private and public sectors are not available. The closest measure available is employment. These figures will therefore exclude any vacancies.

The Office for National Statistics produces employment statistics for the UK from the Labour Force Survey (published monthly), and for the public sector through the quarterly Public Sector Employment surveys. A consistent time series is only available back to 1992 and the available information is provided at Annex A.

Unemployment

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people in (a) North Yorkshire and (b) England were unemployed in each year since 1993. [247594]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated January 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many people living in (a) North Yorkshire and (b) England were unemployed in each year since 1993. (247594)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles unemployment statistics for local areas from the Annual Population Survey (APS) and its predecessor, the annual Labour Force Survey (LFS), following International Labour Organisation (ILO) definitions.

Table 1 shows the number of people aged 16+, resident in (a) North Yorkshire and (b) England, who were unemployed in each year. The estimates for England have also been compiled from the APS to be consistent with those for North Yorkshire and will therefore differ from the unemployment figures published in the Labour Market First Release.

Estimates are provided for the 12 months ending in February from 1995 to 2004 from the annual LFS, and for the 12 months ending in March from 2005 to 2008 as well as June 2008, from the APS. Figures for earlier years are not available. The July 2007 to June 2008 APS dataset is the most recent for which figures are available, whereas a consistent time series is best provided using periods ending in February or March.

As the estimates for North Yorkshire are for a subset of the population in a relatively small geographical area, they are based on small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty.

Table 1: Number of persons unemployed[1] resident in England and North Yorkshire

[1] Level of unemployment are provided for persons aged 16 and over. The figures presented are weighted to population estimates published in 2007.
[2] Coefficients of Variation have been calculated for the latest period as an indication of the quality of the estimates. See guide to quality as follows -
Guide to Quality:
The Coefficient of Variation (CV) indicates the quality of an estimate, the smaller the CV value the higher the quality. The true value is likely to lie within +/- twice the CV – for example, for an estimate of 200 with a CV of 5 per cent. we would expect the population total to be within the range 180-220
Key Coefficient of Variation (CV) (%) Statistical robustness
* 0 ≤ CV <5 Estimates are considered precise.
 5 ≤ CV <10 Estimates are considered reasonably precise.
 10 ≤ CV <20 Estimates are considered acceptable.
* CV ≤ 20 Estimates are considered too unreliable for practical purposes.

JUSTICE

Antisocial Behaviour: Fixed Penalties

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 17 December 2008, Official Report, column 944W, on anti-social behaviour: fixed penalties, how many penalty notices for disorder have been (a) issued and (b) not paid for each type of offence in each of the last four years. [247291]

Maria Eagle: The number of Penalty Notices for Disorder (PNDs) issued and not paid within the suspended enforcement period in England and Wales for each year from 2004 to 2007 (latest published), broken down by offence are in the following table.

Under the PND Scheme, recipients have 21 days in which either to pay the penalty or request a court hearing. If no action is taken, a fine of one and a half times the penalty amount is registered against an offender by the magistrates court. The overall fine payment rate at court is 87 per cent.; the courts fine registration system cannot differentiate between those fines arising from unpaid PNDs and any other fine.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Approved Premises: Harwich

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many new bail hostels are planned to be built in Harwich constituency. [247062]

Mr. Hanson: I do not intend to provide any new bail hostels in Harwich constituency.

If the hon. Gentleman is referring to the accommodation and support service for bail and Home Detention Curfew provided by ClearSprings, none is currently planned for Harwich constituency.

Bail Accommodation and Support Service: Cheshire

Mr. Timpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many ClearSprings bail hostels have been (a) planned and (b) approved in Crewe and Nantwich constituency. [249392]

Mr. Hanson: The hon. Gentleman is incorrect in referring to the ClearSprings' addresses as bail hostels. They are leased private properties. Two properties were planned and were brought into use in Crewe; these have subsequently closed and one new property will be sourced.

Bail Accommodation and Support Service: East Midlands

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice in which local government wards in Leicester, Leicestershire, Northampton, Northamptonshire and Peterborough there is accommodation provided by the ClearSprings Bail Accommodation and Support Service; and how many such premises there are in each such ward. [249278]

Mr. Hanson: There is one property in each of the wards listed as follows:

Leicestershire (all in Leicester)

Beaumont Leys

Fosse

Freeman

Westcotes

Northamptonshire (all in Northampton)

St. James

Abingdon

Kingsley
Thorplands
Peterborough
Orton Longueville
Orton Waterville
Paston.

Bribery Bill: Draft

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the proposed date of publication of the Bribery Bill is. [249300]

Maria Eagle: The Government intend to publish a draft Bribery Bill for pre-legislative scrutiny this Session. No firm decision has been made regarding the publication date.

Bronzefield Prison

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) escapes, (b) attempted escapes and (c) assaults on staff there have been at HM Prison Bronzefield in each year since it opened. [248403]

Mr. Hanson: There have been no escapes or attempted escapes at Bronzefield since it opened.

The table shows incidents of prisoner on staff assaults in Bronzefield in each of the last years since 2004.

The information is set out in the table and is subject to important qualifications. The NOMS Incident Reporting System processes high volumes of data which are constantly being updated. The numbers provide an indication of overall numbers but should not be interpreted as absolute.

Assault information is recorded at establishment level in four categories: Prisoner on Prisoner, Prisoner on Officer, Prisoner on Other and Other (which may include non-prisoner perpetrators e.g. visitors). The recorded incidents of assaults on prison officers are not completely exclusive to officers; establishment recording sometimes includes assaults on other prison staff in this category. Rises or falls in reported numbers from one year to the next are not a good indicator of an underlying trend for a particular prison.

The numbers supplied refer to the number of individual assault incidents. The numbers refer to all incidents recorded as assaults; these may also include threatening behaviour, projection of bodily fluids and other non-contact events and allegations.

Ministers, NOMS and the Prison Officers' Association are collectively committed to ensuring that violence in prisons is not tolerated in any form. Since 2004, a national strategy has directed every public sector prison to have in place a local violence reduction strategy and since mid 2007 this has been applied to the public and contracted out estate. A whole prison approach is encouraged, engaging all staff, all disciplines and prisoners in challenging unacceptable behaviour, problem-solving and personal safety.

Bronzefield prison

Classification	2004	2005	2006	2007	2008
Prisoner on officer	17	85	77	41	80
Prisoner on other	3	2	4	2	8
Other	2	3	1	1	3

Note:
Bronzefield opened in 2004 which is why the numbers for this year are lower than subsequent years.

Crime: Compensation

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice in what schemes operated by or on behalf of his Department other than the Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority the decisions of one officer are reviewed by an officer at the same level as the one who made the original decision. [245042]

Mr. Malik: In addition to the Criminal Injuries Compensation Scheme, the Ministry of Justice is responsible for the two legal aid schemes which are administered by the Legal Services Commission (LSC). These are the Community Legal Service (CLS) and the Criminal Defence Service (CDS).

For decisions about CLS legal aid funding, it is usual practice for LSC caseworkers to review previous decisions of LSC caseworkers at the same level initially, and then escalate if the dispute or issue has not been resolved, or if the more formal review mechanisms provided for in provider contracts or regulations apply.

Decisions about CDS legal aid funding for magistrates courts cases conducted on the basis of means are made by court staff. Applicants can ask for a review on the basis that his or her financial circumstances have changed, or that they believe an administrative error has occurred. These reviews are conducted by the same level of staff as applications are effectively reapplying but with new or different information. Applicants can also ask for a review on the grounds of hardship, either before or after the formal means assessment. Decisions about hardship reviews are made by LSC staff of the same level as the court staff who made the original decision about funding.

I am not aware of any other schemes run by or on behalf of the Ministry of Justice, where original decisions are subsequently reviewed by an officer at the same level.

Custodial Sentences: Offensive Weapons

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people received a custodial sentence for carrying a weapon or a blade in each year from 2004 to 2007. [247150]

Mr. Straw: The information requested is shown in the following table.

The figures cannot be compared with the figures being used to monitor the Tackling Knife Crime Action Programme (TKAP) because they use different data sources and counting rules. The following figures are based on counts of offenders from the court proceedings database. The TKAP figures are based on counts of offences from the PNC database which provides more timely monitoring information.

Number of persons sentenced to immediate custody for possessing a knife or offensive weapon[1], 2004-07

	2004	2005	2006	2007
Persons sentenced to immediate custody	1,636	1,802	1,866	1,918
Persons given suspended sentence[2]	45	242	1,087	1,210

[1] Offences of: possession of offensive weapons without lawful authority or reasonable excuse, possession of offensive weapons on school premises without lawful authority or reasonable excuse, having an article with a blade or point on school premises and having an article with a blade or point in a public place.
[2] The suspended sentence order was introduced by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 for offences committed on or after 4 April 2005. Some of those sentenced in 2005 would have been given the old style fully suspended sentence, however, for ease of interpretation, all suspended sentences have been shown together.
Note:
These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system.

Departmental Marketing

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many complaints about advertisements sponsored or funded by his Department were made to the Advertising Standards Authority (ASA) in each year from 1997 to 2008; and how many of these were upheld by the ASA in each year. [246646]

Mr. Malik: The Ministry of Justice was created in May 2007 and since then my Department has not had a complaint made about its advertising. There were no complaints made or upheld against advertising conducted by the Department when it was the Department for Constitutional Affairs or the Lord Chancellor's Department.

Departmental Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will make it his policy that temporary and permanent employees of his Department employed at the same grade receive the same hourly rate of pay. [248429]

Mr. Wills: All staff employed directly by the core Ministry of Justice and the National Offender Management Service are subject to the same arrangements for pay irrespective of whether they are temporary (i.e. fixed term) employees or permanent staff.

Where they exist, differences in hourly pay rates for individuals within the same grade are for reasons other than whether the member of staff is fixed term or permanent. Such differences may be the position within the pay band or geographical location. Following machinery of government changes, there are small numbers of staff within the Ministry employed on their former employers' terms and conditions and who opted to retain their legacy pay arrangements. These staff therefore have an hourly rate of pay determined by those legacy terms.

Hourly rates paid to the staff engaged through temporary staffing agencies is determined between the agency and the individual. When Parliament has decided the implementation date of the Agency Workers Directive, guidance on the terms will be reviewed with suppliers.

Departmental Procurement

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend East of 27 October 2008, Official Report, column 744W, on departmental procurement, if he will place in the Library a list of names and addresses of the payees. [241927]

Mr. Malik: The previous answer identified that the payee supplier database held approximately 144,000 records. It contains the details of a large number of individuals and these payees cannot easily be separated. It is not possible at this time to deposit this information in the Library of the House of Commons, without including details of individuals. Creating an IT solution to eliminate individuals data and sensitive data could not be completed without incurring disproportionate cost.

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what proportion of invoices for goods and services procured from small and medium-sized businesses were paid within 10 days of receipt by (a) his Department and (b) the agencies for which his Department is responsible in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [243356]

Maria Eagle: Until October 2008 the Ministry of Justice (MOJ) and its agencies was required to monitor and publish payment performance against a 30-day payment target and does not therefore currently publish information about payment within ten days. However, following my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister's commitment of 8 October 2008, Official Report, columns 268-69, that central Government Departments will make payment within 10 days, we will additionally report ten day payment performance from the period January to March 2009.

MOJ and its agencies do not currently publish information about size of suppliers. We do not discriminate by size because many SMEs can be found within larger supply chains.

Fixed Penalties

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people were in prison in England and Wales for non-payment of fixed penalty notices on (a) 1 April 2006, (b) 1 April 2007 and (c) 1 April 2008. [247602]

Mr. Straw: Where recipients of some fixed penalty notices neither pay the penalty nor request a court hearing a fine is registered against them and enforced as any other fine. The number of these fines which result in committal to prison for fine default is not separately recorded. The number of all fine defaulters detained in all prison establishments in England and Wales at the end of March in each of the years 2006 and 2008 is given in the following table:

As at 31 March each year	Number
2006	102
2007	83
2008	88

This information can also be found in the following website, which is updated monthly:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/populationincustody.htm

The figures provided have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Magistrates

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many sitting magistrates are currently serving; [247684]

(2) what steps are being taken to encourage (a) members of ethnic minorities and (b) women to apply to become magistrates. [247685]

Mr. Straw: There are currently 29,505 magistrates serving in England and Wales.

The Government are committed to a magistracy that is reflective of the diverse communities it serves. Local advisory committees, who recruit and select magistrates, are required to target recruitment at under-represented groups in their areas. My Department has also provided substantial funding to specific awareness raising initiatives such as Operation Black Vote's Magistrates Shadowing Scheme.

There has been a slight increase in the proportion of black minority ethnic (BME) magistrates in recent years (now 7.3 per cent.). Of the 1,899 magistrates appointed in 2008, just over 10 per cent. were from BME backgrounds. There are now more female than male magistrates (now 51.2 per cent.).

Magistrates Courts: Lyndhurst

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans he has for the future of Lyndhurst magistrates court. [249286]

Bridget Prentice: As part of the Ministry of Justice (MOJ), HMCS Hampshire and the Isle of Wight (HMCS HIOW) have to make efficiency savings over the next three years. No decisions have yet been made but there is a proposal to close Lyndhurst magistrates court temporarily and move its work to Southampton magistrates court, a modern purpose-built courthouse with courtroom capacity for the workload of Lyndhurst. Stakeholders will be consulted before any final decisions are made.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what account he will take in determining the future of Lyndhurst magistrates court of (a) the assurances given to residents of Totton, the Waterside and the New Forest that the previous closure of the court facilities in Totton was being compensated for by new facilities in Lyndhurst and (b) expenditure on new court facilities in Lyndhurst when the court in Totton was closed; and what effect on the (i) workload of and (ii) waiting times for courts in Southampton would result from the closure of Lyndhurst Magistrates' Court. [249287]

Bridget Prentice: A decision was taken in 1993 by the then Magistrates Courts Committee to close the five existing magistrates court facilities in the New Forest and replace these with a new facility at Lyndhurst. Any decision to close the magistrates court at Lyndhurst temporarily will take into account the needs of those who live and work in the New Forest area and their ability to access justice.

The cost of converting the police station building in Lyndhurst to a courthouse was £800,000. Southampton magistrates court currently has three courtrooms which are not used daily.

The workload of Lyndhurst can be easily accommodated in Southampton without any adverse impact and this would have no impact on waiting times.

Magistrates Courts: Welsh Language

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether the Libra computer system will be able to provide magistrates court summonses in Welsh; and if he will make a statement. [249298]

Bridget Prentice: When the bilingual version of the new Libra IT system is introduced in Wales in September 2009, magistrates court summonses will be produced in Welsh as a matter of course. Until September 2009 summonses can be translated upon request within one working day.

National Offender Management Service

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what meetings staff of the National Offender Management Service (NOMS) have held with (a) the National Association of Probation Officers and (b) the Prison Officers' Association to discuss NOMS resources for (i) 2009-10 and (ii) 2010-11. [247072]

Mr. Straw: NOMS officials meet with NAPO officers and officials on a regular basis to discuss a wide range of Probation Service issues. Several recent meetings have included the subject of NOMS resources for (i) 2009-10 and (ii) 2010-11. In particular the chief operating officer briefed the trade unions, including NAPO, on budgets in November and the director general and chief operating officer met and discussed budgetary issues with NAPO full-time officials last week.

The NOMS Management Board meet on a quarterly basis with the POA NEC to discuss all matters relating to the operational management of the Prison Service and staff. The director general informs the POA NEC of any issues in relation to resources, during the course of the meeting. Issues are then subsequently discussed. There have been no specific meetings to discuss NOMS resourcing.

National Offender Management Service: Manpower

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many staff with (a) a probation background and (b) a prison background are currently employed in the National Offender Management Service at (i) Grade 7, (ii) Grade 6 and (iii) above Grade 6. [246928]

Mr. Malik: Information on the number of staff working within the Prison Service and National Offender Management Service headquarters in grades equivalent to grade 7, grade 6 and above grade 6, who have operational prison experience, is contained in the following table.

Prison Service and NOMS HQ staff with operational experience, as at 30 November 2008

Equivalent	With operational experience	Total staff
Above grade 6	18	71
Grade 6	109	194
Grade 7	266	744
Total	393	1,009

The Probation Service does not collect information centrally on career histories. It is therefore not possible to provide figures of staff currently employed in senior roles who have progressed to that position from within the Probation Service.

National Probation Service for England and Wales: Greater Manchester

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what estimate he has made of the number of Probation Service staff expected to leave Greater Manchester probation area as a result of (a) natural wastage, (b) retirement and (c) redundancy in (i) 2009-10, (ii) 2010-11 and (iii) and 2011-12; [245490]

(2) what estimated share of national Probation Service savings the Greater Manchester probation area is expected to achieve in (a) 2009-10, (b) 2010-11 and (c) 2011-12; [245491]

(3) what the forecast reduction in previously planned expenditure is for the Greater Manchester probation area in (a) 2009-10, (b) 2010-11 and (c) 2011-12; [245492]

(4) what the flat cash grant allocation for the Greater Manchester probation area is for (a) 2009-10, (b) 2010-11 and (c) 2011-12. [245493]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice is seeking efficiency savings over the next three years as set out in the Department's annual report for 2007-08. As is the case across Government, the Probation Service will need to make efficiency savings.

The NOMS agency is providing guidance that will help achieve the savings by simplifying processes and reducing administration overheads but ultimately, staffing projections and decisions on the size and scope of any-staffing reductions will rest with the 42 areas and trusts who manage probation business at the local level.

The Greater Manchester probation area is expected to achieve approximately 5.2 per cent. of national efficiency savings required from the Probation Service. No efficiency savings expectations have yet been set for probation areas and trusts for 2010-11 or 2011-12.

Although some areas of the budget have yet to be finalised, the current indicative budget allocation for the Greater Manchester probation area for 2009-10 is approximately £51.1 million compared to £52.6 million in 2008-09. The difference of £1.5 million consists of £0.3 million training provision not yet allocated due to a full review of Probation Officer training currently underway and efficiency savings of £1.2 million. No indicative budgets or efficiency savings expectations have yet been set for probation areas and trusts for 2010-11 or 2011-12.

The efficiency savings requirement for 2009-10 for the Greater Manchester probation area is in line with the national efficiency savings programme for the Probation Service and the NOMS Agency. The NOMS Agency is working to determine how the saving can be achieved in ways that protect front line services.

Parc Prison

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners there are in HM Prison Parc. [249337]

Mr. Hanson: At the end of November 2008, the latest date for which figures are available, there were 1,199 prisoners detained in Parc prison.

This information is available at the following website, which is updated monthly:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/populationincustody.htm

This figure has been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Parc Young Offender Institution: Mental Health Services

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent discussions his Department has had with the Welsh Assembly Government on provision of mental health in-reach services at Parc Young Offender Institution. [247144]

Mr. Hanson: This is a matter for the Welsh Assembly Government and ongoing liaison takes place about the provision of mental health in-reach services at Parc Young Offenders Institution. The latest information is that the Local Health Board has submitted a draft business case for provision of Tier 2/3 Child and Adolescent Mental Health Services to the Welsh Assembly Government and it is now under consideration.

Prisoners Transfers: Wales

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many transfers of prisoners (a) from prisons in Wales to prisons in England and (b) from prisons in England to prisons in Wales took place in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [249336]

Mr. Hanson: This information is not kept. To obtain this information would require a manual search through individual records for the past three years at a disproportionate cost.

Prisoners: Compensation

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 18 December 2008, Official Report, column 1023W, on prisoners: compensation, how many prisoners have instigated legal proceedings against his Department or its agencies under the Human Rights Act 1998 since the Act came into force. [247509]

Mr. Straw: The information requested is not held centrally, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Many prisoners instigate legal proceedings, of these a proportion include reference to alleged breaches of human rights. In some cases the claim will be brought wholly on a Human Rights Act (HRA) basis and in others an HRA basis of claim will be one of a number of alleged grounds of claim. Whether HRA is relied upon entirely, or in part, or not at all legal proceedings, is to a considerable extent a choice of approach on the part of the claimant's lawyers as there is a considerable overlap between pre-existing domestic law rights and human rights.

Prisoners: Wales

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners ordinarily not resident in Wales are in prisons in Wales. [249335]

Mr. Hanson: Latest available data from September 2008 shows there were 433 prisoners held in prisons in Wales with a home address outside Wales.

Where no home address is listed for a prisoner the committal court is used as a proxy address.

Prisoners: Young People

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what proportion of people under the age of 18 were being held in Prison Service establishments in England and Wales in each of the last 10 years. [247149]

Mr. Hanson: Information on the numbers of juveniles aged under 18 detained under sentence showing also their percentage of the prison population of England and Wales is contained in the following table.

	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007	2008

Notes:
1. 1999-07 taken from 7.3 in Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2007.
2. 2008 taken from monthly published table for June 2008

The prison service does not normally accommodate 15 and 16 year old girls, only 17 year old girls.

This table is taken from table 7.3 in the Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2007, a copy of which can be found in the House of Commons Library and which can also be found at the following website:

Prisons

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what progress has been made in his plans to build new prisons. [247722]

Mr. Straw: The Capacity Programme will deliver a total of 20,000 new places by 2014 through a number of new prisons, expansions at existing prisons, and more efficient use of the estate. To date, we have delivered over 4,200 places including a new prison, HMP Kennet (Merseyside), which became operational in June 2007.

Planning permission has been approved for new prisons at Belmarsh West (London), Belmarsh East (London; to be located within the existing Belmarsh boundary) and Maghull (Merseyside). Planning permission is currently being sought for new prisons at Featherstone (Wolverhampton), Littlehey (Cambridgeshire; to be located within the existing Littlehey boundary), and for the conversion of former RAF accommodation to a prison at Coltishall (Norfolk). We also plan to submit planning permission for a new YOI at Glen Parva (Leicestershire; to be located within the existing YOI boundary) later this year.

We will be publishing our response to the Prison Clusters (formerly known as Titans) consultation exercise by the end of this financial year. This response will set out more details on how we plan to develop these prisons.

Prisons: Wales

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he expects to announce the site of a new prison in Wales. [247069]

Mr. Hanson: We expect to make an announcement in early 2009.

Probation

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the projected Probation Service caseload is for (a) 2009-10 and (b) 2010-11. [247078]

Mr. Hanson: No projections of probation caseload are available.

However, projections for the number of order and licence starts have been made. These are set out in the following table:

Projected community demand (starts) 2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11

	Community Order and suspended sentence order	Licence supervision
2009-10	203,400	47,600
2001-11	209,500	49,000

Probation Service for England and Wales: Manpower

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many probation posts he estimates will be lost as a result of the budget cuts anticipated during (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10, (c) 2010-11 and (d) 2011-12. [246927]

Maria Eagle: Budgets for later years are not yet agreed but funding plans for 2009-10 require efficiency savings from operational budgets in probation of 2.2 per cent. This is in the context of a 70 per cent. real terms increase in probation funding over the last 10 years.

The NOMS agency is providing guidance that will help achieve savings first by simplifying process and reducing administration but ultimately, the size and scope of any staffing reductions will rest with the 42 areas and trusts who manage probation business at the local level.

Probation: Recruitment

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many probation staff who have been fully qualified outside the Probation Service are planned to be recruited in (a) 2009-10 and (b) 2010-11. [247074]

Mr. Hanson: The 42 probation boards and trusts within the National Probation Service function as separate employers and work force planning takes place at local level. Decisions about the timing and profile of staff requirements are therefore a matter for local employers and take into account of local resources.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many trainee probation officers are planned to be recruited in each month of (a) 2009 and (b) 2010. [247076]

Mr. Hanson: Trainee probation officers are not recruited on a monthly basis. The last intake of trainee probation officers was in October 2008. There are currently 550 due to complete training this year and 300 in 2010.

Probation: Training

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what staff at each grade are responsible for the design and delivery of future probation training; and what the length and nature of their direct experience of probation services is in each case. [247070]

Mr. Hanson: The responsibility for the design and delivery of future probation training rests with the Project Board, supported by a project team and Reference Group. All three groups include probation representatives at chief officer level and other members with substantial probation practitioner experience.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the budget is for the training of probation staff in each month of (a) 2009-10 and (b) 2010-11. [247073]

Mr. Hanson: The budget for training probation staff in the first six months of 2009-10 will be £2,916,674 each month. This figure includes the salary and university costs associated with training a Trainee Probation Officer (TPO) plus the costs allocated centrally for training Probation Service Officers (PSO). It is not possible to calculate the likely costs for 2010-11 at this time.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans he has for the future training of probation staff; and if he will make a statement. [247075]

Mr. Hanson: The current qualification arrangements for probation staff are under review with the intention of introducing a new framework later this year. These proposals will be subject to formal consultation. Training for probation staff is a high priority and this will be reflected in the new requirements.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Building Schools for the Future Programme

Lorely Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many new schools he estimates will be opened by March (a) 2009, (b) 2010, (c) 2011 and (d) 2012 through the (i) Building Schools for the Future programme, (ii) Further Education programme and (ii) Primary Education programme; and how these estimates differ from those made before the announcement of capital spending being brought forward made in the pre-Budget report. [247840]

Jim Knight: Our current predictions go as far as 2010-11 in line with the current Spending Review.

50 schools have now opened through BSF. Our current predictions suggest that 112 BSF schools will open in 2009-10 and 165 schools in 2010-11.

In addition to these, through the Learning and Skills Council's capital programme, current predictions are that a further eight new school sixth forms are due to complete this year, 15 in 2009-10, and a further eight in 2010-11.

Management of the Primary Capital Programme (PCP) is largely delegated to local authorities, but we have derived estimates from authorities' plans, as follows:

PCP	2008-09	2009-10	2010-11	Total
New Schools	3	16	15	34
New Rebuilt Schools	12	62	93	167
Total	15	78	108	201

The capital spend that is being brought forward from 2010-11 to 2009-10 relates to local authority devolved capital funding. It has no effect on Building Schools for the Future or on schools sixth forms. The returns received from local authorities so far indicate that the funding brought forward will be used to improve and extend existing schools at an earlier date than previously possible, rather than to build new schools which would take longer to procure. In some authorities, some of the primary programme capital expenditure may also be brought forward, but we do not expect that to affect the number of new schools built.

Children: Protection

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps the Government has taken to protect children in schools from abuse in the last 12 months. [247934]

Beverley Hughes: The Government are committed to improving safeguards for children and have taken a range of actions over the past year. This includes making significant progress towards the implementation of the new vetting and barring scheme, which will further strengthen the system for preventing unsuitable adults from working with children, including in schools. In October 2008 Sir Roger Singleton, chair of the Independent Safeguarding Authority, was asked to lead a review of safeguarding arrangements in independent school, non-maintained special schools and boarding schools. The review will examine the practical operation of the current statutory and non-statutory safeguarding arrangements that apply to independent schools, non-maintained special schools and boarding schools in the maintained, non-maintained and independent sectors in England. Sir Roger expects to conclude his work in February 2009.

In April 2008, Ministers wrote to local authorities and schools to remind them of their responsibilities in relation to the issue of forced marriage and of the materials and guidance already available. In June new materials on forced marriage were launched specifically for schools and for young people. These were sent to all secondary schools, pupil referral units, local authorities and Local Safeguarding Children Boards. New statutory guidance on forced marriage was launched on 25 November.

Within schools, staff have powers to bar people from their premises if they consider them a threat or a nuisance. The DCSF, in addition, has an ongoing programme of work to prevent and tackle the bullying of children. This includes a suite of overarching and specialist guidance for schools under the title "Safe To Learn" which advises schools on preventing and tackling bullying related to race, religion, special educational needs, disability, homophobia and cyberbullying. New guidance on out-of-school bullying is to be launched in February 2009. The Department is also funding the Anti-Bullying Alliance and National Strategies to ensure this work is embedded in schools effectively.

Children's Centres: Standards

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress has been made in the project to look at benchmarking systems already in use in local authorities and children's centres and to judge the feasibility of a system for Sure Start Children's Centres along the lines of the system used in schools; and if he will make a statement. [247464]

Beverley Hughes: Local authorities have a range of different benchmarking systems. Hedra Ltd. were commissioned in August 2008 to undertake a feasibility study looking at the potential for designing a national benchmarking system for Sure Start Children's Centres, similar to that introduced for schools. They are currently finalising their report which will be published shortly.

Education: Assessments

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether the revised rules on skills tests under the Education (Specified Work and Registration) (England) (Amendment) Regulations 2003 have been implemented. [247274]

Jim Knight: The rules specified in the Education (Specified Work and Registration) (England) Regulations 2003 (as amended in 2007) are in force. It is the responsibility of employers to check the qualifications of teachers to ensure that they can work lawfully in a maintained school or non-maintained special school. As a result of 2007 amendments, from 1 September 2008 those who have completed initial teacher training but have not been awarded qualified teacher status, because they have not passed all the skills tests, cannot lawfully be employed as teachers.

Forced Marriage: Research

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what tendering process was undertaken by his Department before contracting the National Centre for Social Research to conduct research on forced marriage; which organisations were (a) informed of and (b) invited to tender for the contract; and what the (i) cost, (ii) timetable and (iii) terms of reference of the research are. [247671]

Beverley Hughes: This research was commissioned through a fair and open procurement process in line with the Department's protocols and in consultation with the Forced Marriage Unit.

(a) Expressions of interest to conduct the research were invited through notification on the Department's research website www.dcsf.gov.uk/research placed on 1 October 2008 with a closing date of 20 October.

(b) Expressions of interest were received from 13 organisations and these were then assessed by DSCF officials against published criteria. As a result, six of these 13 organisations were invited to submit full tenders (with a closing date of 18 November).

The organisations chosen to submit full tenders were:

Centre for Economic and Social Inclusion in partnership with the Henna Foundation and the Family and Parenting Institute

Ethnos Research and Consultancy

Centre for Rights, Equalities and Justice at the Institute of Education, University of London

National Centre for Social Research in partnership with Dr. Nazia Khanum

General Certificate of Secondary Education

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to the answer of 19 November 2008, Official Report, columns 635-36W, on general certificate of secondary education, which qualifications other than GCSEs were included as equivalents. [240584]

Jim Knight: All level 2 qualifications approved under section 96 of the Learning and Skills Act (2000) contribute towards the reported performance at key stage 4.

Some of the most prevalent qualifications at each level of study are given as follows:

GCSE in Vocational Subjects
GNVQs
Entry Level Qualifications
VRQ
Key Skills
NVQ
Basic Skills
BTEC First Diploma
BTEC First Certificate
FSMQs
AS Level
Vocational AS Level

For a more exhaustive list of equivalent qualifications and the size of their contributions can be found at QCA's National Database of Accredited Qualifications website at:

http://www.ndaq.org.uk

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when the 2008 GCSE results for secondary schools will be published. [247035]

Jim Knight: The secondary school (GCSE and equivalent) achievement and attainment tables for 2007-08 were published on 15 January at 9:30 am.

They were published at the following link:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/performancetables/.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families in how many schools less than 25 per cent. of pupils aged 16 achieved the equivalent of five GCSEs at grades A* to C in 2008. [247476]

Jim Knight: This information was published on Wednesday 14 January at 9:30 a.m. in the following Statistical First Release (SFR):

DCSF: GCSE and Equivalent Results in England, 2007-08 (Revised)

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000826/index.shtml

Figures relating to GCSEs and equivalent are reported for all pupils at the end of Key Stage 4.

Head Teachers

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the outcomes of the Future Leaders pilot; and if he will make a statement. [247460]

Jim Knight: To build on the successes to date of the Future Leaders pilot, the Children's Plan set out our commitment to expand the programme to other urban areas. In 2009, we will extend it to the West Midlands and Merseyside and to Yorkshire and the North East in 2010. By 2011, it is expected that there will be over 500 Future Leaders in urban challenging schools across the country, working together to improve outcomes for children and lead system change.

Home Access Programme

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the progress of the Home Access Taskforce in devising sustainable approaches towards ensuring that all pupils enjoy home access to personal technology by 2011; and if he will make a statement. [247200]

Jim Knight: The Home Access Taskforce concluded its work in June 2008 and was reported in July 2008. The report is available at:

http://news.becta.org.uk/display.cfm?resID=38386.

The Government responded to the task force's recommendations on 23 September 2008 when the Prime Minister announced the provision of £300 million for a programme to support Home Access for one million learners in low income families which Becta was asked to deliver.

Last October it was announced that the launch of local authority pilots in Oldham and Suffolk to allow the development of a detailed scheme for national rollout. They will become operational at the end of February 2009. In addition, the Department and Becta have taken action to support those learners for whom the local authority is their corporate parent.

We have so far made available £17.8 million capital funding to 109 local authorities which will benefit over 20,000 learners over the next few months. We expect to roll the grant scheme out nationally in late 2009 and will embed the rollout of technology within a programme to support parents, schools and local authorities in understanding the benefits of having technology available at home and how to make the best use of it.

Mathematics

Mr. Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many mathematics national strategy consultants (NSCs) are employed by local authorities on (a) permanent, (b) annual and (c) termly contracts; and what conditions there are in contracts of each type on publication and retention by NSCs of intellectual property rights to their work. [247331]

Jim Knight: There are 236 Primary and 173 Secondary National Strategies (NSCs) mathematics consultants nationally. As local authority employees their terms and conditions are determined locally and there are no central records of the proportion of consultants on full-time, part-time, permanent or fixed term arrangements.

We have no information on the degree to which specific consultant contracts reference intellectual property rights, and what those terms might be. However, all of the National Strategies centrally or regionally produced materials are Crown Copyright, and are freely available to National Strategies consultants, teachers, and other practitioners. Any materials produced by local authority consultants will be subject to the terms of any intellectual property clause in their contract with the local authority.

Mathematics: Teachers

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what funding his Department has provided for the National Centre for Excellence in Teaching of Mathematics in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [247400]

Jim Knight: The funding for the National Centre for Excellence in Teaching of Mathematics for 2008-09 is £4,822,854 (including VAT). The corresponding sum for 2007-08 was £4,905,613 (including VAT).

National Curriculum Tests

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what powers were (a) requested by and (b) granted to the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority in relation to the oversight of the 2009 Key Stage 2 tests; and if he will make a statement. [248016]

Jim Knight: No such powers were requested by or granted to QCA. We are bringing forward legislation in the current Session to establish the new Qualifications and Curriculum Development Agency (QCDA) with responsibility for the administration and oversight of national curriculum (NC) assessment. The legislation will also establish Ofqual as an independent regulator of exams and tests. The legislation will for the first time give Ofqual specific powers to regulate national curriculum tests. Ofqual will be closely monitoring and reporting on the delivery of the 2009 tests. Further information on Ofqual's monitoring of the 2009 tests is available in Ofqual's response to the Sutherland Inquiry which is available at:

www.ofqual.gov.uk

Pupils: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average funding per pupil was in each local education authority in England in the latest period for which figures are available. [247312]

Jim Knight: The revenue funding figures per pupil for each local authority in England, and the England average, for 2008-09, are provided in the following table. The figures are for al funded pupils aged three-19 and are provided in cash terms:

Schools: Buildings

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of progress to date in regional pathfinders established under the Primary Capital programme. [247197]

Jim Knight: The Department has benefited enormously from the positive working relationship with the 23 regional pathfinders. They were particularly influential in helping to develop, test and refine the guidance we issued to local authorities in December 2007 on the requirement to develop and agree a Primary Strategy for Change. Most pathfinders have confirmed that they remain on track to complete their projects by the end of September 2009. They have also been very helpful in terms of developing and sharing good practice both nationally and regionally: the primary capital programme area of the teachernet website[4] currently includes a range of good practice examples and case studies developed by the pathfinders. Further materials will be added over the coming weeks.

Going forward, we will continue to work closely with pathfinders to ensure that the lessons learned in terms of design quality, sustainability and impact on outcomes informs the future development and roll out of the programme nationally.

Schools: Finance

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what Supporting Schools Financial Management and Value for Money support seminars were held in 2008. [247462]

Jim Knight: The Department's Efficiency and Value for Money team held a series of interactive seminars aimed primarily at local authority education finance staff and auditors in October 2008. A total of six seminars were held; two in London and one each in Leeds, Manchester, Birmingham and Taunton.

The seminars covered a wide range of Value for Money for Schools issues, including the Financial Management Standard in School (FMSiS), strategic planning, procurement, handling surplus school balances, the free consultancy advice day for schools, development of School Business Managers, and other recent issues related to improving Value for Money in schools.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families on what date the evaluation of the Financial Management standard in secondary schools was published. [247463]

Jim Knight: In April 2008 the Department commissioned Hedra to evaluate the Financial Management Standard in Schools (FMSiS) with particular reference to secondary schools. The report and recommendations were published in full on 20 October 2008 at:

www.fmsis.info.

The report noted the achievement of 76 per cent. of secondary schools having met the standard by 31 March 2007. The Department is now in the process of implementing the recommendations in partnership with local authorities and schools.

Schools: Standards

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the progress made under the school efficiency measurement pilots; and if he will make a statement. [247203]

Jim Knight: The Department has made major developments to efficiency measures over recent years and research carried out in summer 2006 indicated that the measures currently used are effective in identifying schools which achieve high levels of performance from the resources available.

Building on these developments, the Department worked with three local authorities to pilot the use of efficiency benchmarking, thus strengthening the critical link between allocation of resources and pupil outcomes.

In light of the pilot it was agreed that roll out of the efficiency measurement tool in its existing form would not be appropriate. Refinements to the measures and alternative ways of presenting the results will be sought before measures are used on the Schools Financial Benchmarking website.

Good practice has been in Arizona and New York and further work to explore the benefits of these systems and to trial such measures with schools will take place over the coming year.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many interim executive boards were established in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008. [247416]

Jim Knight: There were 27 Interim Executive Boards established in 2007 and 35 in 2008.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the findings contained in Ofsted's report on schools that have successfully emerged from special measures. [247458]

Jim Knight: Ofsted published "Sustaining improvement: the journey from special measures" in June 2008. We want to see more schools making the transformation from special measures to become either good or outstanding schools within one or two academic years. The report shows that if schools placed in special measures are willing to face up to the need for change and take appropriate action, they can improve very quickly and become outstanding schools.

Several common themes were identified as having a significant impact including strong leadership and setting high expectations, the creation of a school identity which takes in the views of all members of the school community and sustaining improvement by using honest and accurate self assessment.

The report recommended that the Department should ensure that schools clearly understand how any external support can contribute to school improvement and consider ways to capitalise on the experience and expertise of head teachers who have successfully made the journey from special measures to good or outstanding provision.

In partnership with local authorities, the Department ensures that support is carefully matched to each school's requirements and the National Strategies closely monitors the impact of the support provided. Wherever possible we use the experience of successful head teachers to inform policy developments.

Science: Teachers

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of project Enthuse in meeting its objectives. [247243]

Jim Knight: Project Enthuse bursaries have been available for teachers to attend continuing professional development courses at the National Science Learning Centre since October 2008. So far nearly 4,000 training days have been booked on Enthuse funded courses at the National Science Learning Centre for the academic year 2008-09.

This builds on the previous success of the National Science Learning Centre which was highlighted in the recent evaluation of the National Network of Science Learning Centres. The evaluation found that a 94 per cent. of teachers were satisfied with the service delivered by the National Science Learning Centre. A further evaluation has been commissioned.

Secondary Education

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many secondary schools had (a) 1,500 or more and (b) 2,000 or more pupils in each of the last 10 years, broken down by local authority. [247311]

Jim Knight: The requested information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Secondary Education: Assessments

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of mainstream maintained secondary schools inspected by Ofsted in (a) 2008 and (b) 2007 held end of year examinations at the end of Year 7 in (i) English, (ii) mathematics, (iii) history, (iv) geography, (v) science and (vi) French. [247031]

Jim Knight: It is for individual schools to determine what arrangements they make for assessing pupils in Year 7, and information about those arrangements is not collected or held centrally.

Social Services: Children

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children received support from children's social care in (a) 2006 and (b) 2007. [247003]

Beverley Hughes: Information on children receiving support from children's services is collected in the child level Children in Need (CIN) census. The latest information from the CIN census showed that there were 385,900 children in need in England in a sample week in February 2005.

The CIN census has been redeveloped into a continuous data collection. Initial information from the new census, which started in October 2008, will be collected in summer 2009 and published towards the end of the year.

Social Services: Doncaster

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps Paul Gray has taken to improve Doncaster children's services since his appointment as Interim Director of Children's Services in April 2008. [248696]

Beverley Hughes: Paul Gray does not report directly to the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families. In response to the inadequate judgments in Doncaster's 2008 annual performance assessment, Doncaster was informed on 9 January 2009 that I have instructed Department for Children, Schools and Families officials to commission a review to diagnose the underlying causes of inadequate performance in Doncaster's children's services. One of the outcomes of this review will be an assessment of steps that have been taken by Paul Gray and Doncaster to improve children's services since his appointment in April 2008, the extent to which these are sustainable and embedded, and whether these are sufficient to address satisfactorily those root causes of inadequate performance.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when his officials will complete their diagnostic review of Doncaster's children's services; and whether their findings will be made public. [248697]

Beverley Hughes: In response to the inadequate judgments in Doncaster's 2008 annual performance assessment, Doncaster was informed on 9 January 2009 that Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) officials will commission a review to diagnose the underlying causes of inadequate performance in Doncaster's children's services. I expect the review to be completed by mid March 2009. The findings of the review will be made available shortly thereafter.

Social Services: Parents

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many Parent Support Advisers there are in England. [247251]

Beverley Hughes: Parent Support Advisers (PSAs) are one of a range of professionals employed by schools, local authorities or other organisations to work in and across schools to support parents and help them to engage in their child's learning. They can help tackle pupil underachievement, remove barriers to learning and provide access to a full range of learning activities for parents.

Local authorities report that there are 2,254 PSAs (or equivalents) in post. These posts are funded through a variety of routes locally and this Government committed an additional £102.5 million between 2008 and 2011 to expand the availability of PSA support to parents.

Social Workers

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what assessment he has made of the progress of the Children's Workforce Development Council in setting the baseline for developing a newly qualified status for children's social workers from September 2008; and if he will make a statement; [247277]

(2) how many pilots regarding a newly qualified status for social workers have been established; [247279]

(3) whether the planned (a) fast track entry and (b) progression route for social workers has been established; [247280]

(4) whether the planned graduate recruitment scheme for social workers has been established; [247281]

(5) whether his Department has developed the proposed campaign to attract people into social work; [247282]

(6) whether the planned remodelling pilots in regions with the most acute social work vacancy and turnover rates have been established. [247283]

Beverley Hughes: The Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) has asked the Children's Workforce Development Council to deliver a programme of pilots to support social workers who work with children and families. This includes the Newly Qualified Social Worker pilot programme which is now running in 86 organisations. The first cohort of Newly Qualified Social Workers started on the programme, on time, in autumn 2008. The evaluators for the programme are in place and are currently collecting baseline data from participants and their employers. The first report from the evaluators is due in spring 2009.

The graduate recruitment scheme commenced in autumn 2008.

The fast track route and the marketing campaign are under development.

The Remodelling the Delivery of Social Work pilots commenced in spring 2008. The Regional Recruitment and Retention pilots in areas of the country with the most acute vacancy and turnover problems are still in development.

In the Children and Young People's Workforce Strategy 2020, the Government announced the establishment of a joint DCSF and Department of Health (DH) Social Work Taskforce as a crucial first step in a long-term programme to reform social work. At the same time, the Government announced Moira Gibb, Chief Executive of Camden council and a former social worker, as Task Force chair, and, as deputy chairs, Andrew Webb, Director of Children's Services, Stockport; and Bob Reitemeier, Chief Executive of the Children's Society. In discussion with the taskforce chair, the Secretaries of State for DCSF and DH are currently considering the membership of the taskforce and will announce the membership shortly.

Specialised Diplomas

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the 14 to 19 diplomas in widening access to higher education. [247238]

Jim Knight: Teaching of the first five diploma lines began in September 2008. The first advanced diploma holders to enter higher education are expected to do so in 2010, and so they have yet to apply. Diplomas have been developed for students of all abilities, but it is too early to assess the effectiveness of the diplomas in widening access, and indeed a full assessment would only be possible in the years after 2010 as diploma holder numbers grow.

Widening access is a key concern for higher education institutions, and their involvement in the design and delivery of diplomas has been and continues to be widespread and very welcome.

Specialist Schools Programme

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which (a) mainstream and (b) special schools joined the Specialist Schools programme in 2007-08. [247409]

Jim Knight: 138 mainstream schools and 57 special schools successfully applied to join the Specialist Schools Programme in the 2007-08 school year and were funded from September 2008. Full details of the schools are set out in the following table.

Star Chamber Board

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the performance of the Star Chamber Board to date; what achievements the Board has made since its establishment; and if he will make a statement. [247273]

Jim Knight: The Department's Star Chamber has been in existence for 10 years, and assesses requests for new or revised data collections, with the aim of ensuring that they are feasible, necessary, value for money and add as small a burden to the front line as possible. In 2006, the process was enhanced with the addition of an external panel comprising local authority and head teacher representatives.

The Star Chamber has performed a valuable role in ensuring burdens on schools and authorities are kept to a minimum, by scrutinising data collection plans. They have made an input into other, related, areas, including advising us about information that should be collected to inform the National Indicator Set. They have also input their views into how the Department's Simplification Plan can best fulfil the aim of cutting the data requests to the front line. In recognition of the balanced approach they have shown, the external panel have now been given the power to make the decisions about whether collection requests should go ahead.

Teachers: Training

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the progress made under Teach First initiative; and if he will make a statement. [247286]

Jim Knight: Since it began in 2003, the programme has attracted over 1,000 graduates into teaching. The programme was extended to Manchester and the Midlands in 2007; to Liverpool in 2008 and will extend to Yorkshire in 2009. In June, the Prime Minister announced an expansion in the programme from 370 places per year in 2008/09 to 850 per year in 2013/14.

In its inspection report published in 2008, Ofsted reported very favourably on the teacher training provided by the programme; noting that some of the trainees were the best that it had seen in any inspections.

The Government support Teach First because it brings into teaching high quality, well-motivated graduates who would not otherwise have considered teaching. Teach First operates in challenging urban secondary schools that would normally struggle to recruit such high quality trainees.

Mr. Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which (a) private sector bodies and (b) university (i) education and (ii) mathematics faculties are taking part in the design of the courses that make up the continuing professional development contract put out by the National Centre of Excellence in the Teaching of Mathematics and National Strategies. [247330]

Jim Knight: The National Centre for Excellence in the Teaching of Mathematics (NCETM) does not directly provide training and development for teachers, it seeks to improve access to and quality assure mathematics continuing professional development. Working with the wider mathematics community, the NCETM facilitates, enhances and provides strategic direction and leadership for all aspects of continuing professional development in mathematics.

Since their inception, the national strategies (NS) have worked with a number of different partner organisations on various CPD materials and approaches. These are for local authorities (LA) to use with schools and are in the form of LA consultant training and course materials.

Currently on mathematics, the NS work with a number of stakeholders including NCETM, Universities' Council for the Education of Teachers (UCET) and the Advisory Committee for Mathematics Education (ACME). They are also working with Hull and Reading Universities' Initial Teacher Training departments, Edge Hill University and KPMG's Charitable Foundation, the Every Child a Chance Trust.

Young Offenders

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of inmates in young offender institutions previously had looked-after status in each of the last 10 years. [247856]

Beverley Hughes: Data on the number of young people in YOIs who have been looked after by local authorities earlier in their childhood are not collected centrally.

However, we can say that of the 59,500 young people looked after by local authorities at 31 March 2008, 130 were placed in a young offender institute (YOI) or prison. This is equivalent to 0.22 per cent. of the total number of looked after children.

The following table shows the data collected since 2004.

Year to 31 March	Total number of looked after children	Number placed in YOI
2004	61,200	140
2005	61,000	110
2006	60,300	140
2007	60,000	150
2008	59,500	130

These figures have been taken from table A3 of the latest Statistical First Release 'Children looked after in England (including adoption and care leavers) year ending 31 March 2008' which is available on the Department's website via the following link:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000810/index.shtml

Young People: Drugs

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the percentage of people under the age of 25 years who used Class A drugs in 2007-08. [247481]

Mr. Alan Campbell: I have been asked to reply.

There are two primary sources of statistics on the use of illicit drugs by young people: the British Crime Survey (which covers England and Wales) and the Drug use, Smoking and Drinking Survey among young people in England.

According to the 2007-08 British Crime Survey 7 per cent. of young people aged 16-24 reported using a class A drug in the last year.

Latest figures from the 2007 Smoking, Drinking and Drug Use Survey show that 4 per cent. of pupils aged 11-15 years reported using class A drugs in the past year.

Young People: Smoking

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the percentage of (a) males and (b) females under the age of 25 years who smoked tobacco in each of the last five years. [247483]

Dawn Primarolo: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is not available in the exact format requested.

Information on smoking tobacco is not readily available. While information on smoking pipes and cigars is collected for those aged 16 and over the prevalence is very low among those aged below 25 and is collected separately to information on cigarette smoking, therefore overall prevalence of smoking tobacco is not available.

Information on the prevalence of smoking cigarettes among adults aged 16 to 19 and aged 20 to 24 in Great Britain, by gender in 2002 to 2006 is available from the "General Household Survey 2006: Smoking and drinking among adults, 2006". This information can be found in Table 1.1 on page 15. This publication is available in the Library.

Data on the prevalence of cigarette smoking among adults aged 16 to 19 and aged 20 to 24 in England, by gender, in 2002 to 2006 are available in "Statistics on Smoking: England, 2008", in Table 2.1, on page 14. This publication has been placed in the Library.

Information on the proportion of children (aged 11 to 15) in England, who were regular and who were occasional cigarette smokers, by gender, for 2002 to 2007 are available in, "Drug use, smoking and drinking among young people in England in 2007" in Table 3.1, on page 116. This publication has already been placed in the Library.

Youth Custody

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress the Youth Justice Board has made on a new safeguarding strategy for children and young people in the secure estate. [247393]

Beverley Hughes: The Youth Justice Board (YJB), in collaboration with the National Children's Bureau, published A Review of Safeguarding in the Secure Estate on 15 December 2008. The Review recognised that much has already been done in respect to safeguarding young people in custody and made a number of recommendations. The YJB is working to develop a national safeguarding strategy for young people in the secure estate. As part of this programme, it is undertaking reviews in specific areas highlighted by the Review, including:

Youth Services

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what guidance his Department issued on the co-location of services for children and young people in 2008. [247193]

Beverley Hughes: The co-location of services is a useful way of providing a single point of access for children, young people and families, and a more effective and efficient way of professionals working together. While many areas are working hard to co-locate services and achieve the benefits this can bring, feedback suggests there are some barriers that are preventing services from co-locating as a matter of course. In response to this, we announced in the Children's Plan: One Year On progress report that we will be setting up a dedicated £200 million fund to support co-location of services. This fund will run from April 2009 and will assist local areas to move ahead rapidly on capital investment projects where the co-location of services will help join up work between professionals and promote better outcomes for children and young people.

To support local areas prepare high quality applications to this fund, and to promote ongoing co-location of services through existing capital investment programmes including Building Schools for the Future, we expect to issue additional guidance on co-location during the first half of this year.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent progress the Youth Taskforce has made towards meeting its objectives; and if he will make a statement. [247248]

Beverley Hughes: The Youth Taskforce was set up to improve outcomes for some of our most at risk and challenging young people. In March 2008, we launched the Youth Taskforce Action Plan, backed by a total funding package of £218 million. The Youth Taskforce is now working across the country to drive improved local delivery of services and support for young people, ensuring that every local area has an effective approach to keep young people on track.

The Taskforce has made progress on all its objectives, including:

Establishing 'Challenge and Support' projects in 52 areas where youth crime and antisocial behaviour are a particular problem. These projects intervene quickly with young people involved in antisocial behaviour to tackle underlying causes of their behaviour, alongside enforcement action.

Establishing Intensive Intervention Projects in 20 areas. These pioneering projects use assertive key workers and support with sanctions to turn around the lives of the most challenging and problematic young people.

Training over 2,500 practitioners across the country through regional conferences and Roadshows.

Leading a programme of reform with local authorities to ensure every area has a systematic and joined up approach to prevention, early intervention and support for at risk teenagers.

Beginning delivery of the Youth Crime Action Plan, published in July 2008, in particular supporting 69 local areas to implement promising approaches to youth crime prevention, including 'Operation Staysafe' and 'Street-based teams'.

Youth Services: Training

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families in what ways his Department is working with external partners to introduce a common platform of skills and training for those across all sectors who work with young people; and in what ways it is working with such partners to develop new qualifications for support staff. [247186]

Beverley Hughes: The Children's Workforce Network (CWN) is managing the delivery of a programme of youth workforce reform through the Children's Workforce Development Council (CWDC). CWDC engage with the relevant Sector Skills Councils (SSCs) and key organisations in the youth sector, including the third sector, in order to develop, agree and lead the work. This programme of reform includes a set of measures to raise the level of skills and competencies of the workforce and provide a common platform of skills and training that rationalises and improves the existing arrangements for all staff including professionals and support workers. A common apprenticeship, a foundation degree and a youth professional status are all under development as important new components of the new skills framework for the youth workforce.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Adult Education: North East

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps his Department is taking to provide opportunities for jobless people to learn new skills, with particular reference to the North East. [245866]

Mr. Simon: As part of the integrated approach to employment and skills, the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) and Jobcentre Plus in the North East are closely aligned to provide a range of opportunities for workless people. Through the Skills for Jobs strategy the main programmes are: The Sector Routeways Programme, providing accredited learning for those furthest from the labour market; the Personal Best Programme, which encourages long term unemployed people to learn skills through volunteer work on 2012 Olympics projects; and the Skills Solution Fund, to respond to local redundancies. An enhanced careers and advice service also provides more intensive support for workless people.

The LSC in the North East, and in the rest of England, delivers the legal right for all adults to get training up Level 2, and the guarantee of fee funding for every 18-25 year-old until they reach 25 or achieve Level 3 qualifications. Skills for Life literacy and numeracy learning—up to Level 2—are also free to the learner.

The LSC in the North East works closely with the public, private and voluntary sector partners through the regional employability framework. The framework represents a set of principles that bring together the LSC, Jobcentre Plus, local authorities the Regional Development Agency, and a range of other partners with a shared objective to get people back into work.

On 17 December 2008, the Secretary of State announced details of a £158 million package of enhanced skills support for people affected by the economic situation in England. Implementation of this package will happen at a regional level to ensure that support is tailored to local needs. Regional Ministers are co-ordinating the response, working closely with Directors from the LSC, including Chris Roberts, the Director for the North East, and Jobcentre Plus.

Apprentices: Greater London

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many apprenticeships were (a) started and (b) completed in (i) London and (ii) the London Borough of Wandsworth in the academic year (A) 2003-04, (B) 2004-05, (C) 2005-06 and (D) 2006-07; and in what trades such apprenticeships were undertaken in each such year. [244624]

Mr. Simon: Table 1 shows the number of apprenticeship starts and completions in London and Wandsworth local authority from 2003/04 academic year to 2006/07.

Intellectual Property

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many of the Gowers Report recommendations have been implemented. [249461]

Mr. Lammy: Over half of the 54 recommendations made in the Gowers Review of Intellectual Property have already been completed. Immediate action was taken in some areas such as the enactment of new powers for trading standards officers to search and seize copyright infringing goods. However in other areas it has been appropriate to carefully consider and work through the policy and legal issues sitting behind the recommendations. Work is continuing on the remaining recommendations and significant progress is being made.

Medicine: Education

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many (a) students and (b) undergraduates were studying (i) medicine, (ii) dentistry and (iii) subjects allied to medicine in each of the last five years, broken down by institution. [249113]

Mr. Lammy: The required numbers of doctors and dentists entering training are set having considered the future workforce requirements of the NHS.

For doctors, following an impressive expansion in medical student intake from 3,749 in 1997-98 to 6,194 in 2006-07, a decision was taken in July 2006 that no further expansion of medical school places is required at present. Medical student numbers will be kept under review taking account of the changing demographics of the workforces and the workforce requirements of the NHS.

The latest available figures will be placed in both Libraries. Figures for the 2007/08 academic year will be available on 29 January 2009.

Overseas Students

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many non-EU students are expected to graduate from universities in England this year; and how many have so graduated in the last 10 years. [249390]

Mr. Lammy: The latest available figures are shown in the table. Figures for the 2007/08 academic year will be available on 29 January 2009.

Projections for the number of non-EU qualifiers in the 2007/08 and 2008/09 academic years are not available.

Shipping: Training

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what plans are in place to (a) develop training schemes for people who wish to join the shipping industry and (b) improve employment prospects for seafarers at the end of their training. [244733]

Mr. Simon: The Maritime Skills Alliance is the standard setting body for the shipping industry, and works with the Learning and Skills Council as a key stakeholder. The marine industry have apprenticeships that encompass a wide range of skills and pathways. These include pathways for those navigating and driving ships, as well as engineering, electronics, boat building and maintenance. Colleges and training providers that offer skills training also have a role in highlighting employment prospects for trainees. With about 95 per cent. of Britain's trade arriving and leaving by sea, there will be a continuous demand for skilled seafarers.

Students: Part-Time Employment

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what estimate he has made of the number and percentage of undergraduate students who were in part-time work in the (a) first year, (b) second year, (c) third year and (d) fourth year of their degree courses during the last 12 months, broken down by (i) socio-economic group and (ii) number of hours worked per week. [249117]

Mr. Lammy: Most recent estimates of the proportion of students undertaking paid work come from the 2004/05 Student Income and Expenditure Survey. This was a comprehensive study on student income, expenditure, borrowing and debt.

Table 1 shows the proportion of students who undertook paid work during the academic year 2004/05 by socio-economic group and year of study. Table 2 shows the hours worked on average among these students.

Updated statistics will be available when the 2007/08 Student Income and Expenditure Survey is published early this year.

Vocational Training: Admissions

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many people were entered for each publicly-recognised vocational qualification in the last year for which figures are available. [247128]

Mr. Lammy: We do not hold enrolment data on publicly recognised vocational qualifications. Data on achievements of vocational qualifications are available at:

National Internship Scheme

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) how many places he plans to provide under the national internship scheme; [248876]

(2) which organisations his Department has invited to participate in the national internship scheme; and which have agreed to offer graduates places under the scheme; [248880]

(3) how many places he expects there to be in the national internship scheme in each local authority area. [248881]

Mr. Lammy: The introduction of an internship offer is part of this Government's overall package to support individuals through the economic downturn. The intention here is for unemployed graduates to have the opportunity to spend three months with an employer in either the private, public or third sector to apply their learning in the workplace and build the work-ready skills they will need for permanent employment. It is still early days and specific details are currently being worked out in collaboration with all the relevant stakeholders.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what plans he has to ensure that graduates based in rural areas have access to the new national internship scheme. [248198]

Mr. Lammy: As part of its overall package to support individuals through the economic downturn, the Government are considering new internship opportunities for unemployed graduates. We expect to offer graduates the opportunity to spend three months with an employer in either the private, public or third sector to apply their learning in the workplace and build the work-ready skills they will need for permanent employment. It is still early days and the details will be carefully worked out in collaboration with all the relevant stakeholders. We will ensure that the position of graduates in rural areas is taken into account.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Bangladesh: Human Rights

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to enter into discussions with the new government of Bangladesh on human rights in that country. [248155]

Bill Rammell: We welcome the commitment of the newly elected government in its election manifesto to ensure the impartiality of the judiciary, stop judicial killings and strengthen and make effective Bangladesh's newly-formed Human Rights Commission. We look forward to seeing progress on all these issues and will make human rights a priority in our engagement with the government. We plan to play an active role in the Universal Periodic Review of Bangladesh's human rights record at the UN Human Rights Council in February and are offering practical assistance to the country's Human Rights Commission.

British Overseas Territories: Finance

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the budget for the Overseas Territories Programme Fund is for 2008-09; and how much was spent from the fund in each of the last five years. [247706]

Gillian Merron: The budget for the Overseas Territories Programme Fund for 2008-09 is £6.5 million.

The fund spent the following amounts in the last five years:

	£ million
2007-08	6.6
2006-07	4.5

	£ million
2005-06	4.4
2004-05	3.0
2003-04	3.1

Carbon Emissions: EU Action

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to his remarks on a durable funding mechanism for carbon capture and storage (CCS) of 9 December 2008, Official Report, column 416, if he will (a) place in the Library a copy of the background papers supporting this initiative and (b) place in the Library and publish on the appropriate departmental website a copy of the full proposals for the CCS funding mechanism once it has been considered at the European Council meeting to which he made reference. [244119]

Gillian Merron: The compromise text resulting from the agreement at the European Council, as drafted by the French presidency, has still to undergo a vote in Plenary in the European Parliament, so it would be inappropriate to publish it at present. Should the European Parliament adopt the proposals as drafted, they will be published by the Commission in due course. Following publication we will place a copy in the Library.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Natural Resources

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what projects the Government is undertaking with the provincial government of Katanga in Democratic Republic of Congo and with mining companies to improve transparency in the award of contracts for resource extraction. [242771]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I have been asked to reply.

The UK Government are in discussions with the provincial Government of Katanga, three international mining companies and the US Agency for International Development (USAID) about a joint development initiative to improve operating standards and capacity in the provincial mining sector in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) and to ensure that local people benefit from Katanga's mineral wealth. One of the aims of the initiative will be to improve transparency in the mining sector by, for example, linking to implementation of the extractive industries transparency initiative (EITI) in the province. However, the initiative will not directly address the award of new mining contracts in DRC. The initiative is currently in the planning phase and we expect to begin implementation later this year. We understand the World Bank may include strengthening national government capacity to negotiate mining contracts as part of their planned mining sector reform programme.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when his Department appointed a senior information risk owner in accordance with the report, Data Handling Procedures in Government and the accompanying document Cross-departmental Actions: Mandatory Minimum Action; when the appointment was made; and what grade the person holds within the Department. [245362]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) chief information officer is the Department's senior information risk owner and is a member of the FCO Board. The present incumbent took up his appointment to both roles in March 2007.

Departmental Energy

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department is taking to reduce the amount of energy it wastes. [244610]

Gillian Merron: The Government's Delivery Plan for 'Sustainable Procurement and Operations on the Government Estate', published in August 2008, provides a full account of the initiatives departments are taking to reduce their energy waste. The Government have committed to updating the Delivery Plan on a six monthly basis, and the first update was published on 18 December. Further details of sustainable operations in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) can be found on page 111 of the 2007-08 FCO departmental report http://www.fco.gov.uk/en/departmental-report/part2/change-programmes/.

Since the publication of the departmental report, the FCO has used information obtained for display energy certificates and external ISO 14001 audits to further improve energy efficiency. A hundred overseas posts are introducing an environmental management system which includes measures to improve energy efficiency. This scheme will be rolled out to further posts later this year. Our current information technology infrastructure is being replaced by a system with advanced power saving settings which should also offer a significant energy saving.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the answer of 4 November 2008, Official Report, columns 336-7W, on Government Departments: information and communications technology, which IP addresses are used by (a) his Department and (b) computers in the offices of its (i) Ministers, (ii) communications officials and (iii) special advisers. [241952]

Gillian Merron: To help defend against electronic attack, it is standard information security practice not to publish internal internet protocol (IP) addresses. When accessing internet websites, the IP addresses of all of the computers on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's internal office IT system are hidden behind publicly available IP addresses; including 195.92.40.49 and 62.25.106.209. These IP addresses are shared with other Government Departments that use the Government Secure Intranet.

Diplomatic Service: Recruitment

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs who the members of the internal selection board for appointing heads of mission for his Department are; in what region of the UK each was born; what the (a) gender and (b) ethnic balance is of members of the board; and whether any have publicly declared their sexual orientation. [244254]

Gillian Merron: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 14 January 2008, Official Report, column 858W, on the membership of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) selection boards.

Two members of the number one selection board are female; the other five members and the chair are male. The chair and five members of the number two selection board are female; there are 17 male members. The chair and one other member of the Band D selection board are female; the other three members are male. All are white. The FCO does not collect data on the sexual orientation of its staff. The regions of birth of the members of each selection board are as follows:

Number one selection board:

West Midlands
Suffolk
London
Leicestershire
Lancashire
Bedfordshire
West Lothian

Number two selection board:

Greater Manchester
London
Teesside
Leicestershire
Middlesex
Merseyside
North Yorkshire
Surrey
Hampshire
Cambridgeshire

Buckinghamshire

Italy

Band D board:

EC Common Foreign and Security Policy

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will place in the Library a copy of each of the working papers drafted to frame discussion of EU-US affairs for the informal meetings of EU foreign ministers in September and November 2008. [244466]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 16 December 2008]: The EU presidency drafted a paper to focus discussion on various aspects of the EU-US relationship for both the informal EU Foreign Ministers' meetings in September and November 2008. Those present at the meetings agreed that the paper would not be published. Therefore I am unable to place a copy of the paper in the Library.

Embassies

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the total running cost of the British embassy in (a) Ottawa, (b) Washington, (c) Beijing, (d) Tokyo, (e) Sydney, (f) Johannesburg and (g) Delhi was in each of the last five years. [242548]

Gillian Merron: Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) posts overseas derive income from visa fees and consular services, and incur expenditure in running costs, programme and capital expenditure. The figures in the table represent the net running costs of missions calculated by deducting income from expenditure figures. Fluctuations in the figures from one year to another can result from changes in income from visa fees as well as increases or decreases in post expenditure. Increased expenditure in Ottawa in 2004-05 is attributed to higher than usual Programme Expenditure of £4.6 million in that year.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many staff served in the UK Permanent Representation to the EU in each year since 1997, broken down by payband. [242055]

Gillian Merron: The following table records the number of staff working at UK representation to the EU in financial years from 2005 to 2008. We do not hold data from before this date centrally. This information could be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

India: Christianity

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the government of India on reported violence against Christians in Orissa; and if he will make a statement. [244379]

Bill Rammell: We are deeply concerned by the recent reports of attacks against Christians in Orissa. There can be no justification for such violent attacks against innocent people. On 1 October 2008, my noble Friend the Minister of State for Africa, Asia and the UN, Lord Malloch-Brown raised the matter with the Indian High Commissioner. On 17 October, he also discussed our concerns with Anand Sharma, Indian Minister of External Affairs, and Mohammed Quereshi, chairman of the Minorities Commission in New Delhi. We understand that the Indian government fully recognises the seriousness of these incidents and is engaged with the Orissa State authorities in restoring law and order to that region.

International Relations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reduction has been made in his Department's funding for public diplomacy as a result of its Allocative Efficiencies programme, as referred to on page 27 of his Department's Autumn 2008 Performance Report. [240262]

David Miliband: As a result of the Allocative Efficiencies programme the Foreign and Commonwealth Office has reduced the programme funding for public diplomacy by £9.09 million in financial year 2008-09 and a further £4.91 million in financial year 2009-10.

Iran

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent changes there have been to the Government's policy on Iran. [240126]

Bill Rammell: The Government remain very concerned by Iran's actions in the region, over the nuclear issue, and on human rights. We continue to pursue the dual track strategy to encourage Iran to comply with the demands of the international community concerning its nuclear programme: sanctions to persuade it to come to the negotiating table, and the offer of engagement leading to full negotiations through the E3 +3 process.

Iraq: Christianity

Mr. Leigh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if the Government will urge the Kurdistan Democratic Party to ensure the return of all Christian-owned land and houses misappropriated by the Kurds. [246819]

Bill Rammell: There are currently internal Iraqi processes under way to resolve Iraq's disputed internal boundaries, with technical support provided by the United Nations, which we monitor closely.

As I said in the Westminster Hall Adjournment debate on the Christians of Iraq on 16 December 2008, Official Report, column 44WH, I hope to discuss how land and property disputes can best be resolved in the border areas between the Kurdistan Regional Government (KRG) and the rest of Iraq with ministerial interlocutors from the Government of Iraq and the KRG, at the next appropriate opportunity.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he (a) has taken and (b) plans to take at the United Nations on allegations of (i) the use by Hamas of human shields in Gaza and (ii) the storage of weapons by Hamas among women and children in Gaza; and if he will make a statement. [247984]

Bill Rammell: We condemn all abuse of innocent civilians. UN Security Council Resolution 1860, which was proposed by the UK, was emphatic in its condemnation of all violence and hostilities directed against civilians and all acts of terrorism.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with (a) the Palestinian Authority and (b) Hamas on seeking a lasting ceasefire in Gaza. [248154]

Bill Rammell: We are in close contact with the Palestinian Authority. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister spoke to President Abbas on 14 January.

We share the position of the Quartet concerning contacts with Hamas: that for such contacts to be useful Hamas should reject violence, recognise Israel and accept previous agreements. We are however in close contact with the Arab League and its members states. We support Egyptian engagement with Hamas in order to achieve an immediate and permanent ceasefire.

Offenders

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many former prisoners are employed by his Department; and what his Department's policy is on employing former prisoners. [246345]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) does not hold statistics on how many former prisoners it employs.

We collect information on a candidate's spent convictions as part of our security vetting process but do not use it for selection purposes.

Information on the number of former prisoners employed by the FCO could only be obtained by checking the security vetting files of all FCO members of staff which could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Pakistan

Mr. Arbuthnot: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the UK has offered any assistance to the authorities of Pakistan in connection with the investigation of the killing of Major-General Faisal Alavi. [245496]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 12 January 2009]: The investigation into Major-General Alavi's death is a matter for the Pakistani authorities. We do not normally interfere in another country's judicial proceedings, unless under special circumstances that country asks for our assistance. We do not normally have any consular involvement in cases concerning dual-nationals in their other country of nationality, except in cases where we judge there is a special humanitarian reason to do so, for example, cases involving minors, forced marriage or a conviction involving the death penalty, but even then only where the state of other nationality agrees. Our Commission would, however, be able to register interest in the case with local authorities if contacted by the family of Major-General Alavi.

Mr. Arbuthnot: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether (a) he and (b) his officials have held discussions with the authorities of Pakistan on the death of Major-General Faisal Alavi. [245487]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 12 January 2009]: Neither my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary nor UK officials have held any such discussions.

Passports: Offenders

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs in what circumstances UK nationals who are fugitives from justice can have their passports renewed by UK consulates overseas (a) generally and (b) in Northern Cyprus; and if he will make a statement. [245220]

Caroline Flint: The Identity and Passport Service (IPS), a Home Office Agency, has the lead on the policy on who does or does not get a British passport. As long as the IPS have been notified of a fugitive from justice, there are specific procedures in place to ensure any such applicant for a British passport is properly scrutinised and relevant UK authorities are consulted on the decision to issue or not. These procedures apply across the world, including in northern Cyprus.

Sri Lanka

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the government of Sri Lanka on the arrest and trial of those responsible for the killing of local aid workers from the organisation Action Contre La Faim in August 2006. [245299]

Bill Rammell: The UK has expressed clearly to the Government of Sri Lanka that it is vital for the perpetrators of this crime to be brought to justice following a thorough and credible investigation. In a debate in the House on 18 December 2008, Official Report, column 1344, I spoke of the murder of 17 'Action Contre La Faim' workers in 2006 as an example of the failure to investigate and prosecute those alleged to be responsible for human rights abuses. We have consistently called on all parties to the conflict to abide by all obligations under International Humanitarian Law.

Sri Lanka: Armed Conflict

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports his Department has received on the treatment of international non-governmental organisations in Sri Lanka; and if he will make a statement. [243831]

Bill Rammell: In September 2008, the UN and all international non-governmental organisations (INGOs) working in the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam-controlled Vanni were asked to withdraw as the Government of Sri Lanka could not assure their safety. INGOs are currently working in a challenging environment and in recent months there have been instances of attacks on INGO staff members. Our high commission in Colombo regularly urges the Sri Lankan Government to allow INGOs full access to the Vanni and encourages them to ensure adequate protection for all non- governmental organisation workers.

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports his Department has received on the alleged use of cluster bombs by the government of Sri Lanka in the Vanni region; and if he will make a statement. [243832]

Bill Rammell: We are aware of claims about the use of cluster munitions by the Sri Lankan military. The ongoing military hostilities and the lack of independent information coming from northern Sri Lanka make it difficult to verify these claims. We have raised this issue with the Sri Lankan Government who have denied the use of such munitions by their military in any operations. The use of cluster munitions in general is of serious concern to the UK.

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the human rights situation in the Eastern provinces of Sri Lanka; and if he will make a statement. [243833]

Bill Rammell: We are concerned about the human rights situation in the Eastern Province of Sri Lanka. Sporadic attacks between groups continue. We welcome the recent signing of a memorandum of understanding between the Tamil Makkal Viduthalai Pulikal (TMVP), central Government and the United Nations Children Fund (UNICEF) setting out a three month action plan for the release of all TMVP child soldiers. The UK continues to encourage all authorities in the east to pursue a peaceful and democratic path.

Sweden: British Overseas Citizenship

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many UK nationals have taken up residence in (a) Sweden and (b) Denmark in each of the last five years. [245264]

Caroline Flint: Figures from the Swedish and Danish national statistics offices show that the number of UK nationals resident in each country over the last five years were as follows:

(a) Sweden

	Number
2004	16,428
2005	16,798
2006	17,175
2007	17,788
2008	18,486

(b) Denmark

	Number
2004	12,724
2005	12,830
2006	12,894
2007	13,183
2008	13,729

These figures are the net UK nationals resident in Sweden and Denmark each year. There are no published statistics for the number of UK nationals taking up residence each year in either Sweden or Denmark.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many UK nationals are engaged in full-time study in (a) Swedish and (b) Danish universities. [245269]

Caroline Flint: The latest figures available from the Swedish and Danish authorities show that (a) there were 482 UK nationals engaged in full-time study at Swedish universities in 2006-07; and (b) there were 338 UK nationals engaged in full-time study at Danish universities in 2008.

Tourists: Illness

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many British citizens have died while on holiday overseas in each of the last five years; and how many died in each EU member state in each such year. [243773]

Gillian Merron: Given the volume of information, I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy in the Library of the House.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received from UK organisations on the provision of health care for British citizens who are taken ill while on holiday overseas. [243774]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 15 December 2008]: We have received no representations from UK organisations on the provision of health care for British citizens taken ill while on holiday overseas.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what support his Department has put in place to support the families of those whose relatives (a) are taken ill and (b) die while on holiday overseas. [243775]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 15 December 2008]: Consular staff in London, and around the world, can offer advice and support to the families of those whose relatives are either taken ill or die while they are overseas. In the case of illness or injury, with the individuals' permission, we can inform family and friends when a British national has been hospitalised, keep them up to date with developments and help transfer money from friends or relatives in the UK to meet any necessary costs.

In the event of a death overseas, we ask the UK police to contact the next of kin as soon as possible. Consular staff do their best to ensure that the family's wishes are carried out, for example, regarding burial, cremation or bringing the body home. We can put the family in touch with local lawyers and local and international funeral directors. As with hospitalisation, we cannot pay expenses, but can help transfer money from friends or relatives in the UK.

If the death occurred under suspicious circumstances, we can assist the family in dealing with the local police—and staff are available to meet family representatives in London. When there is an ongoing investigation overseas, we can ask a local UK police force to consider providing a family liaison officer, who advises and helps the family in dealing with the investigation.

UN World Conference against Racism

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the government of Israel on UK attendance at the Durban Review Conference in 2009; and if he will make a statement. [241168]

Gillian Merron: Officials from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office have been in discussions with their Israeli counterparts on the Durban Review Conference. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not discussed the Durban Review Conference with the government of Israel.

Whales

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when his Department last met representatives from the International Whaling Commission to discuss international whaling practices. [240966]

Gillian Merron: Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) officials form part of the Department for the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs-led UK delegation to the Annual Meeting of the International Whaling Commission, most recently held in Santiago, June 2008.

The FCO also contributed to the Government's recent communication to the International Whaling Commission, in response to the establishment by that body of a Small Working Group to consider issues in respect of its future. In that communication, the Government set out what we consider to be practical and necessary solutions to each of the 33 issues identified for the working group to consider.

The UK has also published 'The International Whaling Commission—The Way Forward'

distributed to contracting governments, to assist in this process.

The Small Working Group met in Cambridge, 8-10 December 2008. An FCO official formed part of the UK delegation. The Small Working Group will meet again in Rome in March 2009.

Zimbabwe: Politics and Government

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on political developments in Zimbabwe. [245465]

Gillian Merron: Mr. Mugabe and his ZANU-PF party continue to be the obstacle that stands in the way of political progress in Zimbabwe. The people of Zimbabwe want a new government that reflects the March elections and that is committed to implementing urgently needed reform. Robert Mugabe is refusing to implement the political agreement reached with the two Movement for Democratic Change formations in September and is allowing Zimbabwe to sink further into an economic and humanitarian crisis, which is already spreading across the region. We continue to work with South Africa and others in the region to encourage a durable solution, and to provide humanitarian aid to the innocent victims of these policies.

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the political situation in Zimbabwe; and if he will make a statement. [246536]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 12 January 2009]: Mr. Mugabe and his ZANU-PF party continue to be the obstacle that stands in the way of political progress in Zimbabwe. HEALTH

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many abortions there were in each of the last 15 years, broken down by (a) grounds for abortion, (b) length of gestation and (c) health authority have been performed under the Abortion Act 1967 as amended by section 37 of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 where the unborn child was suffering from cleft (i) palate and (ii) lip. [247737]

Dawn Primarolo: The information is shown in the following table for abortions since 1995.

Prior to 1995, the International Classification of Diseases and Related Health Problems codes did not include cleft lip and/or palate. For 1995 onwards, abortions with a principal medical condition of cleft lip or cleft palate are coded together as cleft lip and/or palate.

Data cannot be broken down by gestation or health authority for confidentiality reasons in line with the Office for National Statistics' guidance on the disclosure of abortion statistics (2005). All abortions shown were performed under section 1(1)(d) of the Abortion Act 1967, that there is substantial risk that if the child were born it would suffer from such physical or mental abnormalities as to be seriously handicapped. 2008 statistics are due to be published in spring 2009.

Abortions performed under Section 1(1)(d) of the Abortion Act 1967, with a principal medical condition of cleft lip and/or palate by gestation, residents of England and Wales, 1995-07

	Total cleft lip and/or palate
	All gestations	24+ weeks
1996	5	0
1997 +		0
1998	5	0
1999	3	0
2003 +		[2]
2004 +		[2]
2005	[1]11	[2]
2007	[2]	[2]

[1] For years 2003, 2004 and 2005, some of the principal medical conditions for abortions performed under Section 1(1)(d) had to be suppressed as the totals for each single year were too small to release. In the three years 2003-2005, there were 11 cases with a principal medical condition of the congenital malformation cleft lip and/or cleft palate.

[2] Suppressed value less than 10 (between 0 and nine). From 2003 onwards, totals of less than 10 are suppressed for reasons of confidentiality in line with the Office for National Statistics' (ONS) guidance on the disclosure of abortion statistics (2005).

Abortion: Down's Syndrome

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he plans to bring forward legislative proposals to repeal the provision of the Abortion Act 1967 allowing women to terminate a pregnancy if their child has Down's syndrome; and if he will make a statement. [247963]

Dawn Primarolo: It is accepted parliamentary practice that proposals for amendments to the Abortion Act 1967, as amended, come from Back-Bench Members and that decisions are made on the basis of free votes. The Government have no plans to change the law on abortion.

One of the grounds for an abortion is:

"that there is a substantial risk that if the child were born it would suffer from such physical or mental abnormalities as to be seriously handicapped."

Parliament did not define serious handicap in the Act. Indeed, it chose to leave this to the expert judgment of the two doctors involved, who are required to form their own opinion about the seriousness of the handicap the child would suffer if born, taking into account the facts and circumstances of each individual case.

Arthritis: Health Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to encourage the development of monitoring clinics in community settings for the purpose of reviewing patients with inflammatory arthritis. [249262]

Ann Keen: It is the responsibility of local health bodies to commission services to meet the needs of their population living with inflammatory arthritis. This may include the provision of monitoring clinics in community settings.

The Musculoskeletal Framework, published in July 2006 (a copy of which has already been placed in the Library), emphasised the importance of regular reviews for those with inflammatory arthritis, undertaken within a monitoring clinic which can also provide education and support to enhance self-management of these conditions.

Beverley Community Hospital

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the East Riding of Yorkshire primary care trust has spent on finding a new location for Beverley Community Hospital; and if he will make a statement. [247318]

Mr. Bradshaw: It is the responsibility of primary care trusts (PCTs) to plan, develop and improve health services for their local residents.

The East Riding of Yorkshire PCT was awarded £20 million from the community hospital development fund to help towards the overall cost of the development of three community hospitals in the East Riding, at Beverley, Hornsea and Driffield. It is for the PCT to manage the costs involved in developing this scheme.

Brain Injuries

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps his Department is taking to improve services for people with acquired brain injury; [247809]

(2) what steps his Department has taken to record the number of people who have acquired brain injuries. [247810]

Ann Keen: In March 2005 the Department published the "National Service Framework for Long-Term Conditions" which focuses on improving services for people with neurological conditions, including acquired brain injury. A copy of the framework has already been placed in the Library.

The Department has no plans to collect information on the number of people with acquired brain injuries.

Cancer

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects to publish guidance for cancer commissioners. [247099]

Ann Keen: Guidance for cancer commissioners to take into consideration when assessing health needs, reviewing services and monitoring performance was launched on the Department's website on 12 January 2009. A copy has been placed in the Library and it can be viewed at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_092051.

This guidance sits alongside the web-based cancer commissioning tool kit launched to national health service users in June 2008, which supports commissioners of cancer services by providing a range of benchmarked information.

Cancer: Health Services

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) whether he has validated a modular assessment tool for the purpose of collecting information on cancer awareness; and when he expects to undertake a national survey; [247101]

(2) what progress he has made on (a) developing and (b) testing a primary care audit tool for newly-diagnosed cancers; and when he expects to begin the national audit; [247108]

(3) what progress he has made on each component of the national awareness and early diagnosis initiative; and when he expects to be able to evaluate the initiative as a whole. [247109]

Ann Keen: Information on progress on the National Awareness and Early Diagnosis Initiative over the last year is set out in the first annual report of the Cancer Reform Strategy, a copy of which is available in the Library.

The Department has funded the Office for National Statistics (ONS) to carry out a national baseline cancer awareness survey. ONS's survey is using the validated cancer awareness assessment tool developed by Cancer Research UK funded researchers. The early results from the survey were set out in the first annual report of the Cancer Reform Strategy, and we expect to publish full results from the survey in the spring.

The Royal College of General Practitioners are taking forward work on the audit of cancer diagnosis in primary care. Three strands of work are currently being developed:

an assessment of the interval from first presentation to a general practitioner to diagnosis;

a significant event audit, focusing on lung cancer and cancer in children and young people, which will be piloted in early 2009; and development of an audit template.

Consideration is currently being given to how best to evaluate the initiative.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of commissioners of cancer services in relation to NHS waiting time standards through the assurance system developed under the world class commissioning programme; [247107]

(2) what assessment he has made under the world class commissioning programme of cancer commissioners' compliance with advice contained in guidance issued by his Department subsequent to the publication of the Cancer Reform Strategy. [247121]

Ann Keen: Commissioners of cancer services are subject to the wider assurance system managed by strategic health authorities that has been developed under the world class commissioning programme. Assessments undertaken as part of this process relate to commissioning in general and not specifically to the commissioning of cancer services.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the extent to which local NHS organisations are following advice contained in the cancer reform strategy. [248445]

Ann Keen: The first annual report of the 'Cancer Reform Strategy' was published on 1 December 2008. The report 'Cancer Reform Strategy—Maintaining momentum, building for the future: first annual report' highlights progress that have been made nationally and locally. A copy of the report has already been placed in the Library.

The annual report for 2009 will have a greater focus on local implementation.

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been spent by the NHS on the treatment of (a) breast cancer and (b) prostate cancer in each of the last five years. [248836]

Ann Keen: The information on funding is not available in the format requested. The following table shows an estimate of the gross expenditure on cancers and tumours by the national health service in England for all cancer and tumour types, for the last four available financial years. This information was first collected in 2003-04 and is not available for any previous years.

The table also shows gross expenditure on breast cancer for 2006-07, the first year that this data was collected at sub-category level. Data on gross expenditure for prostate cancer at sub-category level is not collected.

Estimated gross expenditure on cancer and tumours (all types) and on breast cancers and tumours from 2003-04 to 2006-07

Cancer: Medical Treatments

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress he has made towards completing a dataset for all chemotherapy service providers in respect of patients receiving chemotherapy. [247105]

Ann Keen: Work is under way with a group of clinicians to develop and agree a dataset for chemotherapy. The plan is to consult on this during 2009, with the aim of implementation in 2010.

Care Homes: Fees and Charges

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effect of the current economic situation on those who fund their own stay in care homes; and what plans he has to assist such individuals to alleviate hardship. [248224]

Phil Hope: No such assessment has been made. Care home residents are already entitled to apply for public help with the cost of their care, subject to a test of their means, if they have less than £22,250 in savings. This will increase to £23,000 in April 2009.

The Government will work closely with local authorities and care providers to ensure they are able to meet their statutory responsibilities and protect the welfare of care home residents.

Carers

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department has taken to raise awareness of statutory rights for carers. [247218]

Phil Hope: One of the commitments in the National Carers' strategy, "Carers at the heart of 21st century families and communities", is to provide every carer with the opportunity to access comprehensive and locally specific information when they need it.

We are establishing 'Carers Direct', an information service which will provide, via a website and a helpline, access to the information needed by carers, including issues around their statutory rights.

The web element of the service will be launched—in limited form—at the end of January 2009, it will be in full form by the end of March 2009. The helpline—which will be available by phone, e-mail and mail—will go live in April 2009 and reach full capacity in July 2009.

The Government are making £2.8 million a year available to support this service.

Cervical Cancer: Screening

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress he has made towards increasing the participation of women aged 25 to 35 years in the cervical cancer screening programme. [248447]

Ann Keen: As set out in the Cancer Reform Strategy, national health service cancer screening programmes have commissioned the Improvement Foundation to undertake work at a local level targeting this group. Six primary care trusts are taking part in this work. The Improvement Foundation are expected to deliver the outcomes from their work to NHS cancer screening programmes by the end of 2009, and the lessons learned will be shared with strategic health authorities and local screening programmes to develop best practice.

To incentivise services to encourage higher coverage, the decision has been taken to explore having a tariff for cervical screening, along with breast and bowel screening. The Department is working closely with NHS cancer screening programmes on a scoping exercise to inform this work.

We will continue to monitor levels of cervical screening coverage through the Office for National Statistics/ Information Centre annual cervical screening programme statistical bulletin.

NHS cancer screening programmes have already produced posters specifically targeting women in the age range of 25-35.

Charities

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health to which (a) charities and (b) voluntary organisations his Department has provided funding in the last five years; and how much funding was provided to each. [247378]

Phil Hope: Information on all departmental funding to charities and voluntary organisations is not available in the format requested from central records and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Tables which show grant awards from the funding years 2004-05 up to the current funding year 2008-09 with the identifiable data available including; Social Enterprise Pathfinders, Social Enterprise Investment Fund, Children's Hospice and Hospice at Home, Dignity in Care (one year capital awards), Section 64 General Scheme of Grants and the Opportunities for Volunteering grant scheme have been placed in the Library.

Chlamydia: East Sussex

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what proportion of persons in East Sussex have been diagnosed with chlamydia in the latest period for which figures are available, broken down by primary care trust. [249400]

Dawn Primarolo: Data for chlamydia diagnosed in a genitourinary medicine (GUM) clinic are currently only collected by strategic health authority (SHA) and are not broken down by primary care trust (PCT). Information on the rate of genital chlamydia diagnoses in GUM clinics in the South East Coast SHA for 2007, the latest year for which figures are available, is given in the following table.

Chlamydia diagnoses in GUM clinics in the South East Coast SHA in 2007

	Number of chlamydia diagnoses	Rate of chlamydia diagnoses (per 100,000 population)
Male	3,311	160.9
Female	3,148	143.7
Total	6,459	152.0

Notes:
1. The data available from the KC60 statutory returns are for diagnoses made in GUM clinics only. Diagnoses made in other clinical settings, such as general practice, are not recorded in the KC60 dataset.
2. The data available from the KC60 statutory returns are the number of diagnoses made, not the number of patients diagnosed.
3. The information provided has been adjusted for missing clinic data.
Source:
Health Protection Agency, KC60 returns

In addition to the diagnosis of chlamydia in GUM clinics, the National Chlamydia Screening Programme (NCSP) provides screening for chlamydia to asymptomatic people aged under 25 years of age in England. The NCSP was launched in 2003. Information on the proportion of people diagnosed with chlamydia through the NCSP in the South East Coast SHA broken down by PCT for April 2008 to September 2008, the latest date for which figures are available, is published in "NHS Vital Signs 2008/9—Primary Care Trust (PCT) and Strategic Health Authority (SHA) specific tables 1st April 2008 to 30th September 2008". A copy of the tables have been placed in the Library.

Contaminated Blood and Blood Products Inquiry

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 16 December 2008, Official Report, columns 675-76W, on contaminated blood and blood products inquiry, how many of the documents discovered in unregistered files and subsequently withheld from release under exemptions in the Freedom of Information Act 2000 were also withheld from release from the documents returned to his Department's solicitors in May 2006 by Blackett, Hart and Pratt. [247231]

Dawn Primarolo: Around 4,500 documents were discovered in unregistered files, and 35 were withheld from release under exemptions in the Freedom of Information Act 2000, as set out in my answer of 30 June 2008, Official Report, column 652W. One document was withheld from release from around 600 documents returned by a firm of private solicitors. The one document withheld from those returned by private solicitors was also among those withheld from documents found in unregistered files. The document was withheld under section 40 (personal information) of the Freedom of Information Act.

Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what account his Department is taking in its policy on testing for vCJD infection amongst at-risk groups of the recent completion of the trial of the EP-vCJD(TM) test by Amorfix Life Sciences in collaboration with the National Institute for Biological Standards and Control; and if he will make a statement. [247049]

Dawn Primarolo: Advice on the use of this test will be sought from the Advisory Committee on the Safety of Blood, Tissues and Organs and from the Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease (CJD) Incidents Panel when additional independent ongoing studies are completed.

Departmental Air Travel

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many journeys (a) he and his predecessors and (b) his officials made by aeroplane in the course of their duties in each of the last five years. [246666]

Mr. Bradshaw: Travel by Ministers and civil servants is undertaken in accordance with the 'Ministerial Code' and the 'Civil Service Management Code' respectively.

The number of aeroplane journeys undertaken by the Secretary of State and his predecessors over the last five years is:

Period	Number
July 2004 to March 2005	3
April 2005 to March 2006	8
April 2006 to March 2007	13
April 2007 to March 2008	3
April 2008 to December 2008	2

Numbers of aeroplane journeys for officials are not easily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Languages

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) Ministers and (b) civil servants in his Department received coaching in a foreign language in the last 12 months; what expenditure his Department incurred in providing such coaching; and in what languages such coaching was provided. [248081]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not hold central records of expenditure on foreign language classes, either for Ministers or for its employees. Any survey to gather the relevant information could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Marketing

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department spent on advertising in the last 12 months. [243714]

Mr. Bradshaw: In the last 12 months, (1 December 2007 to 30 November 2008 inclusive), the Department has spent a total of £35,907,558 on advertising. This includes advertising on major public health and social care campaigns including tobacco control, sexual health, alcohol awareness, substance abuse support and advice, vaccination programmes and recruitment to social care work.

For the majority of staff in the Department, recruitment costs including advertising, are paid for locally by the business units that carried out the recruiting, and to gather the information from local sources would incur a disproportionate cost.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what expert advisers have been commissioned by his Department and its agencies since 1997; on what topic each was commissioned; and whether the adviser so appointed made a declaration of political activity in each case. [246955]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department and its agencies commission a wide range of expert advisers from relevant fields to provide clinical and scientific input to their work.

Information is not held centrally and, given the time period, to collect it would incur disproportionate cost. Information about experts commissioned to provide professional or technical advice as members of advisory committees, boards and advisory public bodies would again incur disproportionate cost to collect.

Information about specific bodies can be found at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Aboutus/HowDHWorks/BoardsandCommittees/index.htm

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Aboutus/OrganisationsthatworkwithDH/index.htm

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Aboutus/OrganisationsthatworkwithDH/Armslengthbodies/index.htm.

Information about the 310 committees of the Medicines and Healthcare Regulatory products Authority (MHRA) can be found at:

www.mhra.gov.uk/Committees/index.htm.

Information about special advisers, who are political appointees and advise on political, presentational and policy issues, has been announced to the Commons on an annual basis since 2003, usually in July.

All members of committees and advisory public bodies of the Department and its agencies are subject to the rules and procedures of the Appointments Commission including the requirement to declare any political activity.

Departmental Telephone Services

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what use (a) his Department and (b) service providers under contract to his Department make of (i) 0844 and 0845 telephone numbers and (ii) revenue-sharing telephone numbers for calls from members of the public; for which services such numbers are used; what prefixes are used for revenue-sharing numbers; how much revenue has accrued from revenue-sharing numbers in each of the last five years; what consideration his Department has given to introducing 03-prefixed telephone numbers for calls to all such services; and if he will make a statement. [247343]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department runs or supports the following 0845 telephone numbers.

	Telephone numbers
EHIC Order Line	0845 605 0707
EHIC enquiry line	0845 606 2030
Healthy Start	0845 607 6823
Healthy Start Minicom	0845 601 7698
Social Work and Care Careers Recruitment Line	0845 604 6404
Social Work and Care Careers Recruitment Minicom	0845 601 6121

The 0845 numbers serving recruitment for social care and social workers will be moved over to the new 0300 tariff by the end of February. The use of 0845 numbers for the other services is currently under review.

The Department ran the following non-revenue generating lines, using 0870 numbers. While they were mainly for the use of national health service and social services professional there was some use by the public. Since May 2008, these services have been available via 0300 numbers but the 0870 numbers needs to be maintained until the end of March 2009 to allow for the transition.

	Telephone numbers
Department of Health Publication Order line	08701 555 455
Department of Health Publication Order line minicom	08700 102 870

The Department's Executive agencies, the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency and the NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency have no 0845 or similar cost telephone numbers for use by the public.

The Department does not centrally hold information on the telephone numbers used by the NHS.

The Department has 24 arm's length bodies and a number of national programmes e.g. NHS Employers. Information about telephone services for these bodies is not held centrally and cannot be provided except at disproportionate cost.

The Department also grants funds to a wide range of voluntary and charitable organisations to provide services relating to health and healthy living. Some of these organisations include telephone helplines as part of their services. It is not possible, without incurring disproportionate cost, to identify individual projects with telephones services and whether 0845 telephone numbers are used.

In February 2005, my right hon. Friend the Member for Barrow and Furness (Mr. Hutton), then Minister of State for Health announced a ban on the NHS using premium rate telephone numbers such as 0870.

We recently launched a public consultation on the intention to prohibit the use of 084 numbers in the NHS. This will run from 16 December 2008 until 31 March 2009.

Direct Payments

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what consideration he has given to increasing the safeguards for people who lack capacity and have their direct payments managed on their behalf by a suitable person to a level which matches those for people who manage their own direct payments. [248129]

Phil Hope: Consultation on draft regulations in respect of the provisions in the Health and Social Care Act 2008 to extend direct payments to people lacking capacity has now closed and comments are currently being considered.

The draft regulations set out specific and robust conditions which a local authority must ensure can be met by the suitable person to whom it is making direct payments on behalf of the person lacking capacity. Before making any payment, the local authority must be satisfied that the appointed suitable person is capable of managing the direct payment and that in all circumstances it is appropriate for he or she to do so. In particular, the suitable person is required at all times to act in the best interests of the person lacking capacity, within the meaning of the Mental Capacity Act 2005.

The suitable person must provide any information to the local authority as it sees fit, including notifying the local authority whenever they believe that the direct payment beneficiary has regained capacity. Local authorities will be under a duty to carry out regular reviews to ensure that making a direct payment in this way meets the needs and serves the best interests of the person lacking capacity.

Practice guidance will be published alongside the regulations to support local authorities to take appropriate safeguarding measures and therefore ensure that people lacking capacity are also able to benefit from direct payments.

Doctors: Children

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) named and (b) designated doctor posts in charge of child safety in primary care trusts are vacant. [247034]

Ann Keen: This information is not collected centrally.

Down's Syndrome

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to increase awareness of Down's syndrome. [245855]

Phil Hope: The Department does not single out any condition when raising awareness around learning disability, although the Department recognises the excellent awareness work carried out by third sector groups, which support people with Down's syndrome and their families.

We have published today the "Valuing People Now" Strategy and Delivery Plan which will address people with learning disabilities having control over their lives and services, including what people do during the day, how they can be supported to access jobs, housing, better healthcare and making sure that change happens. Copies of both documents have been placed in the Library.

Elderly: Abuse

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 144W, on elderly: abuse, which local authority reported in each of the 15 serious case reviews; and for each such authority how many serious case reviews there have been in each of the last four years. [248506]

Phil Hope: The serious case review reports and reports that were similar in nature but were not titled serious case reviews, were considered on a confidential basis. Local councils took part, on the agreement and understanding that the names of the councils involved and the reports not in the public domain would remain anonymous. The Department must therefore respect this arrangement. All participants in this research were assured of anonymity.

Exercise

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his Department's recommendation is for the amount of exercise people should take each week. [247917]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department's recommendations on the amount of exercise people should take each week reflect the Chief Medical Officer's views, set out in the report "At least five a week: Evidence on the impact of physical activity and its relationship to health" published in April 2004. A copy has been placed in the Library.

Children and young people should achieve a total of at least 60 minutes of at least moderate intensity physical activity each day. At least twice a week this should include activities to improve bone health (activities that produce high physical stresses on the bones), muscle strength and flexibility.

For general health benefit, adults should achieve a total of at least 30 minutes a day of at least moderate intensity physical activity on five or more days of the week.

Family Nurse Partnership Programme

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the family nurse partnership programme. [247382]

Ann Keen: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on the 9 December 2008, Official Report, column 71W.

General Practitioners: Pharmacy

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reasons he decided not to implement proposals for changes to arrangements for GP dispensing. [248225]

Phil Hope: As I announced on 16 December 2008, Official Report, column 952, the decision that there would be no change to the current arrangements for dispensing by general practitioners followed the consultation on the Pharmacy White Paper "Building on Strengths Delivering the Future - proposals for legislative change"—which closed on 20 November 2008.

An option contained in the consultation paper was to make no changes to current arrangements. Ultimately, in reaching that decision, we took account of the strength of the responses we received on the various options for amending the criteria for dispensing by doctors, the views of those attending the listening events, and views expressed at meetings with departmental officials.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to (a) increase the role that pharmacists play in patient safety and (b) improve communications between primary care trusts and local pharmacy committees. [248227]

Phil Hope: In the White Paper "Pharmacy in England: Building on strengths - delivering the future", the Government stated that they consider that chief pharmacists of provider organisations, primary care trusts (PCTs) and other commissioners should have the lead role in ensuring that safe medication practices are embedded in patient care. To support this, and at the request of the Department, the National Patient Safety Agency hosted an event for senior pharmacists. This took place in London on 15 October 2008. The primary outcomes from the event were agreement by senior pharmacists to take on this role and the establishment of a virtual medicines safety forum where best practice can be shared. The White Paper also announced the appointment of two National Clinical Directors in pharmacy. Now in post, the National Clinical Directors will champion safe use of medicines as part of supporting the implementation of the pharmacy White Paper.

Communications between PCTs and local pharmacy committees are typically part of the role of PCT pharmaceutical advisers and chief pharmacists. The pharmacy National Clinical Directors will take opportunities to help improve communications between PCTs and local pharmacy committees where this is necessary. NHS Employers has been commissioned by the Department to convene and lead a working group of pharmacy, medical and public representatives to formulate a series of actions to promote more effective professional relationships. This work is ongoing.

General Practitioners: Telephone Services

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many GP surgeries use 0844 and 0845 telephone numbers for calls from members of the public; and if he will make a statement. [247307]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not hold this information centrally and it cannot be provided except at disproportionate cost. However the Department remains clear that it does not expect patients to pay more than the equivalent cost of a local rate call when contacting their general practitioner.

We recently launched a public consultation on the intention to prohibit the use of 084 numbers in the national health service. This will run from 16 December 2008 until 31 March 2009.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the use of 0844 numbers by GPs' surgeries; and if he will make a statement. [248435]

Mr. Bradshaw: An information gathering exercise was completed in 2008 on the use of 084 telephone numbers in general practice. The information gathered was the subject of lengthy and detailed analysis before being shared with Ministers.

The Department subsequently launched a public consultation on the intention to prohibit the use of 084 numbers in the national health service. This will run from 16 December 2008 until 31 March 2009.

Health Centres: Christchurch

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made since 21 July 2008 in the disposal of his interest in the former NHS health centre in Saxon Square, Christchurch. [248853]

Mr. Bradshaw: Negotiations are currently in hand with the landlord for a surrender of the lease at the earliest opportunity.

Health Professions: Career Structure

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effect of proposals for modernising scientific careers proposals on (a) the funding of BSc level qualifications and (b) the number of students opting for a BSc level qualification in healthcare science. [247029]

Ann Keen: We do not believe that the modernising scientific careers proposals will have any effect on the funding of BSc level qualifications which are funded by the United Kingdom Higher Education Funding Councils through their block grant to higher education institutions.

Data are not available to estimate the number of students registered on degree programmes as there is no single degree in healthcare science.

Health Services: Children

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he plans to announce separate indicative funding allocations for disabled children's services and children's palliative care services in the Child Health Strategy. [249162]

Phil Hope: New growth funding is being included in primary care trust (PCT) baseline allocations up to 2010-11 to enable PCTs to work with local authorities to increase the range of services for children with complex needs. Our approach will be set out as part the Child Health Strategy which will be published soon.

On 19 December 2007, former Health Minister Ivan Lewis wrote a joint letter with Andrew Adonis, the then Parliamentary Under Secretary of State for Schools, to every PCT and local authority in the country that sets out the clear framework of aims and accountability now in place to improve the capacity, range and quality of services for children with disabilities and complex health needs.

Health Services: Surveys

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will publish his Department's review of customer experience information in health and social care. [246799]

Phil Hope: The report relating to the Department's review of customer experience information in health and social care will be published, and we plan to do so in spring 2009.

Heart Diseases: Health Services

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effect of the national service framework on levels of coronary heart disease; and if he will make a statement. [247184]

Ann Keen: The latest available data on the prevalence of coronary heart disease (CHD) is taken from the 'Health Survey for England 2006'. The prevalence rate for men in that year had dropped to just over 6 per cent. compared with over 7 per cent. in both 1998 and 2003. Comparable figures for women were just under 3 per cent. in 2006 compared with over 4 per cent. in both 1998 and 2003. The overall trend for both men and women is downwards. A copy of this has been placed in the Library.

Information about the mortality rate from CHD from 1997 to 2007 is shown in the following table:

	Persons England
1997	159.82
1998	154.79
1999	145.15
2000	136.18
2001	130.05
2002	124.40
2003	119.18
2004	109.40
2005	101.91
2006	94.11
2007	88.98

Notes:
1. Data are based on the original underlying cause of death.
2. Data are based on the latest revisions of Office for National Statistics population estimates for the respective years, current as at 29 September 2008.
3. Indicator: Mortality from coronary heart disease (ICD9 410-414 adjusted, ICD10 120-125):

The rate has dropped steadily over the past 10 years—this is partly as a result of changes in lifestyle factors (such as reductions in the numbers who smoke) and partly as a result of improvement in treatment and services for heart disease, led since 2000 by the programme set out in the National Service Framework (NSF) for CHD.

While it is not possible to make a precise attribution between these two factors, research studies indicate that around approximately half of the reduction in mortality results from changes in lifestyle factors and around half to improvements in treatment and services.

A key target of the NSF is to contribute to the reduction of premature mortality from CHD and other cardiovascular diseases by at least 40 per cent. by 2010. This target was met five years early. The mortality rates fell 40.3 per cent. between 2004-06 over the 1995-97 baseline. This equates to the saving of 31,000 lives when comparing 2006 with 1996.

Hospital Beds

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) cancer networks and (b) primary care trusts have completed local reviews of in-patient bed usage. [247102]

Ann Keen: The electronic Cancer Commissioning Toolkit enables cancer networks and primary care trusts (PCTs) to review current bed utilisation for cancer patients, as set out in the Cancer Reform Strategy. Information on how many networks or PCTs are carrying out such reviews is not collected centrally.

Hospitals

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the location and address of each cleft palate and cleft lip unit is, broken down by health authority. [248001]

Ann Keen: The Department does not collect this information centrally.

Hospitals: Disinfectants

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if his Department will discourage NHS trusts from procuring quaternary ammonium-based products for use as disinfectants in NHS hospitals; and if he will make a statement. [247541]

Ann Keen: The Department will continue to stress the need to use appropriate disinfectant materials. Choice of disinfectants is a local matter.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what criteria his Department uses to decide whether a product is sporicidal; whether his Department has assessed (a) peracetic acid-based formulas and (b) quaternary ammonium-based formulas to be sporicidal; and if he will make a statement; [247553]

(2) whether disinfectant wipes using peracetic acid-based formulas have been proven to be effective against Clostridium difficile; if his Department will encourage NHS trusts to use such wipes as disinfectants in NHS hospitals; and if he will make a statement. [247554]

Ann Keen: Data demonstrating a pass for the British Standard BS EN 13704:2002 test "Quantitative suspension test for the evaluation of sporicidal activity of chemical disinfectants used in food, industrial, domestic and institutional areas" are generally used to establish whether a chemical disinfectant has or does not have sporicidal activity.

The Department has not made any specific assessments regarding the effectiveness of disinfectant wipes using peracetic acid-based formulas or quaternary ammonium-based formulas against spores.

The Department is currently commissioning research into the effectiveness of a number of commercial formulations that claim to be sporicidal which may include chlorine, peracetic acid-based and quaternary ammonium-based formulae.

Existing guidance recommends chlorine based disinfectants that have proven sporicidal activity. The choice of disinfectant products is a local matter. The Department will continue to stress the need to use appropriate disinfectant materials.

Influenza: Vaccination

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government are taking to publicise availability of influenza vaccination in (a) England, (b) the north-east and (c) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency. [249577]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave the hon. Member for Coventry, South (Mr. Cunningham) on 16 December 2008, Official Report, column 682W. The publicity for the seasonal flu campaign carried out by the Department is national, rather than regional.

Injuries: Children

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many hospital admissions resulting from (a) unintentional and (b) deliberate injuries to children there were in 2007; and if he will make a statement. [247007]

Ann Keen: The data for 2006-07 are shown in the following table.

Cause	Finished admission episodes (age 0-15 inclusive)
Unintended	121,956
Deliberate (intentional self-harm)	7,622
Deliberate (assault)	3,270
Other	606

Learning Disability

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many people have been recorded as having a (a) profound and multiple, (b) complex and (c) severe learning disability in each of the last five years; and how many people had a learning disability at the latest date for which figures are available; [245985]

(2) how much the provision of social care packages for those with (a) profound and multiple, (b) complex and (c) severe learning disabilities cost his Department in each of the last five years; [245986]

(3) what estimate he has made of the number of people with a learning disability there will be in 2008; and if he will make a statement; [245997]

(4) how many people with a learning disability recorded as living with parents over the ages of (a) 60, (b) 70 and (c) 80 years there were in each of the last 10 years; [245999]

(5) what estimate his Department has made of the number of people with a learning disability who will be living with parents aged over (a) 60, (b) 70 and (c) 80 years in 2028. [246000]

Phil Hope: The Department does not routinely collect data for:

the number of people who have been recorded as having profound and multiple, complex and severe learning disabilities;

the number of people and cost of provision of social care packages for those with profound and multiple, complex and severe learning disabilities;

the number of people who have learning disabilities; and the number of people with learning disabilities who are living with parents over the ages of 60, 70 and 80.

The Department does not collect this data as it is for local authorities to work with local partners to determine the numbers and needs of their population through the joint strategic needs assessment. Local authorities should hold details of adults known to services and their level of need.

The Department is introducing a directed enhanced service to reward general practitioners for providing annual health checks for people with learning disabilities known to local authorities so they may keep data about these people in the future.

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much each local authority spent on (a) community-based care and (b) residential care for people with a learning disability in each of the last five financial years. [247183]

Phil Hope: The information has been placed in the Library.

Mental Health Services

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he plans to publish the document, New Horizons for Mental Health Commissioning. [249653]

Phil Hope: We envisage that the New Horizons strategy framework will be ready for consultation in summer 2009.

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to improve choice and information for people with depression and anxiety. [249654]

Phil Hope: The Department is committed to giving people with mental health problems choice, where possible, and a more personalised service, including making more information available about mental illness to help people manage their own care.

People with depression and anxiety are eligible to receive all National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence-approved (NICE) psychological therapies, including guided self-help, counselling, computerised cognitive behavioural therapy, behavioural activation and exercise.

We are increasing the availability of these services in primary care through the Improving Access to Psychological Therapies programme (IAPT). IAPT aims to help primary care trusts implement NICE guidelines and improve access to psychological therapies in England for people with depression or anxiety disorders. It is supported by a significant national investment rising to £173 million by 2010-11. Our plan is to have trained 3,600 more therapists who will help to provide 900,000 more people with access to psychological therapies by 2010-11.

Mental Health: Economic Recession

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the impact of economic recessions on levels of mental health. [248375]

Phil Hope: The Department has not commissioned research on the impact of the economic recessions on levels of mental health. However, we recognise that there are links between poor mental health and difficult economic circumstances and, in the current climate it is understandable that people might worry more about their finances and employment. Mental health services in England are now better prepared than ever before to provide help for people with mental health problems.

Since 2001-02, real terms investment in adult mental health services increased by 44 per cent. (or £1.7 billion) putting in place the services and staff needed to transform mental health services. The national health service spent £5.53 billion on these services in 2007-08 (£3.844 billion in 2001-02).

We now have 64 per cent. more consultant psychiatrists, 71 per cent. more clinical psychologists and 21 per cent. more mental health nurses than we had in 1997, providing better care and support for people with mental health problems. (Full-time equivalent).

Because of the National Service Framework and increased funding, we now have over 740 new community mental health teams offering home treatment, early intervention, or intensive support for people who might otherwise have been admitted to hospital.

Further, we are investing significantly in the Improving Access to Psychological Therapies (IAPT) programme with annual funding rising to £173 million in the third year (2010-11), to train 3,600 extra therapists and treat 900,000 more people in those three years.

This programme is relieving distress and transforming lives by offering effective intervention and treatment choice to people with depression and anxiety disorders and improving the collection, recording and measuring of patients' health outcomes.

There were 35 new services launched last month, with more than 800 therapy workers now offering this support to people who need it.

Neonatal Mortality

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent research he has (a) commissioned and (b) assisted into unexplained neonatal mortality. [248216]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department funds national health service research and development through the National Institute for Health Research (NIHR). Three of the NIHR's biomedical research centres are undertaking research into cot and infant death.

In addition, the NIHR clinical research network is supporting a number of potentially relevant studies. Details are available on the network's portfolio database at:

www.ukcrn.org.uk/index/clinical/portfolio_new.html.

The Department's Policy Research Programme (PRP) funds the National Epidemiology Unit and the British Paediatric Unit. A significant part of the work of these units is concerned with aspects of neonatal and infant mortality. The PRP is also funding research into the relationship between outdoor air pollution and infant mortality.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans the Confidential Inquiry into Maternal and Child Health has further to review how it determines the (a) number of babies who are stillborn and (b) levels of neonatal mortality. [248218]

Ann Keen: Confidential Inquiry into Maternal and Child Health (CEMACH) produces an annual national report covering perinatal mortality, which includes stillbirths and neonatal deaths to 28 days of life and feedback reports for every strategic health authority and provider trust with a maternity unit.

A major development in respect of stillbirth reporting has been a new system for classifying cause of death and the associated data collection form, introduced earlier this year. The first national reports using this new data will be available from April 2010.

In addition, for neonatal mortality, the annual national report for 2007, which CEMACH expects to publish in May 2009, will contain a focus section on neonatal mortality. This will provide new quantitative data on:

variations in neonatal mortality stratified by the level of neonatal care provided;

neonatal transfers and mortality;

neonatal mortality and place of birth; and neonatal mortality and time of first booking for antenatal care and the UK position on international comparisons on neonatal mortality.

CEMACH is also developing comparative analysis on neonatal mortality for 2007 for each of the new local safeguarding children boards.

NHS: Buildings

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what average percentage of the occupied floor area of (a) each NHS trust's buildings and (b) all NHS trusts' buildings in England were in physical condition (i) C and (ii) D in each year since 1996-97. [247153]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information is not available in the format requested.

The Department collects data on the percentage of occupied floor area that is below Estatecode condition B annually from national health service trusts through its Estates Return Information Collection (ERIC). These data are not amended centrally and therefore their accuracy is the responsibility of the contributing NHS organisations.

The percentage of the occupied floor area that is below Estatecode condition B has been collected since 2001-02. The information relating to 2001-02 onwards has been placed in the Library.

NHS organisations are locally responsible for the provision and maintenance of their buildings and facilities.

NHS: Disclosure of Information

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance his Department has issued on whistle blowing policy in relation to individuals working in child protection in the NHS; and if he will make a statement. [247812]

Ann Keen: The statutory guidance "Working Together to Safeguard Children", updated in 2006, requires all organisations that provide services for, or work with, children, to have appropriate whistleblowing procedures, and a culture that enables issues about safeguarding and promoting the welfare of children to be addressed. National health service employers have issued general guidance on whistleblowing within the NHS and this can be found on their website.

NHS: Exchange Rates

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment he has made of the effect of recent sterling exchange rate changes on the cost of (a) medical, (b) surgical equipment and (c) pharmaceutical supplies; [246549]

(2) what drugs and healthcare products are imported for use by the NHS; and on which products exchange rate changes affect prices; [246550]

(3) what percentage in cost terms of the products purchased by (a) his Department, (b) the NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency, (c) NHS and primary care trusts and (d) regional procurement hubs are imported on which currency exchange rates will have an effect on price; [246551]

(4) what assessment he has made of the likely effects of recent exchange rate changes on the savings targets of the NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency. [246568]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information is not collected in the format requested and can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps he is taking to mitigate the impact of recent exchange rate changes on the overseas activities of (a) his Department and (b) the NHS; [246553]

(2) what steps (a) his Department and (b) the NHS is taking to mitigate the possible effects of foreign exchange movements on their budgets; and if he will make a statement; [246563]

(3) what (a) his Department's and (b) the NHS's current corporate planning assumption rates are regarding foreign exchange movements; [246564]

(4) what net effect foreign exchange movements had on (a) his Department's and (b) the NHS's budget in each year since 2001-02. [246565]

Mr. Bradshaw: Most of the budgets of the Department and the national health service are not directly affected by foreign exchange rate movements.

The NHS has negligible foreign currency income and expenditure and therefore is not exposed to significant foreign currency risk.

Although the Department itself pays for some goods and services in foreign currency, these are minimal enough not to need mitigating action. The Department also receives hardly any income in foreign currency.

Aside from goods and services, the Department is required to make some other payments in foreign currency. In order to mitigate the foreign currency risk on these payments, as the exact amount and timing of the payment is known, the Department purchases forward rate agreements with the Bank of England. In all other cases, a spot exchange rate is used.

There are no foreign currency movements in the Department's Resource Accounts as relevant provisions and liabilities in the balance sheet at the year-end are converted at the forward contract rate.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) his Department's and (b) the NHS's forecast (i) net euro and (ii) net US dollar exposure is in 2008-09; what it was in 2007-08; and what revisions were made to those forecasts in light of foreign exchange movements. [246554]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department has negligible foreign currency income. Its expenditure in foreign currency during 2007-08 was €1,038 million and US$ 30 million.

Forecast outturn for 2008-09 is €826 million and US$ 30 million. This is based on having forward rate agreements in place to cover known foreign currency payments. Other payments could be made in 2008-09 using the prevailing spot rate but these are dependent on demand.

The national health service has negligible foreign currency income or expenditure and therefore not affected by foreign exchange rate movements.

NHS: Fees and Charges

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he plans to allow independent sector treatment centres to receive subsidies over the NHS tariff when contracts currently in place expire. [247947]

Mr. Bradshaw: As independent sector treatment centre contracts come to an end, local national health service commissioners are best placed to make decisions about health services in their communities. The Department will work with local commissioners to assess the best course of action to ensure that the needs of patients continue to be met.

NHS: Telephone Services

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department's consultation on the use of 084 numbers within the NHS is expected to cost. [247143]

Mr. Bradshaw: The total costs for undertaking this consultation will only be known once the consultation is completed and all associated costs have been compiled. Final costs will depend on the actual level of demand for consultation documents during the consultation period and the associated print and distribution costs.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether NHS Direct uses 0844 and 0845 telephone numbers for calls from members of the public; and if he will make a statement. [247806]

Mr. Bradshaw: The NHS Direct telephone advice service currently operates on 0845 4647. As set out in the NHS Next Stage Review final report, published 30 June 2008, officials are currently considering options for the introduction of a new three digit telephone number to help people find the right local service to meet their urgent, unplanned care needs. Any subsequent decision to introduce such a number, including tariff options, would be subject to public consultation, undertaken by Ofcom under the Communications Act 2003. NHS Direct will retain its current 084 number until we are clear about any future role and function it may have in implementing a national three digit number for urgent care.

Additionally, NHS Direct is commissioned to provide local services on behalf of primary care trusts and other organisations. NHS Direct provides telephone numbers with prefixes including:

0800;
01;
02; and
03.

In accordance with Centre of Information guidance, NHS Direct does not directly or indirectly receive revenue for the use of any 0845 numbers.

NHS: Temporary Employment

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many contracts the NHS has awarded to agency staff in each year since 1997; what the cost of these contracts was; and if he will estimate the annual cost of each contract had it been awarded to in-house NHS providers in each year since 1997. [248333]

Ann Keen: This information is not collected centrally and can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Parliamentary Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Ames: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make it his policy when placing material in the Library in response to a parliamentary question to supply a copy of the material to the hon. Member who tabled the question; and if he will make a statement. [247750]

Mr. Bradshaw: It is our practice to always supply a copy to the hon. Member. If one has been inadvertently missed, we will be pleased to supply a copy.

Patients: Safety

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients were harmed as a result of an error or missed diagnosis in (a) Hemel Hempstead, (b) Hertfordshire and (c) England in the last 12 months. [246561]

Ann Keen: For the period from July 2007 to June 2008, the National Patient Safety Agency received 2,300 reports where patients were harmed due to patient safety incidents classified as diagnostic delay, failure or error.

There were 171 of these incidents reported from East of England Strategic Health Authority. Reporting and learning data are collected on the basis of National Health Service service providers. it is therefore not possible to provide a breakdown of data to constituency level.

Physiologists

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which health care science disciplines his Department classifies as falling within the field of physiological science; and which of these require statutory registration of practitioners. [247036]

Ann Keen: The disciplines which fall within the field of physiological science are as follows:

Audiology;
Autonomic neurovascular function;
Cardiac physiology;
Clinical perfusion;
Critical care technology;
Gastrointestinal physiology;
Hearing therapy;
Neurophysiology;
Ophthalmology;
Respiratory physiology;
Sleep physiology;
Urodynamics and urological measurements;
Vascular technology; and Vision science.

Five aspirant health care science groups have already been recommended to the Secretary of State for Health for statuary regulation. These are as follows:

Clinical physiologists, consisting of audiologists, cardiac physiologists, gastrointestinal physiologists, neurophysiologists and respiratory physiologists;
Clinical perfusionists;
Clinical technologists;
Clinical photographers; and Maxillofacial prosthetic technologists.

"The Future of the Healthcare Science Workforce Modernising Scientific Careers: The Next Steps A Consultation" published in November 2008 makes clear that proposals for a new regulatory framework for the totality of the health care science work force will be consulted upon and all matters relating to the regulation of the five aspirant groups will be resolved as part of this separate consultation. A copy of the consultation has already been placed in the Library.

Prescriptions

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what guidance his Department provides to social care establishments on obtaining repeat prescriptions of a controlled drug; [249039]

(2) on how many occasions a report has been made to the Commission for Social Care Inspection of an incident involving overdose with a controlled drug of a resident in a care establishment in each of the last three years; [249014]

(3) what procedure is followed by the Commission for Social Care Inspection when an incident of overdose with a controlled drug of a resident in a care establishment is reported to them. [249032]

Phil Hope: Regulations do not allow for schedule 2 and 3 controlled drugs to be provided through a repeat prescription, but schedule 4 and 5 controlled drugs may be provided. Guidance to care providers, entitled "The handling of medicines in social care" is published by the Royal Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain (RPSGB). This includes guidance about obtaining prescribed medicines in general; it is not specific to controlled drugs. It also includes general information about the use of controlled drugs in care services.

Regulation 13 of the Care Homes Regulations 2001 requires registered providers to make arrangements for the recording, handling and, safe keeping, safe administration and disposal of medicines received into the care home. This applies to all medicines, including controlled drugs. The National Minimum Standards (NMS) contain detailed requirements, governing the protection of service users, the safe receipt, administration, recording, storage and disposal of medicines in the home. Controlled drugs are specifically referred to in the NMS, which also refer providers to the RPSGB Guidance, the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971, the Misuse of Drugs (Safe Custody) Regulations 1973 and other relevant legislation.

The Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI) does not provide specific guidance to care providers about repeat prescriptions for controlled drugs. During regulatory inspections, CSCI looks for a robust procedure within a care home to request repeat prescriptions residents, irrespective of whether they are for controlled drugs. Failure to obtain prescribed medicines, or occasions when a care service orders more prescriptions than a person needs—for example when the medicines are prescribed for use as and when needed it would be identified to the registered provider/manager and included in the inspection report.

CSCI's most recent guidance on reports about serious incidents in care homes includes a requirement to report every error involving a controlled drug. However, these are identified to individual services and are not collated nationally. CSCI pharmacist inspectors look at the handling of controlled drugs in the services they visit. CSCI recently carried out an analysis of its findings between April and December 2008; overdose was not an issue identified as a problem area.

If a serious incident is reported to CSCI under regulation 37 of the Care Homes Regulations, which governs notification of death, illness and other events in care homes, it is followed up by the Regulation Inspector/ Regulation Manager associated with that service. Depending on circumstances, they may refer the issue to the pharmacist inspector. It is one of CSCI's referral criteria to contact a pharmacist inspector and this may result in inspection of the care home and a resulting report with requirements and recommendations. If the overdose is a result of an incorrect prescription from the general practitioner, the pharmacist inspector will liaise via the Local Intelligence Network through the NHS Accountable Officer at the relevant primary acre trust, who will deal with the issue.

Primary Care Trusts: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much he expects each primary care trust to spend per head of population in 2008-09, ranked from highest to lowest. [246668]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is not available until primary care trusts complete their 2008-09 audited accounts in summer 2009.

Primary Care Trusts: Standards

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the Healthcare Commission's annual healthcheck for 2008-09 will include an assessment of primary care trust performance as providers and commissioners against National Institute for Heath and Clinical Excellence clinical guidelines. [246674]

Mr. Bradshaw: The 2008-09 Annual Health Check incorporates primary care trusts' self-declarations, as providers and commissioners, on levels of compliance with the following core standards in relation to the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence:

Core Standard C3 Healthcare organisations protect patients by following National Health Institute for Clinical Excellence Interventional Procedures guidance; and Core Standard C5a Healthcare organisations ensure that they conform to National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence technology appraisals and, where it is available, take into account nationally agreed guidance when planning and delivering treatment and care.

Respite Care: Havering

Angela Watkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much of the £150 million funding awarded by his Department for respite to carers will be allocated to the London Borough of Havering. [248018]

Phil Hope: The £150 million funding announced in the Carers' Strategy is included in the 2009-10 and 2010-11 primary care trust (PCT) revenue allocations, announced on 8 December 2008. This money will go to all PCTs and will support all carers. The actual level of spend in each year is for PCTs to decide locally in the light of their local circumstances and priorities, as set out in the NHS Operating Framework and Vital Signs.

Shingles

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent meetings he and his officials have had to discuss prevention of shingles and post herpetic neuralgia in older people through immunisation. [247536]

Dawn Primarolo: The Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (JCVI) is currently in the process of considering the benefits of shingles vaccination. The Varicella subgroup met in December 2007 and April 2008 and is due to meet again in March 2009. The subgroup is expected to provide advice on shingles vaccination to JCVI in June 2009. Minutes of the meetings are placed on the JCVI website at:

www.advisorybodies.doh.gov.uk/jcvi/index.htm

Smoking

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of regular smokers in (a) Stroud constituency, (b) Gloucestershire and (c) England; and how many people have given up smoking in each area over the last 12 months. [247936]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is not available in the exact format requested. Data for Stroud constituency are not collected. Data for England, Gloucestershire Primary Care Trust (PCT) and South Gloucestershire PCT are available.

Information on the prevalence of smoking among adults aged 16 and over by gender and age group in England is available from the General Household Survey 2006, Table 1.1, page 15. This publication has already been placed in the Library.

Estimated prevalence of smokers among adults aged 16 and over, along with associated confidence intervals for Gloucestershire PCT and South Gloucestershire PCT are available from Healthy Lifestyle Behaviours: Model Based Estimates, 2003-2005. 2006 Health Hierarchy. This publication has been placed in the Library.

Information on the number of people who successfully quit smoking at the four week follow up (based on self report) in South Gloucestershire PCT, Gloucestershire PCT and England in the last year 2007-08 are available from the Statistics on NHS Stop Smoking Services: England, April 2007 to March 2008, Table 2.4, page 11 at national level and Table 3.5, pages 28-30 at PCT level. This publication has already been placed in the Library.

Social Services: Elderly and Disabled

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he plans to take to assist social workers in protecting the elderly and disabled. [247942]

Phil Hope: The protection of older, disabled and other people who use services is covered by the National Occupational Standards for Social Work, which form the basis for the social work degree.

Statutory guidance, entitled "No Secrets", was issued to local authorities (LAs) by the Department and the Home Office in 2000. A copy has been placed in the Library. It provides a complete definition of abuse and a framework for councils to work with the police, the national health service and regulators to tackle abuse of older and vulnerable people and prevent it from occurring. It is designed to help LAs to investigate reports of abuse and develop measures for prevention.

"No Secrets" is currently being reviewed and a public consultation is under way. The consultation document includes a question on the delivery of training in safeguarding adults and asks whether national occupational training standards should be introduced. The consultation closes on 31 January 2009.

Tuberculosis: Ashford Kent

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many instances of tuberculosis have been recorded in Ashford constituency in each quarter of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [249258]

Dawn Primarolo: Data are not available for the constituency of Ashford. The following table gives the number of tuberculosis cases in the local authority of Ashford as the closest measure, for the calendar years 2001 to 2006.

	Ashford local authority
2001	8
2002	<5
2003	7
2004	5
2005	5
2006	7

Notes:
1. Data by local authority are not yet available for 2007 or 2008.
2. In years when there have been fewer than five cases, the exact number of cases is not given because of the risk of deductive disclosure.
3. Data are not provided by quarter because the numbers of cases in each quarter is likely to be very low (fewer than five) and could not be released because of the risk of deductive disclosure.

Wheelchairs

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what changes he plans to the weight limits applying to the classification of wheelchairs in (a) class one and (b) class two. [R] [247796]

Paul Clark [holding answer 15 January 2009]: I have been asked to reply.

We have no plans to change the weight limits applying to class one and class two wheelchairs at this time.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) prosecutions and (b) convictions there were for the offences of (i) drunkenness simple and (ii) drunkenness with aggravation in 2007. [244845]

Jacqui Smith: Data showing the number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for drunkenness simple and drunkenness with aggravation in England and Wales in 2007 are in the table.

The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Data showing the number of Penalty Notices for Disorder (PNDs) issued for "Drunk and disorderly", "Drunk in a highway" and "Consumption of alcohol in a designated public place" are also shown in the following table.

Number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for drunkenness simple and drunkenness with aggravation, and the number of Penalty Notices for Disorder (PNDs) issued for "drunk and disorderly[1]" "drunk in a highway[2]" and "consumption of alcohol in a designated public place[2]", England and Wales, 2007[3,4]

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prosecutions of people aged 10 to 17 years for being drunk and disorderly there were in (a) Stockport metropolitan borough, (b) Greater Manchester and (c) the North West in each year since 1997. [246071]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The number of persons aged 10 to 17 years proceeded against at magistrates courts for being drunk and disorderly in the Greater Manchester police force area and the north west region, from 1997 to 2007, the latest available, are given in table 1.

The statistics for those persons proceeded against relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Available information on the number penalty notices for disorder (PNDs) issued to persons aged 16 to 17 for being drunk and disorderly are given in table 2 from 2004, when the scheme commenced, to 2007.

Court proceedings and PND data collected centrally are available at police force area level only; therefore data for Stockport metropolitan borough cannot be supplied.

Ali Dizaei

Mr. Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether Sir Ian Blair was involved in the decision to suspend Commander Ali Dizaei. [247328]

Mr. Coaker: Any questions relating to the suspension of senior officer, other than the chief officer, are a matter for the relevant police authority and the Independent Police Complaints Commission.

Anti-Semitism

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what legal provisions are in place to prevent (a) the preaching of hatred and (b) incitement to commit criminal acts against the Jewish community in England and Wales; how many persons have been (i) prosecuted and (ii) convicted of offences under such provisions in each of the last two years for which figures are available, broken down by (A) age of offender, (B) sex of offender and (C) police force area of charge; and if she will make a statement. [247788]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The use of threatening words with the intention of stirring up religious hatred constitutes an offence under the Racial and Religious Hatred Act 2006 and would apply in the case of such threats used in respect of the Jewish community.

Section 18 of the Public Order Act 1986 which relates to stirring up hatred on racial grounds would also apply, as Jews are considered to be a racial group. This section states that a person who uses threatening, abusive or insulting words commits an offence if he intends to stir up racial hatred, or having regards to all the circumstances, racial hatred is likely to be stirred up thereby.

In addition, sections 44-46 of the Serious Crime Act 2007 relate to offences of assisting and encouraging crime. These offences can apply in respect of any offence, including those targeted against the Jewish community.

The statistics collected in relation to these offences do not include information which would allow the separate identification of offences committed against the Jewish community and this detailed breakdown is therefore not available.

Arrests

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been arrested by police for regulatory offences in each of the last five years. [247095]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is not available.

The arrests collection held by the Home Office covers arrests for recorded crime (notifiable offences) only, broken down at a main offence group level, covering categories such as violence against the person, burglary, robbery and drug offences. From these centrally reported data we are not able to identify specific offences from within the main offence groups.

Association of Chief Police Officers

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent representations she has received on the corporate status of the Association of Chief Police Officers; and if she will make a statement. [243140]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 15 December 2008]: The Home Office is not aware of any representations being made on the corporate status of the Association of Chief Police Officers to the Home Office.

Border and Immigration Agency: Finance

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the (a) income and (b) expenditure of the Border and Immigration Agency was in (i) 2005-06, (ii) 2006-07 and (iii) 2007-08. [245316]

Mr. Woolas: The total costs of the Border and Immigration Agency function (known from 2007-08 onwards as the UK Border Agency) for 2005-06, 2006-07 and 2007-08 are as follows:

Border and Immigration Agency (known as UK Border Agency from 2007-08)

	2005-06	2006-07	200-08
(a) Income	211,165	225,289	306,802
(b) Expenditure	1,728,820	1,688,041	1,725,953

British Nationality

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer of 30 June 2008, Official Report, columns 712-14W, on the British Nationality (Honorary Citizenship) Bill, if she will deposit a copy of the letter and attachments in the Library; and if she will make a statement. [247974]

Mr. Woolas: A copy of the letter will be placed in the Library.

Charities

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department to which (a) charities and (b) voluntary organisations her Department has provided funding in the last five years; and how much funding was provided to each. [247377]

Mr. Woolas: The Department's funding of charities and voluntary organisations can not be provided, without incurring disproportionate cost.

Christmas

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much has been spent on (a) departmental Christmas parties and (b) staff entertainment in the last three years. [247097]

Mr. Woolas: No official funds were used for Christmas parties in the last three years: any parties attended are entirely at the cost of the individual member of staff. Expenditure on staff entertainment is tightly controlled, and is only incurred as part of the Home Office policy on staff reward and recognition, and where it is shown that alternative forms of recognition (such as saying thank you, providing vouchers, or a bonus) have been considered. The Department's accounting system cannot analyse expenditure on reward and recognition by its component parts, without incurring disproportionate cost.

All Home Office expenditure on rewards and recognition, including staff entertainment, conforms to the principles of regularity, propriety and value for money, and any other guidance as applicable contained within Managing Public Money.

For the Department's agencies, the Criminal Records Bureau and the Identity and Passport Service's spend could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Community Relations

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff in her Department work on cohesion related issues; and what forecasts she has made of the cost of employing such staff in (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11. [245580]

Mr. Woolas: Cohesion is a key aspect of the work of many staff in the Home Office; however, there is no central 'Cohesion Team', nor is there a central repository for job specifications.

Crime: Airguns

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many crimes involving airguns took place in each year since 1997. [247697]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Firearms are taken to be involved in a crime if they are fired, used as a blunt instrument against a person, or used as a threat.

Available data relate to crimes involving air weapons recorded by the police in England and Wales, from 1997 up to and including 2006-07. These were published in "Homicides, Firearms Offences and Intimate Violence 2006/07" and are given in the following table. Data for 2007-08 are being published on 22 January 2009.

Crimes reported by the police in which air weapons were reported to have been used[1], England and Wales, 1997 to 2006-07

	Recorded crime Number
1997	7,506
1998-99	8,665
1999-2000	10,103
2000-01	10,227
2001-02	12,377
2002-03[2]	13,822
2003-04	13,756
2004-05[3]	11,825
2005-06	10,439
2006-07	8,839

[1] By being fired, used as a blunt instrument or used as a threat.
[2] The National Crime Recording Standard was introduced on 1 April 2002. Figures for some crime categories may have been inflated by this.
[3] More explicit guidelines for the classification of weapons introduced on 1 April 2004 may have increased the recording of firearm offences, particularly those committed by imitation weapons.

Crime: Business

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions her Department has had with organisations representing business on the subject of (a) business crime and (b) recording business crimes separately. [247126]

Mr. Alan Campbell: My officials are in regular contact with organisations representing businesses to discuss business crime issues. I chair the National Retail Crime Steering Group and the round table to reduce robbery of cash and valuables in transit, both of which met recently on 12 November 2008. Key members of these groups include organisations representing business (such as the British Retail Consortium, Federation of Small Businesses, and the Association of Convenience Stores) as well as businesses directly affected by these problems. We also regularly discuss fraud issues with APACS (the UK Payments Association) whose members may bear the financial loss caused by cheque and card fraud. The Home Office is currently piloting an initiative to record commercial burglary separately in police recorded crime statistics.

Emerging findings and lessons will be discussed with members of the National Retail Crime Steering Group later this year.

Crimes of Violence: Betting Shops

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information she holds on the number of betting shop workers subjected to verbal abuse in (a) England, (b) the North East, (c) Tees Valley district and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency in the last two years. [247949]

Mr. Alan Campbell: No information is available centrally relating to the number of verbal attacks on betting shop workers.

Criminal Records Bureau: Standards

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been incorrectly designated as having a criminal conviction by the Criminal Records Bureau since the Bureau's inception. [248010]

Meg Hillier: The Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) strives to achieve the highest levels of accuracy. Their quality control procedures show that they have achieved an accuracy rate for 2006-07 of 99.94 per cent and for 2007-08 is 99.98 per cent. No comparative data is available before these dates.

The CRB operates a disputes process where applicants can contest information that has been released on their disclosure. In 2007-08, 3,323,251 disclosures were issued, of which 4,931 were disputed and 2,785 were upheld. This equates to 0.0838 per cent. of all disclosure applications.

A dispute can be upheld for a number of reasons. This can include incorrect recording of the wording of a conviction recorded on PNC; incorrect recording of the disposal of a conviction recorded on PNC; amendments made to the wording of non-conviction information released by the individual police forces; the conviction does not belong to the applicant.

The CRB cannot provide a figure to determine how many individuals had convictions printed on their disclosures which did not belong to them. This is because an applicant may apply for several disclosures that year and the CRB only records the number of disputes raised.

The CRB is committed to ensure that it maintains high levels of accuracy and the aforementioned figures show this.

Departmental Catering

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which (a) food and (b) drinks suppliers have been used by her Department in each of the last three years; and how much her Department paid to each such supplier in each of those years. [248376]

Mr. Woolas: My Department inclusive of its agencies does not contract directly for food or drinks supplies but procures catering services through wider Facilities Management or operational service contractors. To obtain this information would incur disproportionate cost.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many members of her Department are employed in (a) the commercial directorate, (b) general property, (c) the Home Office IT shared services, (d) the Office of the Chief Information Officer and (e) the performance and finance directorate of the Financial and Commercial Group; and how many are employed in the Group in total. Mr. Woolas: All staff employed directly by the Home Office in the same grade are paid on the same salary scale, whether or not they are employed on a permanent or non-permanent contract.

Whether an employee is permanent or temporary in itself has no bearing on the rate of pay they will receive.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what use (a) her Department and (b) service providers under contract to her Department make of (i) 0844 and 0845 telephone numbers and (ii) revenue-sharing telephone numbers for calls from members of the public; for which services such numbers are used; what prefixes are used for revenue-sharing numbers; how much revenue has accrued from revenue-sharing numbers in each of the last five years; what consideration her Department has given to introducing 03-prefixed telephone numbers for calls to all such services; and if she will make a statement. [247344]

Mr. Woolas: Please see the following table detailing the use and purpose of non-geographic numbers, e.g. 0845 and 0870.

The Home Office did not derive any income from such charges in each of the last three years. Information relating to revenue generated prior to 2005 is not held centrally and as such it is not possible to answer this aspect of the question within time and cost limits of the PQ process.

The Identity and Passport Service (IPS) replaced all 0870 numbers to the Passport Adviceline with two 0300 numbers on 1 September 2008. The sole 0845 number to the Passport Adviceline was replaced at the same time with a 0300 number. There is however a transition period that is currently halfway through and both numbers will be accessible until 31 August 2009. The revenue arising from the previous 0870 IPS arrangements was approximately £300,000 per year and was used to offset the cost of providing the service to callers.

0845 numbers are however used for customer correspondence inquiries in to the Liverpool, Newport and Peterborough passport offices and similar arrangements are planned for the remaining four IPS regional passport offices.

The General Register Office, part of IPS, intends to investigate the introduction of an 03-prefixed telephone number during the financial year 2009-10.

Detention Centres

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many immigration removal centres she has visited in the last 12 months. [248356]

Mr. Woolas: My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary has visited one immigration removal centre (IRC) in the past 12 months—Jacqui Smith visited Colnbrook IRC on 21 January 2008.

Dorset Police: Olympic Games 2012

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many extra police will be allocated to the Dorset Constabulary to provide security for the aquatic events for the duration of the 2012 Olympics; [248067]

(2) how much local authorities in the area will contribute to the overall cost of providing security for the Dorset events of the 2012 Olympics; [248068]

(3) what estimate has been made of the policing costs to provide security for the Olympic 2012 events taking place in Dorset. [248082]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 15 January 2009]: We have set aside up to £600 million to ensure a safe and secure Olympic Games in 2012 and are in the process of producing an integrated costed security strategy.

We are working closely with Dorset police on their requirements for policing the sailing events.

Funds have been allocated to Dorset police for their planning team in 2007-08 and 2008-09 and accommodation through to 2012.

Any decisions will need to take account of the operational needs of the police and other security agencies, affordability with the total funding envelope and the need to secure value for money.

Driving Under Influence: Screening

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 18 December 2008, on driving under influence, what assessment her Department has made of the discrepancy between the rate (a) at which screening tests are undertaken and (b) of positive tests; and if she will make a statement. [248061]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The police can require a person to take a screening breath test if they reasonably suspect that person of drink driving, or of committing a moving traffic offence or of driving a vehicle involved in a road traffic accident. Use of this power is an operational matter for the police. The percentage of tests which are positive can be affected by various factors, including the numbers drink driving, the number of tests administered and where, when and on which motorists the police administer them.

Drug Seizures

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what quantities of (a) class A, (b) class B and (c) class C drugs have been seized by the Serious Organised Crime Agency in each of the last two years. [245949]

Mr. Alan Campbell: SOCA published details of class A drug seizures for the years 2006-07 and 2007-08 in its last two annual reports. These reported seizures flowing from SOCA's work of in excess of 74 tonnes and 89 tonnes respectively.

SOCA has not published details of class B or class C interdictions in general but has provided details of cannabis interdictions in its last two annual reports. The 2006-07 Annual Report stated that 10 tonnes of cannabis was seized as a result of UK-based operations. The 2007-08 Annual Report stated that 30 tonnes of cannabis was seized as a result of both UK and overseas based operations.

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA) publishes guidance to assist its officers on the circumstances in which a drugs seizure conducted by another agency is to be treated as having been made principally as a result of SOCA activity and information supplied by SOCA. [245957]

Mr. Alan Campbell: SOCA provides its officers with clear guidance on the recording of drugs seizures, to ensure they are recorded only in cases where SOCA has direct responsibility, or where the seizure was made principally as a result of information provided by SOCA.

Drug seizures that are included in SOCA totals for management information purposes must have emanated from tasked SOCA operations. The circumstances in which seizures made by other agencies are also included are:

where another agency is asked to carry out the seizure on behalf of SOCA for reasons of operational sensitivity; or where SOCA does not have the power to seize drugs but passes information onto another (usually foreign) law enforcement agency to enable the seizure to be effected.

Drugs: Young People

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the proportion of young people who took (a) cocaine and (b) ecstasy in each of the last 10 years. [248611]

Mr. Alan Campbell: There are two primary sources of statistics on the use of illicit drugs by young people: the British Crime Survey (which covers England and Wales) and the Survey of Smoking, Drinking and Drug Use among young people in England.

Table 1 provides data from the British Crime Survey for the proportion of young people aged 16 to 24 reporting the use of any cocaine in the last year between 1998 and 2007-08.

Table 2 provides additional data from the Survey of Smoking, Drinking and Drug Use data for the proportion of 11-15-year-olds who reported taking cocaine in the past year between 2001 and 2007.

Entry Clearances: Macedonia

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many visa applications the UK has (a) received and (b) granted from Macedonian nationals in each of the last five years. [247731]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 15 January 2009]: The information requested is set out in the following table.

2005	3,391	2,829
2006	3,864	3,326

Extradition: Human Rights

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how often the Government review its bilateral extradition treaties to take into account changing human rights situations in the countries with which the treaties have been agreed. [248616]

Meg Hillier: The Extradition Act 2003 contains robust human rights safeguards. If the district judge in the UK decides that to order a person's extradition would result in a flagrant breach of the person's convention rights within the meaning of the Human Rights Act 1998, the judge must order the person's discharge from extradition proceedings.

Fixed Penalties

Mr. Timpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for which criminal offences (a) a fixed penalty notice and (b) a penalty notice for disorder can be given; and in respect of which offences such notices were not available before 1997. [248100]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 15 January 2009]: Road traffic offences committed in England, Wales and Scotland for which a fixed penalty may be offered are listed in Schedule 3 to the Road Traffic Offenders Act 2008. Other fixed penalty offences are created under several different Acts of Parliament and in respect of a diverse range of offences which are not the responsibility of the Home Office.

Offences for which a penalty notice for disorder (pnd) is available in England and Wales are listed in the Table in Section 1 (1) of the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001, as amended. PNDs were not available before 1997.

The following road traffic offences have been added to the fixed penalty system since 1997:

Overtaking a moving or stationary vehicle on a zebra, pelican or puffin crossing contrary to regulation 24 of the Zebra, Pelican and Puffin Pedestrian Crossings Regulations and General Directions 1997 (three offences)

Failure to fix a registration mark to a vehicle in accordance with the requirements of regulation 17 of the Road Vehicles (Registration and Licensing) Regulations 1971

Driving on the footway contrary to section 72 of the Highways Act 1835 or section 129 (5) of the Roads (Scotland) Act 1984

Carrying more than one person on a pedal cycle contrary to section 24 of the Road Traffic Act 1988 (RTA)[1]

Cycling on the pavement contrary to section 72 of the Highways Act 1835[1]

Using a hand held phone while driving contrary to regulation 110 of the Road Vehicles (Construction and Use) (Amendment) (No4) Regulations 2003

Failing to supply details necessary to identify an offending driver contrary to section 172, RTA

Having no MOT certificate contrary to section 47,RTA

Having no insurance contrary to section 43 ,RTA

Overtaking a stationary or moving vehicle in the controlled area of a toucan crossing, contrary to regulations 27 and 28 of the Traffic Signs Regulations and General Directions 2002

Failure to comply with the Motor Cycles (Eye Protectors) Regulations 1999

[1] These two offences were not added to the fixed penalty system in Scotland.

Genetics: Databases

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of the prison population in England and Wales has a profile on the national DNA database. [241664]

Jacqui Smith: The purpose of the national DNA database (NDNAD) is to match DNA profiles taken from individuals with those taken from crime scenes. It therefore holds only the information necessary for this function, and does not contain criminal records or information on whether those on it are in prison.

There are good reasons for believing that the great majority of the prison population has a profile on the NDNAD. Police forces have had the power to retain DNA taken from those convicted of recordable offences since the establishment of the DNA database in 1995. For the first few years this power was exercised in relation to more serious offenders, but from 2000 onwards additional funding was made available under the DNA expansion programme to make it standard practice to take samples from all offenders. In April 2004, an amendment to the Police and Criminal Evidence Act introduced by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 came into effect which extended powers to take DNA samples to all those arrested for recordable offences. Following this, taking a DNA sample in the custody suite has become routine procedure. In addition, two prisoner sampling projects have been undertaken, most recently in 2003, to take DNA from any prisoner who had not already been sampled, for example because they had been imprisoned before DNA sampling was widely practiced.

Nevertheless, we are determined to ensure that the most serious offenders are on the NDNAD. On 16 December 2008 I announced that we will work with the police to continue to increase the number of convicted offenders on the NDNAD. This will focus on those convicted of serious offences and will include taking DNA from offenders in prison for rape and murder not already on the NDNAD.

Human Trafficking

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much the Government have spent on raising awareness of human trafficking in each of the last five years. [243317]

Jacqui Smith: Raising awareness of human trafficking is central to our approach to combating human trafficking. This is an issue that is being led by the UK Human Trafficking Centre through the development of its Blue Blindfold campaign and its work to increase awareness among law enforcement agencies. Any costs associated with this work has been met from within the overall budget of the UKHTC. Additionally, much work has been undertaken to raise awareness within the relevant law enforcement and other agencies which are likely to come into contact with victims of human trafficking. The costs associated with this work have been met from within existing budgets.

In addition to these costs we have spent £136,000 on raising awareness through a project run in conjunction with the International Organisation for Migration in Romania and Bulgaria and on the "Walk in a Punter" poster campaign in Nottingham and London in 2008.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many non-British citizens convicted of human trafficking offences have been deported from Britain in each of the last five years. [243318]

Jacqui Smith: Records of deportation of those who have been convicted of crime are held on a generic offences database. It is not possible to disaggregate those convicted of human trafficking from a range of other offences.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department has provided for funding human trafficking investigations in each of the last five years. [243329]

Jacqui Smith: Since 2006 we have invested a total of £4.646 million in the law enforcement response to human trafficking. This includes the doubling of the budget for the UK Human Trafficking Centre from £843,000 to £1.7 million for this year, £1.7 million to the Metropolitan police for Operation Maxim, including their human trafficking team in 2007-08, the fund of £1.678 million this year which is administered by ACPO—the Association of Chief Police Officers—and the £435,000 for the Metropolitan Police Service to assist them in the their effort to mainstream the work of the trafficking into their existing budget.

The Serous Organised Crime Agency receive a total of £400 million in order to combat organised crime including that focused on immigration related matters such as human trafficking. This work is being taken forward through the co-ordination of two inter-agency programmes of activity to reduce such crime at source and key points overseas and to reduce the exploitation of migrants within the UK. Additionally, we provided a total of £60 million under Reflex for time limited projects to tackle organised immigration crime under the 2002 spending review period.

Human trafficking is core police business and as such forces are expected to meet operational costs of undertaking this work from within existing budgets. Historically, we provided a central funding stream to encourage forces to increase their efforts on organised immigration crime, including human trafficking.

It is not possible to disaggregate this funding to give an accurate figure for the amount dedicated to human trafficking work for the period 2004 to 2006.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions she has had on policy to combat human trafficking. [247693]

Mr. Alan Campbell: We have a regular dialogue with a range of interested groups from all sectors and with our partner organisations both nationally and internationally and on 17 December we ratified the Council of Europe convention on action against trafficking in human beings.

Our victim-centred policy on human trafficking is set out in the UK Action Plan and progress on the action points contained within it continues to be overseen by the Inter-Departmental Ministerial Group.

Human Trafficking: Sentencing

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will provide a breakdown of the sentences issued to those convicted of human trafficking offences in each of the last five years by category and length of sentence. [243299]

Jacqui Smith: Of the 92 convictions for human trafficking recorded by the UK Human Trafficking Centre all of which are under sections 57-59 of the Sexual Offences Act 2003 the sentences passed by year are as follows:

	2004	2005	2006	2007	2008
Suspended	—	—	1	—	4
12 months or under	—	—	—	3	3
1-3 years	3	3	6	6	5
4-6 years	—	6	6	11	5
7-9 years	—	4	9	3	2
10-12 years	—	5	—	1	—
13-14 years	—	—	1	—	—
Over 14 years	—	2	—	—	—

In addition in 2008 there have been four convictions for trafficking for the purpose of forced labour for which we are awaiting confirmation of the sentences received.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average sentence was for those convicted of human trafficking offences as a result of (a) Operation Pentameter 1 and (b) Operation Pentameter 2. [243301]

Jacqui Smith: It is not possible to disaggregate the sentences arising from the named operations from those sentences passed on those convicted of human trafficking as part of other operations.

Identity Cards: Fees and Charges

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the effect on the cost to the public purse of revenue from charges for (a) identity cards, (b) biometric passports and (c) registration of biometric information in each of the next 10 years. [243274]

Jacqui Smith: The latest projected estimates for the cost of issuing identity cards are published in the National Identity Scheme Cost Report.

A copy of the latest report published on 6 November 2008 may be found at:

http://www.ips.gov.uk/identity/publications-legislative.asp

I would refer the hon. Member to that report.

Identity Cards: Foreigners

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the cost of issuing identity cards to foreign nationals in each of the five years from 2010-11. [243420]

Jacqui Smith: The latest projected estimates for the cost of issuing identity cards are published in the National Identity Scheme Cost Report.

A copy of the reports may be found at:

http://www.ips.gov.uk/identity/publications-legislative.asp

I would refer the hon. Member to that report.

Identity Cards: Government Departments

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what recent discussions she has had with ministerial colleagues on the likely levels of take-up of identity (ID) card verification across Government; what estimate she has made of the number of agencies which expect to use ID card verification when the scheme is rolled out; and how many separate locations in each agency are likely to need an ID card reader; [243315]

(2) which of her Department's agencies she expects to use identity card verification when the scheme is rolled out; and what estimate she has made of the number of separate locations in each agency which will require an identity card reader. [243517]

Jacqui Smith: Identity cards will make it easier for individuals to prove their identity quickly, securely and reliably when using public services. A key purpose of the National Identity Register, as laid out in the Identity Cards Act, is to help identity verification so as to secure the efficient and effective provision of public services. Details of the secondary legislation needed to introduce identity cards and for information to be provided from the Register is set out in "Identity Cards Act Secondary Legislation: A Consultation" which may be found at:

http://www.ips.gov.uk/identity/downloads/NIS_Legislation.pdf

Government agencies will all be able to make use of identity cards to verify identity through a visual check, as they do now for passports. It will be a matter for individual agencies to determine at what point in the future there is a case for the introduction of any further systems which might include identity card readers. The Identity and Passport Service will continue to work with other Government Departments to establish how each organisation may make the best use of the National Identity Scheme.

Immigration: Finance

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Home Office plans to consult on the no recourse to public funds rule. [247664]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 15 January 2009]: There are currently no plans to launch a consultation on migrant women who are victims of domestic violence and have no recourse to public funds.

The development of a new scheme, where those supporting victims of domestic violence who have no recourse to public funds may be eligible to receive financial support towards their housing and living costs, is currently being negotiated in partnership with the UKBA, the No Recourse to Public Funds Network and stakeholders.

Language Analysis

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 9 December 2008, Official Report, column 48WS, on language analysis, what percentage of persons claiming asylum from Eritrea and Somalia who were subject to language analysis had their claim refused on the basis of language analysis; and what estimate her Department has made of the likely effect of the introduction of language analysis on applications from Afghan nationals. [244230]

Mr. Woolas: No asylum claim from a person claiming to be of Eritrean or Somali nationality has been refused on the basis of language analysis alone. Language analysis is a tool used by asylum case-owners in the UK Border Agency to help in the decision making process. It is only one of several factors that contribute to grant or refusal.

Where there is a suspicion that a person claiming to be from Afghanistan is not an Afghan national that person will be asked to take part in a language analysis interview. It is anticipated that language analysis will identify Afghan claimants who are in fact nationals of other countries and that this procedure will deter others from making false claims of Afghan nationality.

Licensed Premises: Antisocial Behaviour

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on how many occasions police have closed disorderly and noisy premises with an on-licence to sell alcohol in each of the last five years. [247598]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Figures relating to the closure of disorderly or noisy premises by the police are not collected centrally.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when a reply will be sent to the hon. Member for West Chelmsford's letter of 27 October 2008 regarding his constituent Ms Sharon Singiri of Chelmsford. [246982]

Mr. Woolas: The UK Border Agency wrote to the hon. Member on 16 January 2009.

Metropolitan Police: Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Association of Chief Police Officers members at the rank of commander and above in the Metropolitan police have been the subject of criminal or disciplinary investigations since January 2005; and which such officers have been suspended from duty following such investigation. [247329]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office does not hold this information. This is a matter for the Metropolitan Police Authority.

Offensive Weapons

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) warnings and (b) cautions have been issued related to the possession of knives in each of the last 10 years; how many prosecutions have been brought; and how many convictions have been secured for such offences. [244982]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 18 December 2009]: Information on the number of defendants issued with a caution, proceeded against at magistrates courts, found guilty at all courts and for offences relating to possession of a knife covering the years 1998 to 2007 (latest available), can be viewed in the following table.

From 1 June 2000 the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 came into force nationally and removed the use of cautions for persons under 18 and replaced them with reprimands and final warnings. These figures have been included in the totals.

The figures given in the table on court proceedings relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the offence selected is the one for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

The number of defendants issued with a caution, proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for offences relating to possession of a knife[1] 2005

	Caution	Proceeded against	Found guilty
1998	1,976	4,988	3,805
1999	1,663	4,566	3,548
2000[2]	1,758	4,625	3,531
2001	1,652	5,823	4,361
2002	1,905	6,963	5,338
2003	1,746	6,928	5,396
2004	2,376	7,352	5,899
2005	3,194	7,319	6,005
2006	3,503	7,699	6,369
2007	3,460	7,406	6,160

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts, and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when these data are used.

[3] Staffordshire police force were only able to submit sample data for persons proceeded against and convicted in the magistrates courts for the year 2000. Although sufficient to estimate higher orders of data, these data are not robust enough at a detailed level and have been excluded from the table.

[4] Includes the following statutes and corresponding offence descriptions: Criminal Justice Act 1988 S.139 as amended by Offensive Weapons Act 1996 S.3. Having an article with blade or point in public place. Criminal Justice Act 1988 S.139A (ES/16a) as added by Offensive Weapons Act 1996 S.4(1). Having an article with blade or point on school premises.

[5] From 1 June 2000 the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 came into force nationally and removed the use of cautions for persons under 18 and replaced them with reprimands and final warnings. These figures have been included in the totals.

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) warnings were given, (b) cautions were issued and (c) prosecutions were brought for the illegal possession of knives in each of the last three years, broken down by police force area. [264852]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Data showing the number of offenders cautioned for illegal knife possession and the number of defendants proceeded against for the same offences, from 2005 to 2007 (the latest available), broken down by police force area, are in the following tables.

From 1 June 2000 the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 came into force nationally and removed the use of cautions for persons under 18 and replaced them with reprimands and final warnings. These figures have been included in the totals.

The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Organised Crime: Illegal Broadcasting

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether she has made an assessment of the likelihood of a link between illegal radio broadcasting and organised criminal gangs. [246716]

Mr. Alan Campbell: We are unaware of a linkage between illegal radio broadcasting and serious organised criminality.

Passports: Compensation

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many claims for compensation have been received by her Department from individuals relating to passport applications and renewals in each of the last five years; and how much her Department paid in compensation in each such year. [247163]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 14 January 2009]: While the value of compensation paid out to individuals relating to all passport application types over the last five years is held, the number of compensation claims received by the Identity and Passport Service is not recorded.

The value of compensation payments made to the public by the Identity and Passport Service in each of the last five financial years are as follows:

	Claims	Value (£)
2003-04	2,300	79,000
2004-05	3,300	145,000
2005-06	3,400	129,000
2006-07	3,000	123,000
2007-08	2,500	77,000

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much the Identity and Passport Service has paid in compensation for delays in customers receiving passports in each year since 1997. [248009]

Meg Hillier: It would not be possible to split out compensation payments for delays without incurring disproportionate cost. However the total compensation payments made to the public by the Identity and Passport Service in each year since 1997 is as follows:

1997-98	49,000
1998-99	80,000
1999-2000	402,000
2000-01	115,000
2001-02	83,000
2002-03	119,000
2003-04	79,000
2004-05	145,000
2005-06	129,000
2006-07	123,000
2007-08	77,000

Personation

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent estimate she has made of levels of identity fraud; and what recent assessment she has made of public awareness of measures to reduce the risk of becoming a victim of identity fraud. [248648]

Meg Hillier: British Crime Survey figures for 2006-07 show that 2 per cent. of those surveyed had been victims of identity fraud and our latest estimate is that identity fraud cost the UK economy at least £1.2 billion in the same year.

We are involved in a multi-agency approach through the Identity Fraud Communications Awareness Group to raise public awareness of identity fraud. The group has produced the following website:

www.identitytheft.org.uk

which currently averages nearly 8,000 visits per week, and a leaflet, of which over 13 million copies are in circulation.

The Government funded £29 million to implement the recommendations of the Fraud Review, which included the creation of a National Fraud Strategic Authority (NFSA) launched on 1 October 2008. We are currently working with the NFSA on ways of assessing the effectiveness of our awareness raising activity.

Police: Conferences

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many multi-agency risk assessment conferences were held in each police authority in England and Wales in the last 12 months; which agencies took part in each conference; and what the cost of such conferences was to (a) police forces and (b) other public bodies in that period. [247665]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office does not collect this information. Some of the information is available from the Co-ordinated Action Against Domestic Abuse (CAADA).

Police: Convictions

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many serving police officers in (a) Hertfordshire, (b) City of London, (c) Metropolitan, (d) Merseyside and (e) Greater Manchester Police had previous convictions before joining the Police Service in each year since 2000; and how many have been convicted since joining the Police Service in each year. [248000]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not held centrally.

Police: Dogs

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what operating protocols apply to UK Border Agency staff in circumstances where a (a) man and (b) woman belonging to a faith which considers dogs be unclean refuses to be the subject of a search using a dog when entering the UK. [247770]

Mr. Woolas: In instances where any traveller refuses to be screened by a dog, the handler will refer the individual, or group of individuals, to a member of UKBA staff, who may question or examine that traveller further. We do not insist on a traveller being screened by a detector dog.

Police: Medals

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will bring forward proposals to award long service medals to police officers after 20 years of service; and if she will make a statement. [248490]

Mr. Coaker: The issue of reducing the qualifying period is the subject of an ongoing review and the Home Office will lead a consultation exercise.

Police: Road Traffic Control

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many dedicated traffic police are deployed on the motorway and trunk road network in England; and what the equivalent figure was for (a) 2006 and (b) 2007. [248852]

Mr. Coaker: Information on the number of dedicated traffic police officers is not collected centrally. The available data are the numbers of full-time equivalent police officers primarily employed in the function traffic. On 31 March 2006 there were 6,498, on 31 March 2007, 6,412 and on 31 March 2008, 6,299. The traffic function includes staff who are predominantly employed on motorcycles or in patrol vehicles for the policing of traffic and motorway related duties. The definition does not include officers employed in accident investigation, vehicle examination and radar duties.

The deployment of officers to specific areas is a matter for individual chief officers.

Police: Crime and Policing Representatives

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the future annual cost of providing allowances to directly elected crime and policing representatives as proposed in the Policing Green Paper. [244187]

Mr. Coaker: The Government have announced that they do not intend to proceed with their proposals for directly elected crime and policing representatives at this time.

Police: Vetting

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what vetting takes place to ensure that persons with previous convictions are not employed by the police force; and if she will make a statement. [247739]

Mr. Coaker: The National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA) is responsible for vetting policy. Forces should not recruit people with cautions and convictions which may call into question the integrity of the applicant or the Police Service.

Prior to recruitment, thorough checks are made to ascertain if anything is known to the detriment of the applicant, spouse, partner, close relatives or other associates which could heighten vulnerability or cause embarrassment to the Police Service.

Checks are conducted through the Police National Computer, Criminal History System, Criminal Information System, counter terrorism databases and local intelligence, as well as military and police Professional Standards databases where necessary.

Responsibility for recruitment is a matter for individual Chief Police Officers, and it is for each police force to make a decision on an individual basis against the national guidance.

Proceeds of Crime: Terrorism

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much has been collected relating to the suspected financing of terrorism through the suspicious activity reports regime since its creation. [247623]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 14 January 2009]: Statistics on the amount of money seized as a result of information received through Suspicious Activity Reports (SARs) on the suspected financing of terrorism have been collected by the National Terrorist Financial Investigation Unit (NTFIU) of the Metropolitan Police since September 2006. Since that date, £1,769,955 has been seized by the NTFIU for further investigation into the origins of the money and the intentions of the transacting parties as a result of SARs of suspected terrorist financing having been passed onto them from the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA). It would not be appropriate to provide further details of the transactions or a breakdown of this figure due to the need to protect ongoing investigations.

Prostitution

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions she has had on policy on prostitution. [247694]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office recently conducted a comprehensive review into tackling the demand for prostitution, the findings of which were published on 19 November. This involved discussions with a range of organisations and individuals, including other Government Departments, the police and the Crown Prosecution Service as well as organisations supporting individuals involved in prostitution.

Serious Organised Crime Agency

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the estimated value of assets in cases adopted for civil recovery or tax action from other law enforcement agencies by the Serious Organised Crime Agency was in (a) Northern Ireland and (b) the UK in the first six months of this financial year. [243621]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Serious Organised Crime Agency estimates the potential value of assets when adopting a case for civil recovery, but does not collate these data as a performance indicator. It would be time consuming to collate these data manually from case files and this would be of no operational value. The first stage in a case at which SOCA reports on the estimated value of assets is when they are frozen or under restraint. Information on frozen and restrained assets will be published in SOCA's annual report.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many cases were referred to the Serious Organised Crime Agency by other law enforcement agencies for civil recovery or taxation investigation in (a) Northern Ireland and (b) the UK in the first six months of 2008-09; [243782]

(2) what the value of assets restrained in cases which the Serious Organised Crime Agency has adopted in the first six months of 2008-09 in (a) Northern Ireland and (b) the UK; [243627]

(3) in how many cases adopted by the Serious Organised Crime Agency action has been taken to restrain assets in (a) the UK and (b) Northern Ireland, in the first six months of 2008-09. [244063]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Figures relating to the Serious Organised Crime Agency's UK-wide asset recovery performance for the financial year 2008-09 are subject to internal validation and will be included in their annual report for 2008-09, when published.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases have been referred to the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA) by law enforcement agencies in England and Wales for criminal confiscation investigation in (a) Northern Ireland and (b) nationwide in the first six months of 2008-09; in how many of those cases SOCA has agreed to adoption for such investigation and action; what the estimated value of the assets in the cases adopted for civil recovery or tax action from other law enforcement agencies is; in how many such cases action has already been taken to restrain assets; and what the value of assets restrained in such cases is. [243849]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Under the provisions of the Serious Crime Act 2007, the Serious Organised Crime Agency was not given the remit or powers to assist partner agencies with criminal confiscation cases in the same way as the Assets Recovery Agency. As a consequence SOCA is not in a position to support partner agencies by taking criminal case referrals in the same way that ARA did. SOCA considers requests from partners for advice or investigative assistance in criminal confiscation cases on a case-by-case basis, but there is no referral or adoption process.

ARA's criminal confiscation cases were transferred to SOCA with the merger. SOCA has retained ARA's full powers in relation to these specific cases, up until the point of the completion. SOCA does not however have ARA's full powers in relation to criminal confiscation cases for SOCA-initiated cases.

Speed Limits: Enforcement

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance her Department provides to police forces on enforcement of 20 miles per hour zones. [247670]

Mr. Coaker: The enforcement of any speed limit is an operational matter for the police, and the Department has not issued guidance in this area. We would however expect 20 mph zones to be largely self-enforcing through traffic calming measures.

The decision to introduce a 20 mph zone and the installation of traffic calming measures are matters for individual local authorities. The Department for Transport issues guidance to local authorities on the factors to take into account in reaching such decisions, including the need to consult with the police and other interested parties.

UK Border Agency: Complaints

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many complaints were investigated by the Complaints Audit Committee of the UK Border Agency and its predecessor in each of the last three years. [241858]

Jacqui Smith: The Complaints Audit Committee (CAC) did not investigate individual complaints. The Committee's remit was to monitor the effectiveness of the UK Border Agency's procedures for investigating serious complaints about the conduct and efficiency of its staff and to comment on quality of service issues.

UK Border Agency: Correspondence

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects the UK Border Agency to reply to the letter of 9 December 2008 from the hon. Member for Walsall North, reference 1032165 and CTS 822098/8. [248179]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 15 January 2009]: The UK Border Agency wrote to the hon. Member on 12 January 2009.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Anti-Semitism

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many anti-Semitic incidents or attacks have been reported in (a) England, (b) Chipping Barnet constituency and (c) the London Borough of Barnet in the last 14 days. [247156]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 14 January 2009]: The information requested is not collected centrally in the recorded crime statistics.

The recorded crime statistics only hold data for racially or religiously aggravated offences as defined by law. Specific details relating to the victim or alleged offender are not collected.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders: Glasgow

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many anti-social behaviour orders were issued in Glasgow North West constituency in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008. [248539]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information requested is not held by the Home Office.

Data on the number of ASBOs issued in Scotland are a matter for the Scottish Executive.

Community Policing

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the mechanism is for ensuring that neighbourhood policing teams spend at least 80 per cent. of their time visibly working on their patch. [247096]

Mr. Coaker: All police forces across England and Wales have now implemented the Policing Pledge. The Pledge gives the public a clear minimum standard of service and states that neighbourhood policing teams will spend at least 80 per cent. of their time visibly working on behalf of the public in their neighbourhood.

The Policing Green Paper explained the new relationship between the Government, police and public. The Home Office has now adopted a more strategic role allowing for grassroots accountability and an enhanced role for Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC) in providing public assurance about the quality and standard of policing in all forces. Police authorities will wish to be satisfied that the Pledge is being delivered for local people and HMIC will validate the delivery of the Pledge through their inspection process.

Additionally, if the public do not feel the standards within the Pledge are being met they can raise it locally with the police themselves or through their police authority.

Crime: Maps

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police forces provide crime maps on their websites which plot individual crimes at street level. [247091]

Mr. Coaker: The Information Commissioner does not recommend plotting individual crimes at street level because of the potential identification of individuals and premises. All 43 forces in England and Wales therefore publish crime maps to, at least, ward level, with information on burglary, robbery, theft, vehicle crime, violent crime and antisocial behaviour incidents.

Legislation

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many new offences were created by Home Office-sponsored legislation between (a) 1979 and 1996 and (b) 1997 and 2008. [248639]

Mr. Coaker: The number of criminal offences created in Home Office sponsored legislation since 1979 is not held centrally, and could be produced only at disproportionate cost in time and resources.

Metropolitan Police: Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the monthly cost, including opportunity cost, of suspending a Metropolitan Police commander on full pay and expenses is. [247303]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not held centrally. This is an operational matter for the Metropolitan Police Authority and the Metropolitan Police Commissioner.

Metropolitan Police: Racial Discrimination

Mr. Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information her Department holds on the progress made in the investigation of complaints made by the Metropolitan Black Police Association against members of the Metropolitan Police Authority. [247681]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office does not hold this information. This is a matter for the Metropolitan Police Authority.

Police: Disclosure of Information

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance her Department has issued on whistle blowing policy in relation to individuals working in child protection in police authorities; and if she will make a statement. [247813]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office does not issue guidance on internal police policy; this is a matter for chief officers and their police authorities.

However, the general practice is for police officers working in a multi-agency team who have concerns about work practices or the conduct of colleagues within the team, to raise these concerns through their usual management channels or with their Professional Standards Department, which they may contact through a confidential line if necessary.

If police officers suspect a fellow officer of acting in a way that could result in disciplinary or criminal proceedings, and feels unable to raise these concerns through usual procedures, they may raise their concerns within their force or directly to the Independent Police Complaints Commission, using their dedicated report line.

Police: Horses

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many mounted police there are in the Metropolitan Police. [247695]

Mr. Coaker: There were 145 full-time equivalent police officers whose primary function was listed as "mounted" in the Metropolitan Police Service as at 31 March 2008.

Police: Misconduct

Mr. Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what reasons the Metropolitan Police Authority gave to her Department for its decision not to conduct a full case review of Operation Helios. [247678]

Mr. Coaker: The implementation of the recommendations from the Morris Inquiry is a matter for the Metropolitan Police Authority (MPA), which commissioned the inquiry.

The Inquiry recommended that there should be an independent full case review of Operation Helios, to examine the issue of race discrimination. This coincided with an investigation conducted by Essex police, with Independent Police Complaints Commission oversight, into Operation Helios, which included in its terms of reference that "allegations of racism made by the complainants will be fully addressed".

On receipt of the report from Essex police, the Metropolitan Police Authority considered that no further action was required to meet the Morris Inquiry recommendation.

Police: Road Traffic Control

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many traffic police officers are assigned to duties in each London borough. [247037]

Mr. Coaker: The Metropolitan police employed 612 officers (full-time equivalent) whose primary function was listed as traffic as at 31 March 2008. City of London police employed 26 such officers on the given date. The requested data are not collected by London borough.

Police: Romford

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police (a) officers, (b) constables, (c) sergeants and (d) community support officers were working in Romford constituency in (i) 2007 and (ii) 2008. [247692]

Mr. Coaker: Police strength data are not collected by parliamentary constituency areas. Data are collected at the basic command unit (BCU) level and at the force level. Romford is within the Havering BCU.

The information requested is published annually in the Home Office Statistical Bulletin "Police Service Strength, England and Wales" copies of which are available online and in the Library of the House.

BCU data are not collected by police rank and so data relating to Havering BCU for all officers and for PCSOs are given in the following links:

Data for the police ranks requested are collected at the force level and so data relating to the Metropolitan Police Service for each officer rank (Table 4) and for PCSOs (Table 10a) are given in the following links:

Police: Standards

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what costs she estimates would be incurred in holding elections for crime and policing representatives across England and Wales as proposed in the Policing Green Paper. [244188]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government have announced that they do not intend to proceed with their proposals for directly elected crime and policing representatives at this time.

Procedures Relating to Soham Murders Inquiry

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the next progress report on the implementation of the Bichard Inquiry recommendations will be published. [247212]

Mr. Coaker: The Government reported on the outstanding Bichard Inquiry recommendations as part of their full response to the Magee Review of Criminality Information, which was presented to Parliament on 4 December 2008.

Future updates on progress will be provided as part of reporting on the broader improvement agenda for criminality information recommended in the Magee Review.

Prostitution

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many arrests for offences in relation to brothels there were in each of the last five years. [248024]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information requested is not available.

The arrests collection held by the Home Office covers arrests for recorded crime (notifiable offences) only, broken down at a main offence group level, covering categories such as violence against the person, burglary, robbery and sexual offences. From these centrally reported data we are not able to identify specific offences from within the main offence groups.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the Tackling the Demand for Prostitution Review of November 2008, what programmes have been carried out in order to raise awareness among sex-buyers about the extent of trafficking for sexual exploitation. [248038]

Mr. Alan Campbell: During the course of the Tackling Demand Review, a pilot marketing campaign, was conducted in Westminster and Nottingham. The experience of this campaign led to the Review's recommendation that the Government should consider running a marketing campaign aimed specifically at sex buyers to raise awareness about trafficking for sexual exploitation. The Government have accepted this recommendation and will run this campaign to support the implementation of the Review's other recommendations.

Terrorism: Detainees

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the date was of the most recent arrest under counter-terrorism legislation following which a suspect was held in pre-charge detention for over (a) 14 days and (b) 28 days. [247162]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 14 January 2009]: The dates of arrest are as follows:

(a) Over 14 days: 30 June 2007

(b) 27-28 days: 23 August 2006

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the date of arrest was for each individual who has been held in pre-charge detention under anti-terrorism legislation for more than 14 days. [247164]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 14 January 2009]: The dates of arrest are as follows:

Six individuals were arrested on 9 August 2006;

Three individuals were arrested on 10 August 2006;

One individual was arrested on 23 August 2006; and

One individual was arrested on 30 June 2007.

Terrorism: Stop and Search

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been stopped and searched under the Counter-Terrorism Act 2008 since it came into force. [247688]

Mr. Coaker: There are no powers contained within the Counter-Terrorism Act 2008 to stop and search. Stops and searches are conducted under section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000.

Information on the number of these searches conducted from 2000-01 to 2006-07 (latest available) are provided in the table. Information for 2007-08 is due to be published in April 2009 and information for 2008-09 (when the Counter-Terrorism Act 2008 came into force) is due to be published before the end of 2009-10.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departmental Languages

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) Ministers and (b) civil servants in his Department received coaching in a foreign language in the last 12 months; what expenditure his Department incurred in providing such coaching; and in what languages such coaching was provided. [248076]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Office has not commissioned or delivered coaching to Ministers or civil servants in a foreign language in the last 12 months.

Driving Under Influence: Accidents

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many road traffic accidents which resulted in one or more fatalities in 2007 there were in Northern Ireland in which excessive alcohol was assessed to have been a contributory factor. [248116]

Paul Goggins: That is an operational matter for the Chief Constable. I have asked him to reply directly to the hon. Member, and a copy of his letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

International Monitoring Commission

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when the next International Monitoring Commission report is expected; and whether he expects it to include a section on the seizure in County Meath in the Irish Republic of Semtex during December 2008. [248113]

Paul Goggins: The next Independent Monitoring Commission report is expected in May 2009 in line with its six monthly reporting cycle. The IMC is an independent body and the contents of reports are a matter for the Commissioners. Their practice has been to refer to any events in the period reported on which they judge to be relevant to their remit.

Police Service of Northern Ireland: Recruitment

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he expects the 50/50 recruitment policy regarding the Police Service of Northern Ireland in Northern Ireland to be concluded and replaced with the merit principle of recruitment. [248112]

Paul Goggins: As reaffirmed by the St. Andrews Agreement, our commitment to the continuation of the 50:50 provisions is strictly time bound and is focused on our objective of reaching 30 per cent. Catholic composition in the PSNI regulars by 2010-11. We remain on target to achieve this and ending the provision at that time.

Probation Board for Northern Ireland: Labour Turnover

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people (a) were recruited to and (b) retired from the Probation Board in Northern Ireland in 2008. [248424]

Paul Goggins: This is an operational matter for the Probation Board for Northern Ireland, which operates independently of Government. I would encourage the hon. Member to write directly to Brian McCaughey, Director of Probation, PBNI, 80-90 North Street, Belfast, BT1 1LD.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Politics and Government

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department is taking to protect Afghani parliamentarians who speak out in favour of the rights of women, children and other vulnerable populations from threats made against them; and if he will make a statement. [246544]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 12 January 2009]: Together with our EU partners, the UK is committed to improving the human rights situation in Afghanistan. The Afghan Government and judiciary are obliged by law to respect these commitments. As part of our broader efforts to strengthen the rule of law in Afghanistan, we are spending some £31 million on policing and rule of law activities during 2008-09.

The duty of protecting Afghanistan's citizens, including legislators, lies first and foremost with the Government of Afghanistan. Our continued presence in Afghanistan, providing both military (over 8,000 troops) and development/reconstruction assistance, helps to improve security for all of Afghanistan's citizens. As part of our wider efforts to improve the overall security situation and respect for law and order, we encourage the Afghan authorities to take seriously any credible threats against human rights defenders. Where appropriate, we also raise individual human rights cases with the government of Afghanistan, both publicly and in private. We also provide financial support to the Afghan Independent Human Rights Commission, which promotes, protects and monitors human rights.

Colombia: Armed Forces

Anne Moffat: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether his Department records the (a) location at and (b) unit with which Colombian military personnel serve once they have completed a period of training in the UK; and whether it records the type of activity undertaken by such personnel in the course of their military career. [244626]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 17 December 2008]: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave on 11 November 2008, Official Report, column 999W.

Serbia: Entry Clearances

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his Department's policy is on proposals for the liberalisation of the EU visa regime for Serbian citizens; when he expects a decision to be taken on these proposals; and if he will make a statement. [240841]

David Miliband: The UK does not participate in the EU common Schengen acquis or in decisions to liberalise the Schengen visa regime, including in respect of Serbia.

Serbia's progress towards liberalisation of the Schengen visa regime for Serbian citizens will be determined by the fulfilment of all criteria specified in the EU Visa Liberalisation Roadmap which the government of Serbia agreed with the EU in June 2008. The EU intends to report annually on the progress made by Serbia against the Visa Liberalisation Roadmap.

Serbian nationals have been subject to a UK visa regime since 1991. The UK Border Agency undertook a comprehensive review of the UK's visa regimes, the Visa Waiver Test, in 2007. The results of this review, in the context of Serbia, mean the Government have no plans at present to lift the visa requirements for Serbian citizens.

USA: Capital Punishment

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations have been made to the US Administration on behalf of the death row prisoner Mumia Abu-Jamal. [244985]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 12 January 2009]: To date there have been no representations made on behalf of Mumia Abu-Jamal. While we and our EU partners continue to oppose the use of the death penalty around the world, including in the US, this case has not been brought to the attention of the EU as a case which violates the minimum standards—as set out in the EU Guidelines on the Death Penalty—which the EU uses to determine when to intervene in individual cases.

SCOTLAND

Departmental Pay

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what the salary bill for the Scotland Office was for its staff in all locations in each quarter since 1999. [248511]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office does not hold records showing the breakdown of the salary bill by quarter, however the full year costs are shown in the following table.

	£000
SO and OAG
1999-2000[1]	1,976

2003-04	2,571

2005-06	1,888
2006-07	1,889

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Arts: Access

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps are being taken to increase the accessibility of high culture to working-class people. [244824]

Barbara Follett: My Department continues to work closely with sponsored bodies responsible for culture to ensure that funding over the SR08 period is used to support the Government's objective to increase participation in culture by adults from a lower socio-economic background.

Arts Council England is conducting audience segmentation analysis to gather fresh data about which groups engage with the arts and will use this as the basis for a national campaign to encourage the broadest range of people to do so. English Heritage is also looking at barriers to engagement with the historic environment experienced by people in lower socio-economic groups. Through the Renaissance in the Regions programme the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council (MLA) is seeking to increase participation and achieve greater diversity amongst the visitors to regional hub museums across England. Entry to DCMS-sponsored national museums and galleries has been free for all since 2001.

In September last year, 10 pathfinder Find Your Talent projects were set up with an investment of £25 million to test various ways to deliver a five-hour cultural offer to ensure that all children and young people aged 0-19 can access a wide range of high-quality artistic and cultural experiences. In November 2008, my Department announced the Free Theatre initiative which offers free tickets to young people up to age 26. Evaluations of the annual 'Heritage Open Days' initiative, indicate a significant increase in visitors from the lower socio-economic groups in 2006 and 2007 to those sites where records allow comparison with previous years.

The DCMS 'Taking Part' survey is being used to measure participation by adults from the priority groups. The most recent results, published in December 2008, indicate that the proportion of adults from lower socio-economic backgrounds attending a museum or gallery during the previous 12 months was 30.6 per cent., a 2.3 per cent. increase compared to the baseline established in 2005-06. For visits to historic environment sites the comparable figures were 59.4 per cent. attendance, an increase of 2.3 per cent. on the 2005-06 baseline. Attendance at arts events was 18.3 per cent. of this group with no significant statistical change on the baseline.

Arts: Apprentices

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people have enrolled on Creative Britain apprenticeships; and if he will make a statement. [247495]

Andy Burnham: My Department's strategy for the creative economy, Creative Britain—New Talents for the New Economy, includes the ambition of working with employers and sector skills councils to establish up to 5000 apprenticeships in the creative industries by 2013.

To date, over 160 employers have signed up to offer the Creative Apprenticeship, a mix of on the job and off the job training with 13 apprenticeships started and a further 130 due to start later this year. There are also pilots with the BBC at Mediacity:uk and the Savile Row Tailors.

Once established, the National Apprenticeship Service will monitor starts and completions of all approved apprenticeships.

Creative Britain Review

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the cost of the Creative Britain Review was to his Department; what financial contributions were made by other Government departments; and what staff costs were involved. [247435]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 14 January 2009]: In January 2007, the Department for Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS) commissioned the Work Foundation to produce Staying Ahead, a report analysing the economic performance of the Creative Industries in the UK. The cost of producing this report was approximately £84,000.

Following this report, DCMS, the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR), and the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS) produced Creative Britain in February 2008, which outlined 26 commitments seeking to maximise the contribution of the Creative Industries to the UK economy. The costs of producing this document were approximately £74,000. Of this, BERR provided £30,000. It is difficult to estimate the staff costs as most of the officials from each Department involved (DCMS, BERR and DIUS) were engaged on other projects at the same time.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what (a) directly-operated and (b) franchised catering outlets his Department and its agency provides for staff. [249070]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department has one directly operated catering outlet for its staff. The Royal Parks Agency, the Department's one executive agency, does not have any directly operated or franchised catering outlets for its staff.

Gaming: Licensing

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what changes he plans to make to licensing guidelines concerning gaming codes. [249092]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Gambling Commission have advised that on 1 October 2008 following an extensive consultation exercise, they published a revised version of their Licence Conditions and Codes of Practice (LCCP), which came into effect on 1 January 2009.

The LCCP can be viewed at the following web link:

http://www.gamblingcommission.gov.uk/Client/detail.asp?ContentId=103

Since the publication of LCCP, the Gambling Commission has consulted on proposals to add a new licence condition and code of practice provision to LCCP. These proposals set out the requirement that holders of different categories of premises licences ensure that the gambling activity which corresponds to the licence type is actually offered as the primary activity at those premises. A supplement to LCCP setting out any new conditions and codes relating to this consultation will be published in due course.

ICT: Reviews

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on what dates the Digital Britain Steering Board has met; what dates have been set for future meetings; which members of the Board were present at each meeting; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of the most recent meeting. [248891]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The Digital Britain Steering Board has met on the following dates: 14, 21, 28 November 2008, 5, 12 December 2008 and 9, 14 January 2009.

Further meetings are scheduled for: 23 January, 29 January, 13 February, 27 February, 13 March, 27 March, 10 April, 24 April, 8 May and 22 May 2009.

The meetings are confidential and it would therefore not be appropriate to publish attendance or the Minutes.

Sport England: Assets

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what (a) buildings and (b) land Sport England owns; and what estimate he has made of the value of such assets. [248891]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 19 January 2009]: Sport England does not own any land or buildings outright. The Sports Council Trust Company, of which Sport England is a member and controlling share holder, owns the following land and buildings:

National centres: Bisham Abbey; Lilleshall and Plas y Brenin.

Regional offices: Ashland House, Crewkerne, Somerset; Caversham lake and boathouse facility and the English Institute of Sport in Sheffield.

The approximate net book value of land and buildings owned by the Sports Council Trust Company, as shown in the Sport England 31 March 2008 financial statements, is £107 million.

Sport England: Rrorganisation

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects the organisational changes within Sport England to be implemented. [249408]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Sport England have advised that they are planning to complete their organisational change process by the end of March 2009, and they are currently on schedule to do so. However, some posts will be externally advertised and depending on their notice periods successful candidates may not all be in place.

Sports: Children

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans his Department has to increase participation amongst under-16 year olds in (a) athletics, (b) badminton, (c) basketball, (d) cricket, (e) cycling, (f) gymnastics, (g) hockey, (h) netball, (i) rugby league, (j) rugby union, (k) squash, (l) tennis and (m) volleyball. [248592]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Government's investment in PE and sport in schools has had significant success in increasing participation in these sports.

Schools were asked to indicate the range of sports provided by their school during the academic year. Details of the percentages of schools which provided the indicated sports are provided in the following table, highlighting the progression of school participation annually (academic year).

Our PE and Sport Strategy for Young People will continue that success story, and we are investing over £780 million to 2010-11 to offer five hours of sport a week. The National Governing Bodies of Sport will receive ring-fenced funding as part of their Whole Sport Plan budgets, aimed at developing further links between schools and clubs, and increasing the number of young people involved in volunteering and leadership in sport.

Badminton and volleyball are also among the four sports which will benefit from 'Premier League 4 Sport', a new scheme launched this month, which will drive participation among young people in partnership with the 20 Premier League football clubs.

The challenge for all these sports is to make themselves attractive to young people, so that young people choose to take them up.

UK Sport: Surveys

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) when UK Sport's annual athlete survey will be carried out; and when it will report; [249157]

(2) when UK Sport's annual athlete survey will be carried out; when it will report; and for what reason it has been delayed. [249795]

Mr. Sutcliffe: UK Sport have advised that they will next carry out an athlete survey in the autumn of 2009 and would expect to report the headline findings by the end of the year. Although they had previously planned to conduct a survey early this year for March publication, UK Sport are now seeking to strategically align their athlete survey with the end of year reviews of sport that are conducted as part of Mission 2012—after the summer competition season. In addition UK Sport are now seeking to supplement findings with focus groups and other data gathering across the year.

The decision not to carry out a survey in 2008 was taken by UK Sport as a result of the uncertainty about the number and range of athletes that would be available to survey at that time. UK Sport will of course be able to benefit from the post-Games athlete survey carried out by the British Athlete Commission and they are confident that the other activity planned will inform Mission 2012 up to and until the next survey in 2009.

United Utilities: Sports

Janet Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) if he will discuss with United Utilities the effect on (a) Darwen Cricket Club and (b) other sports clubs of recent increases in water charges; [249164]

(2) what representations he has received on the increases in water charges being imposed by United Utilities on (a) sports and (b) other clubs in the north-west; and if he will make a statement. [249203]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I am aware of this issue and will—along with my hon. Friend the Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, who is responsible for the natural and marine environment be seeking a meeting with Ofwat to establish what options are available to ensure community sports clubs are not disproportionately affected by these charges.

I have also asked Sport England to see whether there is any systematic help they can provide to ensure community sports clubs' water charges have been calculated correctly.

OLYMPICS

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how much has been spent on (a) maintaining, (b) decorating and (c) otherwise improving her Office's buildings since its inception; how much has been spent on wallpaper since 2001; and what plans there are for further spending on departmental decoration. [248049]

Tessa Jowell: My office in 26 Whitehall was redecorated as part of the redecoration programme covering the whole of the building (26 Whitehall). Further additional costs specifically relating to the relocation into the building by the Office of the Minster for the Olympics were incurred to a value of £8,485 plus VAT.

Since then, my office has moved to co-locate with officials from the Government Olympic Executive in 2-4 Cockspur Street to enable more integrated and efficient work. Here a new office was constructed and furnished between July and September 2008, at a cost of £40,625 plus VAT. These costs cover both my own ministerial office and that occupied by my private office and special advisers.

No money has been spent on wallpaper in any of my offices since the inception of the Minister for the Olympics role.

Olympic Games 2012: Construction

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what use has been made of the advice of the London Fire Brigade in the designing out of fire and other catastrophic risks in the construction and operation of Olympic venues. [248587]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 19 January 2009]: There are several levels of engagement with the London Fire Brigade (LFB), much of it facilitated by the secondment of a member of the LFB to the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA)—a secondment that has been in place for over a year and ensures excellent co-operation and communication between the organisations.

The LFB is party to the development of designs for both venues and the Olympic Park—through a technical officers team, of which they are part, which is associated with the Safety Advisory Group established by the host boroughs (led in this case by London borough of Newham). This team reviews, comments on and assists in the development of designs which are aimed at reducing fire and other related risks for the venues for London 2012.

Finally, there is a Blue Light Liaison Group which ensures that emerging plans for operational responses to emergencies, both during construction and subsequently, are co-ordinated between the Metropolitan Police, London Ambulance Service, London Fire Brigade and other relevant parties including the ODA.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what discussions she has had with the Olympic Delivery Authority on contracts for landscaping relating to the site of the London 2012 Olympics. [248995]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 19 January 2009]: Landscaping contracts are the responsibility of the Olympic Delivery Authority and are awarded following a competitive tendering process. The Authority is a public body whose procurements are subject to the public contracts regulations.

The landscaping management contract for the north of the Olympic Park has been awarded to BAM Nuttall Ltd., a UK-based company with offices in Surrey. The landscaping contract for the south of the Olympic Park is due to be awarded in 2009.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister for the Olympics on what date the construction of the temporary roads and bridges required for traffic access to the Olympic Park was completed. [249431]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 19 January 2009]: Construction of the temporary roads, hard standings and bridges giving access and lay out space at the Olympic Park construction site was completed up to August 2008 until the installation of the fifth (and final) temporary bridge. The completion of this work, including the establishing of the two main entrance plazas—one in the North and one in the South—fulfilled one of the 10 published key milestones set by the ODA (in Demolish, Dig, Design) to be delivered by the Beijing 2008 games.

The positioning of temporary roads and hard standings onsite, however, will continue to change in response to the needs of each of the individual venue and infrastructure construction areas within the Olympic Park construction site. This will ensure the safe, secure and efficient movement of people and materials to, through and around the Olympic Park site throughout the construction period as work develops.

Olympic Games 2012: Disadvantaged

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Minister for the Olympics whether there are targets to encourage people living in the most disadvantaged areas to volunteer to work on preparation for and during the London 2012 Olympics. [248368]

Tessa Jowell: The Personal Best Programme, formerly known as the Pre-Volunteer Programme, uses the excitement of the London 2012 Olympic Games and Paralympic Games to inspire the most disadvantaged people to acquire and develop their skills for work through volunteering.

The London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) has identified that up to 70,000 Games-time volunteers will be required. It has committed to recruiting up to 10 per cent. of these through Personal Best.

It is hoped that 20,000 disadvantaged people from London will be involved in Personal Best. So far, this programme has been trialled in 11 boroughs with 875 Londoners taking part. This includes the five host boroughs which are areas of significant disadvantage. Over the next six months the programme will be rolled out to every London borough. Building on the success in London this is now being offered to regions, the South East and North East being the first.

Although not all graduates of the scheme will become Games-time volunteers, they will build self esteem through community volunteering, work experience and gain transferable job skills through a nationally recognised qualification.

LOCOG has recently launched its Trailblazer volunteer scheme giving volunteers the opportunity to work within LOCOG itself. The scheme began with a three month pilot with 23 volunteers on 19 January 2009 and has been promoted in the host boroughs. If successful, LOCOG intends to involve 60-70 volunteers over the year, increasing the number of participants in the run up to 2012.

Olympic Games 2012: Security

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Minister for the Olympics when she expects the costed security plan for the London 2012 Olympics to be published. [247591]

Mr. Coaker: I have been asked to reply.

Due to security considerations, the costed security plan for the London 2012 Olympics is necessarily a classified document. As such, the Home Office is considering proposals for publishing an unclassified version later in 2009.

Olympic Games 2012: Voluntary Organisations

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what mechanisms are in place to encourage existing volunteer organisations to take part in work in preparation for and during the London 2012 Olympics. [248371]

Tessa Jowell: The Government, through the Office of the Third Sector and the Government Olympic Executive, and the London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games have been encouraging volunteering organisations to take part in work in preparation for, during and after London 2012 since the early stages of the bid to win the games, through hosting a number of events at both ministerial and official level.

The Government's ambition to maximise the opportunities for a volunteering legacy from the games is reflected in our legacy promise to get thousands more young people giving time to their communities as a result of 2012. This has recently translated into my launch of the "2012 Challenge" in December 2008, a public commitment by Government and key third sector organisations to work together to ensure this ambition is realised.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Industrial Health and Safety

Mr. Allen: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what measures have been undertaken to address the moth infestation in T block; and when the operation is expected to be completed. [247327]

Nick Harvey: Significant numbers of the Common House Moth (Tineola bisselliella) were first reported in the House in early 2008 and preventative treatment has been undertaken since then. In order to minimise the use of pesticides and the consequent risk of exposure to potential toxicants, a process involving moth pheromone has been employed.

Monitoring of moth activity shows that moth numbers within the House of Commons estate are generally reducing. However, activity in T block remains an issue and alternative methods of eradication are being considered. Measures are likely to involve spraying within offices and heat treatment of items contained in them in order to kill larvae. Members with offices in areas affected will be consulted in due course.

Pay

Grant Shapps: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how much has been spent by the House of Commons Commission on staff reward and recognition schemes in each of the last three years. [248726]

Nick Harvey: The amounts spent on staff reward and recognition schemes have been:

	Actual		Forecast
	2006-07	2007-08	2008-09
Non-consolidated performance pay	572,254	548,217	642,242
Staff recognition schemes	2,739	3,985	5,173
Total	574,993	552,202	647,415

In addition, there are long service and other staff awards, which include non-cash rewards. The amounts involved are not collated centrally, but are modest in nature.

WALES

Broadcasting

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with (a) the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport and (b) the Welsh Assembly Government on (i) the future of public sector broadcasting and (ii) the implementation of digital switchover in Wales; and if he will make a statement. [246810]

Mr. Paul Murphy: My hon. Friend, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, and I regularly meet ministerial colleagues and Welsh Assembly Government colleagues to discuss issues affecting Wales, including broadcasting and digital switchover.

As Minister with responsibility for digital inclusion, I am keenly aware of the various issues that surround these subjects and have also met with representatives of various stakeholders—such as the Office of Communication (Ofcom), the BBC, ITV and S4C—to hear their views.

In addition, my officials are actively involved in a number of cross-Government groups, which include representation from the Welsh Assembly Government, that discuss and monitor the ongoing Switchover process. The Wales Office was also involved in discussions that surrounded the recent review of public service broadcasting being undertaken by Ofcom. Through this work, we will continue to ensure that Wales has a strong voice in these important issues.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much has been spent on (a) maintaining, (b) decorating and (c) otherwise improving departmental buildings in the last five years; how much has been spent on wallpaper since 2001; and what plans there are for further spending on departmental decoration. [248050]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Care and maintenance of the Wales Office's two offices (one in London and one in Cardiff) were, until 2005-06, managed by the Welsh Assembly Government. Specific costs for the Wales Office were not systematically identified.

Since 2005, the premises have been managed within the Ministry of Justice (previously the Department for Constitutional Affairs). The following tables give the available information by year for maintenance, decoration, and other improvements.

Maintenance (including electrical and mechanical engineering and plumbing works)

2004-05	97,388
2005-06	42,972
2006-07	59,707
2007-08	35,843

Decoration (the 2006-07 figure includes carpet tile replacement on health and safety grounds, and renewed sanitation)

2003-04	5,121
2005-06	—
2006-07	65,364
2007-08	—

Improvement works (the 2005-06 figure includes £79,809 to replace a lift to meet health and safety and disabled access standards. The 2007-08 figure includes the cost of specialist exterior stonework cleaning of the listed London building, which was recommended on heritage preservation grounds).

2005-06	85,238
2006-07	13,819
2007-08	77,042

We have no wallpaper. There are no plans for further spending on departmental decoration at this time.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales which (a) food and (b) drinks companies have supplied his Department in each of the last three years; and how much was paid to each of those suppliers in each of those years. [248793]

Mr. Paul Murphy: None.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what (a) directly-operated and (b) franchised catering outlets his Department provides for staff. [249085]

Mr. Paul Murphy: None.

Departmental Data Protection

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many members of staff in his Department have been (a) investigated, (b) suspended and (c) dismissed for losing (i) memory sticks, (ii) laptop computers, (iii) desktop computers and (iv) mobile telephones belonging to his Department in each year since its inception. [248258]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Since the inception of the Wales Office in 1999, there have been four losses of mobile telephones. After ascertaining the facts, the Department had no reason to take action against the individuals concerned. There have been no losses of laptop computers, memory sticks, or desktop computers.

Departmental Languages

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many (a) Ministers and (b) civil servants in his Department received coaching in a foreign language in the last 12 months; what expenditure his Department incurred in providing such coaching; and in what languages such coaching was provided. [248071]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office has not provided coaching in any foreign language to either Ministers or staff in the last 12 months. However, my Department has paid £335 for two civil servants to learn the Welsh language.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what expert advisers have been commissioned by his Department since its inception; on what topic each was commissioned; and whether the adviser so appointed made a declaration of political activity in each case. [246965]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office has not commissioned any expert advisers since it's inception.

Departmental Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make it his policy that temporary and permanent employees of his Department employed at the same grade receive the same hourly rate of pay. [248421]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I refer the hon. Gentleman to my answer to him on 14 January 2009, Official Report, columns 584-85W.

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much his Department's central media and communication unit spent on public surveys in each of the last three years. [248032]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office has not conducted any public surveys in the last three years.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales on how many occasions in the last 12 months Ministers in his Department have used their discretion to rule that a parliamentary question for written answer should be answered because it would be in the public interest to do so, even though to do so would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold of £700. [249127]

Mr. Paul Murphy: None.

Offenders

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many former prisoners are employed by his Department; and what his Department's policy is on employing former prisoners. [246335]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The majority of staff working in the Wales office are seconded from other Government departments. Therefore, the individual's home department under The Civil Service Management Code carries out the necessary security checks. Sections 1.1.5 and 1.1.6 deal specifically with checks before appointment.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Departmental Data Protection

Paul Holmes: To ask the Leader of the House how many members of staff in her Office have been (a) investigated, (b) suspended and (c) dismissed for losing (i) memory sticks, (ii) laptop computers, (iii) desktop computers and (iv) mobile telephones belonging to her Office in each year since 1997. [248254]

Chris Bryant: There have been no further losses following the answer I gave on 12 November 2008, Official Report, column 1262W, namely that since June 2007, one laptop has been reported stolen from the Leader of the House of Commons Office. The laptop was used to update the office website and did not contain any personal data or other sensitive information. No data have been lost. No members of staff in the Leader's Office have been investigated, suspended or dismissed for losing memory sticks, laptop computers, desktop computers and mobile phones.

Following a machinery of government change, information prior to 2006-07 is available only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Pay

Grant Shapps: To ask the Leader of the House how much has been spent by her Office on staff reward and recognition schemes in each of the last three years. [248723]

Chris Bryant: The amount spent by the Leader's Office on staff reward and recognition schemes for the year 2007-08 was £192.

Following a machinery of government change, information prior to 2006-07 is available only at disproportionate cost.

Parliamentary Privilege

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Leader of the House what steps she plans to take to ensure the protection of parliamentary privilege; and if she will make a statement. [247967]

Chris Bryant: The precise nature of parliamentary privilege has been regularly and hotly debated over the centuries and is a key factor of our parliamentary democracy. The prime responsibility for parliamentary privilege in the House of Commons lies with the Speaker and the Committee on Standards and Privileges.

DEFENCE

Aircraft Carriers

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what effect the decision to delay the in-service date of the new aircraft carriers by up to two years will have on the procurement of aircraft to operate from the carriers. [248364]

Mr. Quentin Davies: None.

Armed Forces: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many personnel have been declared unfit for front line duty in each service in the last 12 months. [245113]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The MOD collates, on a quarterly basis, management information on "fit for task", which provides a measure of the medical fitness of all trained armed forces personnel. These figures are broken down into three categories: Medically Fully Fit, Medically Not Fully Fit and Medically Unfit. It should be noted that the majority of those personnel who fall under the category of Medically Not Fully Fit remain fit enough to work in some capacity and therefore continue to make a contribution to operational effectiveness, often within theatres of operation.

Information from the last four quarterly returns of those personnel within the Naval Service and RAF are shown as follows. Personnel numbers are rounded to the nearest 10, and percentages rounded to one decimal point:

		Naval Service		RAF
		Number	Percentage of total trained strength	Number	Percentage of total trained strength
2007-08
Q3	Fully Fit for Task	31,350	89.6	36,880	89.0
	Not Fully Fit for Task	3,530	10.1	4,330	10.5
	Unfit for Task	100	0.3	200	0.5
Q4	Fully Fit for Task	31,130	88.9	36,010	88.9
	Not Fully Fit for Task	3,790	10.8	4,290	10.6
	Unfit for Task	90	0.3	210	0.5
2008-09
Q1	Fully Fit for Task	30,610	88.1	35,540	88.7
	Not Fully Fit for Task	3,970	11.4	4,340	10.8
	Unfit for Task	100	0.3	160	0.4
Q2	Fully Fit for Task	30,330	88.0	35,010	88.5
	Not Fully Fit for Task	4,060	11.8	4,390	11.1
	Unfit for Task	80	0.2	180	0.4

The Army currently collates quarterly figures only for its deployable elements, rather than for its total trained strength. This provides snapshot figures of Personnel Unable to Deploy (PUD), though many of these will be able to undertake non-deployed duties. The following table provides the figures for 2008 of the number of personnel recorded as unable to deploy for medical reasons. Personnel numbers are rounded to the nearest 10, and percentages rounded to one decimal point:

	1 March 2008	1 June 2008	1 September 2008	1 December 2008
Personnel in Deployable Units	70,230	69,700	72,780	73,240
Medical PUD	3,810	3,610	3,780	3,900
Percentage of Deployable Element	5.4	5.2	5.2	5.3

The MOD is in the process of introducing a new and more accurate data-capture system, which will enable it to report validated, comparable data on a tri-service basis.

Armed Forces: Northern Ireland

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many armed forces personnel were stationed in Northern Ireland on 1 January 2009. [248114]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: On 1 January 2009, there were some 4,510 armed forces personnel stationed in Northern Ireland.

Defence Equipment: Procurement

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he made of the utility of Dragon Runner to his Department's operation; whether his Department has allocated funds to purchase Dragon Runners; and if he will make a statement. [247849]

Mr. Quentin Davies: We have recently assessed that the Dragon Runner Micro-Remote Control Vehicle (RCV) is the most suitable solution available to meet particular requirements for Explosive Ordnance Disposal. The Department has allocated no funds to the purchase of Dragon Runner Micro-RCVs as these costs are attributable to current operations. Such additional costs of current operations are funded from the Reserve.

Defence Medical Services: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the (a) inflow and (b) outflow was of personnel in the Defence Medical Services in each year since 1997, broken down by (i) service and (ii) type; [245110]

(2) what the (a) inflow and (b) outflow was of personnel in the Defence Medical Services in each month in 2008, broken down by (i) service and (ii) type. [245111]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I am placing the available data of the type requested covering the period up to September 2008 for the Royal Navy and RAF in the Library of the House. The data for the Army is only available within proportionate costs, in the summary form shown up to 2006.

Defence: Procurement

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will bring forward proposals to ensure that a certain proportion of all expenditure on defence procurement is spent on products produced by UK-based companies. [248676]

Mr. Quentin Davies: In considering procurement decisions, the Ministry of Defence needs to ensure that it secures the best equipment available for our armed forces whilst at the same time ensuring value for money for the taxpayer. Open and fair competition is the most effective method of making sure that we achieve this. Therefore, the MOD does not mandate that a certain proportion of all expenditure on defence procurement is spent on products produced by UK-based companies. Furthermore, any such action would be against EU law, which forbids the provision of preferential treatment to any company, except in respect of essential security interests which is covered by Article 296 of the European treaty.

Departmental Housing

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many houses owned by his Department are rated as grade (a) one, (b) two, (c) three and (d) four. [248855]

Mr. Kevan Jones [holding answer 19 January 2009]: Worldwide, Service Family Accommodation (SFA) properties are at the following Grade for Charge (GfC)—an assessment of the chargeable condition of accommodation, along with other factors such as its size, location and closeness to amenities.

GfC	Number of properties
G1fC	11,305
G2fC	27,043
G3fC	21,136
G4fC	9,393

SFA properties are either owned by Annington Homes Ltd. (the majority in England and Wales), the MOD (in Scotland and Northern Ireland) or provided by the host nation as is the case overseas.

Departmental Telephone Services

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what use (a) his Department and (b) service providers under contract to his Department make of (i)

0844 and 0845 telephone numbers and (ii) revenue-sharing telephone numbers for calls from members of the public; for which services such numbers are used; what prefixes are used for revenue-sharing numbers; how much revenue has accrued from revenue-sharing numbers in each of the last five years; what consideration his Department has given to introducing 03-prefixed telephone numbers for calls to all such services; and if he will make a statement. [247339]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The use of 0844, 0845, revenue-sharing telephone numbers and those with an 03 prefix is determined at local level in accordance with individual business requirements and obtained directly from the supplier. Records of such numbers are not held centrally and information relating to them, including any revenue accrued, could be provided at disproportionate cost.

Estonia: Defence Sales

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much the Estonian government paid for the three British Sandown-class minehunters; and what Treasury guidelines were followed in this case. [248809]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The sale price for the three Sandown class ships to Estonia was £32 million (the gross return to MOD). The net return to MOD, however, will be adjusted by costs for regeneration of the vessels and training of crew prior to delivery. Regeneration is being carried out under incentivised arrangements and thus the final costs will not be known until completion of the work. In accordance with HM Treasury delegations, a business case was prepared and scrutinised by the appropriate authorities.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much was spent on the three Sandown-class minehunters in the year prior to their sale to Estonia; and whether their sale was conditional on this work being carried out on them. [248810]

Mr. Quentin Davies: No work was undertaken, other than normal decommissioning activities, on these three vessels, in the year prior to the signature of the sales agreement in September 2006. Therefore no additional costs were incurred.

Ex-servicemen: Homelessness

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many former servicemen and women are homeless in (a) London and (b) North Yorkshire. [247726]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 5 November 2008, Official Report, column 484W. The Ministry of Defence (MOD) does not collect this information. Independent research was commissioned from the University of York by MOD and its colleagues in the Ex-Service Action Group on Homelessness (ESAG), the research found that the percentage of veterans among London's homeless population was 6 per cent. in 2007 compared with 22 per cent. in separate research in 1997. We are exploring opportunities for further research to find out the extent of veterans homelessness in the rest of the country.

Ex-servicemen: Post Traumatic Stress Disorder

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what facilities are provided to former servicemen and women with post-combat stress disorder living in (a) London and (b) North Yorkshire. [247727]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The health care of all veterans has been the responsibility of the NHS since 1953. Former service personnel with mental health problems, including post traumatic stress disorder will benefit from the Government's decision to extend priority treatment to all veterans whose condition is considered by their GP to be due to service. Veterans are also designated as a Special Interest Group (SIG) in the Department of Health's Improving Access to Psychological Therapies (IAPT) Programme. This will train 3,600 new therapists by 2010-11 in England. Additionally, five NHS trusts across the UK are piloting a new model of mental health care for veterans, one of which is located in Camden and Islington, and another one is based at the Tees, Esk and Wear Valleys NHS Foundation Trust. These will provide a holistic service with social support networks complementing health care. Since 1996, the NHS Trauma Service in Hull has worked with veterans to develop and raise awareness of a suitable care pathway.

The MOD also provides a Medical Assessment Programme at St. Thomas's hospital for those that have concerns about their health due to service, since 1982.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many veterans have been treated for post-combat stress disorder in each of the last three years in (a) London and (b) North Yorkshire. [247728]

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many veterans have been treated for post-combat stress disorder in (a) Hemel Hempstead, (b) Hertfordshire and (c) England in each of the last three years. [249058]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The health care of veterans is a matter for the national health service and the four UK health Departments. Information is not held by the MOD on how many veterans have been treated for post-combat stress disorder in each of the last three years in London and North Yorkshire.

Hercules Aircraft

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many aircraft in the Hercules C-130 fleet are currently unfit for operational use; and if he will make a statement. [248052]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The numbers of Hercules C-130J and C-130K that are not fit for purpose (FFP) are provided in the following table. The figures shown reflect the position on 13 January 2009.

Aircraft type	Total fleet	Numbers of Hercules not FFP
C-130J	24	7
C-130K	19	[1]11

[1]This figure includes 4 retired aircraft which are awaiting disposal.

Aircraft are classed as not FFP if they are undergoing scheduled maintenance, modification programmes and any other unforeseen rectification work that can arise on a day to day basis or awaiting disposal. The figures do not reflect the fact that an aircraft assessed as not FFP may be returned to the front line at very short notice to meet the operational need.

Met Office

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the (a) coverage and (b) accuracy of radar monitoring of rainfall for catchment areas of (i) rivers in England and (ii) the River Severn by the Met Office; and if he will make a statement. [248201]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Weather radar coverage over England was reviewed in 2001. As a result new weather radars have been installed in Kent and County Durham. The density and coverage quality of the network in England is considered to be among the best in the world.

The catchment of the River Severn mainly falls under the coverage of the weather radar on Clee Hill, Shropshire. The coverage quality is assessed as being in category one (the highest of three categories used to classify network coverage) for that part of the catchment lying between Newtown and Gloucester, and category two above and below these points.

The Met Office routinely assesses the accuracy of rainfall estimates derived from radar. The assessment is made by comparing rainfall accumulations recorded by rain gauges with accumulations derived from the collocated radar data.

The Met Office does not routinely derive statistics which are catchment specific.

Millen Report

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made in addressing the issues identified in the Millen Report. [243964]

Mr. Kevan Jones: All the recommendations from the Service Pension Taxation Inquiry (Millen Report) have been implemented. Identified Armed Forces Pension Scheme underpayments and overpayments have been rectified. Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs has paid back tax to those affected by the incorrect taxing of invaliding pensions and compensation payments have also been made.

To prevent further issues, business process and legislation recommendations have also been implemented or subsumed by wider changes. These changes include the creation of the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency, and the introduction of Armed Forces Pensions Scheme 2005 (AFPS 2005), the Armed Forces Compensation Scheme and the Compensation and Pensions System (CAPS).

Russia: Military Aircraft

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many times Russian military aircraft approached British airspace in (a) each month in 2008 and (b) each year since 2006. [249732]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The following table details how frequently Quick Reaction Alert aircraft have been launched to identify Russian military aircraft approaching the NATO Air Policing Area for which the United Kingdom has responsibility, in each month of 2008.

2008

	Number
January	2
February	0
March	1
April	1
May	1
June	0
July	1
August	1
September	1
October	1
November	0
December	1

The following table details how frequently Quick Reaction Alert aircraft were launched to identify Russian military aircraft:

2006	1
2007	19
2008	10

All Russian military Aircraft have remained in International airspace and have not entered UK airspace.

White Phosphorus

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the size of the stockpile of white phosphorus shells held by the armed forces is; and what criteria control the use of such shells. [249206]

Mr. Quentin Davies: UK armed forces possess white phosphorus munitions for the purpose of producing a smoke screen to provide cover and thus protection for our soldiers on the battlefield. These are conventional munitions that are not outlawed or banned by any convention or protocol. I am withholding information on the size of the stockpile of these munitions on the grounds that its disclosure would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces. UK training in the use of white phosphorus emphasises that it should be used solely for its intended purpose and not as an anti-personnel weapon.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Council Tax

10. Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent assessment she has made of the effectiveness of (a) penalties and (b) enforcement procedures for non-payment of council tax. [248948]

John Healey: No specific assessment has been made of council tax penalties and enforcement, but collection rates have improved every year for the last eight years, underlying the efforts of all councils and the effectiveness of the system.

Gypsies and Travellers

11. Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will revise the guidance to local authorities in respect of the application of race relations legislation to planning applications involving Gypsy and Traveller sites to clarify the roles and responsibilities of the police and local authorities in managing such sites. [248949]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government have no plans to revise the guidance contained in ODPM Circular 1/06 as suggested by the hon. Member. Local authorities have a general duty under the Race Relations Act 1976, as amended, to actively seek to eliminate unlawful discrimination and to promote good race relations in all they do. We will be publishing good practice guidance on the management of Gypsy and Traveller sites shortly.

20. Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans her Department has for the future of Gypsy and Traveller site provision. [248958]

Mr. Iain Wright: Planning policy for the provision of Gypsy and Traveller sites is set out in ODPM Circular 01/2006: "Planning for Gypsy and Traveller Caravan Sites". Local authorities have a duty to assess the accommodation needs of Gypsies and Travellers and identify enough land to meet the number of pitches set out in the regional spatial strategy. The Homes and Communities Agency will continue to provide funding for the provision of new public sites.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when her Department next plans to review its planning guidance and circulars relating to Travellers. [248951]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Independent Task Group on Site Provision and Enforcement concluded the Government's planning policies for Gypsy and Traveller sites in England are sound. The Government have committed to keeping Parliament informed on the work undertaken to address the issues they highlighted. We will publish a progress report later this year.

Community Cohesion

12. Mr. Benyon: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department is taking to achieve community cohesion; and if she will make a statement. [248950]

Mr. Khan: In 2007 we announced a renewed commitment to community cohesion with a £50 million investment over three years and a new public service agreement to build cohesive, active and empowered communities. We continue to support local authorities in delivering improvements in cohesion by providing a framework of guidance and targeted local support. We are also working with faith communities to build interfaith work and support social action.

Financial Assistance: Local Authorities

14. Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department plans to take to assist local authorities in the current economic climate. [248952]

Hazel Blears: People need their council to offer real help through improved services and low tax. We have given them billions of pounds of extra funding, and financial freedoms, to help them do so, including putting in place the first-ever three-year settlement last year which gave councils an extra £8.9 billion.

Council Housing Waiting Lists

15. Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of trends in the number of families on council house waiting lists since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [248953]

Mr. Iain Wright: Our latest figures show 1.67 million households registered on local authority waiting lists in England in April 2007 compared to 1.02 million in April 1997.

Business Start-ups

16. Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she is taking to encourage provision of low-cost retailing space in town centres for small, local and start-up businesses through the rating and planning systems. [248954]

Mr. Iain Wright: Our forthcoming refinements to town centre policy will make clear that councils should plan proactively to secure a mix of units in new developments to provide for small businesses including starter premises.

In addition, small business rate relief, introduced in 2005, offers up to 50 per cent. reductions in rates bills for businesses occupying only one property.

Statutory Services: Over-60s

17. Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what statutory services for which her Department is responsible borough councils will be required to provide to those aged over 60 in 2009; and if she will make a statement. [248955]

Mr. Khan: The Government, through their Supporting People programme, fund a variety of non-statutory services for older people, through local authorities. The SP programme, created in 2003, is administered through top tier local authorities, many of which are borough councils. Over 800,000 older people are supported to live independently through this programme, and services provided include home improvement agency and handyperson services, and wardens. However, it is for local authorities to determine how to best meet the support needs identified in their communities and the Department for Communities and Local Government does not prescribe any particular model of support or services.

In addition, the Disabled Facilities Grant is a mandatory grant used to provide adaptations to the homes of disabled people and older people to live independently in their homes. Adaptations include improving access to a home, and to the basic facilities within a home, for example by providing ramps, door widening, stair lifts and level access showers. Each year, around 35,000 people benefit from a Disabled Facilities Grant. This Government have substantially increased the Government funding for the Disabled Facilities Grant programme from £57 million in 1997 to £156 million in 2009-10. Local authorities also contribute towards the cost of adaptations from their own resources.

Council Housing Rents

18. Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the merits of allowing local authorities to retain all monies raised from council house rent receipts. [248956]

Mr. Iain Wright: The retention of council house rent receipts is being considered as part of the Review of Council Housing Finance and Rents Policy which is being undertaken by my Department and Her Majesty's Treasury. The review is currently in its final stages and will report to the Chief Secretary and Communities and Local Government Ministers this spring. It will inform the spending review and will be followed by a period of formal consultation.

South-west Spatial Strategy

19. Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent progress has been made towards agreement of the draft south-west regional spatial strategy. [248957]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Secretary of State received around 35,000 responses from individuals and organisations to the consultation on her proposed changes to the south-west regional spatial strategy. This is the largest number ever received to such a consultation. My officials at the Government office for the south west are currently assessing the responses and the Secretary of State will consider proposals for a revised timetable shortly.

Energy Efficiency

21. Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to improve the energy efficiency of existing homes. [248959]

Margaret Beckett: This Department has various policies and programmes for example the Decent Homes Programme, Building Regulations and Energy Performance Certificates that already address energy efficiency in existing homes. The Government will shortly be consulting on a Heat and Energy Saving Strategy, to provide a route map to greener, warmer homes, which will save energy and help householders reduce their fuel bills.

Infrastructure: West Sussex

22. Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much the Government plans to grant to local authorities in West Sussex for infrastructure spending in the next three years; and if she will make a statement. [248960]

John Healey: Local authorities in West Sussex are set to receive at least £36.4 million in 2009-10 and £47.6 million in 2010-11 in grants from central Government which can be spent on local infrastructure. Figures for 2011-12 will be dependent on the outcome of the next spending review. In addition, local authorities in West Sussex will receive at least £6.3 million in PFI credits in each of these three years.

Local Area Agreements

23. Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent assessment she has made of the effect of the credit crunch on the ability of local authorities to meet their local area agreement targets. [248961]

John Healey: We are working closely with local authorities as part of the current LAA annual review to address delivery issues and ensure that priorities and targets remain the right ones for each local area in the light of the economic downturn. This will lead to refreshed LAAs in the spring.

New Housing Estimates

24. Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of houses to be built in (a) the growth areas and (b) Northamptonshire in 2009-10. [248962]

Margaret Beckett: Planned housing numbers are set out in the published regional spatial strategies, local development frameworks and the associated annual monitoring reports.

Temporary Accommodation

25. Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many households are in temporary accommodation. [248963]

Mr. Iain Wright: As at 30 September 2008 there were 72,130 households in temporary accommodation. This is 13 per cent. lower than at the same time last year. The number of households in temporary accommodation has now fallen for 12 consecutive quarters and is 29 per cent. lower than the peak of 2004.

Building Regulations: Floods

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent representations she has received on the building regulations as they apply to resilience of properties to flooding; and if she will make a statement. [248996]

Mr. Iain Wright: Officials in my Department have ongoing discussions with a large number of bodies including representatives from local authorities, product manufacturers and the development and insurance industries on this and other issues relating to the building regulations.

Sir Michael Pitt's review of the summer 2007 floods recommended that > "Building Regulations should be revised to ensure that all new or refurbished buildings in high flood-risk areas are flood resistant or resilient".

The Government's response, published in December last year, indicated the Government's support for this recommendation.

Parts A and C of the building regulations, and the associated guidance, address the requirements on structure and on resistance to contaminants and water (but not currently flooding) that have to be satisfied by most new and refurbished buildings. The Government are currently considering these requirements and how best 'flood performance' could be included within amended building regulations. We plan to consult on this in the summer.

Domestic Visits: Wellingborough

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government in what capacity she visited Wellingborough constituency on 5 December 2008; whether the costs of her travel were met by the public purse; and whether she travelled by ministerial car. [249681]

Mr. Khan: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State visited Wellingborough in a non-ministerial capacity. The cost of travel was not met by the public purse and a ministerial car was not used.

Greenbelt: North Yorkshire

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many hectares of greenbelt land there were in North Yorkshire in each year since 1997. [247614]

Mr. Iain Wright: The area of Green Belt land in North Yorkshire for each year for which data is available is presented in the following table.

North Yorkshire

	Hectares
1997	56,040
2003	56,730
2004	56,730
2006	58,410
2007	58,450

The first robust estimates of the area of Green Belt land at local authority level were for 1997. In 2003 it was decided to collate Green Belt estimates on an annual basis to monitor the department's Spending Review 2004 Public Service Agreement 6 indicator. However, figures were not published for 2005 due to the extensive quality assurance necessary in that year.

Home Information Packs

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will use her powers under the Housing Act 2004 to suspend home information packs. [248877]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Grant Shapps) on 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 322W.

Homelessness: Eastbourne

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people in the Eastbourne borough council area were recorded as (a) homeless and (b) rough sleepers in the months of (i) December and (ii) January in each year since 1997. [248829]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information about English local authorities' actions under the homelessness legislation (Part 7 of the Housing Act 1996) is collected quarterly at local authority level. Data collected include the number of households accepted by local housing authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty (to secure that suitable accommodation is available). If a settled home is not immediately available, the authority must secure temporary accommodation until a settled home becomes available.

The hon. Member's question asks for figures for the months of December and January. The total number of households accepted as owed a main homelessness duty ('acceptances') are collected on a quarterly rather than monthly basis, and numbers in temporary accommodation are a snapshot as at the end of each quarter. Monthly data are therefore not available, but data are provided in the following tables for the last (October to December) and first (January to March) quarters of each year since 1997:

October to December quarter

	Acceptances October to December quarter	Temporary accommodation as at December 31

Mid-year rough sleeping estimates have been published annually since 1998, and give a snapshot of the number of people sleeping rough on a single night, based on local authority street counts in those areas where there is a known or suspected rough sleeping problem. Rough sleeping estimates for Eastbourne borough council are shown in the following table.

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homeless (a) children and (b) adults in the Eastbourne Borough Council area were placed in temporary accommodation in each of the last five years. [248830]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information about English local authorities' actions under the homelessness legislation (part 7 of the Housing Act 1996) is collected quarterly at local authority level, about households rather than individuals.

Data collected includes the number of households accepted by local housing authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty (to secure that suitable accommodation is available). If a settled home is not immediately available, the authority must secure temporary accommodation until a settled home becomes available.

Information on the number of households housed in temporary accommodation is reported quarterly by local authorities as at the last day of each quarter. The figures include: those households which have been accepted as owed the main homelessness duty; those for which inquiries are pending; those being accommodated for a limited period because they have been found intentionally homeless and in priority need; those being accommodated pending possible referral to another authority, and those being accommodated pending the outcome of a local authority review or county court appeal.

The number of dependent children (or expected children) in these households is also collected, but data on the number of adults is not. Figures for total households, households with dependent children and total children reported by the Eastbourne borough council over the last five years are shown in the following table.

Households, households with children, and children in temporary accommodation, as at end March each year

	Total households in TA arranged by local authority	Total households in TA arranged with dependent (and expected) children	Total children (and expected children) within these households[1]

Homes and Communities Agency

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the expected running cost of the Homes and Communities Agency will be in (a) 2008-09 and (b) each of the two subsequent years; how many staff the Agency will employ; how many staff will work on cohesion-related issues; and if she will make a statement. [245525]

Mr. Iain Wright: The forecast full year running costs for the Homes and Communities Agency (HCA) in 2008-09, and planned budgets for 2009-10 and 2010-11, are £86 million per annum; in addition £4 million is being provided to the HCA in 2009-10 for transitional costs. The HCA has 789 permanent staff ('full-time equivalent') currently in post plus 30 staff on secondment to the HCA from my Department, from an establishment of 972 ('full-time equivalent'). It is not possible, however, to provide an estimate of the number of HCA staff working on cohesion-related issues, as many staff working on housing and regeneration will address cohesion-related issues to some extent in their work as part of the mainstreaming of cohesion into discussions with local partners.

Local Government: Mortgages

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will enable local authorities to advance loans to first-time buyers in the mortgage market. [249475]

Mr. Iain Wright: Local authorities have existing powers under the Housing Act 1985 to advance loans to people for the purpose of acquiring, constructing or improving a house.

Local Government: VAT

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of local authorities which have adjusted their relevant charges in order to pass on the temporary reduction in value added tax. [249453]

John Healey: We do not collect this information centrally.

London Pensions Fund Authority: Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the annual administration costs of the London Pensions Fund Authority are. [245991]

John Healey: On the basis of annual statistical returns made by the London Pension Fund Authority, in 2007-08, £14,404,000 was charged to the Authority's fund to cover the cost of scheme administration.

Non-domestic Rates

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether automated valuation model techniques are to be utilised in the proposed business rates revaluation in 2010. [245987]

John Healey: Automated analytical techniques have been used to a limited extent to assist Valuation Office Agency staff with preparatory work for the 2010 non-domestic rating revaluation. All final valuations are produced by Valuation Office staff.

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the Valuation Tribunal Service has a non-domestic rates manual equivalent to that which it has regarding council tax. [246381]

John Healey: The Valuation Tribunal Service does not have its own non-domestic rates manual, instead it subscribes to, and uses as its reference work for national non-domestic rating, the commercial publication "Ryde on Rating and the Council Tax" published by Lexis Nexis, ISBN 978-1-4057-3119-5.

Non-domestic Rates: Business

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she expects the 2010 business rates revaluation to be revenue-neutral. [246546]

John Healey: We expect the 2010 business rate revaluation to be revenue-neutral in real terms. The overall national multiplier is reset to ensure the total yield from business rates is unaffected by the revaluation.

Non-domestic Rates: Empty Property

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government under what circumstances automated teller machines are liable for empty property business rates. [246388]

John Healey: An automatic teller machine (ATM) located within a property, which forms part of that operator's usual business and is controlled by that business, such as an ATM within a bank, is not separately assessed for rates. However, an ATM can be a separately assessed hereditament for rates where it is located in a property and does not form part of that operator's usual businesses and the operator does not have paramount control over the ATM, such as an ATM at a garage shop.

Any separately assessed hereditament consisting of, or of part of, any building, together with any land ordinarily used or intended for use for the purposes of the building, or part, it may be liable for empty property rates.

Non-domestic Rates: Greater London

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 30 October 2008, Official Report, column 1284W, on non-domestic rates: valuation, how many sub-locations there are in each billing authority in Greater London. [246945]

John Healey: The number of sub-location codes in use in each billing authority in Greater London is provided in the following table. Further analysis would not be possible except at disproportionate cost.

Social Rented Housing: Construction

Lorely Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many social rented homes she expects to be built in (a) 2009 and (b) 2010; and whether such homes will be built to Code Level Three. [247837]

Mr. Iain Wright: We remain committed to a substantial increase in social housing. Our aspiration is to deliver 45,000 homes a year by 2010-11. This is still some time away and it remains too early, given current market conditions, to predict outputs in that year with certainty.

We are committed to ensuring that all homes are built to the highest levels of sustainability and as such we are increasing the energy efficiency standards set out in Part L of the Building Regulations and introducing the water efficiency into Part G. In addition, one of the requirements for grant funding through the Homes and Communities Agency's (HCA) Affordable Housing programme is that they should be built to Code level 3 as set out in their Design and Quality Strategy published in April 2007.

The HCA is currently considering how to harmonise the standards and commitments made by English Partnerships and Housing Corporation prior to the establishment of the HCA and will, subject to a cost-benefit analysis, confirm the timetable for building to higher levels of the code in due course.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

British Waterways

Mr. Laxton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the terms of reference of the Operational Efficiency Review of British Waterways are. [247804]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The terms of reference for the Operational Efficiency Programme Review of British Waterways is currently under development and will be finalised shortly.

Mr. Laxton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when and by what means stakeholders will be consulted on the Operational Efficiency Programme of British Waterways. [247805]

Huw Irranca-Davies: British Waterways, the principal stakeholder, is a member of the review team and as such will automatically be involved in the development of the Operational Efficiency Programme review. The study is underway and options are still being developed. DEFRA and British Waterways are happy to receive stakeholders' views to feed them into the review.

Dogs

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department plans to take to tackle problems arising from dangerous dogs in the next 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [244051]

Jane Kennedy: The Government are developing guidance for those responsible for the enforcement of the law on dangerous dogs in conjunction with the Association of Chief Police Officers, local authorities and the RSPCA. This follows on from DEFRA's consultation with the police which suggested that the existing law did not need changing but that more guidance was needed.

Environment Protection

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to launch the new collaborative centre for the understanding of natural and environmental risks. [248790]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The collaborative Centre of Excellence in Understanding and Managing Natural and Environmental Risk was launched in December.

The centre will provide world-leading evidence and expertise on environmental risks such as flooding, animal and plant disease, and adapting to climate change.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will establish the new collaborative centre for the understanding of natural and environmental risks in the near future; and if he will make a statement. [249748]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The collaborative Centre of Excellence in Understanding and Managing Natural and Environmental Risk was launched in December.

The centre will provide world-leading evidence and expertise on environmental risks such as flooding, animal and plant disease, and adapting to climate change.

Fish

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the annual amount of fish consumed in the UK. [248994]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA has made the following estimate of the annual amount of fish consumed in the UK:

UK household purchased quantities

Fish per week: 165.18 grams per person

UK Eaten out purchased quantities

Fish and fish products per week: 13.19 grams per person

UK population figure 2007

Million: 59.74

Totals:

Combined grams/person/week: 178.37

Grams/person/year: 9275.35

Million grams/pop/year: 554085.1708

Million Kgs/pop/year:554.085

Million tonnes: 0.554

Total annual UK consumption of fish:

0.55 Million tonnes

Totals include takeaway fish meals and fish products, ready meals, tinned and bottled fish.

Fish: Conservation

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to enforce the regulations of marine conservation zones in respect of the conservation and management of fish stocks targeted by non-UK flagged vessels beyond the six and 12 mile zones. [249223]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Marine conservation zones (MCZs) will primarily be protected via existing regulatory regimes. A series of duties placed on public authorities will ensure that those authorities take account of the likely impacts on MCZs of their own actions, and of the activities for which they have responsibility for granting consent.

We will also provide a mechanism to allow the Marine Management Organisation (or, in respect of Welsh territorial waters the Welsh Ministers) to control activities that are otherwise unregulated, where they pose a threat to the achievement of a site's objectives.

Where there is evidence to demonstrate that fisheries need to be controlled or restricted in order to further the conservation objectives for a site, the Bill places a duty on inshore fisheries and conservation agencies to take appropriate measures within their areas. Beyond six nautical miles we will pursue the introduction of measures through the EU Common Fisheries Policy.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with his counterparts in the EU on the designation of marine conservation zones as envisaged in the Marine Bill. [249224]

Huw Irranca-Davies: There have been no recent discussions between my Department and the European Commission or my European counterparts on the designation of marine conservation zones (MCZ) as envisaged in the Marine Bill. However, the MCZ mechanism will enable us to work with statutory nature conservation advisors, environmental groups, fishermen and other stakeholders to select sites for the conservation of biodiversity.

Our strategy is to identify the areas that we want to protect, get the protection in place for the activities we control and seek to secure protection from activities such as fishing through international agreements such as the CFP.

Fisheries

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which 10 UK fishing ports had the greatest (a) number of home fishing vessels and (b) volume of landings in the latest period for which figures are available. [249290]

Huw Irranca-Davies: In 2007, the top 10 UK ports based on the number of vessels having them as their home port are shown as follows.

Home port	Number of vessels
Newlyn	204
Kilkeel	121
Poole	115
Fraserburgh	109
Brixham	105
Plymouth	91
Peterhead	89

Milford Haven	79
Portsmouth	75

In 2007, the top 10 UK ports based on the volume of landings by UK and foreign fishing vessels are shown as follows.

Peterhead	147.7
Lerwick	114.9
Fraserburgh	28.9

Fisheries: Manpower

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the average age of the British fishing workforce is. [249050]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Figures on the average age of the fishing workforce are not available although a survey in 2006 produced the following estimates.

Number of regular and part-time fishermen on UK registered vessels in 2005 by age breakdown

Age	Number
Less than 20	490
20 to 55	9,125
Over 55	3,216

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of people who are (a) directly and (b) indirectly employed by the UK fishing fleet. [249289]

Huw Irranca-Davies: UK fisheries administrations estimate that at the end of 2007 there were 12,700 people directly employed in the fish-catching sector, either on a full or part-time basis.

The UK Sea Fish Industry Authority (SEAFISH) has published an analysis (in January 2008) that estimates that if the whole of the sea fishing sector were removed, a total of around 29,000 full-time equivalent jobs would be lost initially, including the 12,700 catching jobs, dependent upstream and downstream jobs and jobs in the wider economy which depend indirectly on these jobs.

Estimating the number of related jobs onshore whose existence can be attributed at least in part to the UK catching sector alone is complicated by the high levels of imported fish upon which jobs in our processing sector depend. Around 90 per cent. of whitefish processed within the EU is sourced from outside EU waters. SEAFISH estimates that there are around 15,000 full-time equivalent jobs in the UK fish-processing sector.

The full report on economic impacts of the UK sea fishing and fish processing sectors is available via the SEAFISH website.

Fishing Catches

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the average weight of discards per year per UK fishing vessel has been over the last 10 years. [248984]

Huw Irranca-Davies: UK fisheries laboratories send observers to sea to record the quantity of fish discarded and retained by fishing vessels. This sampling is intended to provide estimates of discards of the main commercial species. It is only possible to sample a small proportion of fishing trips in this way. For this reason the sampling effort tends to be focused on those fisheries which are of relatively large scale, and which usually involve some discarding. There are a large number of fisheries which are small in scale and/or involve little or no discarding, which are not routinely sampled. These include many shellfish fisheries, fisheries for pelagic species such as mackerel and herring, and in particular inshore fisheries involving vessels less than 10 metres in length. Vessels in this latter category form the majority of the UK fishing fleet. As a result, estimates of discards given as weight per vessel may not be representative. Estimates of discards by UK vessels for some important fish stocks are given for 1998 to 2007 (where available), and numbers of fishing vessels registered in the UK over the same period are given in the following tables.

Fishing Catches: North Sea

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the weight of discards of fish caught in the North Sea was in the latest period for which figures are available, broken down by (a) nationality of fishing vessel and (b) fish type. [249170]

Huw Irranca-Davies: We do not have access to estimates of discards by nation for nations other than the UK. However estimates of total international discards, which include estimates of discards for all fleets fishing in the North sea, are available. These can be compared with the estimates of discards by UK fleets to determine the contribution of UK and other fleets to the total quantities discarded.

Estimated discards (tonnes) of North sea cod, haddock and whiting: (Estimates are given for vessels registered in Scotland (Sco), England, Wales and Northern Ireland (EWN) and for all international fleets combined (Total Int)).

Fishing Gear: EC Action

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures were proposed at the most recent EU Fisheries Council to reduce mesh size; and which countries (a) proposed and (b) supported each such proposal. [248987]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The only such proposal we were aware of concerned a French request to permit the exploitation of a sustainable gill net fishery in the waters to the west of Ireland, by somewhat relaxing the existing static gear restrictions in the area. This was ultimately agreed by all member states, on the grounds that the fishery was sustainable and it would not have any impact on the deep sea stocks the restrictions were intended to protect.

Fishing Vessels

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the average (a) length and (b) horsepower of a UK fishing vessel is. [249047]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Based on those vessels registered as UK fishing vessels as at 31 December 2007, the average length of a UK registered fishing vessel was 9.7 metres and the average power was 127 kW.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the average age of the UK (a) under 30 foot and (b) over 30 foot fishing fleet is. [249049]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Based on those vessels registered as UK fishing vessels as at 31 December 2007, the average age of UK registered fishing vessels under 30 feet in length was 23 years. The average age of vessels over 30 feet in length was also 23 years.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many UK fishing vessels were built in 2008; and what their total tonnage is. [249052]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Of those vessels entering the UK fishing fleet during 2008, sixty three were actually built during 2008, with a gross tonnage of 6,168 tonnes.

Floods and Water Bill

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he plans to publish the draft Floods and Water Bill. [249497]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I refer my hon. Friend to my previous reply of 9 December 2008, Official Report, column 39W.

Landfill Tax: Greater London

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much has been paid in Landfill Tax by each London authority in each year since its introduction in 2002; and if he will make a statement. [247811]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

It is not possible using landfill tax receipts data to determine how much revenue is received from local authorities. This is because registered landfill site operators pay the tax to HM Revenue and Customs and pass on the cost to their customers through the disposal charges they set. The origin of the landfilled waste is not recorded on the tax return.

Nitrate Vulnerable Zones: Horses

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what restrictions apply to owners of (a) horses and (b) foals who have land within nitrate vulnerable zones. [248674]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The new rules established by the Nitrate Pollution Prevention Regulations 2008 will only be enforced in relation to agricultural holdings, and enterprises claiming subsidy under the single payment scheme, if they are located in a Nitrate Vulnerable Zone (NVZ). This means that if horses (including foals) are kept on these holdings or enterprises, the manure produced by the animals is subject to the NVZ rules. If, however, the horses are kept on holdings/enterprises which are not agricultural (e.g. livery yards), then the owners do not need to comply with the rules.

Rural Development Programme

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the answer of 30 October 2008, Official Report, columns 1183-6W, on the Rural Development programme, if he will provide the figures requested where England Rural Development programme legacy payments were made after 1 January 2007. [241026]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The following table shows the value of England Rural Development programme (ERDP) socio-economic scheme legacy projects for which each Regional Development Agency is committed to fund since 1 January 2007. The ERDP closed for applications under those schemes in June 2006. Funding for the legacy projects comes from budgets for RDPE 2007-13.

Sharks: Conservation

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proposals his Department plans to put forward at the next European Fisheries Council on measures to protect sharks and other endangered or threatened species from the impact of over-fishing. [244198]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The UK Government expressed support for the conservation principles underpinning the European Commission's original proposals on elasmobranchs (sharks, skates and rays). At the 2008 European Fisheries Council which was held on 17-19 December, the UK Government achieved a balanced package of technical and conservation measures which discourages further the targeting of vulnerable sharks, skates and rays while also recognising the importance of avoiding unnecessary discards. The final agreed package also reflects that the UK achieved a balance between the need to conserve elasmobranchs for the long term with the need to safeguard the livelihoods of the UK fishing fleets and their local communities whose viable future depends on the sustainable exploitation of these stocks.

The 2009 Total Allowable Catches (TACs) for sharks were significantly reduced to reflect the vulnerable state of these species. Spurdog was cut by 50 per cent. and porbeagle by 25 per cent. In addition to reduced TACs, appropriate technical measures were also introduced such as setting maximum landing sizes to protect larger females and encouraging the timely release of these animals to aid their future survival and subsequent recovery of the stock.

The final package for skates and rays included a TAC for area VI and VII set at the historic baseline, but without the anticipated 15 per cent. TAC cut applied. Contrary to UK expectations, the 25 per cent. by-catch provision was only retained for vessels over 15 m long in the North sea and not in other areas. Also within this package, common skate, undulate rays and white skate caught in relevant nominated International Council for the Exploration of the Sea (ICES) zones[1], and angel shark in all European Community waters, should not be retained on board. The proposal requires that catches of these species shall be promptly released unharmed.

[1] Area IIa and IV: Common Skate; Area VIId: Common Skate, Undulate Ray; Area VI a-b, VII a-c, e-k: Undulate Ray, Common Skate, Norwegian Skate and White Skate

Water Charges

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the average annual water bill in each region in each of the last five years. [248493]

Water Charges: Religious Buildings

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will meet representatives of (a) churches, (b) voluntary and community groups and (c) charities to discuss surface area water charges; and if he will make a statement. [248857]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA is in contact with interested parties. The Government are aware of the problem of affordability faced by some customers as a result of the switch to site area charging for surface water drainage and are looking at what can be done.

White Fish

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his most recent estimate is of the biomass weight of North sea stocks of (a) cod, (b) haddock, (c) plaice, (d) hake and (e) sole. [249045]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Spawning stock biomass (SSB) is often used to give a measure of the size of particular fish stocks. Figures for the SSB of major North sea stocks are available from the most recent scientific advice provided by the International Council for the Exploration of the Sea (ICES). These are given in the following table.

Estimated spawning stock biomass at the start of 2009 for some North sea stocks

	Stock SSB (Thousand tonnes)
Cod	70.7
Haddock	212
Plaice	265
Hake	151.4
Sole	28

It should be noted that hake caught in the North sea are considered to form part of a biological stock ("Northern Hake") that covers a much larger area, including the Bay of Biscay, the Western approaches, the Irish Sea and West of Scotland.

TREASURY

Construction: Procurement

Mr. Olner: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Office of Government Commerce will publish the review of construction contracts it commissioned in July 2008 from the consultants Arup; and if he will make a statement. [248899]

Angela Eagle: The report has already been shared with the stakeholders involved in the study and also with members of the Public Sector Construction Clients' Forum (PSCCF) who discussed the issue on 11 December 2008. Arrangements have also been made to place the note of the PSCCF meeting, together with the Arup report, on OGC's website.

Credit Unions

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he plans to increase public access to credit unions through post offices as part of the new Saving Gateway. [248612]

Ian Pearson: The Saving Gateway Accounts Bill is currently going through Parliament. It proposes a cash saving scheme for working age people on lower incomes. Accounts will be offered by a range of financial institutions such as banks, building societies and credit unions. The Government also announced in the 2008 pre-Budget report that accounts will be available through the Post Office.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Scott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much has been spent on (a) maintaining, (b) decorating and (c) otherwise improving departmental buildings in the last five years; how much has been spent on wallpaper since 2001; and what plans there are for further spending on departmental decoration. [248799]

Angela Eagle: A full PFI refurbishment of 1 Horse Guards Road was completed in 2002. Maintenance and decoration related expenditure since that date is included in the annual unitary payment made to the PFI provider and is not recorded separately.

The amount spent on such building related services at other departmental buildings over the last five years is approximately £6 million.

Nothing has been spent on wallpaper since 2001.

Plans for future redecoration are included in the normal forward planned maintenance schedules compiled for each building.

Departmental Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask Mr Chancellor of the Exchequer how much his Department received from Ofcom in remitted fines in each of the last five years; and what use has been made of these funds. [249676]

Angela Eagle: Since assuming its powers on 29 December 2003, Ofcom has received and passed to the Consolidated Fund the following amounts in fines:

2003-04[1]	0.00
2004-05	77,500
2005-06	160,000
2006-07	422,000
2007-08	4,199,000
2008-09[2]	7,682,500

[1] 29 December 2003 to 31 March 2004
[2] To 31 December 2008

Departmental Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make it his policy that temporary and permanent employees of his Department employed at the same grade receive the same hourly rate of pay. [248420]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 18 December 2008, Official Report column 932W.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Burns: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when a reply will be sent to the hon. Member for West Chelmsford's letter of 13 October 2008, Treasury Reference: 1/6189/2008, concerning Mr. Richard Macaskill of Chelmsford; and what the reasons are for the time taken to reply. [248583]

Ian Pearson: Due to the large volume of correspondence received on these issues there has been a delay in sending some responses. The Treasury hopes to be in a position to reply to the hon. Member shortly.

National Insurance Contributions

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was paid to HM Revenue and Customs in Class 3 National Insurance contributions in respect of the financial year 2006-07; and what his latest estimate is of the proportion of those payments that were above the level needed for the individuals in question to have a full national insurance contribution record for that year. [248555]

Mr. Timms: Information on the amount of Class 3 contributions paid in respect of the 2006-07 is not yet available as contributors normally have six years to pay.

Information on the proportion of Class 3 contributions paid that were above the level needed for a full national insurance record for that year is not available.

Revenue and Customs: Audit

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many audits of businesses were undertaken by HM Revenue and Customs in each of the last three years; and what proportion were of businesses classified as (a) low risk and (b) not low risk. [248554]

Mr. Timms: The total number of enquiries and interventions undertaken by HM Revenue and Customs in respect of direct taxes and VAT was:

	Number
2005-06	365,682
2006-07	322,484
2007-08	298,805

The low risk relationships with businesses dealt with by our Large Business Service were only established during 2007-08 and therefore we are unable to provide a breakdown as requested.

The enquiry figures show a downward trend over the period as a result of better use of risk assessment. This reflects the department's strategy of deploying compliance resources to tackling areas of highest risk while reducing the burden on those who are compliant.

This approach has resulted in increases in additional liabilities secured from our compliance activities, details of which are published in our departmental autumn performance reports.

Revenue and Customs: Yorkshire and the Humber

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) offices in Yorkshire and the Humber are to close as a result of HMRC's reorganisation programme. [247323]

Mr. Timms: 23 offices of the 41 offices reviewed in Yorkshire and the Humber are to close as a result of HMRC's regional review programme to align its estate with future business requirements. However, all enquiry centres offering face to face advice to the public will be maintained either in their present building or in a suitable alternative location nearby.

Tax Credit: Telephone Services

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the (a) longest, (b) shortest and (c) average length of call to (i) the claimants' and (ii) hon. Members' tax credit helpline was in each of the last 24 months; [241462]

(2) how long on average it took for calls to (a) the claimants' and (b) hon. Members' tax credit helpline to be answered in each of the last 24 months; [241463]

(3) how many calls were (a) received, (b) handled and (c) unanswered by (i) the claimants' and (ii) hon. Members' tax credit helpline in each of the last 24 months; [241464]

(4) how long on average it took to answer calls made to the tax credits helplines for (a) claimants and (b) hon. Members in each of the last 24 months; what the duration of the (i) longest and (ii) shortest call to each was in each month; and what the average call duration was; [246894]

(5) how many calls were (a) received on, (b) handled by and (c) unanswered by the tax credit helplines for (i) claimants and (ii) hon. Members in each of the last 24 months; [246896]

(6) how many calls have been received via the tax credit helpline for hon. Members in each month since it was established. [246897]

Mr. Timms: The information requested about the (a) longest and (b) shortest length of call is not readily available and could be provided only at a disproportionate cost. I would also refer the hon. Member to previous answers provided by my right hon. Friend the then Paymaster General—25 June 2007, Official Report, column 418W, 31 January 2008, Official Report, column 682W, and 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 152W—where elements of the requested information have been provided. The remaining information is detailed in the following table.

[1] Average call handling time is the time spent by the customer on the phone together with any additional time taken by the adviser after the call to complete any tasks.
[2] Average time to talk to adviser is the time taken for the call to be answered by an adviser once the caller has selected an option from the call steering menu.
[3] Calls received, where the caller selected an option from the call steering menu and the call was placed into the queue to speak to an adviser.
[4] Handled, where the caller spoke to an adviser.
[5] Abandoned, where the call was disconnected after the caller selected an option from the call steering menu, but before being connected to speak to an adviser.
[6] Engaged and busy, where the caller was played either a busy message or received the engaged tone when they rang.

Note:
With the exception of times, figures are shown in thousands.

Average call times on the tax credits helpline fluctuate according to peaks in the business. The peak in demand in July reflects the tax credits renewals statutory deadline date of 31 July. There is an increasing trend, encouraged by HMRC, towards renewing by telephone rather than by post. This has been shown to provide more accurate, up-to-date information, and so reduce overpayments.

Between 1 December 2006 and 31 November 2008, on average, it took between 16 and 24 seconds for calls to be answered. For the number of calls to the hon. Members' tax credit helpline handled by the Tax Credit Office MP hotline, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave her on 10 December 2008, Official Report, columns 199-200W.

Information about the number of calls received and unanswered is provided in the following table.

TRANSPORT

A40: Pembrokeshire

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what assessment he has made of the quality of the single carriageway section of the A40 in Pembrokeshire; [248624]

(2) what recent representations he has received on the merits of dualling the A40 in Pembrokeshire? [248737]

Paul Clark: The Welsh Assembly Government is responsible for motorways and trunk roads in Wales, including the A40 in Pembrokeshire.

Aviation: Compensation

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to the answer of 13 November 2008, Official Report, column 1285W, on aviation: compensation, whether he has concluded his review of protection of air passengers; and if he will make a statement. [249512]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government's work on short-term measures to improve passengers' experience in any future airline or tour operator failure is nearing completion. This work has comprised:

a study of the feasibility of using an insolvent airline's aircraft and crew to return passengers home. This has concluded that the temporary prolongation of the life of a failed airline to carry out repatriation is unlikely to the best solution even if operationally convenient, because of the need to settle the airline's outstanding liabilities and indemnify the administrator against potential losses from operating the airline.

exploring better information for consumers to increase awareness of their options for protection against airline or tour operator insolvency when making a booking. I expect this work to come to fruition shortly. Concurrent measures to improve the information provided to ATOL-protected passengers on their travel paperwork aim to enforce increased awareness of their rights.

exploring ways to improve the information flow to passengers abroad in the event of airline or tour operator failure, especially about the availability of special repatriation fares with other airlines.

monitoring the development of the insurance market. Since the failure of the XL Leisure Group, demand has led to increased availability of Scheduled Airline Failure Insurance either as a stand-alone product or as an optional or standard part of a travel insurance policy.

The Government have not yet reached decisions on whether any longer term changes are necessary but are continuing to discuss this with stakeholders.

B4008

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been spent by (a) the Highways Agency and (b) Gloucestershire county council on the B4008 since the opening of junction 12 on the M5. [248239]

Paul Clark: The Highways Agency has not spent any money on the B4008 because, as part of the local highway network, it is the responsibility of Gloucestershire county council.

We have been advised by Gloucestershire county council that, since Junction 12 of the M5 became an all-movements junction in 2003, the council have spent £171,000 on surfacing at Standish in 2004-05 and £93,000 on Standish Railway Bridge in 2007-08.

Biofuels

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he will take to reinstate the inclusion of indirect land-use impacts in EU biofuel sustainability criteria. [249624]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Indirect land use impacts will be taken into account by the European Commission for the first time as part of the Renewable Energy Directive (RED). The Commission will report on the impact of indirect land use change, and, if appropriate, propose a methodology to take account of the greenhouse gas emissions caused by indirect land use change, by 31 December 2010 for agreement by the European Council and European Parliament by 2012.

The UK will continue to be instrumental in promoting sustainable biofuels. Accordingly we will use our research programme to help ensure that the development of an EU-wide methodology is based on the best available science.

Dartford-Thurrock Crossing: Tolls

Angela Watkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the revenue from the Dartford river crossing was in the last financial year for which figures are available; and what proportion of that figure represented profit. [249613]

Paul Clark: Details of the annual total revenues from the Dartford crossing are placed in the House Library. The latest available figures of £69 million are for 2006-07. Revenues from the crossing must by law be spent on transport.

Driving Tests: Motorcycles

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the suitability of locations required for multi-purpose testing sites for motorcycles; and whether he has made an assessment of whether a minimum and maximum distance is required between these sites. [248578]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 19 January 2009]: Following an extensive public consultation exercise on the implementation of the new motorcycle test, the Driving Standards Agency (DSA) recognised that a network of multi-purpose test centres (MPTCs) would be needed to deliver the new motorcycle test.

The criterion used for establishing this network was that most motorcycle candidates should have to travel no more than 20 miles or 45 minutes to a MPTC. While not every candidate would be able to reach a test centre within this time/distance criterion, DSA had to strike a balance between convenience for candidates and the efficient provision of testing services.

A key factor in deciding on search areas was the need to identify sites which would give the best geographical coverage for most test candidates and where MPTCs would be used efficiently based on demand for tests in those localities. It follows that those areas with a high population density were the main search locations.

Driving Under Influence

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the estimated cost is of introducing the new roadside breath screening devices with data capture functions to police forces in England and Wales. [248992]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The cost to the Department for Transport of funding the purchase of these devices for every police force in England and Wales is £1.9 million.

Electrification: Barking

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions he has had with (a) Network Rail and (b) Transport for London on electrification of the Barking to Gospel Oak section of the North London line. [249091]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport is working closely with Transport for London as it reviews the business case for electrifying the Barking to Gospel Oak line.

Electrification: East Midlands

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects to be able to make an announcement about electrification of the East Midland line north of Bedford to Sheffield. [249771]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport is working closely with the rail industry to examine the case for further rail electrification. A decision on the electrification of the Midland Main Line will be announced later this year.

Haulage: Carbon Emissions

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department has spent to assist road haulage companies to reduce (a) greenhouse gas emissions, (b) other emissions and (c) fuel costs in the last five years. [247555]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport assists the road haulage industry through two key programmes, the Freight Best Practice (FBP) programme and the Safe And Fuel Efficient Driving (SAFED) programme. These provide advice, tools and training programmes which reduce CO_2 and other emissions as a direct consequence of reduced consumption of fossil fuel. We have invested £7 million in FBP and £7.5 million in SAFED since 2003. The latest assessment of the effectiveness of the programmes in 2006 showed them to have saved around 120,000 tonnes of CO_2 and 52,000 tonnes of CO_2 respectively each year since 2005.

The Department for Transport funding for these programmes applies to England only. The current FBP programme has the facility to be supported by funding from the devolved Administrations while maintaining a single management process. This is proving attractive and cost-effective for them with Scotland and Northern Ireland currently funding specific programme activities for their areas.

Heathrow Airport: Air Routes

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what effect the adoption of dual mode use of the runways at London Heathrow Airport would have on the Terminal Control North flight routing redesign proposals made by National Air Traffic Services. [248651]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I refer the hon. Member to my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport's statement of 15 January 2009, Official Report, columns 355-60, on Britain's transport infrastructure in which he made clear that the Government did not support the adoption of mixed mode (using existing runways for both arrivals and departures) at Heathrow airport.

Heathrow Airport: Noise

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of people living in the London Borough of Havering who would be subject to additional aircraft noise should dual mode use of the runways at London Heathrow Airport be adopted. [248650]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Noise impacts of possible development options at Heathrow were presented in the November 2007 consultation document but not borough by borough. We announced on 15 January our decision not to support mixed mode on the existing runways as an interim measure ahead of a third runway.

Helicopters

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to ensure that complaints about helicopter noise are collated in one place and made available to the public. [248885]

Jim Fitzpatrick: It has not been the practice for the Department for Transport to collate complaints about helicopter noise and there are no plans to do so.

The Civil Aviation Authority's Directorate of Airspace Policy (CAA/DAP) has developed a strategy for answering helicopter noise complaints. This includes a well publicised contact point that receives noise complaints from across the UK. Further details are available on the CAA website at:

www.caa.co.uk

CAA/DAP supplied information on complaint statistics to help inform the DEFRA sponsored research by Salford university into improving the management of noise from helicopter operations. 370 complaints had been received in 2007 although a number of helicopter operations are not included (e.g. military helicopters and complaints received by aerodromes, helicopter operators and local authorities.)

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will impose restrictions on the use of helicopters for advertising; and if he will make a statement. [248886]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The use of aircraft, including helicopters, for aerial advertising is already regulated by section 82 of the Civil Aviation Act 1982 and by the Civil Aviation (Aerial Advertising) Regulations 1995.

While in the air, such aircraft must also comply with the Rules of the Air Regulations 2007, and any relevant air traffic control directions.

Level Crossings: Frinton-on-Sea

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has received about proposed changes to the level crossing in Frinton-on-Sea from people resident in the area. [248576]

Paul Clark: To date, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has received representations from 16 residents of Frinton-on-Sea, regarding the proposed changes to that town's level crossing. Representations have also been received from nine organisations connected with the area.

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions he has had with the Office of the Rail Regulator on changes to the level crossing in Frinton-on-Sea. [249606]

Paul Clark: Officials from the Department for Transport and the Office of Rail Regulation (ORR) met on 2 October 2008 to discuss Network Rail's application to make changes to the level crossing in Frinton-on-Sea.

The Department received, on 9 January 2009, all the papers relating to the Frinton Level Crossing Order application from the Office of Rail Regulation, and a decision will be taken soon.

Local Government: Transport

Ms Angela C. Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the regulations and guidance on the quality contracts provisions of the Local Transport Act 2008 will come into force; and how many officials in his Department are exclusively or primarily working on preparation of guidance and regulations under the Act. [248623]

Paul Clark: We intend to consult on the draft regulations and guidance for the quality contracts provisions of the Local Transport Act 2008 in spring 2009, with a view to the provisions coming into force in autumn 2009.

There are many officials contributing to the work on the guidance and regulations associated with the Act, of whom two are working primarily on the quality contracts provisions.

M5

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the timescale is for the proposed improvements for junction 12 on the M5; to what extent such improvements are contingent upon the Hunts Grove development; what account has been taken of the effect on the B4008 if the junction's improvements go ahead; and if he will make a statement. [248238]

Paul Clark: A timescale for improvements to Junction 12 of the M5 is in the process of being re-determined as we work towards making a public funding contribution to the proposals in recognition of existing operational problems at the junction which should be addressed. This will enable a scheme with a mixture of public and private money to be progressed.

This arrangement will allow the scheme to move forward without being contingent upon a start of works being made on the Hunts Grove development, which we anticipate during the next financial year.

The improvement scheme would result in some additional traffic on the B4008, and we are assessing the effect as part of the scheme's design which is currently being reviewed.

Motorways: Expenditure

Lorely Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of the capital spending being brought forward by his Department will be spent on increasing motorway and highway capacity; which schemes will receive funds from this pool; and what increase in capacity he expects will be received by March 2010. [247832]

Paul Clark: In November 2008 the Chancellor announced, as part of his pre-Budget report, that £700 million of fiscal stimulus funding was being brought forward by the Department for Transport.

£400 million of this will be used by the Highways Agency in 2009-10 to bring forward high value schemes on the strategic roads network. This includes, subject to completing statutory processes and confirmation of co-funding from the region, bringing forward by two years the start of construction for the scheme to dual the A46 from Newark to Widmerpool. In addition, the funding will allow us to bring forward work to strengthen hardshoulders in advance of the implementation of hard shoulder running as well as other high value structure and asset renewal projects.

The exact schemes that will benefit from the fiscal stimulus is being developed as part of developing the Highways Agency's 2009-10 business plan.

Newquay Airport: Finance

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much (a) UK public funding and (b) EU funding has been spent on Newquay International Airport to support the development of new routes from that airport; and if he will make a statement. [249033]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 19 January 2009]: No UK or EU funding on the development of new routes from Newquay International airport has been spent. Support for new route development has come from within the airport's own resources and not from national or EU funding sources.

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been spent by (a) Cornwall County Council, (b) the South West Regional Development Agency and (c) the EU in the development and operation of Newquay International Airport in Cornwall in the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [249034]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The South West Regional Development Agency (RDA) has spent £1.3 million and the EU has spent £13.75 million on the development and operation of Newquay International airport in the last five years.

The RDA has also approved an additional £9.3 million, which has yet to be spent.

Expenditure by Cornwall county council on their total spend on Newquay International airport is a matter for them. The Government do not have this information.

Railway Stations: Disabled

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which railway stations in Wave One of the Access for All strategy are (a) fully completed, (b) started but not completed and (c) not yet started. [249529]

Paul Clark: Of the 50 stations in the first Tranche (2006-09) of Access for All works the following 17 are complete:

Balham, Exeter Central, Haslemere, Hazel Grove, Herne Hill, Kidderminster, Kingston, Orpington, Purley, Sandhills, Sleaford, Taunton, Westbury, Weybridge, Barrhead, Kirkcaldy and Mount Florida.

Additionally, Boston station has been brought forward from the second Tranche and is complete.

Work has started on site but is not complete at the following 12 stations:

Clapham Junction, Fazakerley, Lewisham, Loughborough, Oxted, Shipley, Staplehurst, Streatham Hill, Three Bridges, Twyford, Motherwell and Rutherglen.

The remaining 21 stations in the first Tranche are in design and procurement, have begun preparatory works on site or prefabrication works off site.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department has (a) budgeted and (b) spent on Wave One of the Access for All strategy in (i) 2006-07, (ii) 2007-08 and (iii) 2008-09, broken down by railway station. [249530]

Paul Clark: Assets created by the Access for All Programme are added to the Regulatory Asset Base (RAB) by Network Rail, who have a target to invest approximately £35 million, at 2004 prices, for each full year of the programme through to 2015.

Network Rail's actual spend over the first three years is as follows:

	£ million
2006-07	19.4
2007-08	32.4
2008-09	[1]30.9

[1] As at January 2009 with £36 million forecast total.

Historical information on individual station budgets and actual spend, broken down by year, is held by Network Rail and their contractors and is not stated here due to its commercial sensitivity.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the guidelines for the completion of improvements to station buildings and platforms in Wave One of the Access for All strategy are. [249531]

Paul Clark: Each station selected for the Access for All programme will receive an obstacle free, accessible route into and out of the station, and between each platform. Work is being carried out to the standards specified in "Accessible Train and Station Design for Disabled People: A Code of Practice". This is available to download at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/access/cop

Railways

Ms Angela C. Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the rate of change in passenger numbers for (a) Northern Rail, (b) Transpennine Express and (c) the franchises that provide commuter services in London and the South East has been in each of the last five years. [248628]

Paul Clark: Statistics on rail passenger numbers are published by the Office of Rail Regulation (ORR) in the National Rail Trends Yearbook, which is available in the House Library, or from the ORR website www.rail-reg.gov.uk.

Railways: Adlington

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what consultation with passengers took place before the change to the timetable was made by Northern Rail to reduce services between Adlington and (a) Manchester and (b) Preston. [248369]

Paul Clark: Northern's proposed timetable for December 2008 was discussed with stakeholders at a meeting in April 2008 which included representatives from Greater Manchester Passenger Transport Executive, Lancashire county council, Rail User Groups from the North West and the independent national rail consumer watchdog, Passenger Focus.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the effect of the recent changes to the timetable for rail services from Adlington to (a) Manchester and (b) Preston on commuters using the services. [248466]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport meets Northern Rail on a four weekly basis to review delivery of rail services and its ability to meet passenger requirements, particularly noting timetable changes.

Railways: Bus Services

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department has spent on rail replacement bus services between (a) Manchester and Leeds, (b) York and Leeds, (c) Hull and Leeds and (d) Sheffield and Leeds in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [248607]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport has spent nothing on these services.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been spent on rail replacement bus services in Yorkshire and the Humber in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [248608]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport does not hold this information.

Railways: Expenditure

Ms Angela C. Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been spent to date on preparation for (a) Crossrail and (b) the Manchester Hub. [248627]

Paul Clark: As of 31 December 2008 approximately £175 million has been spent on preparation of the Crossrail project.

The Department for Transport has not undertaken expenditure to date on preparatory work for the Manchester Hub, other than officials' time. The Manchester Hub studies are being carried out and funded by Northern Way and Network Rail.

Railways: Overcrowding

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to the answer of 25 November 2008, Official Report, column 1189W, on railways: overcrowding, when the refurbishment programme will be completed; and whether the 13 per cent. increase in seating capacity will also apply during rush hour periods. [249198]

Paul Clark: The refurbishment programme is contracted to be completed by 31 December 2010.

Seating capacity of all East Midlands Trains 'Class 158' trains will be increased by 13 per cent. as part of the interior refurbishment. Therefore, this increased capacity will be available on all services operated by these trains.

Railways: South East

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions he (a) has had and (b) plans to have with the Association of Train Operating Companies on the introduction of railcards for train journeys (i) commencing and (ii) ending outside South East England; what his policy is on railcards; and if he will make a statement. [247999]

Paul Clark: The Secretary of State requires franchised train companies to accept the 16 to 25, senior and disabled person's railcards. These offer 34 per cent. off most journeys, though the specific terms vary for each card. He has not had discussions with ATOC on the card described, though officials meet with ATOC on various ticketing issues on a regular basis.

Railways: Sustainable Development

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he plans to take to make fast rail services environmentally sustainable. [247965]

Paul Clark: Rail generally performs well from an environmental perspective compared to other transport modes. It accounts for less than 1 per cent. of total UK carbon emissions.

The Department for Transport is working closely with the rail industry to improve the environmental performance of train services, for example, through facilitating the introduction of on-train energy meters and regenerative braking. We are including stringent environmental targets in new franchises and in the specification of new train designs such as the Intercity Express. All proposals for new rail schemes are appraised against a range of environmental criteria.

Roads: Trans-European Networks

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the quality of those sections of the Trans-European Road network which lie within the UK. [248625]

Paul Clark: The Highways Agency (HA), on behalf of the Secretary of State for Transport, is the highway authority for the strategic road network in England, which includes the vast majority of the Trans European Road Network (TERN) in England.

The Highways Agency is responsible for ensuring that the strategic road network is maintained in a safe and reliable condition. As part of this, it undertakes an annual survey of the network.

The condition of the Trans European Rail Network in Scotland and Wales is the responsibility of Scottish Ministers and the Welsh Assembly Government respectively.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his duties are in respect of the section of the Trans-European Road Network which lies within the UK. [248909]

Paul Clark: The Trans-European Network—Transport (TEN-T) programme finances infrastructure projects and studies for roads and other transport modes on the TEN-T network.

The Department for Transport has policy responsibility for the TEN-T programme, representing and pursuing the UK interests in Brussels.

The Department for Transport is also responsible for co-ordinating and presenting bids for funding from the programme for UK infrastructure projects. These can come from a variety of project sponsors including the devolved Administrations, regional assemblies and the Highways Agency. In 2007, we secured €80.71 million funding for a road package comprising works in England and Northern Ireland.

Roads: Wales

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions he has had with (a) Welsh Assembly Government Ministers and (b) his Irish counterparts on the quality of trunk road connections in Wales serving UK-Irish ferry ports. [248621]

Paul Clark: No recent discussions have been held with Welsh Assembly Government Ministers or Irish ministers about the quality of trunk road connections in Wales serving UK-Irish ferry ports. Trunk roads in Wales are a matter for the Welsh Assembly Government.

Speed Limits

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what research he has commissioned or evaluated on the introduction of speed suppressors into cars and lorries to enable those vehicles to keep within speed limits; and what his policy is on the use of such equipment. [240144]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport recently completed research into intelligent speed adaptation (ISA) systems, the main aim of which was to look at the effect on driver behaviour over time. This found that ISA has the potential to reduce the number of deaths and injuries on our roads, suggesting that ISA could be a useful road safety feature for drivers who wish to use it.

The results were published on 15 September 2008 and the final report and an executive summary were placed in the Libraries of both Houses. The report is also available on the internet at:

www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/roads/vehicles/intelligentspeedadapt.

Data from this work have subsequently been used by the Commission for Integrated Transport and the Motorists' Forum for independent research looking at speed limit adherence and its effect on road safety and climate change. The Department was represented in an advisory capacity on the working group for this research. We have received a copy of their report which was published on 30 December 2008. We are clear that any future use of ISA should be taken forward by the motoring industry in response to consumer demand, just as with other technologies available for consumers to purchase if they so choose. We are working with industry and other stakeholders to facilitate the future availability of the technology.

Traffic Lights

Mr. Ames: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much revenue red light cameras have generated in (a) the Metropolitan Police area of London and (b) Essex in each year since 2001; and how much of that revenue has been spent in Essex. [247996]

Paul Clark: Information in the form requested is not held by the Department for Transport. The Department only holds information about cameras operating under the National Safety Camera Programme. This ended on 31 March 2007 and did not record fine revenue from red light and speed cameras separately.

Transport: Middlesbrough

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what green travel incentives are offered to people working in Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency. [247979]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport provides funding for Middlesbrough and Redcar and Cleveland borough councils through their local transport plan and revenue support grant allocations. Such funding can be used to support sustainable travel initiatives. In addition, we publish guidance on the development of travel plans and encourage partnership working between the public and private sectors to deliver opportunities for individuals to choose more sustainable travel options.

Specific initiatives that exist within the constituency area of Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland would be best provided by the local authorities mentioned previously and/or by canvassing local businesses.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Democratic Republic of Congo: Overseas Aid

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what funds the Government has provided to the disarmament and demobilisation programmes of Mai Mai groups in (a) south Kivu and (b) the rest of Democratic Republic of Congo where the Mai Mai are active. [249528]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The UK has contributed US$35 million to a World Bank led Multi-Country Demobilisation and Reintegration Programme (MDRP), which supports the demobilisation and reintegration of ex-combatants in the greater Great Lakes region of Central Africa . The largest programme of its kind in the world, the MDRP, with a budget of US$500 million, targets an estimated 450,000 ex-combatants in seven countries, including the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC). The programme has already funded the demobilisation and reintegration of more than 100,000 former combatants in DRC.

Of the 100,000 who have benefited from the programme 33,708 were from Mai Mai groups, of which 28,235 were demobilised and the remaining 5,503 were integrated into the army. We do not have a breakdown for South Kivu. One challenge for the MDRP has been the large number of supposed 'combatants' who have tried to enter the programme without a weapon to hand in (a necessary determinant of eligibility). The United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) is currently developing complementary community reintegration programming to target those who do not meet the eligibility criteria for the national MDRP programme.

Mr. Douglas Alexander: A summary of the main categories of expenditure is included in the Department for International Development's (DFID) Resource Accounts for 2006-07 (published in July 2007) and 2007-08 (published in July 2008). These are available on the DFID website:

http://www.dfid.gov.uk/

Mr. Michael Foster: The external review team was paid £80,222.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many of his Department's employees have been (a) investigated, (b) disciplined following investigation and (c) dismissed following investigation since the inception of the Fraud Response Unit. [246889]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I refer my hon. Friend to the answers given to the hon. Member for Sutton Coldfield (Mr. Mitchell) on 15 October 2009, Official Report, column 1340W and 29 October 2008, Official Report column 1163W.

Departmental Equality

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the role of his Department's Diversity Champion is; and what the process for selecting the champion is. [246910]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Working in a global environment means that diversity is at the heart of the Department for International Development's (DFID) business. DFID's Director General Diversity Champion is fully committed to the legal, economic and moral imperatives which help develop DFID into a flexible, imaginative and diverse Department. DFID's Diversity Champion is fully involved in taking steps to raise awareness and integrate all strands of diversity to maximise the potential and contribution of all staff to realise our goals.

DFID's Director General Diversity Champion role is rotated every few years among DFID's four Director Generals. DFID does not have a formal process for selecting a Director General for the Diversity Champion role.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department's performance against each of its diversity targets was at the 2008 deadline. [246911]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development (DFID) set four 2008 diversity targets for women, ethnic minority staff and disabled staff within the senior civil service and women in top management posts. The following table depicts the civil service targets together with DFID's 2008 targets and DFID's performance.

Civil service 2008 targets	DFID 2008 target	Percentage DFID 2008 performance
37 per cent. women in the senior civil service (SCS)	37	37

4 per cent. ethnic minority staff in the SCS	12	11.7
3.2 per cent. disabled staff in the SCS	4	2.1

DFID's diversity monitoring data and analysis for the last three years can be found at:

www.dfid.gov.uk

Departmental Telephone Services

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many telephone numbers for which callers are charged at the rate applicable to 0845 numbers are used by his Department for public access to services. [246976]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development (DFID) uses one 0845 number for our Public Enquiry Point which allows members of the public to call DFID about the work of the Department.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what use (a) his Department and (b) service providers under contract to his Department make of (i) 0844 and 0845 telephone numbers and (ii) revenue-sharing telephone numbers for calls from members of the public; for which services such numbers are used; what prefixes are used for revenue-sharing numbers; how much revenue has accrued from revenue-sharing numbers in each of the last five years; what consideration his Department has given to introducing 03-prefixed telephone numbers for calls to all such services; and if he will make a statement. [247346]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development (DFID) uses one 0845 number for our Public Enquiry Point. We are currently reviewing the relative costs and benefits of alternatives to the 0845 number. DFID does not make use of revenue-sharing numbers.

DFID does not have any contracted public service providers who make use of 0844, 0845 or revenue-sharing numbers.

Departmental Video Conferencing

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the cost has been to his Department of installation of video-conferencing facilities; and whether there are ongoing maintenance contract costs associated with these facilities. [246888]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development (DFID) completed a project in 2008 to refresh the videoconferencing facilities across the organisation. The full cost of this was £785,000. There is an annual cost of £75,000 for maintaining the key components of the videoconferencing infrastructure.

Gaza: Humanitarian Aid

Mr. Godsiff: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what (a) plans and (b) funding allocations have been made for the long-term provision of humanitarian assistance to Gaza. [247038]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: I refer my hon. Friend to the written ministerial statement made on 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 20WS.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance his Department has provided to Gaza since the recent outbreak of conflict there. [247429]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: I refer my hon. Friend to the written ministerial statement made on 19 January 2008, Official Report, column 20WS.

Middle East: Overseas Aid

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much financial assistance was provided by his Department to (a) Palestine and (b) Israel in 2007-08. [249673]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: In 2007-08 the Department for International Development provided a total of £63.6 million in development aid to the Occupied Palestinian Territories.

During the same period we gave no assistance to Israel.

Overseas Aid

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what his most recent assessment is of progress made towards achieving the Millennium Development Goal on maternal health; [248176]

(2) what steps his Department is taking to contribute towards achieving the Millennium Development Goal on maternal health. [248177]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The latest and most comprehensive assessment of global progress towards achieving the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs), including the goal to improve maternal health (MDG 5), is contained in the 2008 United Nations Millennium Development Goals Report. This noted that the maternal health MDG is severely off-track with little progress having been made in saving mothers' lives. The report is available at:

http://www.un.org/millenniumgoals/pdf/The%20Millennium%20Development%20Goals%20Report%202008.pdf

DFID continues to work to accelerate progress to achieving both the targets of MDG 5. In October 2007 DFID announced an additional £100 million over five years to prevent unwanted pregnancies and make childbirth safer. This money is helping the UN Population Fund provide condoms, contraceptive pills and sexual health advice to poor people in South Asia and Africa. In June 2008, the UK Government announced a commitment to spend £6 billion on improving health systems and services over seven years to 2015.

Work is currently under way to revise and update DFID's Maternal Health strategy for publication later this year. The strategy will set out what DFID will do to contribute to the achievement of the MDG 5 targets. A stakeholder consultation day was held on 13 January 2009 at the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists. Further consultation is planned in the near future.

Somalia: Politics and Government

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment has been made of the humanitarian situation in Somalia; and if he will make a statement. [246167]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The humanitarian situation in Somalia is critical and there is a high risk of further deterioration. The UN has reported that a higher proportion of people in Somalia require relief assistance than in any other country in the world, with 43 per cent. of the population (3.2 million) requiring assistance in 2008. Nearly one sixth of the children in southern and central regions are starving, displacement is very high and ongoing and normal lives are severely disrupted.

The UK contributes substantially to humanitarian responses and committed approximately £27 million during 2008, making the UK the second largest bilateral humanitarian donor. UK funds were also used through our support to the UN Central Emergency Response Fund (CERF), and through our contributions to the European Commission Humanitarian Office (ECHO).

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Bob Spink: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality to which (a) charities and (b) voluntary organisations the Government's Equalities Office has provided funding since it was established; and how much funding was provided to each. [247368]

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how much has been spent on (a) maintaining, (b) decorating and (c) otherwise improving departmental buildings by the Government Equalities Office since its inception; how much has been spent on wallpaper; and what plans there are for further spending on departmental decoration. [248064]

Maria Eagle: The Government Equalities Office leases its accommodation from Communities and Local Government and the Cabinet Office, who are responsible for any maintenance, decoration and improvements.

GEO has not spent any money directly on these areas, and none on wallpaper. The GEO has no plans to spend any money on departmental decoration and the leases it has would not, in any case, permit this.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Scott: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality which (a) food and (b) drinks companies have supplied the Government Equalities Office since its inception; and how much has been paid to each of those suppliers. [248795]

Maria Eagle: Since its creation on 12 October 2007, the GEO has paid £16,437 to food and drink companies for refreshments at GEO events. In most cases, these companies have provided food and drink and we are unable to separate the costs for each. The companies used and the payments made are as follows:

Company	Total expenditure (£)
Avenance Ltd.	97
Beehive Ltd.	182
Cally B	2,820
Company of Cooks Ltd.	465

Public Lavatories: Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what steps she is taking to increase the provision in public buildings of toilets fully accessible to those with disabilities; and if she will make a statement. [248133]

Maria Eagle: The Department for Communities and Local Government are responsible for the Building Regulations 2000. In line with the Disability Discrimination Act, Part M of the Building Regulations (section 5.5—Provision of Toilet Accommodation) states the requirement that toilet accommodation must be suitable for disabled people as well as other people who use public buildings.

PRIME MINISTER

Ministers: Official Residences

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Prime Minister with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 10 November 2008, Official Report, column 823W, on Ministers: official residences, what plans he has to bring forward proposals to repeal those provisions of the Greater London Highways and Road Traffic (Various Provisions) Order 2000 which exempt South Eaton Place from standard parking controls. [245936]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I have been asked to reply.

62 South Eaton Place is protected as part of the Whitehall security zone because it was my right hon. Friend the Member for Sheffield, Brightside (Mr. Blunkett's) place of residence during his time as Home Secretary. In February 2008, Westminster city council submitted an application to the Department for Transport to have the Whitehall security zone reduced to Whitehall and the streets leading from it. The Metropolitan Police Service have now agreed with Westminster's application to reduce the security zone. When the Department receives a formal request to amend the Greater London Highways and Road Traffic (Various Provisions) Order 2000 it will do so.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

AWE Aldermaston

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform for what reason the Government decided to sell the remaining portion of its stake in AWE Aldermaston; and what sum it received from the sale. [247045]

Mr. McFadden: The Government have not sold any of their stake in the Atomic Weapons Establishment itself. All Atomic Weapons Establishment sites and assets remain in Government ownership, as they have done since the Atomic Weapons Establishment was first contractorised in 1993. What happened on 17 December was that BNFL reached agreement to sell its one-third share in AWE Management Limited (AWEML) to Jacobs Engineering Group subject to clearance under EU merger control requirements. AWEML is the consortium of BNFL, Serco and Lockheed Martin that has the 25 year contract with MOD to manage and operate the Atomic Weapons Establishment on MOD's behalf. The sale of the one-third share arose as a result of the dismantling of BNFL and the terms remain confidential between the parties.

Further details of the sale and the nature of AWEML's relationship with AWE plc are given in the written statements that I gave to the House on 12 January this year, Official Report, column 1WS and my right hon. Friend, the previous Secretary of State gave to the House on 16 July 2007, Official Report, column 1WS, respectively.

Broadband Stakeholders Group

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what (a) administrative and (b) financial support his Department has provided for the Broadband Stakeholders Group since it was established. [247422]

Mr. McFadden: This Department contributes to the overall costs of the Broadband Stakeholders Group (BSG) with the remaining costs being provided by public sector membership subscriptions and support from Intellect. The Government's contribution totalled approximately £820,000 over the last five and a half years and the annual percentage contribution from Government has been reduced during this time. The support is for operational and some specific project costs.

This Department does not provide administrative support to the BSG but has representation on the BSG Executive Committee.

The BSG helps advise the Government on Broadband issues of the day and provides an Industry/Government forum for exploring issues relating to the knowledge based economy, and utilisation of digital technologies.

Caio Review

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the (a) total and (b) staffing cost of the Caio Review was. [247434]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 14 January 2009]: The total cost of the Caio Review was approximately £119,500 for the six month period of the review; and includes staffing costs totalling approximately £113,000.

The Government will be responding to the review in due course.

Charities

Bob Spink: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform to which (a) charities and (b) voluntary organisations his Department has provided funding in the last five years; and how much funding was provided to each. [247366]

Mr. McFadden: The Department does not generally make charitable donations but may have given grants to charitable bodies through a number of our programmes, but the status of the organisations are not recorded. The Department, however, does provide grant in aid for operating purposes to the following organisations that are registered as charities. The organisations and amounts are as follows:

£ million

	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08	2008-09
Citizen Advice	23.855	23.855	21.470	21.470	21.470
Citizen Advice Scotland	3.240	3.240	2.916	3.016	3.389

Departmental Languages

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many (a) Ministers and (b) civil servants in his Department received coaching in a foreign language in the last 12 months; what expenditure his Department incurred in providing such coaching; and in what languages such coaching was provided. [248069]

Mr. McFadden: Based on business demand, there are 22 civil servants in the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform receiving language training from our preferred supplier. There are no Ministers receiving departmentally-funded language training.

The total expenditure for 2008 was £13,451.43. Languages undertaken were French, German, Spanish, Polish and Mandarin.

Departmental Marketing

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much his Department has spent on advertising in the last 12 months. [243721]

Mr. McFadden: Central financial records indicate that spending by this Department on advertising in the last financial year was £2,778,400.

Departmental Sick Leave

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many working days have been lost due to sickness amongst employees for which his Department is and its predecessor department was responsible for each year since 1997. [248875]

Mr. McFadden: Cabinet Office has introduced a revised format for reporting sickness absence statistics across the civil service. The new format was introduced at the end of March 2008 and the first report covers the calendar year 2007. It indicates 6.1 average working days lost per employee due to sickness.

Sickness absence data for the Department's predecessor, the Department of Trade and Industry, for 2006-07, 2005, 2004 and 2003, including the average number of days taken as sick leave, are published on the public civil service website:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/statistics/sickness.asp

along with data for other Departments and agencies.

Earlier sickness data are not readily available and the cost of producing these would be disproportionate to the benefit to be derived.

Departmental Telephone Services

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what use (a) his Department and (b) service providers under contract to his Department make of (i) 0844 and 0845 telephone numbers and (ii) revenue-sharing telephone numbers for calls from members of the public; for which services such numbers are used; what prefixes are used for revenue-sharing numbers; how much revenue has accrued from revenue-sharing numbers in each of the last five years; what consideration his Department has given to introducing 03-prefixed telephone numbers for calls to all such services; and if he will make a statement. [247335]

Mr. McFadden: From the central records that are available, (i) there are seven 0845 telephone numbers services administered by the Department for public use. These are

0845 015 0010: BERR Publications Orderline

0845 015 0020: BERR Publications Orderline (Fax)

0845 015 0030: BERR Publications Orderline (Minicom)

0845 019 0001: Personnel Training Services Consortium

0845 600 0678: National Minimum Wage

0845 600 9006: Business Link Helpline

0845 955 5105: Employment Agency Standards.

The Department does not operate any revenue-sharing numbers. No records are held to show if the Department has ever used or benefited financially from revenue-sharing numbers in the past five years.

No telephone information is available from BERR's central records on the use of 0844/5 and revenue-sharing numbers by its contracted service providers

The Department has no immediate plans to use 03 prefixed numbers.

Employment Agency Standards Inspectorate: Manpower

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will increase the number of Employment Agency Standards inspectors and helpline staff; and if he will make a statement. [248372]

Mr. McFadden: The Department has recently doubled the number of Employment Agency Standards inspectors. There has been no increase in the number of helpline/ intelligence staff. There are no plans to make further changes in the immediate future.

It's Your Call Road Show

Mr. Maude: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform with reference to his Department's press release of 18 November 2008, what the budget is for the It's Your Call Road Show; when the road show will (a) commence and (b) conclude; which are the 28 towns and cities it will visit; and what were the criteria by which those locations were selected. [241639]

Mr. McFadden: The budget for the 'Its Your Call' road show is £250,000. The road show was launched on 18 November and commenced in Cardiff on 19 November, it will conclude on 7 February 2009. During this time the road show is visiting; Cardiff, Bristol, Newport, Swansea, Stirling, Kilmarnock, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Leeds, Huddersfield, Sheffield, Norwich, Peterborough, Leicester, Derby, Liverpool, Blackburn, Manchester, Coventry, Nottingham, Birmingham, Newcastle, Middlesbrough, Sunderland, London, Portsmouth and Plymouth. We have chosen locations which have a large number of low paid workers as we want to reach as many people as possible who could be affected by the minimum wage.

Post Offices: Churches

Mr. Drew: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many post office services are accommodated in church buildings; and where each is located. [248148]

Mr. McFadden: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. (POL). I have therefore asked Alan Cook, Managing Director of POL, to reply direct to my hon. Friend.

Copies of the letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Post Offices: Closures

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate Post Office Ltd. has made of the savings from recent post office branch closures. [249221]

Mr. McFadden: Post Office Ltd. is forecasting annual savings of £45 million from post office closures implemented under its Network Change Programme, as part of a wider programme of cost reductions.

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much was spent on the consultation on the recent round of Post Office branch closures. [249313]

Mr. McFadden: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. (POL). I have therefore asked Alan Cook, managing director of POL, to reply direct to the hon. Member. Copies of the letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Proof of Identity: Internet

Margaret Moran: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps he is taking to ensure age verification online by e-tailers. [245249]

Mr. Alan Campbell: I have been asked to reply.

The Government believe the existing legislation relating to consumer protection by age verification is sufficient as these regulations regarding age appropriate goods apply online as they do offline. We expect online and offline retailers to take appropriate measures to ensure that age-restricted goods are not made available to people under the relevant age.

Public Bodies: Billing

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009 to Question 244582, when he expects the first complete figures on performance in making payments to suppliers within 10 days to be available. [248687]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 19 January 2009]: Government Departments will report performance against the new 10-day payment target in their annual reports, following the established procedure for reporting 30-day payment performance.

Achieving the new 10-day target requires changes in systems, guidance and behaviour in both departmental and supplier systems. It is therefore important that we monitor initial progress and I have asked Departments to collect interim data for the months of November and December and then for the quarter ending March 2009. I expect these data to be available at the end of January 2009 and by the end of April 2009 respectively.

Regional Development Agencies

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the operating costs were for each regional development agency in England in (a) 2006, (b) 2007, (c) July 2008, (d) August 2008, (e) September 2008 and (f) October 2008; and what he assesses the effect on for the economy was of the operation of the regional development agencies. [246088]

Mr. McFadden: Operating costs are defined as staffing plus administration costs. The table shows the operating costs for each Regional Development Agency (RDA) for 2006-07 and 2007-08. However, the totals provided for July, August, September and October 2008 are not audited management account figures and therefore some elements included in the statutory accounts such as depreciation charges are excluded from the sums presented.

In relation to the question on benefits to the economy from RDAs operations; the Government have commissioned PricewaterhouseCoopers to conduct an independent evaluation of the economic impact of RDAs. Their report has just been completed and I will be presenting it to the House shortly.

Regional Planning and Development

Mr. Harper: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what functions regional development agencies have to promote economic competition between regions; and if he will make a statement. [248525]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 19 January 2009]: Regional development agencies have the primary purpose of furthering economic development and regeneration in their areas. Ministers have made it clear to RDAs that in rebalancing national and regional efforts, they expect RDAs to avoid duplication and competition among themselves.

There has been, at times, perceived competition for example on Inward Investment projects. However, the UK economy is the winner from such investments in whatever region of the UK that brings investment and new jobs as well as safeguarding existing jobs.

Royal Mail

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will establish a mechanism to ensure that the private sector partner for Royal Mail may never take a majority stake; what new technology will be put in place across Royal Mail; what the timetable for the tender process will be; and if he will make a statement. [248366]

Mr. McFadden: My noble Friend, the Secretary of State said in his statement on 16 December 2008 that his Department will want to study the report in detail and he would respond with a full statement of Government policy in the early part of next year. He was clear that the proposed partnership is on a minority basis and the Government have a commitment to keep Royal Mail publicly owned.

What technology is rolled out across Royal Mail is a matter for the company's management and I have asked Adam Crozier to respond direct to my hon. Friend on this. I will ensure that copies of his reply are in the Libraries of the House.

The detailed process, and timetable for engaging with those interested in entering into a partnership with Royal Mail, is still being developed but it is expected to commence early this year.

Royal Mail: Pay

Colin Burgon: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what remuneration package the Chairman of Royal Mail received in respect of the financial year 2007-08; and how many days he worked as Chairman of the Board in 2007-08. [247870]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 15 January 2009]: In 2007-08, Allan Leighton received £200,000 in remuneration for working his contractual two-day week obligation to Royal Mail, which he fulfilled.

Small Businesses: North West

Mark Hunter: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many small to medium-sized enterprises were registered in (a) the North West, (b) Stockport Metropolitan Borough Council area and (c) Cheadle constituency in each year since 1997. [244812]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 18 December 2008]: Estimates of the number of registered small to medium-sized enterprises, in each of the last five years, are not available below the regional level.

Only data for businesses of all sizes registered for VAT are published by BERR. It is estimated that the majority (97.9 per cent.) of these will be small (with fewer than 50 employees) and a further 1.7 per cent. will be medium-sized (with 50-249 employees).

The number of businesses registered for VAT in Stockport metropolitan borough, Cheadle and the North West for the start of 1997 to the start of 2008 is shown in the following table.

Start of year stock of VAT-registered businesses, 1997-2008

The number of VAT-registered businesses in Stockport metropolitan borough rose from 7,840 at the start of 1997 to 9,435 at the start of 2008—a rise of 20 per cent.

The number of VAT-registered businesses in Cheadle rose from 2,475 at the start of 1997 to 3,015 at the start of 2008—a rise of 22 per cent.

The number of VAT-registered businesses in the North West rose from 160,165 at the start of 1997 to 194,695 at the start of 2008—a rise of 22 per cent.

VAT registrations do not capture all business activity. Businesses are unlikely to be registered if they fall below the compulsory VAT threshold, which was £64,000 at the start of 2007. Only 1.96 million out of 4.7 million UK enterprises (42 per cent.) were registered for VAT at the start of 2007.

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many small and medium-sized enterprises were registered in (a) Stockport Metropolitan Borough, (b) Greater Manchester and (c) the North West in each of the last five years. [246075]

Ian Pearson: Estimates of the number of registered small to medium-sized enterprise, in each of the last five years, are not available below the regional level.

Only data for businesses of all sizes registered for VAT are published by BERR. It is estimated that the majority (97.9 per cent.) of these will be small (with fewer than 50 employees) and a further 1.7 per cent. will be medium-sized (with 50 to 249 employees).

The number of businesses registered for VAT in Stockport metropolitan borough, Greater Manchester and the north-west for the start of 2004 to the start of 2008 is shown in the following table.

Start of year stock of VAT-registered businesses, 2004-08

Small Businesses: Procurement

Justine Greening: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate his Department has made of the cost of running the Supply2.gov.uk website in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08; and what he estimates this cost to be in 2008-09. [246769]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 12 January 2009]: The supply2.gov.uk site is operated under a concession type contract with the supplier carrying the commercial risk. In 2008-09 BERR funded the provision of a free trial for businesses which ran between 1 May and 31 July 2008, at a cost of £110,310 (ex VAT). No other payments have been made in relation to the portal.

Justine Greening: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many businesses were registered with Supply2.gov.uk in each month since June 2006; and how many he expects to register in each month to March 2009. [246770]

Working Hours: EU Law

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the implications of the European Parliament's vote on the Working Time Directive on 17 December 2008 for his Department's policy on the Directive. [248367]

Mr. McFadden: The UK is one of 14 member states that enables workers to opt-out of the maximum 48-hour working week, should they wish to do so. This flexibility is used by over three million employees in the UK who choose to work longer hours. Loss of this opt-out would therefore cost the UK billions both in costs to industry and lost earnings. As a result, it could also only have a negative impact on overall employment levels.

The Government remain committed to fight for the continuation of this important flexibility and will be calling on the European Council to reject the damaging amendments on the Working Time Common Position adopted by the European Parliament.

JUSTICE

Animal Welfare: Convictions

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people have been convicted of crimes involving cruelty to animals in each year since 1997. [248357]

Maria Eagle: Data showing the number of persons found guilty at all courts for offences involving animal cruelty, in England and Wales from 1997 to 2007 (Latest available) are in the following table.

The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

[3] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. Coroners and Justice Bill 2008-09

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what proposals he has to ensure security of personal data under legislative proposals for increased data sharing in the Coroners and Justice Bill. [247966]

Mr. Wills: All Government Departments must comply with the Data Protection Act 1998 (DPA) when sharing personal data and must also meet the mandatory requirements on holding personal information, as set out in the Cabinet Office's Data Handling Review.

Under the power contained in Part 8 of the Coroners and Justice Bill, the Government proposes that all information-sharing orders must be necessary to achieve a specified purpose, proportionate and strike a fair balance between the public interest and the rights of the individual to privacy. Ministers who wish to make an information-sharing order will need to prepare a privacy impact assessment; invite representations from any person affected by it and take these representations into account; and give the Information Commissioner the opportunity to report independently on the proposal. Any information-sharing order will be subject to affirmative resolution by both Houses of Parliament.

In addition to the Information Commissioner's current powers to assess a data controller's compliance under the DPA, the Coroners and Justice Bill also proposes to create a new compulsory assessment for public bodies.

Coroners: Armed Forces

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many applications for legal aid have been made in order to secure legal representation at the inquest into the deaths of armed forces personnel since January 2003; and how many such applications have been granted. [247783]

Mr. Malik: Applications for exceptional funding are made to the Legal Services Commission (LSC), the independent body which administers the legal aid scheme, in the first instance. Exceptional funding legal aid can be granted by the Ministry of Justice (MoJ) on the recommendation of the LSC for representation at inquests, if the exceptional funding criteria are met.

The LSC does not break down the number of applications it receives for representation at inquests by category of inquest.

The MoJ has received applications relating to 16 military inquests since January 2003 and has granted funding for all 16 inquests.

Courts: Per Capita Costs

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average cost per prisoner per night of housing a prisoner in a court cell was in each of the last 12 months. [248008]

Mr. Straw: NOMS paid contractors standby and activation costs to staff court cells in eight courts in England and Wales in February 2008 only. The average payment to contractors was £158 per night for each court cell that was available for use. The cost does not include marginal costs such as medical care or utilities and cannot be broken down by month.

Dangerous Dogs: Convictions

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people have been convicted of offences under the Dangerous Dogs Act 1991 in each year since 1997. [247682]

Drugs: Convictions

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people have been convicted of drug offences in each year since 1997. [247708]

Maria Eagle: Information on the number of persons found guilty at all courts for drug offences in England and Wales, 1997 to 2007 are contained in the following table.

These data are on the principal offence basis. The figures given in the table on court proceedings relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. [4] Methylamphetamine previously consulted with Amphetamine as class B drug was separately classified as class A drug on 18 January 2007.

Notes:
1. From 1 June 2000 the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 came into force nationally and removed the use of cautions for persons under 18 and replaced them with reprimands and final warnings. These figures have been included in the totals.
2. The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has committed two or more offences at the same time the principal offence is the more serious offence.
3. These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system.

Euthanasia: Research

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will commission research on the legal implications of euthanasia. [247972]

Mr. Straw: We have no plans to commission any such research. The legal position on euthanasia is clear. It is unlawful in this country and anyone alleged to have undertaken it would be open to a charge of murder or manslaughter.

Family Courts

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will bring forward legislative proposals to allow second opinions in the Family Division without the permission of a judge. [248564]

Bridget Prentice: There are currently no plans to make legislative changes to allow a party to obtain a second opinion of a medical expert for use in a family case without the court's permission.

Life Imprisonment: Prisoners Release

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 18 December 2008, Official Report, column 1013W, on life imprisonment: prisoners release, what period each of the 304 prisoners served in custody before release. [248005]

Mr. Hanson: To provide the information requested will require manual checking of two data bases to ensure a fully accurate reply. This information should be available within two weeks. When the information the Member has requested is available, I will write to him, and a copy will placed in the Library of both Houses.

Prison Officers: Manpower

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prison officers are employed by the Prison Service in England and Wales. [247724]

Mr. Hanson: There are 28,608 officers currently employed in the Prison Service in England and Wales. This figure covers all officer grades across both the public and private sector prisons.

Prison Sentences

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many offenders have been given an indeterminate sentence for public protection in each year since the sentence was introduced. [247926]

Mr. Hanson: The numbers of receptions into the prison estate in England and Wales in each year since 2005 can be found in the following table.

	Indeterminate sentences for public protection
2005	420
2006	1,570
2007	1,747

Note:
Indeterminate sentence for public protection came into effect on 5 April 2005.

This information is taken from table 6.17 of the Offender Management Caseload Statistics, 2007, a copy of which can be found in the House of Commons Library and which can also be found at the following weblink:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/prisonandprobation.htm

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what the average minimum tariff for indeterminate sentences for public protection is; [247927]

(2) how many prisoners serving indeterminate sentences for public protection have been released since its introduction. [247928]

Mr. Hanson: The average tariff, or specified part, for those prisoners serving an indeterminate sentence of imprisonment for public protection, as of 15 January 2009, is 2.97 years. This is based on a sample of 4,689 prisoners.

Since the introduction of indeterminate sentences of imprisonment for public protection, 47 such prisoners serving such sentences have been released during the period up to 15 January 2009. 45 of these have been released by the Parole Board. two were released early by the Secretary of State on compassionate grounds.

These figures are taken from the Public Protection Unit Database (PPUD) within the National Offender Management Service. As with any large scale recording system, it is subject to possible errors arising from either data entry or processing.

Prisoner Escorts: Prisoner Escapes

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) pursuant to the answer to question 245155 on 12 January 2009, for what offences each of the prisoners listed as having escaped from escort since 1998 had originally been convicted; and how many of them remain unlawfully at large; [248575]

(2) pursuant to the answer to question 245155, how many offences were committed by offenders who had escaped from custody while unlawfully at large in the last 10 years; and what the offence was in each case. [249303]

Mr. Hanson: Data on the original offences committed by the 434 escapees from escort shown in the previous answer could be provided only by a detailed analysis of each prisoner record. This would incur disproportionate cost. Data available for the last four financial years, April 2004 to March 2008, show that 13 prisoners are still unlawfully at large following the 104 escort-related escapes over that period.

Data on numbers and types of offence that may have been committed by escapees over this period could be provided only by a detailed analysis of each prisoner record which would incur disproportionate cost.

Prisoners

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners are being held in HM prisons. [247723]

Mr. Hanson: At the end of November 2008, there were 83,423 prisoners detained in all prison establishments in England and Wales. This information is available from the following website, which is updated monthly:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/populationincustody.htm

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 481W, on prisoners, what assessment he has made of the consequences of the absence of a central record of prisoners maintaining innocence; and if he will make a statement. [248062]

Mr. Hanson: The National Offender Management Service (NOMS) works with prisoners to address their offending behaviour and manage their risk of reoffending on the basis that they have been correctly convicted by the courts. As such, a central record of those who maintain their innocence following conviction would serve no useful purpose.

It is also open to any person who believes that they have been wrongly convicted to challenge the safety of their convictions through either the Court of Appeal or the Criminal Cases Review Commission.

Current guidance for Prison Service staff in dealing with prisoners who deny guilt is contained in chapter 7 of (Prison Service Order) PSO 4700 which is available at:

http://pso.hmprisonservice.gov.uk/pso4700/PSO_4700_lifer_manual.doc

Prisoners: Appeals

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what records his Department keeps on the appellant status of prisoners; how many prisoners are currently appealing against their sentence; and how many of them are beyond their original or adjusted tariff. [247745]

Mr. Hanson: The Ministry of Justice does not maintain a central record of the appellant status of prisoners. Therefore, determining how many serving prisoners are currently appealing against their sentence and then of those how many are beyond their original or adjusted tariff would require a manual checking of records, which could be undertaken only at disproportionate cost.

Prisons

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many prisons have been closed in each year since 1997; [247718]

(2) how many prisons spaces have been lost since 1997; [247719]

(3) how many new prison spaces have become available in each year since 1997; [247720]

(4) how many new prisons opened in each year since 1997. [247721]

Mr. Hanson: Since 1997 only two prisons have closed, HMP Aldington in 1999 and HMP The Weare in 2005.

It is not possible to say how many prison places have been taken out of use since 1997 as the total number of prison places fluctuates depending on temporary schemes such as refurbishment and changes in use. Prison places may be permanently taken out of use as a result of prison closures or may be decommissioned due to the unsatisfactory state of the accommodation. Where decommissioned, and as part of our ongoing maintenance programme, many of these have been rebuilt and re-opened as new accommodation.

There are at present five wings/spurs across the estate that are not fit for purpose and are permanently out of use, with a total of around 350 places. This in is in addition to the total of 540 places taken out of use following the closure of the two prisons.

Despite the loss of these places, since 1997 we have overall increased prison capacity and improved the standard of prison accommodation available in both new and existing prisons. We have opened a total of 10 new prisons (see following table):

	Number of new prisons opened
1997	2
1998	1
1999	1
2000	1
2001	2
2002	0
2003	0
2004	1
2005	1
2006	0
2008	0

Overall, we have delivered around 21,000 new places since 1997 through building new prisons and expansions at existing sites. The total delivered each year is set out in the following table.

	Places delivered
1997	4,716
1998	1,222
1999	1,646
2000	640
2001	920
2002	1,780
2003	1,376
2004	2,570
2005	940
2006	900
2007	1,526
2008	2,735

Prisons: Alcoholic Drinks

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps are being taken to reduce alcohol usage in prisons. [247710]

Mr. Hanson: The National Offender Management Service strategy to reduce supply and demand for drugs includes a comprehensive range of security measures and searching techniques to detect items of contraband including alcohol and prevent smuggling into establishments. There is also a treatment framework to address prisoners' alcohol-related problems, which provides a bench-mark against which prisons can formulate an appropriate local response.

In order to reduce alcohol usage, prisons deploy a robust and comprehensive range of security measures and searching techniques as part of their individual searching strategies in order to detect items of contraband and prevent their importation into establishments, as set out in the National Offender Management Service (NOMS) National Security Framework (NSF).

Prisons: Drugs

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps are being taken to reduce drug usage in prisons. [247711]

Mr. Hanson: The National Offender Management Service has in place a comprehensive drug strategy for prisons. It has three key elements:

i. reducing supply, through security measures and drug testing programmes;

ii. reducing demand, through targeted interventions for low, moderate and severe drug-misusers; and

iii. establishing effective through-care links to ensure continuity of treatment post-release in order to safeguard the gains made in custody.

The success of the drug strategy is illustrated by the reduction of drug misuse in prisons, as measured by the random mandatory drug testing (rMDT) programme. The positive rate for MDT has dropped from 24.4 per cent. in 1996-97 to 9.1 per cent. in 2007-08—a fall of 63 per cent.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans there are to increase the number of places on courses for serving prisoners dealing with drugs and alcohol. [247712]

Mr. Hanson: Prison drug treatment funding has increased year on year since 1996-97—up nearly 13-fold, with record numbers in treatment.

The Department of Health plans to increase the level of funding for the clinical elements of the integrated drug treatment system by £13.6 million in 2009-10 and a further £4 million in 2010-11.

The Government have established the Prison Drug Treatment Review Group, chaired by Professor Lord Kamlesh Patel, which will make recommendations for the continued development of prison drug treatment, informed by recommendations arising from a review of prison drug treatment funding conducted by PricewaterhouseCoopers (PwC) in 2007.

A range of interventions are already available in prisons to support those with an alcohol problem:

clinical services—alcohol detoxification is available in all local and remand prisons; where alcohol is part of a wider substance misuse problem, the full range of drug interventions are available;

a number of prisons run alcohol awareness courses;

Alcoholics Anonymous (AA) run groups in around 67 per cent. of prisons;

some offending behaviour programmes address the underlying factors which occur in alcohol related crime; an accredited 12-step alcohol programme is being run at HMP Bullingdon; four accredited intensive interventions are being run at HMP Hull, Forest Bank, Glen Parva and Chelmsford based on Cognitive Behavioural Therapy; for those prisons(ers) involved in the roll-out of the Integrated Drug Treatment System (IDTS) a 90 minute alcohol awareness session has been developed; and the young persons substance misuse service for 16 to 18-year-old prisoners has a particular focus on alcohol.

The Ministry of Justice has established a Working Group to develop proposals to increase the provision of alcohol treatment available in prisons.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners are on courses dealing with drug and alcohol abuse. [247713]

Mr. Hanson: The number of interventions delivered in the last full financial year (2007-08) is shown in the following table. Individual prisoners will often receive more than one of these interventions.

Intervention type	Interventions delivered 2007-08
Intensive Drug Rehabilitation Programmes (starts)[1]	11,319
CARATs (substance misuse triage assessments)	65,823
YPSMS[2]	7,381
Substance misuse detoxification programmes[3]	46,291
Maintenance prescribing programmes	12,518

[1] Programmes available in prison are split into four main categories: cognitive-behavioural therapy (CBT), The 12-Step approach Therapeutic Communities (TCs), Short Duration Programme (SDP)
[2] Young People's Substance Misuse Services—a specialist service for 15 to 17-year-olds
[3] Drug and alcohol detoxification data cannot be disaggregated

These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system.

The National Offender Management Service does not collate figures on the number of prisoners accessing treatment services specifically aimed at their alcohol misuse.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many places on courses dealing with drug and alcohol abuse are available for serving prisoners in 2008-09. [247714]

Mr. Hanson: The National Offender Management Service (NOMS) has in place a comprehensive drug treatment framework, based on the National Treatment Agency's revised Models of Care, to address the different needs of drug-misusers in prison. The interventions available are designed to meet the needs of low, moderate and severe drug misusers—irrespective of age, gender or ethnicity.

Delivery targets for 2008-09 are given in the following table.

Intervention type	Delivery commitment made by all prisons (England/Wales) 2008-09
Clinical Services—entrants to detoxification and maintenance-prescribing programmes	[1]—
CARATs—Substance-Misuse Triage Assessments (SMTAs) Conducted[2]	58,330
Drug rehabilitation programmes—entrants	10,934
Drug rehabilitation programmes completions (percentage of entrants)	65

[1] DH does not record establishments' delivery commitments, but national delivery is predicted to at least meet last year's outturn of 58,809.
[2] This excludes assessments made by Young People's Substance Misuse Services (YPSMS).
Note:
Prisoners will often receive more than one type of intervention.

Prisons have in place a range of interventions to support those with an alcohol problem.

The National Offender Management Service (NOMS) does not collate figures on the number of treatment places specifically for alcohol misuse.

Prisons: Mental Health Services

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what consideration he has given to the merits of recording prison psychological interviews using the same procedures which are in place for police interviews under the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984. [248329]

Mr. Hanson: Consideration has not been given to the routine recording of prison psychological interviews using the same procedures which are in place for police interviews under the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984. The purpose of police interviews in gathering evidence for court and many psychological interviews (where the focus is on developing motivation and insight into offending behaviour and completing risk assessments) are different.

Prisons: Smuggling

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many prison officers have been (a) arrested and (b) convicted of smuggling goods into prison in each year since 1997; [247715]

(2) how many prison officers have been arrested whilst on duty at prisons in the last 12 months. [247717]

Mr. Hanson: All staff in the public sector prison service are expected to meet high standards of professional and personal conduct. Allegations of staff misconduct, which are potentially criminal in nature, are referred to the police for investigation and, where appropriate, prosecution.

The particular information requested in these questions is not held centrally. However, a breakdown of the information on the numbers of staff prosecuted for bringing drugs into a prison establishment in each of the last three years is shown as follows:

Calendar year	Number of staff prosecuted
2006	6
2007	1
2008[1]	12

[1] Covers the period 1 January to 19 November 2008

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps are being taken to reduce smuggling of goods into prisons. [247716]

Mr. Hanson: Governors deploy a comprehensive range of robust searching techniques and security measures as part of their individual searching strategies in order to detect drugs, mobile phones and other contraband and prevent smuggling into establishments.

With regard to drugs and mobile phones, the Government have accepted and are working towards implementing all recommendations contained within David Blakey's report "Disrupting the supply of illicit drugs into prisons".

Termination of Employment: Disclosure of Information

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many tribunal complaints have been received arising from protection from unfair dismissal afforded by the Public Interest Disclosure Act 1998 in each year since its enactment; and if he will make a statement. [247815]

Bridget Prentice: The provisions introduced by the Public Interest Disclosure Act 1998 protect most workers from being subjected to a detriment by their employer for making a protected disclosure of information in the public interest. Employees who are protected by the provisions may make a claim for unfair dismissal if they believe they have been dismissed for making a protected disclosure. Workers who are not employees may not claim unfair dismissal; however, if their contract has been terminated by the employer because they made a protected disclosure, they may instead make a complaint that they have been subjected to a detriment.

The following table details the number of claims accepted by the employment tribunal within the unfair dismissal category that contain an element of public interest disclosure. The figures for April to December 2008 are provisional and subject to change.

Financial year	Single claims	Multiple claims[1]	Total claims accepted
1998-99	1	—	1
1999-2000	128	37	165
2000-01	349	66	415
2001-02	445	89	534
2002-03	577	89	666
2003-04	645	113	758
2004-05	732	140	872
2005-06	818	219	1,037
2006-07	1,044	312	1,356
2007-08	1,189	313	1,502
2008-09	1,104	222	1,326

[1] A multiple is any two or more claims which arise from the same set of circumstances. It could therefore be two or more claims made by different individuals against the one respondent, or potentially two or more claims made by the same individual against the same respondent. The figures show the total number of claims that were accepted as multiples.

Witnesses: Autism

John Howell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice in how many criminal cases involving a witness with an autistic spectrum disorder a witness intermediary has been used (a) by the police prior to a trial or to a decision whether to proceed to trial and (b) by the courts in England in 2008; and in how many such cases prosecutions have been successful. [247787]

Maria Eagle: During 2008 13 referrals were made for the use of an intermediary where the witness' communication needs fell under Autistic Spectrum Disorder. However data are not routinely collected as to the stage in a case at which an intermediary was used, either by the police or at trial. Nor are data collected on the outcome of cases in which an intermediary is used.

Young Offender Institutions

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what additional funding was allocated to escort providers to reduce the number of late arrivals of juveniles at young offender institutions in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07, (c) 2007-08 and (d) 2008-09; and what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of this additional funding; [247746]

(2) what penalties apply to escort providers in cases where juveniles are delivered to young offender institutions after HM Prison Inspectorate's recommended latest delivery time of 7.00pm; and what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of these penalties. [247748]

Mr. Hanson: The contracts are funded to enable contractors to escort juvenile prisoners to young offender institutions by their stated closure times. No additional funding has been provided. Other factors such as the time juvenile prisoners are finished in court and the distances they travel to their destinations can delay their arrival.

Under the terms of the contract, performance measures are incurred by contractors if they fail to deliver prisoners to those young offender institutions that have stated closure times by those times and they are unable to demonstrate that the reasons for the failure were outside their control. The stated closure times vary from establishment to establishment. An assessment of the effectiveness of the performance measures relating to the escort of juvenile prisoners will be undertaken in March 2009 as part of a general review of performance measures. If appropriate, consideration will be given to enhancing the performance measures within the existing contracts.

Young Offenders: Offensive Weapons

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people under 18 years have been convicted of offences related to the carrying of a knife in the London Borough of Havering in each year since 1997; and what penalties were imposed on them. [247792]

Maria Eagle: Data showing the number of persons under 18-years-old convicted of offences related to the carrying of a knife in the Metropolitan police force area from 1997 to 2007 (latest published) and the penalties imposed on them are in the following table.

Data are not available below police force area, therefore we cannot supply data for the London borough of Havering.

Having an article with blade or point in public place. (Criminal Justice Act 1988 S.139 as amended by Offensive Weapons Act 1996 S.3).
Having an article with blade or point on school premises. (Criminal Justice Act 1988 S.139A (1)(5)(a) as added by Offensive Weapons Act 1996 S.4(1)).
[2] The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.
[3] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

HEALTH

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many abortions on the grounds of rectifiable disabilities have occurred after 24 weeks' gestation in each of the last 15 years. [247738]

Dawn Primarolo: The number of abortions that are performed at 24 weeks' gestation and over by principal medical condition if performed under Section l(l)(d) of the Abortion Act 1967 are in the following tables. Abortions performed under this section are those where there is a substantial risk that if the child were born it would suffer from such physical or mental abnormalities as to be seriously handicapped. Medical conditions recorded under Section l(l)(d) are coded using the International Statistical Classification of Diseases and Related Health Problems (ICD) (10th edition) published by the World Health Organisation.

Data have been provided for years 1995 onwards. Prior to 1995, diagnoses were taken from the 9th edition of the ICD and would not allow comparison due to the differences in coding.

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) men and (b) women were treated at Broomfield Hospital, Chelmsford for alcohol-related (i) injuries and (ii) illnesses in each of the last five years. [249835]

Dawn Primarolo: The only centrally available data on treatment for alcohol-related health problems report on the number of admissions to hospital for alcohol and alcohol-related health problems. An individual may account for more than one admission.

While it is possible to analyse the admissions data to determine the number of individuals admitted to hospital for alcohol and alcohol-related health problems, this could be done only at disproportionate cost.

The following table shows the number of admissions by primary care trust in Essex for the period covering 2002-03 to 2006-07.

Alcohol-related admissions
The number of alcohol-related admissions is based on the methodology developed by the North West Public Health Observatory (NWPHO). Following international best practice, the NWPHO methodology includes a wide range of diseases and injuries in which alcohol plays a part and estimates the proportion of cases that are attributable to the consumption of alcohol. Details of the conditions and associated proportions can be found in the report Jones et al. (2008) Alcohol-attributable fractions for England: Alcohol-attributable mortality and hospital admissions.
Figures for under 16s only include admissions where one or more alcohol-specific conditions were listed. This is because the research on which the attributable fractions are based does not cover under 16s. Alcohol-specific conditions are those that are wholly attributed to alcohol - that is, those with an attributable fraction of one. They are:
Alcoholic cardiomyopathy (I42.6)
Alcoholic gastritis (K29.2)
Alcoholic myopathy (G72.1)
Alcoholic polyneuropathy (G62.1)
Alcohol-induced pseudo-Cushing's syndrome (E24.4)
Degeneration of nervous system due to alcohol (G31.2)
Mental and behavioural disorders due to use of alcohol (F10)
Accidental poisoning by and exposure to alcohol (X45)
Ethanol poisoning (T51.0)
Methanol poisoning (T51.1)
Toxic effect of alcohol, unspecified (T51.9)
Number of episodes in which the patient had an alcohol-related primary or secondary diagnosis
These figures represent the number of episodes where an alcohol-related diagnosis was recorded in any of the 14 (seven prior to 2002-03) primary and secondary diagnosis fields in a Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) record. Each episode is only counted once in each count, even if an alcohol-related diagnosis is recorded in more than one diagnosis field of the record.
Finished admission episodes
A finished admission episode is the first period of inpatient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Finished admission episodes are counted against the year in which the admission episode finishes. Admissions do not represent the number of inpatients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.
Primary diagnosis
The primary diagnosis is the first of up to 14 (seven prior to 2002-03) diagnosis fields in the HES data set and provides the main reason why the patient was in hospital.
Secondary diagnoses
As well as the primary diagnosis, there are up to 13 (six prior to 2002-03) secondary diagnosis fields in HES that show other diagnoses relevant to the episode of care.
Data Quality
HES are compiled from data sent by more than 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. Data are also received from a number of independent sector organisations for activity commissioned by the English NHS. The NHS Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many individuals aged 11 to 18 years resident in each (a) London borough and (b) Government Office region were treated for alcohol-related health problems in each of the last five years. [247122]

Dawn Primarolo: The only centrally available data on treatment for alcohol-related health problems are the number of admissions to hospital for alcohol and alcohol-related health problems. An individual may account for more than one admission.

While it is possible to analyse the admissions data to determine the number of individuals aged 11 to 18 years admitted to hospital for alcohol and alcohol-related health problems, this could be done only at disproportionate cost.

The following table gives the number of alcohol-related finished admissions for patients aged 11 to 18 by London borough and Government office region for each year from 2002-03 to 2006-07. 2006-07 is the latest year for which data are available. The figures relate to the number of admissions rather than the number of individuals.

Notes:

1. Includes activity in English national health service hospitals and English NHS commissioned activity in the independent sector.
2. Small numbers: To protect patient confidentiality, figures between one and five have been suppressed and replaced with '*' (an asterisk). Where it was possible to identify numbers from the total due to a single suppressed number in a row or column, an additional number (the next smallest) has been suppressed.
3. Alcohol-related admissions: The number of alcohol-related admissions is based on the methodology developed by the North West Public Health Observatory (NWPHO). Following international best practice, the NWPHO methodology includes a wide range of diseases and injuries in which alcohol plays a part and estimates the proportion of cases that are attributable to the consumption of alcohol. Details of the conditions and associated proportions can be found in the report Jones et al. (2008) Alcohol-attributable fractions for England: Alcohol-attributable mortality and hospital admissions.
4. Figures for under 16s only include admissions where one or more alcohol-specific conditions were listed. This is because the research on which the attributable fractions are based does not cover under 16s. Alcohol-specific conditions are those that are wholly attributed to alcohol—that is, those with an attributable fraction of one. They are:
Alcoholic cardiomyopathy (142.6)
Alcoholic gastritis (K29.2)
Alcoholic myopathy (G72.1)
Alcoholic polyneuropathy (G62.1)
Alcohol-induced pseudo-Cushing's syndrome (E24.4)
Degeneration of nervous system due to alcohol (G31.2)
Mental and behavioural disorders due to use of alcohol (F10)
Accidental poisoning by and exposure to alcohol (X45)
Ethanol poisoning (T51.0)
Methanol poisoning (T51.1)
Toxic effect of alcohol, unspecified (T51.9).
5. Number of episodes in which the patient had an alcohol-related primary or secondary diagnosis: These figures represent the number of episodes where an alcohol-related diagnosis was recorded in any of the 14 (7 prior to 2002-03) primary and secondary diagnosis fields in a Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) record. Each episode is only counted once in each count, even if an alcohol-related diagnosis is recorded in more than one diagnosis field of the record.
6. Finished admission episodes: A finished admission episode is the first period of inpatient care under one consultant within one health care provider. Finished admission episodes are counted against the year in which the admission episode finishes. Please note that admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.
7. Primary diagnosis: The primary diagnosis is the first of up to 14 (7 prior to 2002-03) diagnosis fields in the HES data set and provides the main reason why the patient was in hospital.
8. Secondary diagnoses: As well as the primary diagnosis, there are up to 13 (six prior to 2002-03) secondary diagnosis fields in HES that show other diagnoses relevant to the episode of care.
9. Data Quality: HES are compiled from data sent by more than 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. Data are also received from a number of independent sector organisations for activity commissioned by the English NHS. The NHS Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.

Cancer: Health Education

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the extent to which (a) primary care trusts and (b) cancer networks are giving high priority to raising public awareness of cancer risk factors. [248446]

Ann Keen: Through the Cancer Reform Strategy's (CRS) National Awareness and Early Diagnosis Initiative (NAEDI), the Department, in partnership with Cancer Research UK, is co-ordinating a programme to support local interventions to increase cancer symptom awareness and encourage earlier presentation. NAEDI's launch event in November 2008, was very well attended by primary care trusts and cancer networks from across the country.

As highlighted in the first annual report on the CRS, which was published in December 2008 (a copy has already been placed in the Library), the annual report for 2009 will have a greater focus on local implementation. This will include an assessment of local progress in raising public awareness of cancer risk factors.

Cancer: Health Services

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment he has made of the extent to which commissioners have put in place systems to ensure that patients experience good continuity of care in relation to cancer services; [248450]

(2) how many and what proportion of commissioners of cancer services have established service level agreements with local mental health services for advanced psychological support services. [248451]

Ann Keen: The information requested is not held centrally. It is for primary care trusts working in partnership with their strategic health authorities, local services and stakeholders to provide appropriate services for their local populations, including the commissioning of cancer services and psychological support for cancer patients.

Through the implementation of the "Cancer Reform Strategy", the Department provides a range of support to help commissioners of cancer services to ensure that their services meet their populations' needs. This includes the Cancer Commissioning Guidance, which sets out key issues and key questions that commissioners will want to take into consideration when assessing health needs, reviewing services, developing their contract service specifications and monitoring performance; and the Cancer Commissioning Toolkit, which provides an easily accessible one stop source of cancer information to provide answers to the key questions in the Cancer Commissioning Guidance.

The planned annual patient experience survey will provide us with information about how far patients are satisfied with the quality of the services being commissioned for them. Local patient experience surveys are already in operation in some cancer networks.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress the representative advisory group on cancer inequalities has made towards (a) researching proposals, (b) testing inequalities and (c) advising on the development of a wider policy; and when and how he plans to evaluate the National Cancer Equality Initiative. [248454]

Ann Keen: As highlighted in the first annual report of the Cancer Reform Strategy (CRS), "Cancer Reform Strategy: Maintaining momentum, building for the future—first annual report", published on 1 December 2008 (a copy of which has already been placed in the Library), we have set up the National Cancer Equality Initiative (NCEI) to take forward a series of actions to reduce inequalities in cancer care. An advisory group has been established, co-chaired by Professor Mike Richards, the National Cancer Director, and Joanne Rule, the former Chief Executive of Cancer Backup. The membership of the group comprises representatives of all six equality strands, plus representatives on deprivation, leading academics, professionals, and departmental officials on cancer, equality and human rights, and health inequalities.

The NCEI Advisory Group has already met three times, and has taken forward work on the following:

to establish a baseline, the NCEI has undertaken a good practice survey to identify current projects aiming to reduce inequalities in cancer care. The principles behind undertaking robust projects to reduce cancer inequalities, including examples from the survey, will be issued to the national health service later this year; writing to the chairs of the other CRS initiatives to embed equality issues across the whole programme. Letters have already been sent to the chairs of the National Awareness and Early Diagnosis Initiative and the National Cancer Intelligence Network, and future letters will be sent to the National Cancer Research Institute and the National Cancer Survivorship Initiative, and other major initiatives as appropriate; working with Macmillan Cancer Support on their Human Rights programme of work, "Know Your Rights"; and producing a newsletter, "We Can", which was launched at the Britain Against Cancer Conference in December 2008.

The NCEI action plan for 2009-10 is currently being developed. The Cancer Programme Board has the responsibility for monitoring progress on all CRS initiatives, including the NCEI, and we are committed to publishing an annual report on progress.

Cancer: Information

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what evaluation he has made of the pilot programme for information prescriptions in relation to cancer. [248448]

Ann Keen: The piloting of information prescriptions, which included four cancer pilot sites, concluded with an evaluation report and a government response which were both published in September 2008. These have been placed in the Library.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he plans to implement a system nationwide to enable health professionals to generate tailored information prescriptions at any point in the cancer pathway. [248457]

Ann Keen: The national cancer action team is working in partnership with the cancer networks and cancer charities (Cancer Research UK and Macmillan Cancer Support) to develop tumour-specific information pathways and an electronic delivery system that can be used by professionals to deliver tailored Information Prescriptions to patients at any point during the cancer pathway. These are currently being piloted across 39 trusts in England. It is planned that the full system, which will include tumour-specific pathways, will be available to most NHS trusts and cancer health care professionals in 2009.

In addition NHS Choices website currently makes available Information Prescriptions to patients, carers and professionals for prostate cancer and bowel cancer, with other cancers planned to follow. NHS Choices and the cancer partnership are working together to ensure consistent information delivery.

Cancer: Mental Health Services

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment he has made of the extent to which good psychological support services are available throughout the cancer journey; [248452]

(2) what progress he has made towards introducing a national cancer survivorship initiative. [248453]

Ann Keen: The "Cancer Reform Strategy 2007" set out plans to ensure that people living with and beyond cancer receive the care and support, including psychological support, that they need to enable them to live as healthy and active a life as possible. A copy of the strategy has already been placed in the Library.

Elements of this are being taken forward through the National Cancer Survivorship Initiative, which was formally launched in September 2008. It is co-chaired by Mike Richards, the Department's National Cancer Director, and Ciaran Devane, the Chief Executive of Macmillan Cancer Support. Seven workstreams have been established and have already started work.

As set out in the report "Cancer Reform Strategy—Maintaining momentum, building for the future: first annual report", a priority for the coming year is to ensure that cancer patients benefit from the expansion and development of psychological therapies. A copy of the report has already been placed in the Library.

Cancer: Screening

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the extent to which primary care professionals have fast access to relevant diagnostic tests for cancer; and what sanctions there are for primary care trusts which do not implement this policy. [248455]

Ann Keen: The Cancer Reform Strategy (CRS) made clear that as a matter of best practice a good primary care trust will wish to ensure that primary care professionals have appropriate and timely direct access to diagnostic tests. Sanctions are not imposed on primary care trusts for not implementing best practice and no assessment has been made of the extent of primary care access to diagnostic tests for cancer.

Information on improvements in diagnostics is set out the first annual report of the CRS, a copy of which is available in the Library. Improving primary care access to diagnostics is a priority for improving early diagnosis of cancer and, although good progress has been made in diagnosis, the CRS Advisory Board feel that further improvements can be made in primary care access to diagnosis. In view of this, diagnostics has been added as an eighth work stream to the National Awareness and Early Diagnosis Initiative and work to develop this work stream is currently under way.

Care Quality Commission: Buildings

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much will be paid by the Care Quality Commission for the rent of its premises in 2009-10; and whether it shares its premises with any other publicly-funded body. [248560]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Chair of the Care Quality Commission (CQC) has informed us that the preliminary 2009-10 estates budget for CQC is expected to be £9.7 million, which consists of an operating budget of £8.4 million and £1.3 million allocated in the transitional budget for the phased migration in the first half of 2009-10 out of existing buildings surplus to the Commission's requirements.

The number of premises to be shared with other publicly funded bodies is not currently available.

Care Quality Commission: Finance

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the Care Quality Commission's next annual budget will be. [248557]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Care Quality Commission, in line with all other arm's length bodies, is currently undertaking its 2009-10 annual business planning process with the Department. The Care Quality Commissions budget will be finalised and issued once this process is completed. This will be no later than the 31 March 2009.

Care Quality Commission: Manpower

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) full-time and (b) part-time staff are to be employed by the Care Quality Commission once it becomes fully operational in April 2009. [248558]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Chair of the Care Quality Commission has informed us that most positions in the Commission will be filled by staff transferring from the Healthcare Commission, Commission for Social Care Inspection and Mental Health Act Commission. The process for transferring staff is under way, and information on which transferring staff are full-time or part-time will not be available until late March 2009.

Exact staff numbers are therefore still being finalised.

Care Quality Commission: Public Consultation

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what provision has been made for the inclusion of patients' views in the consultation being carried out by the Care Quality Commission on proposals for reviews in 2009-10. [248556]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Chair of the Care Quality Commission has informed us that planned activities during the consultation period for the Commission's proposals for reviews in 2009-10 will include the following three ways of seeking views from people who use health and social care services:

the first will be a round of consultation events with stakeholders through the local involvement networks (LINks) on topics such as assessment of commissioning; the second is a series of events aimed specifically at people who use services, their families and carers and will be able to comment on the reviews and studies programme including what they regard as their priorities. The topics for the consultation were generated via involvement activity in 'Improvement Boards'; and the third will be to receive input to the consultation via an online forum. A panel of people have been recruited from the public and patient and user groups to give their views through an internet discussion forum.

The consultation is scheduled to end on 12 March 2009.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many organisations were contacted by the Care Quality Commission to inform them of its consultation on proposals for reviews in 2009-10. [248561]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Chair of the Care Quality Commission has informed us that 1,856 copies of the consultation document have been sent out to date (15 January 2009), consisting of an initial distribution of 1,410 copies, with the remainder being sent out as a result of requests. In addition to this, 24,400 letters have been sent to stakeholders informing them of the consultation and including details on how to obtain a copy on request.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the estimated cost is of the consultation on proposals for reviews in 2009-10 being carried out by the Care Quality Commission. [248562]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Chair of the Care Quality Commission has informed us that, as this consultation runs until 12 March 2009, the final details of consultation engagement activity are yet to be confirmed.

Care Quality Commission: Registration

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans are in place to ensure all health and social care providers meet the requirement of registration with the Care Quality Commission. [248559]

Mr. Bradshaw: From April 2010, all providers of regulated activities, whether from the health care or adult social care sectors, will need to register with the Care Quality Commission. In order to register and remain registered, they will be required to meet the registration requirements. Under the Health and Social Care Act 2008, the Care Quality Commission will have a range of independent enforcement actions that it can take to bring providers who do not meet the registration requirements into compliance.

The Department consulted on which activities should fall within the scope of registration and on the registration requirements during the summer of 2008, and will publish its response to that consultation in due course. The Commission will subsequently develop and consult on its own compliance criteria that it will use to assess adherence to the registration requirements.

Cervical Cancer: Screening

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress his Department has made towards reducing the variation in cervical cancer screening coverage between primary care trusts; and what progress has been made towards increasing the uptake of screening of (a) poor communities and (b) black and ethnic minority communities. [248449]

Ann Keen: The Cancer Reform Strategy, published in December 2007, a copy of which has already been placed in the Library, said that we wished to reduce the variation of cervical screening coverage between primary care trusts. National health service (NHS) Cancer Screening Programmes have commissioned the Improvement Foundation to work with six primary care trusts with deprived communities to develop and test initiatives to improve uptake. The Improvement Foundation are expected to deliver the outcomes from their work to NHS Cancer Screening Programmes by the end of 2009, and the lessons learned will be shared with strategic health authorities and local screening programmes to develop best practice.

There is a need to ensure that health inequalities are tackled with targeted programmes that increase the uptake of screening in deprived and black and ethnic minority communities. It is be for those primary care trusts with low uptake levels for cervical screening to develop targeted programmes to tackle any identified health inequalities.

NHS Cancer Screening Programmes and the university of Leeds have been working on a research project to provide guidance for communicating screening information to women from minority ethnic and low income groups throughout both the cervical and breast screening programmes. The final report is due shortly and NHS Cancer Screening Programmes will work with the university of Leeds to develop follow-up work to build on the findings.

To incentivise services to encourage higher coverage, the decision has been taken to explore having a tariff for cervical screening, along with breast and bowel screening. The Department is working closely with NHS Cancer Screening Programmes on a scoping exercise to inform this work.

Continuing Care

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people received NHS continuing health care (a) in total and (b) per 50,000 of population in each primary care trust area in England in each of the first three quarters of 2008-09. [248159]

Phil Hope: The requested information is shown in the following table. Data for the third quarter of 2008-09 are not available.

Dental Services

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 16 December 2008, Official Report, column 946, what the evidential basis is for the Parliamentary Under-Secretary for Health's statement that access to NHS dentistry has improved since the new contract was introduced. [248330]

Ann Keen: Information on the number of patients seen in the 24 months ending March 2006, and the number of patients seen in the 24 months ending June 2008, is available in annex 3, table D1 of "NHS Dental Statistics, Q1 2008-09". Information is available at primary care trust (PCT) level. This publication has already been placed in the Library, and is available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/primary-care/dentistry/nhs-dental-statistics-q1-2008-09

These data show that there are many areas across the country where access has improved. In around 30 per cent. of PCTs the number of patients accessing national health service dental services has increased since the reforms were introduced in April 2006.

However, we recognise that more remains to be done. This is why we have appointed the independent review team chaired by Professor Jimmy Steele to help us look at what steps we can take to ensure that every person, wherever he or she lives, who actively seeks to access an NHS dentist can do so.

Dental Services: Gloucestershire

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many dentists in (a) Stroud constituency and (b) Gloucestershire offer NHS treatment to (i) children and (ii) adults; how many patients are covered; and what percentage this is of the relevant population in each case. [247937]

Ann Keen: Information is not available in the format requested.

The numbers of dentists with national health service activity during the years ending 31 March, 2007 and 2008 are available in Table G1 of Annex 3 of the "NHS Dental Statistics for England: 2007-08" report. Information is provided by strategic health authority (SHA) and by primary care trust (PCT). This information is based on the new dental contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006.

Following a recent consultation exercise, this measure is based on a revised methodology and therefore supersedes previously published workforce figures relating to the new dental contractual arrangements. It is not comparable to the information collected under the old contractual arrangements. This revised methodology counted the number of dental performers with NHS activity recorded via FP17 claim forms in each year ending 31 March. This report, published on 21 August 2008, has already been placed in the Library and is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dental0708

These figures relate to headcounts and do not differentiate between full-time and part-time dentists, nor do they account for the fact that some dentists may do more NHS work than others, or between treatments for adults and children.

Under the new dental contractual arrangements, patients do not have to be registered with an NHS dentist to receive NHS care. The closest equivalent measure to 'registration' is the number of patients receiving NHS dental services ('patients seen') over a 24-month period. However, this is not directly comparable to the registration data for earlier years.

The number of patients seen in the previous 24 months in England, as at quarterly intervals, from 31 March 2006 to 30 June 2008 is available in Table D1 of Annex 3 of the "NHS Dental Statistics, Q1 2008-09" report. Table D2 contains information on the numbers of patients seen as a percentage of the population. Information is provided by PCT and SHA and is available by adult and child patients seen.

This report, published on 27 November 2008, has been placed in the Library and is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dentalstats0809q1.

Departmental Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many of his Department's staff who left under (a) an involuntary and (b) a voluntary exit scheme in each year since 2005-06 received a severance package of (i) up to £25,000, (ii) £25,001 to £50,000, (iii) £50,001 to £75,000, (iv) £75,001 to £100,000 and (v) over £100,000; and if he will make a statement. [242254]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information on the size of severance packages given to staff leaving the Department under involuntary and voluntary exit schemes in each year since 2005-06 are presented in the following table:

£	2005-06		2006-07		200 -08
	Involuntary	Voluntary	Involuntary	Voluntary	Involuntary	Voluntary
0-25,000	0	2	1	16	6	13
25,001-50,000	1	2	1	2	1	18
50,001-75,000	1	4	1	2	0	7
75,001-100,000	0	2	0	2	0	5
Over 100,000	6	15	5	9	3	25
Total	8	25	8	31	10	66

General Practitioners: Finance

Lorely Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which GP surgeries will be upgraded using the £100 million of capital spending being brought forward; and to what standards such surgeries will be upgraded. [247836]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave the hon. Member for South Cambridgeshire (Mr. Lansley) on 10 December 2008, Official Report, column 156W. As stated in the pre-Budget report, the key focus of investment will be to improve and extend training facilities in those areas that have historically had a lower provision of general practitioners (GPs).

It is too early to say which GP surgeries will be upgraded.

Hospitals: Cleaning Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much hospital trusts in England have spent on cleaning in each financial year since 1997-98. [248442]

Ann Keen: The information is not available in the format requested.

The Department began the collection of cleaning spend data in 2000-01 from national health service trusts, through its Estates Return Information Collection (ERIC). The information available is shown in the following table.

	Total expenditure on cleaning services (£ million)
2000-01	403
2001-02	418
2002-03	480
2003-04	493
2004-05	536
2005-06	616
2006-07	663
2007-08	720

These data have not been amended centrally and therefore its accuracy is the responsibility of the contributing NHS organisations.

The Department has a comprehensive programme of work in place to improve hospital cleanliness. Every hospital in England has already undertaken a deep clean, and the latest Healthcare Commission in-patient survey shows the NHS achieving its highest ever cleanliness rating with 93 per cent. of adults saying their ward was fairly clean or very clean. In the 2008 PEAT (Patient Environment Action Team) scores, over 98 per cent. of hospitals were rated Acceptable, Good or Excellent compared to 2000 when a third were rated as red.

A new national standard for monitoring cleanliness in health care environments is currently being developed with leading experts in the field of health care cleaning, and will be carried out under the auspices of the British Standards Institute.

Hospitals: Disinfectants

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will investigate the effectiveness of disinfectant wipes using chlorine-based formulae against clostridium difficile; [246246]

(2) if he will commission research into the sporicidal effectiveness of (a) chlorine-based formulae and (b) quaternary ammonium-based formulae. [246253]

Ann Keen: The Department is currently commissioning research into the effectiveness of a number of commercial formulations that claim to be sporicidal which may include both chlorine and quaternary ammonium-based formulae.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make it his policy to encourage NHS trusts to use chlorine-based wipes as disinfectants in hospitals; and if he will make a statement. [246254]

Ann Keen: Existing guidance recommends chlorine based disinfectants that have proven sporicidal activity. The Department will continue to stress the need to use appropriate disinfectant materials.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what criteria are used in the NHS to decide whether a disinfectant product is sporicidal; and if he will make a statement. [246255]

Ann Keen: Data demonstrating a pass for the British Standard BS EN13704:2002 test "Quantitative suspension test for the evaluation of sporicidal activity of chemical disinfectants used in food, industrial, domestic and institutional areas" are generally used to establish whether a chemical disinfectant has or does not have sporicidal activity. Purchase of disinfectant products is a matter for local national health service bodies.

Hospitals: Pigmeat

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of pork served in hospitals in (a) East Devon constituency, (b) the South West and (c) England was locally sourced in the last five years. [247562]

Mr. Bradshaw: The recently published Public Sector Food Procurement Initiative report by the Department for the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for 2007-08 estimated that 99 per cent. of the pork sourced from the national health service Supply Chain's contracts was British and, within this, 47 per cent. of bacon sourced by NHS Supply Chain, was British. NHS Supply Chain calculate that approximately 75 per cent. of trusts purchase from their meat and poultry contract.

NHS trusts do not have to purchase from this central contract. They are able to award their own contracts and information about these contracts is not held centrally. To get accurate, up to date information from particular NHS regions or trusts, the hon. Member may wish to contact them direct.

Injuries: Firearms

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many finished admission episodes there were for gunshot wounds in each NHS trust in each of the last 10 years. [246823]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information is collected on the number of finished admission episodes to hospital. A finished admission episode is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.

The following table provides data on finished admission episodes for gunshot wounds by each strategic health authority area of residence. It is not possible to provide a response to this question for each national health service trust as the numbers involved are mostly very small and many of them would need to be suppressed in order to preserve confidentiality. The ICD-10 codes used to identify a gunshot wound are included in the background notes to the table.

It is important that the footnotes and clinical codes are consulted when interpreting the data in the table.

Notes:
Ungrossed data
Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are ungrossed).
Finished admission episodes
A finished admission episode is the first period of inpatient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Finished admission episodes are counted against the year in which the admission episode finishes. Please note that admissions do not represent the number of inpatients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.
* Cause Code - Gunshot Wounds
The cause code is a supplementary code that indicates the nature of any external cause of injury, poisoning or other adverse effects. HES has used the following ICD-10 external cause codes when referring to gunshot wounds
Gunshot wounds:
W32.- Handgun discharge
W33.- Rifle, shotgun and larger firearm discharge
W34.- Discharge from other and unspecified firearms
X72- Intentional self-harm by handgun discharge
X73- Intentional self-harm by rifle, shotgun and larger firearm discharge
X74- Intentional self-harm by other and unspecified firearm discharge
X93- Assault by handgun discharge
X94- Assault by rifle, shotgun and larger firearm discharge
X95- Assault by other and unspecified firearm discharge
Y22.- Handgun discharge, undetermined intent
Y23.- Rifle, shotgun and larger firearm discharge, undetermined intent
Y24- Other and unspecified firearm discharge, undetermined intent
Y35.0 Legal intervention involving firearm discharge
Y36.4 War operations involving firearm discharge and other forms of conventional warfare.
Data quality
Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) are compiled from data sent by more than 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. Data are also received from a number of independent sector organisations for activity commissioned by the English NHS. The NHS Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.
PCT/SHA data quality
PCT and SHA data were added to historic data years in the HES database using 2002-03 boundaries, as a one-off exercise in 2004. The quality of the data on PCT of treatment and SHA of treatment is poor in 1996-97, 1997-98 and 1998-99, with over a third of all finished episodes having missing values in these years. Data quality of PCT of GP practice and SHA of GP practice in 1997-98 and 1998-99 is also poor, with a high proportion missing values where practices changed or ceased to exist. There is less change in completeness of the residence-based fields over time, where the majority of unknown values are due to missing postcodes on birth episodes. Users of time series analysis including these years need to be aware of these issues in their interpretation of the data.
Assessing growth through time
HES figures are available from 1989-90 onwards. The quality and coverage of the data have improved over time. These improvements in information submitted by the NHS have been particularly marked in the earlier years and need to be borne in mind when analysing time series.
Some of the increase in figures for later years (particularly 2006-07 onwards) may be due to the improvement in the coverage of independent sector activity.
Changes in NHS practice also need to be borne in mind when analysing time series. For example, a number of procedures may now be undertaken in outpatient settings and may no longer be accounted for in the HES data. This may account for any reductions in activity over time.

Maternity Services: Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to page 16 of the NHS Operating Framework for 2009-10, what mechanisms there are to ensure that primary care trusts spend an additional £330 million on maternity services over the specified period. [248443]

Ann Keen: The £330 million announced for Maternity Matters covers three years, 2008-09 to 2010-11 and is being included within primary care trust (PCT) revenue allocations.

Increases in the maternity services tariff in 2008-09 and planned for 2009-10 will increase the flow of funds for each episode of maternity care. PCTs will also be developing and investing in local plans to deliver the improvements set out in the NHS Operating Framework.

Mid-Essex Hospital Services NHS Trust: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) doctors, (b) nurses, (c) consultants and (d) auxiliary staff have been victims of violence in (i) accident and emergency areas in Broomfield Hospital and (ii) all hospitals in the Mid-Essex Hospital Services NHS Trust area in each of the last five years. [249836]

Ann Keen: Since 2004-05, the number of physical assaults against staff reported by NHS bodies has been collected annually by the National Health Service Security Management Service. This information is contained in tables showing the number of physical assaults on NHS staff reported in England for each of the years 2004-05 to 2007-08. These tables have already been placed in the Library.

Mid-Essex Primary Care Trust

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what information his Department holds on the cost of the change of name of the Mid-Essex Primary Care Trust to NHS Mid-Essex. [249837]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is not held by the Department.

Primary care trusts (PCTs) have the freedom to choose whether or not they make the transition to the new identity, 'NHS Local' (rather than 'Local' PCT). In order to keep costs to a minimum, we advise that the transition is made when it is practically and economically feasible to do so through planned replacement programmes. This may be by, for example, exhausting existing supplies of stationery and updating property signage.

You may wish to enquire with your local PCT for further information.

NHS Manpower: Oncologists

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many (a) oncologists and (b) trainee oncologists specialising in urology there are in each region; [248837]

(2) how many (a) oncologists and (b) trainee oncologists specialising in breast cancer there are in each region. [248838]

Ann Keen: The number of oncologists and trainee oncologists in each region is shown in the following tables. The NHS Workforce Census does not identify the area of specialty for oncologists or trainee oncologists.

NHS: Cleaning Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health according to the most recent ERIC returns made to his Department, how much each NHS trust spent on cleaning services; what their audit score against national specifications for cleanliness for the NHS was; and how many whole time equivalent cleaning staff they employed. [248460]

Ann Keen: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Estimates Returns Information Collection returns are not amended centrally and therefore their accuracy is the responsibility of the contributing national health service organisations.

NHS: Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to paragraph 3 on page 33 of the NHS Operating Framework for 2009-10, whether all surpluses will be spent by the organisations that generated them. [248444]

Mr. Bradshaw: The surpluses generated are held locally and it will be for individual organisations to decide in conjunction with the direction and priorities agreed with their strategic health authorities and the priorities set out in the Operating Framework, how to invest their surplus for the benefit of their patients.

NHS: Manpower

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many staff were employed by the NHS in (a) England and (b) Gloucestershire in the most recent year for which figures are available. [248436]

Primary Care Trusts: Telephone Service

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which primary care trusts use (a) 084 telephone numbers and (b) other telephone numbers that charge more than the local rate for calls from the public. [247616]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not hold this information centrally and it cannot be provided except at disproportionate cost. However the Department remains clear that it does not expect patients to pay more than the equivalent cost of a local rate call when contacting the local national health service.

We recently launched a public consultation on the intention to prohibit the use of 084 numbers in the NHS. This will run from 16 December 2008 until 31 March 2009.

Smoking

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many adults aged 35 and over were admitted to hospital with diseases caused by smoking in (a) North Yorkshire and (b) England in (i) 1996-97 and (ii) 2006-07. [247615]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is not available in the exact format requested. Data for 1996-97 are not available for both England and North Yorkshire. Figures for North Yorkshire County are not collected. Data for England and for North Yorkshire and York Primary Care Trusts (PCT) are available for 2006-07.

Detailed Information on specific diseases that can be caused by smoking for England 2006-07 is available from the Statistics on Smoking: England, 2008. This information can be found in table 5.2 on page 83. This publication has already been placed in the Library.

Figures are available and provided on the number of admissions in National Health Service hospitals for those aged 35 and over with a primary diagnosis of diseases that can be caused by smoking and estimates of the number of those admissions that are attributable to smoking.

The following table shows the number of admissions for those aged 35 and over with a primary diagnosis of various diseases that can be caused by smoking and estimates of the number of those admissions that can be attributed to smoking. Figures have been provided for 2006-07 in England and for North Yorkshire and York PCT. It is acknowledged that not all of the observed admissions included in the table will be attributable to smoking as there are other contributory factors to these diseases. Therefore the relative risks of these diseases for current and ex-smokers, compared to non-smokers have been used to estimate smoking-attributable admissions.

Notes:

[1] The data include private patients in NHS hospitals (but not private patients in private hospitals).

[2] A finished admission episode is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.

[3] The primary diagnosis is the first of up to 20 (14 from 2002-03 to 2006-07 and 7 prior to 2002-03) diagnosis fields in the hospital episode statistics (HES) data set and provides the main reason why the patient was admitted to hospital.

[4] Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data. Observed admissions only includes those where gender was recorded

Social Services: Children

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what inspections the Healthcare Commission and its predecessor inspectorates has undertaken into Haringey Council in relation to services that relate to children since 2000. [245967]

Ann Keen: The Healthcare Commission, like its predecessor the Commission for Health Improvement, has no specific locus for inspections of local government. On occasion, the Healthcare Commission will work with other regulators. The Commission took part in a Joint Area Review of Haringey in 2006 and in the recent urgent review of safeguarding in Haringey. The Commission for Health Improvement was involved in the follow up to the Victoria Climbié report in 2003.

Strokes: East of England

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent progress has been made in (a) Peterborough and (b) the East of England in establishing in each health authority or trust a stroke care pathway; and if he will make a statement. [248529]

Ann Keen: The National Stroke Strategy mandates the establishment of stroke care networks. All proposed networks originally proposed have now been established and are expected to be fully functional by spring 2009. Details of the networks can be found on the Stroke Improvement programme website at:

www.improvement.nhs.uk/stroke

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what provision is available in (a) Peterborough and (b) the East of England for patients who have undergone a stroke to receive support with communication skills; and if he will make a statement. [248530]

Ann Keen: This information is not held centrally. However, the new national stroke strategy recognises that people who have had a stroke, including those with aphasia and other communication difficulties, will have specific support needs. The services which primary care trusts (PCTs) and local authorities provide for those people will depend on local needs and priorities. The strategy also makes clear that those with aphasia and related conditions should be involved in the planning of the support services they require.

In addition to the funding that has gone to PCTs, central funding over three years will support implementation of the new national strategy, including £45 million to local authorities to help them develop or accelerate their existing provision of long-term support to those who live with the effects of a stroke. We expect that PCTs and local authorities will use the funding available to meet these needs in line with local needs and priorities.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Departmental Computers

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many laptops his Department owns which are (a) encrypted and (b) unencrypted. [246676]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department's computers are provided to it under arrangements with its IT service provider.

The Department has replaced all laptop computers that had not been installed with encryption software with encrypted laptops as part of its review of data security. Currently all departmental laptops that are used to store and process personal data have to be encrypted, and employees are prohibited from using non-encrypted laptop computers.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 398W, on departmental data protection, where the data centres are located; who manages them; and what steps have been taken to test their physical security. [246938]

Jonathan Shaw: The Data Centres used by the Department are located in North East England and are managed, on behalf of the Department, by EDS. Regular tests and formal audits are undertaken by both EDS and the Department to ensure that physical security barriers, controls and processes associated with their operation and effectiveness conform to agreed requirements. The tests are in line with Information Systems Security Standards (ISSS).

Departmental Freedom of Information

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many requests for information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 were made to his Department since 2005; how many requests were (a) agreed to and (b) refused in each of those years; how many refusals were subject to appeal to the Information Commissioner in each of those years; how many appeals were successful; if he will place in the Library copies of the material subsequently provided in each case; how much was spent by his Department opposing each appeal; which (i) consultants and (ii) law firms were employed by his Department in connection with each appeal; and if he will make a statement. [244830]

Jonathan Shaw: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Minister of State for Justice (Mr. Wills) on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 507W.

Departmental ICT

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his Department's (a) current and (b) planned IT programmes and projects are; and what the planned (i) budget and (ii) timescale of each is. [240265]

Jonathan Shaw: Although the Department does not have any discrete IT projects, it has a number of projects and programmes that include changes to, or new, IT to a greater or lesser extent. We have included in the following table:

The projects and programmes currently on the Department's portfolio where the IT element of the project or programme results in the development and/or implementation of services that underpin the delivery of departmental business;

The investment costs of the project/programme. Costs of running the solutions implemented by the projects and programmes are not included as in the vast majority of cases they are more than compensated for by the financial benefits they generate.

Initiatives that are associated with ongoing system improvements or enhancements as part of business as usual have not been included.

For all programmes or projects the costs and reported completion dates relate to the total project or programme and not only the IT element.

Method of Payment Reform Programmes	Method of Payment Reform Programmes will develop modern, electronic, secure and efficient methods of payments for customers who require payment by an alternate means other than direct payment to bank accounts.	48	March 2011
Lone Parent Obligations	Lone Parents Obligations is part of welfare reform with the aim of increasing the lone parent employment rate. Currently lone parents are not required to seek employment until their youngest child reaches 16. Under new proposals to be phased in (starting with youngest child aged 12), lone parents will no longer be entitled to income support solely for being a lone parent if their youngest child is above seven. In the last year before entitlement ceases, work focused interviews will take place to encourage lone parents to take up training opportunities, leading to employment.	21	February 2011
Disability and Carers Service Change Programme	This is an over-arching transformation programme for disabled people and their carers designed to move PDCS towards a business transformation that addresses people, partners, process, and puts the customer experience at the heart of their transformation plans, in line with the wider departmental strategy	69	March 2010
Pension Reform Delivery Programme	To co-ordinate, manage and deliver a range of measures and consequential impacts which will establish a new structure for the UK Pension System long term.	118	December 2010
Document Repository Service	This project seeks to support the Department's modernisation programmes through the provision of a document repository to store digitised images of documents received from customers (letters, faxes, e-mails etc.), cutting down paper in the organisation.	10	March 2009
Data Centre Strategy[2]	The project is addressing the ongoing continued threat of business service continuity with a replacement strategy for Washington Data Centre.	33	April 2011
Jobseekers Regime and Flexible New Deal	This programme will replace and streamline the current New Deal programmes and will concentrate on tackling the challenging problems of those who remain unemployed despite a strong economy and historically low unemployment. The programme will include provision of obtaining skills and mandatory work experience for customers	19	October 2010
DWP Change Programme	This programme brigades a number of complementary initiatives to deliver the DWP Business Vision. It includes projects to bring in continuous improvement using lean techniques which should allow greater customer focus and efficiency in our process and business improvement projects to allow greater access to information.	246	March 2011
Provider Referrals and Payment Project	Deploy an IT system to automate and e-enable payment transactions between Jobcentre Plus and training providers.	18	June 2010
Local Services Integration programme[3]	To provide local services with an IT solution that supports the end to end process making administration more efficient.	15	December 2011

Project	Purpose	(i) Latest forecast (£million)	(ii) Planned timescale
Government connect[6]	To roll out a secure data network connecting Government and local authorities, including secure file transfer, e-mail and web-browser capability	33	March 2011

[1] Customer Information System (CIS)—The original expected completion date was March 2008 based on the date of the planned migration of Legacy Benefit System data. However, to minimise the risks associated with this approach a phased implementation was planned. The dates for this phased approach are:
Start of Migration—March 2008
Completion of phased rollout—June 2008
Final Technical Release—October 2008
Project closure—December 2008
[5] Data Centre Strategy—The planned timescale for completion is April 2011. This was reported previously in error as end of 2010. The project plans are not delayed.
[7] Local Services Integration Programme—this project is relatively new to the Department's Portfolio and is in addition to those published in the NAO Report on DWP IT programmes November 2008.
[6] Government Connect—also a recent addition to the Department's portfolio since the NAO report. £33 million forecast spend are the total costs of this cross government programme—funded by DWP (£8 million), Communities and Local Government (£19 million) and Department for Children and Families (£6 million).

Note:
The Child Support Agency, Operational Improvement Programme was included in the NAO list of projects but is excluded here. On 1 November 2008, responsibility for the Child Support Agency was transferred from the Secretary of State for DWP to the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission. The Commission is a Crown non-departmental public body (NDPB) which operates at arms length from the Department.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what delays against original IT project timetables have been experienced on IT projects being undertaken by his Department and its agencies; and what (a) the reasons for delay and (b) corrective action taken were in each case. [240816]

Jonathan Shaw: Although the Department does not have any discrete IT projects, it has a number of projects and programmes that include changes to, or new, IT to a greater or lesser extent. We have included in the following table:

The projects and programmes currently on the Department's portfolio where the IT element of the project or programme results in the development and/or implementation of services that underpin the delivery of departmental business.

The investment costs of the project/programme. Costs of running the solutions implemented by the projects and programmes are not included as in the vast majority of cases they are more than compensated for by the financial benefits they generate.

Initiatives that are associated with ongoing system improvements or enhancements as part of business as usual have not been included.

For all programmes or projects the costs and dates reported relate to the total project or programme and not only the IT element.

The following table identifies, in respect of those projects for which there has been a delay on early business case estimates, the programme/project purpose, original planned completion date, latest expected completion date and the reason for any delay.

Overall, the Department has a very strong track record in delivering major and complex change involving IT, of which the successful introduction of the employment and support allowance is the most recent example. But, we are always seeking to improve our project management and governance processes. In particular:

Strict project governance arrangements apply to all significant changes on time scales, scope, cost and tolerances;

At each key stage, projects are reviewed to establish whether they continue to align with business needs;

Requests for scope change are reviewed and often revised to offset the need for other investment through new or separate projects; and Original assumptions about scope, time scales and costs at strategic outline business case stage are inevitably open to later variation after proof of concept/initial design. At the critical design stage this informs more robust planning of time scales, costs and deliverables which are re-baselined as necessary.

At each stage of this process project plans are subject to rigorous scrutiny to ensure that they continue to fit with Departmental strategy and continue to deliver value for money.

Project	Purpose	Original planned completion date	Expected completion date	Reason for delay
Customer Information System[1]	This project will deliver a database of key citizen information to be shared across DWP. The database will complement information currently available in the Department's key customer information systems, i.e. Personal Details Computer System, and Departmental Central Index, and become their replacement. Consideration is being given for wider use of CIS by other Government Departments.	September 2007	December 2008	During the design stage of the project, the original timetable was impacted by emerging IT complexities relating to the interfaces between the new system and existing systems in the Department. Additionally decisions were taken to phase data migration from the old to new system to reduce risk and safeguard data integrity.
Central Payments System[2]	A modern integrated central payment engine and accounts payable system to improve accounting for benefit/pension payments, reduce risks of service failure, increased speed and efficiency, and information for improved customer service and reduced fraud and error.	October 2008	December 2011	During project design, the need for developing additional system interfaces was identified. This was followed by a re-planning exercise and a significant increase in project scope. Contract for delivery was then renegotiated to realign the roles of the Department and the contractor. New contractual arrangements and project deliverables are now in place.

Project	Purpose	Original planned completion date	Expected completion date	Reason for delay
Pensions Transformation Project	The programme will transform THE Pension Service, bringing together business and IT change in ways that improve customer service and deliver efficiencies.	March 2007	2010-11	Significant changes in phased implementation plans were approved to reduce the risk to operational delivery and customer service. The project is now running over a much longer time period to support implementation.
Method of Payment Reform Programmes	Method of Payment Reform Programmes will develop modern, electronic, secure and efficient methods of payments for customers who require payment by an alternate means other than direct payment to bank accounts.	July 2008	March 2011	The end-date for the Programme was always planned to be March 2011. An earlier date of July 2008 was reported mistakenly in a previous response. This was the delivery date of an early phase of this programme.
Fraud Referrals and Interventions Management System[1]	Fraud Referrals and Interventions Management System aims to deliver modernised Programme Protection activity.	October 2007	June 2008	Additional system releases were approved while this project was still in implementation planning phase. This resulted in some months delay to expected completion time scales.
Disability and Carers Service Change Programme	This is an overarching Transformation Programme for disabled people and their carers designed to move PDCS towards a business transformation that addresses people, partners, process, and puts the customer experience at the heart of their transformation plans, in line with the wider Departmental Strategy.	2009	March 2010	This project scope was extended to include the child and intervention strategy leading to longer delivery time scales to accommodate additional requirements.
Pension Reform Delivery Programme	To co-ordinate; manage and deliver a range of measures and consequential impacts which will establish a new structure for the UK Pension System long term.	April 2010	December 2010	Implementation is planned from April 2010, consistent with early estimate of time scales. The date of December 2010 refers to the project closure date.
Document Repository Service	This project seeks to support the Department's modernisation programmes through the provision of a document repository to store digitised images of documents received from customers (letters, faxes, e-mails etc.), cutting down paper in the organisation.	November 2008	March 2009	March 2009 reflects the project closure date. Implementation of a pilot started in November 2008 as planned.
Provider Referrals and Payments Project	Deploy an IT system to automate and e-enable payment transactions between Jobcentre Plus and training providers.	April 2009	June 2010	An increased scope was agreed to incorporate policy developments for the flexible approach to New Deal programmes. This will deliver a more comprehensive and efficient IT provider payment support tool.

[1] Customer Information System (CIS)—The original expected completion date was March 2008 based on the date of the planned migration of Legacy Benefit System data. However, to minimise the risks associated with this approach a phased implementation was planned. The dates for this phased approach are:
Start of Migration—March 2008
Completion of phased rollout—June 2008
Final Technical Release—October 2008
Project closure—December 2008
[2] Central Payments System (CPS)—this project was originally part of the Payment Modernisation Programme but later assumed project status in its own right.
[3] Fraud Referrals and Interventions Management System—This project has now completed and is closed. The NAO report included, in error, additional expected completion dates in 2009. These were for further system releases and not part of the original system development.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which IT projects in his Department are running above the original agreed budget; what the cause of budget overrun is in each case; what corrective action has been taken in each case; and if he will make a statement. [240819]

Jonathan Shaw: Although the Department does not have any discrete IT projects, it has a number of projects and programmes that include changes to, or new, IT to a greater or lesser extent. We have included in the following table:

The projects and programmes currently on the Department's Portfolio where the IT element of the project or programme results in the development and/or implementation of services that underpin the delivery of departmental business.

The investment costs of the project/programme. Costs of running the solutions implemented by the projects and programmes are not included as in the vast majority of cases they are more than compensated for by the financial benefits they generate.

The following table identifies, in respect of those projects for which there has been a cost overrun on early business case estimates, the programme/project purpose and reason for budget overrun.

Overall, the Department has a very strong track record in delivering major and complex change involving IT, of which the successful introduction of the employment and support allowance is the most recent example. But we are always seeking to improve our project management and governance processes. In particular:-

Strict project governance arrangements apply to all significant changes on cost, scope and tolerances;

At each key stage, projects are reviewed to establish whether they continue to align with business needs; and

Original cost estimates are regularly reviewed at each stage in the project lifecycle;

It should also be noted that the scope of projects can change as they pass through the project lifecycle and as plans and costs become more robust. At each stage of this process they are subject to rigorous scrutiny to ensure that they continue to fit with departmental strategy and continue to deliver value for money.

Project	Purpose	Originally agreed Budget (i) (£ million)	Current forecast costs (ii) (£ million)	Reason for Budget overrun (iii)
Customer information system	This project will deliver a database of key citizen information to be shared across DWP. The database will complement information currently available in the Department's key customer information systems, i.e. personal details computer system and departmental central index, and become their replacement. Consideration is being given for wider use of CIS by Other Government Departments.	40	88	The original timetable was impacted by IT complexities identified at the design stage. Later decisions were taken to phase the migration of data from the old to the new system to reduce risk and safeguard data integrity. The additional work to resolve the IT issues and manage the project to revised timescales resulted in additional costs.
Central payments system	A modern integrated central payment engine and accounts payable system to improve accounting for benefit/pension payments, reduce risks of service failure, increased speed and efficiency, and information for improved customer service and reduced fraud and error.	90	178	Significant extension of project scope was approved to include the development of interfaces with additional benefit systems. This resulted in re-planned delivery dates and an increase in system development and project costs.
Pensions transformation project	The programme will transform The Pension Service, bringing together business and IT change in ways that improve customer service and deliver efficiencies.	429	908	Significant changes in phased implementation plans were put in place to a reduce risks to operational delivery and customer service. The project is now running over a much longer time period to support implementation which has led to the increase in costs.
Method of Payment Reform programme	Method of Payment Reform programmes will develop modern, electronic, secure and efficient methods of payments for customers who require payment by an alternate means other than direct payment to bank accounts.		48	The cost of the programme was revised as its scope developed. Overall the project costs have risen with an increase in IT costs although costs of converting to new business processes have decreased.
Lone parents obligations	Lone parents obligations is part of welfare reform and intends increasing the lone parent employment rate. Currently lone parents are not required to seek employment until their youngest child reaches 16. Under new proposals to be phased in starting with youngest child aged 12), lone parents will no longer be entitled to income support solely for being a lone parent if their youngest child is above seven. In the last year before entitlement ceases, work focused interviews will take place to encourage lone parents to take up training opportunities, leading to employment.	9	21	Following consultation with external stakeholders and the Social Security Advisory Committee, a series of design and timing changes have resulted in increased costs. The changes are aimed at making transition as easy as possible for lone parents.
Fraud referrals and intervention management system	Fraud referrals and intervention management system aims to deliver modernised programme protection activity.	12	30	From September 2007, the programme board approved three additional system releases while the project was still in delivery mode. While this added to the system functionality, it also increased total project costs. The project completed in 2008.
Document repository service	This project seeks to support the Department's modernisation programmes through the provision of a document repository to store digitised images of documents received from customers (letters, faxes, e-mails etc.), cutting down paper in the organisation.	6	10	Higher test environment costs and revised costs to put in place more robust audit/ management functionality than originally planned resulted in an increase in total project costs.

Project	Purpose	Originally agreed Budget (i) (£ million)	Current forecast costs (ii) (£ million)	Reason for Budget overrun (iii)
Jobseekers regime and flexible new deal[1]	This programme will replace and streamline the current new deal programmes and will concentrate on tackling the challenging problems of those who remain unemployed despite a strong economy and historically low unemployment. The programme will include provision of obtaining skills and mandatory work experience for customers	17	19	Implementation plans were changed slightly to incorporate a phased approach to delivery. This has resulted in a small increase in overall project costs.
DWP Change programme	This programme brigades a number of complementary initiatives to deliver the DWP Business Vision. It includes projects to bring in continuous improvement using lean techniques which should allow greater customer focus and efficiency in our process and business improvement projects to allow greater access to information.	245	246	Forecast costs have increased marginally but will be contained within the original budget and managed through the normal governance process.
Provider referrals and payment project	Deploy an IT system to automate and e-enable transactions between Jobcentre Plus and training providers.	17	18	Costs have increased marginally and are within tolerance. These will be monitored through normal governance processes.

[1] Jobseekers regime and flexible new deal project—the project budget excludes any costs associated with staff exits which may result from this project. A higher figure representing total business case costs was reported to NAO (this includes estimated exit costs). Exit costs associated with projects are held centrally and are regularly are reviewed as they are often avoidable.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions for what reasons the number of his Department's IT staff have fallen every year since 2004-05; and if he will make a statement. [246675]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department's successful drive to increase the efficiency of its IT organisation has enabled it to reduce the number of its IT staff. This has been achieved through investment in improving staff skills, including the adoption of industry standard qualifications and best practice.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his Department's critical IT systems are. [246677]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department has 149 major application systems currently supported by its existing hosting contract(s) which are listed. All of these systems are considered critical to the Department's business.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department is taking to become an intelligent customer in IT procurement. [246680]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department re-aligned its IT contracts to enable it to procure industry standard services at market prices. This has also allowed the Department to substantially reduce its IT spend at the same time as improving the quality of the services procured.

Operational processes have been aligned with industry standard principles, ITIL (IT Information Library) or CMMi (Capability Maturity Model Integration) to maximise the efficiency of procurement and management of IT service delivery. The professional skills of the Department's IT staff have been improved to match.

Supplier governance has been strengthened through regular meetings at a strategic and operational level to review contract performance based on contractually agreed management information requirements. Where necessary, service improvement steps are agreed as part of continuous service improvement plans.

The Department also undertakes supplier intelligence analysis to identify market trends and monitor the financial stability of its key suppliers.

These steps have delivered significant improvements in IT contract delivery; the Department's future plans build on the realigned contracts to make further progress in service improvement and value for money for its IT investment.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how the performance of his Department's IT contracts with (a) BT and (b) EDS are measured; and how the relevant performance data are validated. [246681]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department's contracts with BT and EDS specify service levels and key performance indicators which measure critical and important performance parameters in line with industry best practice. They are measured and formally reported on 12 times a year at regular intervals. Following the same reporting cycle the accuracy of the reports generated by BT and EDS is formally validated and assured by the Department. These processes are underpinned by periodic audits.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what guidance his Department issues on (a) the methodology, (b) project planning and (c) risk and issue management of its IT projects. [246683]

Jonathan Shaw: The standard project management methodology used within the Department is PRINCE2. Supporting this, the Department has developed a project delivery tool, known as the DWP Change Lifecycle. The Lifecycle, representing best practice and setting standards, is mandated for use by all projects within the Department.

The DWP lifecycle also includes guidance on project planning, with a dedicated section relating to Planning and Estimating.

Further planning and investment guidance is available to projects, such as HM Treasury's "Green Book", and the Department's Investment Costing guidance.

The Risk Management Framework formally describes the Department's approach to managing risks and issues. It incorporates internal and external good practice, from both the public and private sectors and is fully consistent with guidance set out in the HMT "Orange Book"—Management of Risk: Principles and Concept.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether his Department maintains a register of its software licences. [246685]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department has contracted its service providers to create and maintain software licence registers for the software it uses.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether his Department's IT projects are required to be supported by (a) a project initiation document, (b) a documented business case and (c) a cost-benefit analysis. [246686]

Jonathan Shaw: All projects are required to document the key information needed to correctly direct and manage them, including an overview of how the project will be carried out and its governance arrangements. All the Department's major projects detail this within the Project Initiation Document, however, for smaller scale projects with low costs or short timescales this information would be contained within the Business Case.

All the Department's projects and programmes delivering change, including IT enabled projects, are required to produce a business case, which includes a cost-benefit analysis.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 399W, on departmental ICT, if he will place in the Library a copy of the risk management framework referred to in the answer. [246933]

Jonathan Shaw: It is not in the interests of the Department's security arrangements for details to be published of the approaches that are taken in identifying and responding to particular risks to IT systems. Such information, if published, could assist those intent on undermining the Department's IT security, and could prejudice the Department's efforts to protect information, including personal data in respect of individuals. This is not in the public interest. I refer the hon. Member to the answer in the official record for 17 December 2008, Official Report column 826W, which sets out the Department's approach to data and information security.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 400W, on departmental ICT, what priorities for improvement were identified as a result of the annual user satisfaction surveys in each of the last 10 years. [246934]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department has conducted an IT and Telephony survey of staff in each of the last three years. The overall assessment of the Department's IT and telephony systems was positive in all three years. In each year scope for improvement of some IT applications and telephony were identified. Improvement programmes and better IT user guidance have been implemented as a result.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the Answer of 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 400W, on departmental ICT, if he will place a copy in the Library of his Department's business contingency plans referred to in the Answer. [246935]

Jonathan Shaw: It is not in the interests of the Department or its stakeholders to publish the detailed plans that apply to the protection of its business processes. To do so could enable individuals to deduce how successful the Department is in protecting its systems and identifying vulnerabilities, which might assist such persons in testing the effectiveness of the Department's controls, or otherwise causing mischievous disruption to the Department. This would not be in the public interest.

However the Department's Business Continuity policy and guidance documents are publicly available on the UK Resilience website:

http://www.ukresilience.gov.uk/preparedness/ccact/good_practice/methodology.aspx

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 401W, on departmental ICT, which are the projects which have IT input. [246936]

Jonathan Shaw: All 19 of the major business change programmes are supported by IT. They are listed in appendix 1 of the report of the National Audit Office to the Work and Pensions Select Committee (Department for Work and Pensions: Information Technology Programmes), a copy of which is in the Library. They include programmes which will improve the deployment of financial information, for example the Central Payment System, and programmes to deliver efficient and effective services to the Department's customers, for example the Department for Work and Pensions Change Programme.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what IT systems are used to process each of his Department's benefits. [249684]

Jonathan Shaw: The IT Systems used to process the Department's benefits are shown in the following table associated with the benefits they support.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what expert advisers have been commissioned by his Department and its agencies since 1997; on what topic each was commissioned; and whether the adviser so appointed made a declaration of political activity in each case. [246962]

Jonathan Shaw: Information on advisers since 1997 is not held centrally and to compile a list, as requested, would incur disproportionate cost. The Department does make public appointments to public and ad-hoc bodies, and appoints special advisers. Since 2003, the Government have published an annual list detailing the number and costs of special advisers and the number in each pay band. Updated information will be published in the usual way.

Departmental Telephone Services

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what use (a) his Department and (b) service providers under contract to his Department make of (i) 0844 and 0845 telephone numbers and (ii) revenue-sharing telephone numbers for calls from members of the public; for which services such numbers are used; what prefixes are used for revenue-sharing numbers; how much revenue has accrued from revenue-sharing numbers in each of the last five years; what consideration his Department has given to introducing 03-prefixed telephone numbers for calls to all such services; and if he will make a statement. [247351]

Jonathan Shaw: The information requested is as follows.

(a) (i) DWP and its executive agencies; Jobcentre Plus, Pension, Disability and Carers Service and Rent Service currently publish 129 primary 0845 numbers for calls from customers accessing their services. DWP do not have any 0844 numbers.

	Number
Jobcentre Plus
7 x 0845 Initial Inquiry Lines e.g. Jobseeker Direct, Employer Direct, National Insurance etc.	7
81 x 0845 Inquiry Lines to the 81 Benefit Delivery Centres	81
20 x 0845 Social Fund	20
6 x 0845 Maternity Allowance	6
2 x 0845 Bereavement	2
PDCS Pensions
9 x 0845 e.g. Tracing Helpline and E-claim helpline, Forecasting	9
PDCS Disability and Carers
1 x 0845 Disability Living Allowance/Attendance Allowance	1
Debt Management
2 x 0845 RFE, Recovery	2
Rent Service
1 x 0845 number Central Processing Unit, Washington	1

(ii) DWP do not have any revenue sharing numbers. We ceased any revenue sharing in December 2007. This had been worth circa £500,000 per annum. We do not have an exact breakdown for this and it would be difficult to obtain these figures.

Following detailed consideration of the advantages and disadvantages, DWP have no plans to introduce 03 numbers at this time. This decision will be kept under review.

(b) Service providers under contract to the Department—this information is not readily available and initial inquiries have shown that the cost of obtaining it would be disproportionate.

Disability Living Allowance: Children

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much has been spent on disability living allowance for children in each year from 1990 to 2008; how much he estimates will be spent in 2009; and if he will make a statement. [248618]

Jonathan Shaw: The available information is in the following table.

Electronic Data Systems

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether EDS will achieve capability maturity model integration levels 4 and 5 in the IT services they provide to his Department. [248937]

Jonathan Shaw: EDS have provided the following statement:

"EDS achieved Capability Mature Model Integration (CMMI) level 3 in all its UK DWP Applications Services in May 2007. It intends to continue to improve the quality of the services it provides to the Department and plans to move from CMMI level 3 to CMMI level 5 in the UK by the end of 2010".

Employment: Discrimination

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether, following the European Court of Justice rulings in the case of Coleman v. Attridge Law, he plans to make it an offence to harass or discriminate against anyone who is associated with someone with long-term medical conditions such as HIV. [248854]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 19 January 2009]: We are considering carefully the implications of the European Court of Justice's judgment in the case of Coleman v. Attridge Law for the prohibition of direct discrimination and harassment in domestic disability discrimination.

Employment: Lone Parents

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate his Department has made of the average income for a lone parent with a single child in their first year back into work if they worked on average (a) 16 hours, (b) 18 hours, (c) 20 hours, (d) 22 hours, (e) 24 hours, (f) 26 hours, (g) 28 hours, (h) 30 hours, (i) 32 hours, (j) 34 hours, (k) 36 hours, (l) 38 hours and (m) 40 hours, per week in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [244144]

Kitty Ussher: Information on the average income for a lone parent with a single child in their first year back into work is not available.

The available information is shown in the following table.

Median net weekly income for lone parents with a single child in work by hours of work, 2006-07

Number of hours worked per week	Median net weekly income (£)
Under 20	248
20-30	282
30-40	324
40 or over	403
All	312

Notes:
1. The Family Resources Survey (FRS) is a nationally representative sample of approximately 26,000 households.
2. Data for 2006-07 were collected between April 2006 and March 2007.
3. The figures are based on a sample of households which have been adjusted for non-response using multi-purpose grossing factors which align the FRS to Government Office Region populations by age and sex. Estimates are subject to sampling error and remaining non-response error.
4. The FRS does not collect details on when the respondent started work. So the estimates include lone parents who may always have been in work and never on benefits.
5. The categories for the number of hours worked have been grouped together owing to small sample sizes.
6. Weekly income is based on self-assessment and therefore may be subject to misreporting.

Industrial Health and Safety: Cancer

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department has taken to (a) assist cancer survivors to return to work and (b) raise awareness that cancer is covered by disability discrimination legislation. [247216]

Jonathan Shaw: Jobcentre Plus offers a number of employment programmes which help disabled people gain and retain employment. These programmes are open to people with a range of disabilities, including those with cancer-related conditions.

For example, customers in receipt of incapacity benefits or employment and support allowance can access Pathways to Work, which offers a series of interviews with a specialist personal adviser, a condition management programme and the possibility of financial incentives when the customer returns to work. Other customers who have a disability or health condition that affects them in the workplace can receive information and support from the disability employment adviser. The disability employment adviser can also provide access to a number of specialist programmes that can help them move into paid work, including, Access to Work, Work Preparation, Residential Training and Workstep, a programme of supported employment.

Amendments were made to the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 by the Disability Discrimination Act 2005, which included provisions to extend protection from disability discrimination for people with cancer effectively from the point of diagnosis. Following these changes, the Department ran a Disability Discrimination Act awareness-raising campaign called "Adjusting for Better Business" from December 2005 to May 2006. The Department continues to provide information about the Disability Discrimination Act, including the inclusion of people with cancer within the Disability Discrimination Act definition of disability, on both the DWP and the Directgov websites.

Through the "Employ ability" programme, we are also engaging with employers to improve their understanding of disability and their attitudes towards employing disabled people.

The key aims of "Employ ability" include challenging negative assumptions about the skills and talent that disabled workers, and those with long-term health conditions, have to offer, building the confidence of employers in recruiting and retaining disabled workers. "Employ ability" activity is aimed at small-to medium-sized employers and is being rolled out to Scotland, Wales and seven English regions between 24 March 2008 and 27 February 2009.

Pensioners: Housing

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of pensioner households were (a) owner-occupiers, (b) social renters and (c) private renters in 2007-08. [248833]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have been asked to reply.

It is estimated from the 2007 Labour Force Survey that there were a total of 5,959,000 pensioner households in the period April to June 2007.

Pensioner households are defined as those households where the household reference person has reached pensionable age. Currently, females reach pensionable age at 60; males reach pensionable age at 65.

The estimated number of pensioner households by tenure in 2007 was as follows:

Estimated number of pensioner households by tenure, England, April to June 2007

Housing tenure	Number of pensioner households	Percentage
Owner-occupiers	4,346,000	72.9
Social renters	1,312,000	22.0
Private renters	297,000	5.0
Not known	4,000	0.1
Total	5,959,000	100.0

Poverty

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the Department's estimate is of the number and proportion of adults (a) who were out of work and in poverty and (b) who had moved out of poverty as a result of moving into work in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [242186]

Mr. McNulty: The information on the number and proportion of adults who were out of work and in poverty is shown in the following table.

Number and risk of working age adults living in households with incomes less than 60 per cent. of contemporary median household income who are not in work, before and after housing costs, United Kingdom

Notes:
1. These statistics are based on Households Below Average Income, sourced from the Family Resources Survey and Low Income Dynamics data, sourced from the British Household Panel Survey.
2. Small changes should be treated with caution as these will be affected by sampling error and variability in non-response.
3. The reference period for Households Below Average Income figures is single financial years.
4. The income measures used to derive the estimates shown employ the same methodology as the Department for Work and Pensions publication 'Households Below Average Income' series, which uses disposable household income, adjusted (or "equivalised") for household size and composition, as an income measure as a proxy for standard of living.
5. For the Households Below Average Income series, incomes have been equivalised using OECD equalisation factors.
6. Numbers of adults have been rounded to the nearest 100,000 and proportions have been rounded to the nearest percentage.
7. Adults have been classified as workless if they are unemployed or economically inactive.
8. Adults have been classified as being of working age if they are 64 or below for men or 59 or below for women.

Households Below Average Income

Information on the number and proportion of adults who had moved out of poverty as a result of moving into work is not available. Poverty is a complex and multidimensional issue with many different factors acting at the same time in moving individuals into or out of poverty.

The risk of a working age adult who is working being in a low income household in the United Kingdom in 2006-07 is much lower at 7 per cent. (before housing costs) and 11 per cent. (after housing costs), than for workless working age adults, where the equivalent proportions are 38 per cent. (before housing costs) and 48 per cent. (after housing costs) as shown in the aforementioned table. Data from the Low Income Dynamics publication illustrate that an increase in the number of workers or full time workers in a household greatly increases the likelihood of that household moving out of low income. The Low Income Dynamics paper is available in the Library.

Poverty: Children

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many children are living in relative poverty in a working age single parent family; and how many of them are living in a family in which the adult is (a) working full-time, (b) working part-time and (c) not working, broken down by the smallest geographical area for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement; [244146]

(2) how many children are living in relative poverty in a household with more than one working age parent, and how many of them are living in a household in which (a) at least one of the adults is (i) working full-time and (ii) working part-time and (b) neither parent is working, broken down by the smallest geographical area for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [244147]

Kitty Ussher: Available information is shown in the following tables.

Child poverty statistics, published in the Households Below Average Income series, only allow a breakdown of the overall number of children in relative poverty at Government office region level or for inner or outer London, with no further tabulations available broken down by Government office region or by any lower geography.

Table 1: Numbers of children living in households with incomes below 60 per cent of median in 2006-07 in a working age lone parent family overall and by whether the adult is working full-time, working part-time or not working, United Kingdom

Work status of working age lone parent family	Number of children
All children in working age lone parent families	1,200,000

Work status of family with more than one working age parent	Number of children
All children in families with more than one working age parent	1,700,000
of which:
At least one parent is working full-time	1,000,000
At least one parent is working part-time	500,000
Neither parent working	400,000

"—" Indicates less than 50,000 children.
Notes:
1. Figures in table 1 may not sum due to rounding.
2. In table 2, the categories 'At least one parent is working full-time' and 'At least one parent is working part-time' are not disjoint, as families where one parent is working full-time and the other working part-time will be included in both categories. Figures therefore do not sum.
3. These statistics are based on Households Below Average Income, sourced from the Family Resources Survey.
4. Small differences should be treated with caution as these will be affected by sampling error and variability in non-response.
5. The reference period for Households Below Average Income figures is single financial years.
6. The income measures used to derive the estimates shown employ the same methodology as the Department for Work and Pensions publication 'Households Below Average Income' series, which uses net disposable household income, adjusted (or "equivalised") for household size and composition, as an income measure as a proxy for standard of living.
7. Incomes have been equivalised using OECD equalisation factors.
8. Numbers of children have been rounded to the nearest hundred thousand children.
9. Children have been counted as being in workless families where they are in lone parent families where the parent does not work or in couple families where both parents do not work.
10. Families have been included if the parent is of working age (i.e. 64 or below for men, 59 or below for women) for lone parent families and both parents are of working age for couple families.
11. An adult has been classified as working full-time if they are working for 31 or more hours per week, in line with the Households Below Average Income publication.

Social Fund

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much and what proportion of the Social Fund has been awarded in 2008-09 to date; how much has been awarded in (a) crisis loans, (b) budgeting loans and (c) community care grants; and if he will make a statement. [246906]

Discretionary Social Fund expenditure for Great Britain for April to December 2008

Award type	Gross expenditure (£ million)	Proportion of relevant 2008-09 budget (percentage)
Crisis loans	117.1	n/a
Budgeting loans	363.3	n/a
Total loans	480.4	[1]89
Community care grants	107.0	[2]76

n/a = Not applicable
[1] Of gross loans budget
[2] Of community care grant budget
Notes:
1. Gross expenditure includes awards made after review.
2. There are not separate gross budgets for crisis loans and budgeting loans, but rather a combined gross loans budget for both.
3. It is expected that an in-year allocation to the gross loans budget will be made before the end of the financial year. The proportion given above is based on the initial gross loans budget.
4. As well as the gross loans budget and the community care grant budget, there is a contingency reserve to support any Jobcentre Plus budget area that comes under pressure from unforeseen expenditure. This has not been included in the above proportions.

State Retirement Pensions

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if his Department will consider the merits of allowing national insurance contributions of one half of a married couple over and above what is required to trigger entitlement to a full state pension to be transferred to a spouse if they have a shortfall in their own contributions. [247888]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 15 January 2009]: This is not a practicable proposal.

The need for such a transfer mechanism will be very limited under the reformed state pension scheme because the majority of both men and women in the UK—over 90 per cent. for those reaching state pension age in 2025—will have entitlement to a full basic state pension and are therefore less likely than under the current scheme to need to access their spouses' contributions.

It is not necessarily the case that qualifying years of contributions beyond those required for entitlement to a full basic pension are in effect surplus and not generating pension entitlement. State second pension will accrue on paid Class 1 contributions. Therefore on transferring the contributions from one spouse to another, the spouse donating the contributions would also be forfeiting any state second pension entitlement derived from them.

Overall the complexity for both customers and staff inherent to such an arrangement could not be justified given the relatively low numbers it could potentially benefit in the future under the reformed scheme.

UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the Government's revised deadline is to ratify the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities; and if he will make a statement. [248504]

Jonathan Shaw: The Government's intention is to achieve ratification of this important Convention at the earliest practicable opportunity, and our ambition is to do so in the spring of 2009.

Village Agent Scheme

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he plans to assess the effectiveness of the Village Agent Scheme operating in Gloucestershire; and whether he plans to extend it, with particular reference to the greater take-up of benefits amongst older people. [248162]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Village Agents Scheme was part of our LinkAge Plus pilot project which tested a comprehensive approach for accessible joined-up services for older people; one which puts older people at the centre of policy making and service delivery.

The current LinkAge Plus pilots ended their funded activity in October 2008 and each pilot is current finalising their individual pilot evaluations. All eight pilots have in the main sustained their activity, have secured funding and mainstreamed their activity to continue to deliver improved services for older people.

The national evaluation of the project includes an objective of building "an evidence base that supports the economic, as well as the social case for fully joined up/holistic services for older people" and will report in the spring of 2009.

In addition local evaluators have been appointed by each pilot to test the success of the projects in local terms. Their evidence will contribute to the national evaluation.

We are already sharing lessons learned from the pilot activity in order to encourage continuing sustainable joined-up services for older people (for example through the new Social Care Reform Grant). This scheme has attracted considerable interest from other authorities who are currently in contact with Gloucestershire county council with a view to developing similar approaches.

Winter Fuel Payments

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the level of winter heating allowance which would need to be paid in order to prevent all excess winter deaths attributable to lack of heating. [245818]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Although excess winter mortality is associated with low temperatures, conditions directly relating to cold, such as hypothermia, are not the main cause of excess winter mortality.

Mortality in the winter months is consistently higher than at other times of the year. Although influenza and health complications arising from cold weather influence the number of excess winter deaths, lack of heating is only one contributing factor that may affect a particular case. It is not therefore possible to estimate a level of winter fuel payment that would prevent all excess winter deaths attributable to lack of heating.

Winter fuel payments are one part of the overall Government programme to support vulnerable groups in winter. The programme also includes the annual seasonal influenza vaccination programme which offers free flu jabs to people most at risk from potentially life-threatening complications of flu; cold weather payments for vulnerable groups, which have been increased to £25 for 2008-09, and the Warm Front Scheme which focuses on improving home energy efficiency. Warm Front funding has been increased to over £950 million for the three-year period to March 2011 (with £50 million of the existing allocation being spent a year sooner than planned, ensuring that up to 30,000 vulnerable households will have less time to wait for their heating or insulation measures to be fitted).

Winter Fuel Payments: Cancer

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what financial support his Department makes available to cancer patients to assist them in meeting the cost of their heating bills; and if he will make a statement. [247752]

Jonathan Shaw: People with cancer may receive Winter Fuel Payments if they are aged 60 or over, giving older people reassurance that they can afford to heat their homes in winter. Cold Weather Payments are intended to help vulnerable groups on low incomes with the extra heating costs which result from periods of very cold weather that last, or are forecast to last, for seven days. For winter 2008-09 Cold Weather Payments have increased in value from £8.50 to £25. They are paid to people awarded Pension Credit, Income Support, income-related Employment and Support Allowance or income-based Jobseeker's Allowance when the temperature criteria are met for their area. Those receiving Income Support, income based Jobseeker's Allowance or income-related Employment and Support Allowance during the assessment phase must also be receiving a pensioner or disability premium, or have a child who is disabled or under the age of five.

People with cancer may also receive financial support through the disability benefits and the disability premiums in the income-related benefits in recognition of the extra costs, including heating, which they may have. These are spread over a 52 week period and can have a substantial annual value, up to around £8,000.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which local authorities not included in waves 1 to 6 of Building Schools for the Future have been allocated a flat rate of £8 million each for 14 to 19 and special educational needs spending. [247198]

Jim Knight: All 76 local authorities not included in waves 1 to 6 of Building Schools for the Future have been allocated £8 million of Targeted Capital Funding for 14 to 19 or special educational needs. They are:

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his policy is on the integration of school and onsite catering into the Building Schools for the Future programme. [247514]

Jim Knight: Our guidance, which applies to all secondary schools including those in BSF, "Building Bulletin 98, The Briefing Framework for Secondary School Projects", sets out recommendations for a range of options to suit the catering arrangements of the school. All of which is designed to promote healthy eating to children and young people. We do not require that every school have a kitchen on site big enough for all purposes, because it is up to local authorities and schools to decide how best to meet the Government's nutritional standards. The Department's "Inspirational Design for Kitchen Spaces" provides technical guidance.

Integration of existing onsite catering services into BSF facilities management contracts is not mandatory. It will vary within each local authority according to the current contractual arrangements for the services and the proposed future model of delivery for BSF. We would of course expect local authorities to make decisions following consultation with schools and based on value for money.

Children: Missing Persons

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children have gone missing from local authority care homes in each local authority in the last five years. [247673]

[2] Figures exclude children looked after under an agreed series of short-term placements.
[3] Historical data may differ from older publications. This is mainly due to the implementation of amendments and corrections sent by some local authorities after the publication date of previous materials.
[4] Children who went missing on more than one occasion during the year have been counted once.
[5] Includes looked after children who were missing from care for a period of more than 24 hours.

Children: Safety

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress has been made in implementing the child road safety strategy produced in 2007. [247381]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I have been asked to reply.

Progress in implementing the child road safety strategy includes disseminating the Kerbcraft child pedestrian training scheme and the rolling out of the Bikeability cycle training scheme and of the School Travel Plan target. A new long-term child advertising campaign—Tales of the Road—has been launched and in order to develop a strategic framework for road safety education, the Department for Transport has commissioned a project, which is now well advanced, to review existing materials and then produce a comprehensive set of road safety educational material.

This and other work to improve the road safety of children and young people is being carried forward under the umbrella of DCSF's PSA target to improve children's and young peoples' safety. The Department for Transport is working closely with DCSF on this.

Children's Centres: Pre-school Education

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether he expects all Sure Start children's centres with early years provision to be led by someone with Early Years Professional Status. [247269]

Beverley Hughes: Currently we expect all Sure Start Children's Centres offering early years provision to employ a qualified teacher upon designation. It is our aim that all Sure Start Children's Centres offering early years provision also employ someone with Early Years Professional Status (EYPS) to plan and lead delivery of the integrated child care and early learning provision by 2010, taking advantage, therefore, of the expertise of both types of graduates. These requirements are set out in the "Sure Start Children's Centre Planning and Performance Management Guidance", published in November 2006. It is up to children's centres how they meet this aim.

Education Maintenance Allowance

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many people in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England who were entitled to education maintenance allowance did not receive any payments in each year since its inception; and if he will make a statement. [247137]

Jim Knight: Eligibility for the Education Maintenance Allowance (EMA) is based on household income. The Department for Children, Schools and Families does not hold information on household income for every eligible 16to 18-year-old who participates in a course that meets the EMA valid provision criteria. Therefore it is not possible to calculate the number of students who were entitled to EMA but did not receive any payments or did not take up their entitlement.

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what percentage of young people in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England received education maintenance allowance in (i) 2006-07, (ii) 2007-08 and (iii) 2008-09 to date; [247139]

(2) how many people in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England have received (i) £10, (ii) £20 and (iii) £30 in education maintenance allowance in (A) 2006-07, (B) 2007-08 and (C) 2008-09 to date. [247138]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the education maintenance allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). Mark Haysom the LSC's Chief Executive, will write to my hon. Friend with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in the House Library.

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of young people in (a) North Wiltshire constituency, (b) Wiltshire, (c) Swindon and (d) England have received (i) £10, (ii) £20 and (iii) £30 education maintenance allowance in each year since the scheme began. [247224]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the Education Maintenance Allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). Mark Haysom the LSC's Chief Executive, will write to the hon. Member for North Wiltshire with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in the House Library.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether the planned extension of the education maintenance allowance to include young people taking entry to employment courses have commenced. [247252]

Jim Knight: From July 2008 all Entry to Employment (E2E) learners have received the maximum education maintenance allowance (EMA) regardless of their household income. Once a young person has completed their E2E programme and is ready to progress onto other post-16 provision they will be expected to apply again for EMA and will be subject to an income assessment the same as other EMA applicants.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many young people entitled to the education maintenance allowance received no payments between 1 September 2008 and 31 December 2008; and if he will make a statement. [248021]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the Education Maintenance Allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). The helpline, assessment and payment function for EMA has transferred to Capita as from 28 November 2008. Mark Haysom, the LSC's Chief Executive, will write to the hon. Member for Yeovil with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in the House Library.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many education maintenance allowance claims have yet to be processed; and if he will make a statement; [248022]

(2) how many education maintenance allowance claims have been lost since (a) 1 September 2008 and (b) 1 December 2008; and if he will make a statement. [248023]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the education maintenance allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). The helpline, assessment and payment function for EMA transferred to Capita as from 28 November 2008. Mark Haysom, the LSC's chief executive, will write to the hon. Member for Yeovil with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in the House Library.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many overdue education maintenance allowance payments there were at the latest date for which figures are available; and when he expects all overdue payments to have been made. [248197]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the education maintenance allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). The helpline, assessment and payment function for EMA has transferred to Capita as from 28 November 2008. Mark Haysom, the LSC's Chief Executive, will write to the hon. Member for Stroud with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in the House Library.

Education Maintenance Allowance: Disqualification

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many young people have had their education maintenance allowance withdrawn as a result of (a) disruptive behaviour in school or college and (b) poor attendance in each year since the scheme began. [247223]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the education maintenance allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). Mark Haysom, the LSC's chief executive, will write to the hon. Member for North Wiltshire with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in the House Library.

Education: Chorley

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he will next visit educational establishments in Chorley constituency. [248346]

Ed Balls: I regularly visit schools in the North West and I look forward to visiting a school in Chorley with my hon. Friend when I am next in the region.

Head Teachers

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the outcomes of the local area pilots to improve head teacher succession planning within and across schools; and if he will make a statement. [247459]

Jim Knight: In 2006, we asked the National College for School Leadership (NCSL) to develop and lead a succession planning strategy. As part of this, NCSL has rolled out the local solutions approach nationally. 148[1] local authorities have signed partnership agreements with NCSL to continue to address the succession challenge, which includes a particular focus on leadership diversification and the challenges faced by small primaries and faith schools. The local solutions programme is being evaluated externally by Warwick university and is due to report in early 2010. Evidence so far shows that 91 per cent. of LAs are better prepared to tackle succession planning than when they first engaged with the programme in 2007, and that LAs are making progress in supporting schools to better develop and mentor leaders and establish effective leadership cultures. NCSL's internal evaluation indicates that LAs are making good progress in assessing their data and developing, implementing and monitoring their local strategies. The succession planning programme met its 2008-09 targets to stabilise headship vacancies and temporary filled posts.

[1] The Isles of Scilly and the City of London LAs have not signed partnership agreements. The small number of schools within these LAs participate in the programme by working with neighbouring LAs.

Headteachers: Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many headteachers have been suspended for (a) three to six months, (b) six to nine months and (c) more than a year in the latest period for which figures are available; [248156]

(2) what guidance his Department provides to local authorities on the suspension of (a) headteachers and (b) other teaching staff; and what grounds he has to intervene when such guidance has not been followed; [248157]

(3) what duty local authorities have to report the suspensions of headteachers to his Department; [248166]

(4) what powers his Department has to investigate the suspension of headteachers or other senior staff; and on what occasions such powers have been exercised in the last three years. [248167]

Jim Knight: The operation of disciplinary procedures, including those that result in suspension, is a matter for local determination. To support schools in this area there are a variety of sources of advice available to help governing bodies with their responsibilities. The DCSF's 'A Guide to the Law for School Governors and Staffing' guidance set out the statutory responsibilities falling to schools and local authorities as employers. This guidance is available through www.governornet.co.uk and www.teachernet.co.uk. These sources also provide access to an extensive range of additional guidance material including materials from the Advisory, Conciliation and Arbitration Service.

Schools and local authorities are therefore able to draw from a wide variety of guidance when devising their policies and handling disciplinary cases, including suspension.

In respect of both head teachers and other teaching staff our guidance makes it clear that suspension is a neutral act allowing time to assess the situation before a final decision is taken. It does not imply guilt but provides an opportunity for matters to be investigated; nor does it go into detail about issues such as the length of any suspension. Decisions of this nature are best left to schools to determine, drawing on the guidance that is available and where appropriate on advice and support from local authorities. The only circumstances where the Secretary of State may become involved would be when an individual seeks intervention on the basis that the suspension is taking an unreasonably long time or the governing body appear not to be taking any further action.

There is no duty on local authorities to report suspensions of headteachers to the Department. Other than the circumstances described above the Secretary of State would not ordinarily become involved in suspensions of head teachers or other senior staff and there are no centrally held records setting out when and to what extent the Secretary of State has been involved. Accordingly the information requested is not collected centrally.

Mathematics: Teachers

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much the teacher training bursary for mathematics teachers was in academic year 2008-09. [247398]

Jim Knight: £9,000 teacher training bursaries are payable in England to eligible trainees training to teach mathematics starting postgraduate courses leading to Qualified Teacher Status in 2008/09.

National Academy of Parenting Practitioners

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether the National Academy of Parenting Practitioners provides support and training directly to parents to train them to deliver parenting classes to other parents. [249532]

Beverley Hughes: The National Academy for Parenting Practitioners (NAPP) training offer is for parenting practitioners working in services such as Sure Start Children's Centres, schools, Youth Offending Teams, voluntary and community groups and other locally identified priority services; and those practitioners in priority roles who are working with families at risk with high levels of need (eg practitioners in Family Intervention Projects and the Parenting Early Intervention project).

The academy have asked parenting commissioners within local authorities to coordinate local responses to its training offer so that each authority's bid reflects locally identified needs and services. Some of the parenting programmes used by the Academy (including Families and Schools Together (FAST) and Strengthening Families, Strengthening Communities) use trained practitioners to work with parents in the delivery of training to parents.

National Curriculum Tests

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of children attained the national standard in all of their Key Stage 1 assessments in the areas between (a) 0 and 10 per cent., (b) 10 and 30 per cent., (c) 30 and 50 per cent., (d) 50 and 70 per cent., (e) 70 and 90 per cent. and (f) 90 and 100 per cent. on the index of deprivation in each year since 1997. [249526]

Jim Knight: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost. The latest published Key Stage 1 results at local authority level (provisional) can be found in Statistical Release 21/2008:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000806/index.shtml

New National Challenge Programme

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has for the launch of the New National Challenge Programme; and if he will make a statement. [247477]

Jim Knight: The National Challenge Programme was launched on 10 June 2008. It will continue to sustain schools in need of additional support to ensure no school has fewer than 30 per cent. of pupils securing five higher level GCSEs including English and mathematics by 2011.

Schools: Accountancy

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the implementation of the 2006-07 Consistent Financial Reporting Framework to support improved financial reporting and benchmarking by schools; [247202]

(2) whether the functionality to allow schools to be identified by name on the school financial benchmarking website has been implemented. [247452]

Jim Knight: Consistent financial reporting provides a detailed breakdown of the income and expenditure of each maintained school in England. It was introduced in 2002-03 and has subsequently undergone only minor revisions.

The data underpin the schools' financial benchmarking website. The site provides schools with the tools to compare their expenditure with that of similar schools. They can then tailor their spending and re-allocate resources to ensure that education spending reflects local educational policy and priorities and is effective in delivering them. During the 2007/08 academic year the site was accessed by over 10,000 schools and it is also used by local authorities.

There may be occasions where a school might want to contact another about its data, clarify their expenditure and discuss ways to address particular problems. In order to facilitate this, charts are now labelled with school names and their unique seven digit local authority and establishment number. Where names and number labels do not appear, the data have been suppressed in line with data protection rules to ensure that salary information for individuals cannot be identified. School names are only made available for registered users of the website, specifically schools and local authorities. Other users may access benchmarking information under 'guest user' terms but named data will not be visible to further protect the anonymity of individuals and schools.

In October and November 2008 the Department's efficiency and value for money team included CFR and benchmarking presentations in six regional conferences. These conferences were aimed at local authority education finance staff and auditors. Overall, participants were very positive about the effectiveness of the benchmarking website and CFR. They particularly welcomed the ease with which they were able to access information to allow comparison and to identify and flag up important resource trends.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the outcomes of the consultation on Promoting achievement, valuing success: a strategy for 14 to 19 qualifications; and if he will make a statement. [247239]

Jim Knight: In March 2008 we published our consultation paper "Promoting achievement, valuing success: A strategy for 14-19 qualifications". The consultation closed on 23 June 2008. We published a summary of the responses to the consultation on the DCSF consultation website http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/consultations in July 2008 and published our formal response to the consultation in our "Delivering 14-19 Reform: Next Steps" document which was published on 13 October 2008 http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/publications/14-19nextsteps.

Teachers

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, (1) how many mathematics teachers were employed in maintained (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in England in each of the last 10 years; [247485]

(2) how many teachers of foreign languages were employed in maintained secondary schools in England in each of the last 10 years. [247486]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not available.

The number of mathematics teachers in maintained primary schools is not collected centrally; the number of teachers of mathematics and foreign languages in maintained secondary schools in England is collected as part of the Secondary School Curriculum and Staffing Survey. This is an occasional survey that does not provide a full-time series.

The following table gives data from the 2002 and 2007 surveys, the most recent years available:

Number of mathematics and foreign language teachers in maintained secondary schools in England: 2002 and 2007

	Full-time[1]		Full-time equivalent[1]
	2002	2007	2002	2007
Mathematics	28,200	28,300	n/a	30,800
Foreign Languages[2]
French	16,000	13,000	n/a	14,900
German	6,900	5,000	n/a	6,600
Spanish	3,600	4,800	n/a	5,200
Other modern languages	1,400	1,800	n/a	2,300

[1] Full-time teacher numbers are provided for 2002 and 2007; full-time equivalent teacher numbers (which includes part-time teachers) were only collected in 2007.
[2] Foreign language teachers may include some double counting as teachers are counted once under each subject they teach—a teacher teaching both French and German, for example, will be counted once under each subject in the table.

Teachers: Training

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent progress has been made on the Transition to Teaching programme; and if he will make a statement. [247406]

Jim Knight: Transition to Teaching was launched in July 2008 with some 50 organisations backing it. Since then this has risen to some 130 organisations supporting the programme by agreeing to promote teaching as a second career to their staff. In addition to this, many outplacement organisations have recently agreed to promote Transition to Teaching to companies they work with, and many influencing organisations, including the CBI, are supporting the programme. Transition to Teaching consultants are currently supporting 58 individuals at different stages of the process of deciding whether or not to become a teacher. So far five of these have entered teacher training, a further four have been offered teacher training places and most of the rest have applied for a place or intend to do so soon.

Young People: Antisocial Behaviour

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps the Youth Taskforce has taken to improve responses to (a) antisocial behaviour and other serious problems and (b) work with Government Offices and other bodies to improve local authority performance. [247264]

Beverley Hughes: The Youth Taskforce is now working across the country to drive improved local delivery of services and support for young people, ensuring that every local area has an effective approach to keep young people on track. The key steps taken by the Youth Taskforce are set out in my previous answer of 19 January 2009, Official Report, columns 1154-55W.

The taskforce works closely with Government offices and other key partners including children's services, the police, youth justice and community safety services, to improve responses to youth antisocial behaviour, in line with the Government's Improvement and Efficiency Strategy for LA performance.

This includes funding specific projects to test and develop innovative approaches, ministerial and official visits, and regional and national training events for practitioners and managers, sharing practice between areas.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Members: Offices

Mr. Amess: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how many (a) hon. Members and (b) staff of hon. Members have an office in (i) 1 Parliament Street, (ii) Norman Shaw North, (iii) Norman Shaw South, (iv) the Palace of Westminster, (v) 7 Millbank and (vi) Portcullis House. [248140]

Nick Harvey: Full information on accommodation allocations on the House of Commons estate was given in the Third Report of the Select Committee on Administration Session 2005-06 HC1279 in June 2006. Updated information is as follows:

The number of Members' staff fluctuates constantly and it is therefore difficult to give an exact figure for the number accommodated on the parliamentary estate. The figures for the number of desks occupied by Members' staff stated in the Administration Committee's report are as follows:

1 Parliament Street: 125
Norman Shaw North: 267
Norman Shaw South: 145

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Departmental Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change if he will make it his policy to ensure that those temporary and permanent employees at the same grade in his Department who are paid at an hourly rate are paid at the same rate. [244394]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC), which was formed on 3 October 2008, will consist of posts transferred from the existing Departments for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) and for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA). The detail is still being worked on, but staff will come to DECC from Energy Group in BERR and Climate Change Group in DEFRA. All DECC staff, including those in the corporate centre, are currently on either the BERR or DEFRA terms and conditions. Given that, I refer the hon. Member to the answers given by the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, my hon. Friend the Member for Ogmore (Huw Irranca-Davies) on 13 January 2009, Official Report, column reference 594W and by my right hon. Friend the Minister for Employment Relations and Postal Affairs, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on 14 January 2009, Official Report, column 757W.

Home Energy Efficiency Scheme: Essex

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many people were required to make contributions towards the cost of work carried out under the Warm Front scheme in Essex in each of the last five years; and what the average contribution was. [243816]

Joan Ruddock: The information requested is available from the beginning of the current phase of Warm Front, which commenced in 2005. The figures shown as follows are from 1 June 2005 until end of October 2008.

	Number of customers in Essex who made an additional contribution	Average customer contribution (£)
2005-06	304	412.95
2006-07	948	519.02

2008-09	1,429	640.45

Nuclear Power: Consultants

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change which external consultants have been engaged by (a) the Nuclear Installations Inspectorate and (b) the Nuclear Directorate in connection with the generic design assessment. [242506]

Jonathan Shaw: I have been asked to reply.

The Nuclear Installations Inspectorate of the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) has engaged the following main group of external consultants in connection with the Generic Design Assessment (GDA) work:

IAEA
Washington E&C Ltd.
EPRI
Health Protection Agency
Morson International
Imperial College London
OECD-NEA
AMEC
Atkins Nuclear

A number of individuals have been engaged to form the Project Review Board, namely Mr. David Hughes, Professor John Raine, Mr. Bernard Whittle and Mr. Phillip Woodward. Additionally Mr. James Furness has been engaged as Project Assurance Officer.

It is the intention of the HSE's NII to employ other Technical Support Contractors throughout the GDA process to aid in the provision of supplementary data and information on the reactor designs. HSE are currently undertaking an open procurement process in line with EU guidance/regulations to identify and appoint such contractors.

Warm Front Scheme

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many contractors have left the Warm Front scheme in each of the last six months. [243463]

Joan Ruddock: No contractors have left the scheme in any of the last six months.

TRANSPORT

Aviation: Security

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what information his Department holds for benchmarking purposes on restrictions imposed by other countries on passengers carrying liquids on aeroplanes. [248505]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Liquid restrictions are in place at all EC airports as required under EC aviation security regulations. In late 2006 the International Civil Aviation Organisation (ICAO) issued a recommendation to each of its 190 contracting states that restrictions on the hand carriage of liquids, aerosols and gels (LAGs) through security search points should be imposed. Most major states have applied such restrictions, including the US, Canada, Australia, Japan and Singapore.

Bus Services: Concessions

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many appeals bus operators have made in respect of the rate of reimbursement for concessionary fares since April 2008; how many of these appeals (a) have been successful, (b) have been rejected and (c) are still outstanding; and what estimate he has made of the average cost to his Department of (i) processing and (ii) resolving an appeal of this type. [249539]

Paul Clark: There were 100 appeals by bus operators about reimbursement arrangements in 2008-09, of which five were not valid and 52 were later withdrawn. Of the 43 appeals remaining, by 19 January, 11 appeals have been determined by independent adjudicators appointed on behalf of the Secretary of State for Transport. Of these appeals, five were upheld and six were dismissed. A further 32 appeals remain to be determined. It is intended to issue the majority of those determinations by the end of January.

The average cost of processing and resolving an appeal takes account of four officials working full-time for about half of the year on casework, the fees of consultants and the two independent adjudicators. The cost per appeal determined is estimated to be approximately £6,000.

Commuters: Hemel Hempstead

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what incentives are offered to people travelling to work in Hemel Hempstead to reduce the environmental impact of that travel. [249472]

Paul Clark: The policies and objectives in Hertfordshire county council's Local Transport Plan aim to encourage the use of alternatives to the car in order to protect the environment. Implementation is carried out through a variety of methods, including the improvement of public transport, the development of new cycling routes and working with local employers to encourage their staff to travel more sustainably. The Hemel Hempstead Urban Transport Plan includes a number of proposed measures including the development of travel plans for Hemel Hempstead railway station and the hospital, proactively encouraging the development of car clubs and establishing a project to provide individual households with travel planning advice.

Cycling: Safety

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to ensure the protection of pedestrians from cyclists. [249825]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We advise all road users, including cyclists and pedestrians, of the need to be aware of others and be considerate of their needs. The main source of this advice is the Highway Code, which sets out road traffic law and advice for safe road users. It includes specific sections for cyclists and for pedestrians. The rules for cyclists make clear that they must not cycle on the pavement as this is an offence. It also provides advice on taking care of pedestrians in those areas where cyclists and pedestrians share space, such as unsegregated cycle tracks. In addition the Department for Transport provides local authorities with guidance on the planning and design of facilities used by pedestrians and cyclists including shared use.

Departmental Langnages

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) Ministers and (b) civil servants in his Department received coaching in a foreign language in the last 12 months; what expenditure his Department incurred in providing such coaching; and in what languages such coaching was provided. [248073]

Mr. Hoon: The central Department and its agencies recorded no instances where Ministers have received coaching in a foreign language in the last 12 months.

The following table provides a break down of civil servants within the Department and its agencies who have received coaching in a foreign language.

DFT (C)	Delegates attended Not available	Language(s) French, Mandarin, Spanish, Italian and German	Cost (£) £6.50 -£8.00 per hour
DVLA	0	—	—
HA	1	Dutch	700.00
MCA	1	Spanish	314.00
VGA	0	—	—
VOSA	1	Welsh	144.00
GCDA	0	—	—

Driver Information Systems: Licensing

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what conditions his Department has applied to the issue of licences for dynamic route guidance systems. [249322]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Those seeking licences have been obliged to submit to an independent assessment, commissioned by the Department for Transport, of the adequacy of the drivers' interaction with the equipment (with the aim of ensuring that the risk of driver distraction has been minimised). Assurance that the relevant product categorises roads appropriately for routeing has also been required and the licences issued have themselves included various requirements regarding for example record-keeping.

Government Car and Despatch Agency

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many instances of misuse of government procurement cards within the Government Car and Despatch Agency have been recorded since 1 January 2006; what the amount involved in each such instance was; and which disciplinary measures have been applied as a result of such instances. [247513]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government Procurement Card (GPC) was introduced into the Government Car and Despatch Agency on 1 April 2006. Since that time the following incidents of misuse of the GPC have been recorded:

Number of incidents	Value	Action taken
13	Less than £10	Monies recovered and warning letters issued
5	£10 to £20	Monies recovered and warning letters issued
2	£20 to £50	Monies recovered and warning letters issued
1	£20 to £50	Charged with Gross Misconduct, monies recovered
1	£50 to £100	Monies recovered and warning letters issued
2	More than £100	Monies recovered and warning letters issued
1	More than £100	Charged with Gross Misconduct, monies recovered

Great Western Railway: Electrification

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the time frame is for the electrification of the Great Western main line from London, Paddington to Bristol (a) Temple Meads and (b) Parkway stations. [249691]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport is working closely with the rail industry to examine the case for further rail electrification. A decision on the electrification of the Great Western Main Line will be announced later this year, alongside decisions on the deployment of the new Intercity Express trains.

Heathrow Airport

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether his Department's assessment of the economic case for expansion at Heathrow takes account of projected income from air passenger duty. [249317]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The economic case for expansion is set out in the recently published document Adding Capacity at Heathrow Airport—Impact Assessment (January 2009). This assessment includes among other things the air passenger duty revenues from additional non-transfer passengers that are forecast to use the additional capacity.

A copy of the impact assessment is available at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/aviation/heathrowconsultations/heathrowdecision/impactassessment/.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what account his Department has taken of (a) mineral reserves contained within the proposed Heathrow Expansion Area and (b) the possible impact upon the supply of sand and gravel for London's construction industry in its consideration of plans for a possible third runway. [249324]

Jim Fitzpatrick: A thorough assessment of historic mapping, aerial photographs and visual appraisal, found that around 43 per cent. of the proposed site area had been quarried for gravel extraction. This assessment is set out on page 31 of the "Adding Capacity at Heathrow - 2008 Historic Environment Appraisal", available at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/aviation/heathrowconsultations/heathrowdecision/historicenvironment/

No formal assessment has been made of the impact of additional capacity on the supply of sand and gravel for London's construction industry. The impact assessment includes estimates of the costs of construction of a third runway. This is a comprehensive assessment, which includes the cost of sand and gravel, and is available at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/aviation/heathrowconsultations/heathrowdecision/impactassessment/

Olympic Route Network

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which roads in Wandsworth have been identified as part of the Olympic Route Network (ORN), broken down by (a) core ORN, (b) venue specific ORN, (c) alternative routes ORN and (d) preferred training venues ORN. [248051]

Paul Clark: The following table lists the roads in the London borough of Wandsworth that are part of the proposed Olympic Route Network (ORN). Each road is categorised according whether it is part of the venue specific ORN or alternative routes ORN. None of the roads in Wandsworth are part of the core ORN or the preferred training venues ORN.

Railways

Ms Angela C. Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the average level of peak hour overcrowding on trains into the cities of (a) London, (b) Manchester, (c) Leeds, (d) Sheffield, (e) Liverpool, (f) Birmingham, (g) Glasgow, (h) Bristol, (i) Cardiff and (j) Nottingham in each of the last five years. [248626]

Paul Clark: Data are only collected and routinely provided to the Department for Transport by train operators serving the London and South East commuter market. Crowding data have not been consistently collected for the other cities mentioned for the period sought and are not available.

The information requested for train operators serving the London and South East commuter market is currently published annually in aggregated form by the Office for Rail Regulation within its "National Rail Trends Yearbook" and are available on the Office of Rail Regulation website at:

www.rail-reg.gov.uk.

The latest published data relate to passenger counts carried out by train operators in autumn 2007.

Railways: Adlington

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what reasons Network Rail have provided to his Department for re-routing more trains from Adlington to Manchester Victoria as opposed to Manchester Piccadilly under the new timetable introduced on 13 December 2008. [248370]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport in conjunction with Northern Rail, worked through timetable solutions with Network rail, to accommodate the enhanced West Coast timetable. Moving trains to Manchester Victoria was as a result of extra capacity at this station, becoming available. This is seen as an overall improvement which has led to an increase of 45 per cent. in additional capacity on long distance services.

Railways: Delays

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will estimate the financial effect on the economy of delays to rail services in (a) England and (b) Yorkshire and the Humber in 2008-09. [247314]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport does not hold the information in the form requested.

Railways: Finance

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what plans he has to increase capital expenditure on rail links as part of the Government's plans to create up to 100,000 new jobs through public works; [248743]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of jobs that will be created by increased funding for new rail links in (a) 2009, (b) 2010 and (c) 2011 under the Government's plans to create up to 100,000 new jobs through public works; and what proportion of those jobs he estimates will go to British workers. [248747]

Paul Clark: The July 2007 Rail White Paper set out the Government's commitment of £10 billion towards increasing capacity on the rail network over the next five years, including improvements to the infrastructure.

In the pre-Budget report in November, the Government announced that they are bringing forward £3 billion of capital spending from 2010-11 to 2008-09 and 2009-10. The package included £300 million to accelerate the delivery of up to 200 new carriages to expand capacity on the rail network and an extra £54 million to help enhance the North London rail line to increase the long-term freight capacity of this vital cross-London rail route.

It is not yet possible to say how many jobs will be created in developing rail links in the next three years but British suppliers will be well placed to compete for this work.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to the answer of 24 November 2008, Official Report, column 1097W, what the reasons are for the differential treatment of light rail and non-light rail local transport schemes; and if he will make a statement. [249327]

Paul Clark: The reason for the difference in local contribution requirements is due to the scale, complexity and cost of light rail projects and the importance of ensuring commitment from promoters.

Railways: Freight

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent steps his Department has taken to encourage support for projects of strategic national importance, with particular reference to rail freight interchanges. [249769]

Paul Clark: The Planning Act 2008 creates the framework for a clearer and more efficient system for considering the development of strategic rail freight interchanges. The Department for Transport also makes available capital grants for such infrastructure through the Freight Facilities Grant scheme.

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions he has had with Ministerial colleagues at the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform and HM Treasury on financial support for rail freight interchanges. [249770]

Paul Clark: None. Investment in rail freight interchanges is a matter for the private sector. However, the Sustainable Distribution Fund makes funding available through the established Freight Facilities Grant scheme for rail freight interchanges where they remove lorry journeys from the roads.

Railways: Police

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how British Transport Police apply the provisions of section 44 of the Prevention of Terrorism Act 2000 to railway property; and if he will make a statement. [249332]

Paul Clark: This information is not held by the Department for Transport but by the British Transport police who can be contacted at: British Transport Police, 25 Camden Road, London NW1 9LN, E-mail:

parliament@btp.pnn.police.uk

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what percentage of stops made by British Transport Police on railway property between October 2007 and September 2008 resulted in (a) an arrest and (b) a conviction. [249333]

Paul Clark: This information is not held by the Department for Transport, but by the British Transport Police who can be contacted at: British Transport Police, 25 Camden Road, London NW1 9LN, E-mail:

parliament@btp.pnn.police.uk.

Railways: Scotland

Jim Sheridan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions he has had with the Scottish Executive on the financial and planning implications of the recently announced improvements to the rail system from London to Scotland. [249548]

Paul Clark: "High Speed Two (HS2) Ltd." will help consider the case for new high speed services from London to Scotland. As a first stage, the company will develop a proposal for an entirely new line between London and the West Midlands, and will report to Ministers by the end of the year. This will include costs and benefits of a proposed route, and financing options.

The Government intend to work closely with the devolved administrations in respect of the implications of the proposal.

Statutory consents for any type of cross-border rail project would be handled in accordance with the devolution settlement.

Road Signs and Markings

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what guidance his Department issues to local highway authorities on the use of No Pedestrians signs. [249320]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport's Traffic Signs Manual (Chapter 3—Regulatory Signs) provides detailed guidance to local highway authorities on the correct design and use of the 'pedestrians prohibited' sign. The document is on the Department's website at the following address:

www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/roads/tss/tsmanual/tsmchapter3.pdf

Road Traffic: Gloucestershire

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions the Department has had with Gloucestershire County Council on the latter's lorry strategy. [248240]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport has had no discussions with Gloucestershire county council regarding its lorry strategy.

Rolling Stock

Ms Angela C. Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many new carriages have been procured for (a) Northern Rail, (b) London Midland and the preceding franchise covering the West Midlands and (c) the franchises that provide commuter services in London and the South East in each of the last five years. Waterloo Station

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his most recent estimate is of the cost of the track works outside Waterloo station required to bring the old Eurostar platforms into use for commuter services; and what the annual cost of maintaining these platforms is. [249043]

Paul Clark: Network Rail is currently developing the options and undertaking the detailed cost analysis of carrying out the works to bring the old Eurostar platforms into use for domestic services. The cost analysis should be available in the spring.

The platforms at Waterloo International are an integral part of the terminal building which is operated and managed by BRB (Residuary) Ltd (BRBR) as a single site. As such it is not possible to accurately determine the cost of maintaining the platforms on a stand alone basis. The total annual costs of managing the entire facility are in the order of £2.5 million. These costs are partially offset by rental income of approximately £340,000 per annum and BRBR are looking for further opportunities to generate income while the terminal is non-operational.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Child Support Agency: Debt Collection

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps the Government takes to monitor the debt collection strategies of bailiffs appointed by the Child Support Agency. [241926]

Kitty Ussher: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance system. I have therefore asked the Commissioner to write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner as the Child Support Agency is now the responsibility of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what steps the Government takes to monitor the debt collection strategies of bailiffs appointed by the Child Support Agency. (241926)

All bailiff firms, including those providing services to the Child Support Agency, must comply with the National Standards for Enforcement Agents, a set of common standards produced by the Government as a code of practice.

The Child Support Agency also has a framework agreement with its bailiff service providers. This agreement set out the performance standards expected by the Agency and covers operations, compliance and complaints. In addition to a series of formal quarterly contract meetings, to review performance, the Agency remains in close contact with its bailiff service provider in order to resolve issues as they arise.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Child Support Agency: ICT

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects the transfer of historical child maintenance cases on to the Child Support Agency's new system for calculating maintenance payments to be complete. [249016]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance system. I have therefore asked the Commissioner to write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner as the Child Support Agency is now the responsibility of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, when he expects the transfer of historical child maintenance cases onto the Child Support Agency's new system for calculating maintenance payments to be complete. [249016]

The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission took responsibility for all Child Support Agency functions, assets and people from 1 November 2008. All existing Agency clients have the option either to agree a private maintenance arrangement or to remain within the current schemes until the new gross income statutory maintenance scheme is introduced.

The Commission expects to introduce the new gross income statutory maintenance scheme in 2011 and all Agency clients on both schemes will then be invited either to apply to the new gross income scheme or to make a private arrangement. It is currently planned that this process will take around three years.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Children: Maintenance

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the (a) mean and (b) median number of days was for child maintenance to be sent to parents with care after the non-resident parent had made payment (i) in the most recent period for which figures are available and (ii) over the last three years. [245228]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 18 December 2008]: The administration of the child maintenance system is a matter for the Commissioner of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner as the Child Support Agency is now the responsibility of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what the (a) mean and (b) median number of days was for child maintenance to be sent to parents with care after the non-resident parent had made payment in (i) the most recent period for which figures are available and (ii) all such periods over the last three years. [245228]

The information requested is provided in the attached table, which sets out the time between a receipt arriving in the Agency's bank account and the Agency forwarding payment to the parent with care for all cases held on the current computer system (CS2). The table shows at September 2008, the mean and median number of days it has taken for receipts received between September 2006 and September 2009 to be paid out by the Agency to the parent with care. This represents 70% of the Agency caseload. Management information is not available for the 30% of cases held on the old computer system (CSCS).

The table also shows improvements made since the introduction of the Agency's Operational Improvement Plan in 2006, on the length of time it takes the Agency to allocate maintenance, which includes the minority of payments where there has been significant delay.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

1. Only includes receipts and payments for cases held on the current computer system (CS2) and represents 70 per cent. of the Agency caseload. Management information is not available for the 30 per cent. of cases held on the old computer system (CSCS).
2. Information provided calculates time between receipt arriving in Agency's bank account and the Agency forwarding payment to the parent with care.
3. Mean—the average number of days taken, which will take into account all payments, including the minority of payments where there has been a significant delay, and as such can be significantly altered by a few extreme cases.
Median—the middle figure in a series.

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions in what proportion of new claims for (a) income support and (b) jobseeker's allowance by parents with care the applicant opted to apply to the Child Support Agency for child maintenance in each of the last three years. [249026]

Kitty Ussher: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance system. I have therefore asked the Child Maintenance Commissioner to write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 21 January 2009:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner as the Child Support Agency is now the responsibility of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, in what proportion of cases of new claims for (a) income support and (b) jobseeker's allowance by parents with care the applicant opted to apply to the Child Support Agency for child maintenance in each of the last three years. [249026]

Section 6 of the Child Support Act 1991 made provision for a claim to relevant benefits by a parent with care to be treated as an application for child maintenance. Therefore, all parents with care making a new claim to Income Support or Jobseeker's Allowance would be classed as opting to also apply to the Child Support Agency for child maintenance.

The Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 repealed Section 6 of the Child Support Act 1991, removing this compulsion for all new claims to benefit from 14 July 2008 and for all existing cases from 27 October 2008. Information on the proportion of parents with care who have made a new claim to Income Support or Jobseeker's Allowance since 14 July 2008 and who subsequently decide to make an application for child maintenance is not yet available.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Crisis Loans: Telephone Services

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what proportion of calls to the Crisis Loan Helpline have been dropped or cut off before being answered in each of the last 12 months; [248605]

(2) how long it has taken to answer calls to the Crisis Loan Helpline on average in each of the last 12 months. [248606]

Kitty Ussher: The information requested is not available.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions for what reasons his Department's customer information system does not meet Cabinet Office rules for personal data. [249656]

Jonathan Shaw: The Cabinet Office's requirements for accreditation apply only to IT systems which were introduced after 1 July 2008.

Departmental ICT

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will place a copy of his Department's IT strategy in the Library. [246678]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department's IT strategy is available to the public, and will be placed in the Library. It consists of two documents:

(1) The IS/IT Strategy brief—this document provides the overarching principles the Department will apply to all IT decisions and answers questions regarding how the Department will deliver its IT.

(2) The Strategy for Business IT Services—this document provides a view of the IT capabilities that are required for the Department's business over a 10-year period and answers questions regarding what the Department will be delivering.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will place a copy of his Department's skills framework for IT staff in the Library. [246679]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department uses the Skills Framework for the Information Age (SFIA), which has been adopted by the Government IT profession. A copy of the current (December 2008) version will be placed in the Library.

Departmental Procurement

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of invoices for goods and services procured from small and medium-sized businesses were paid within 10 days of receipt by (a) his Department and (b) the agencies for which his Department is responsible in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [243360]

Jonathan Shaw: Until October 2008 the Department for Work and Pensions was required to monitor and publish payment performance against a 30-day payment target and does not therefore currently publish information about payment within 10 days. However, following the PM's commitment of 8 October that central Government Departments will make payment within 10 days, we will additionally report 10-day payment performance from the period January to March 2009.

The Department for Work and Pensions does not currently publish information about size of suppliers. We do not discriminate by size because many SMEs can be found within larger supply chains.

The Department for Work and Pensions welcomes the statement by the Prime Minister at Prime Minister's Questions on 8 October 2008 and the Department has made changes to its payment process in order to meet this commitment as soon as possible.

Housing Benefit

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether representations will be invited from officers in local authorities' strategic housing and homeless services when the local housing allowance is reviewed by his Department. [248700]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 20 January 2009]: As part of the two year review of the local housing allowance, we have begun to engage with local authorities, including on issues of homelessness. If there is specific written evidence that officers in local authorities' strategic housing and homeless services would like to submit, then this will be welcomed.

Industrial Health and Safety: Arthritis

Mrs. Riordan: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will commission research into the effects on expenditure on benefits of patients with rheumatoid arthritis receiving treatment that enables them to continue to work or return to work. [247295]

Jonathan Shaw: I refer the hon. Member to the oral answer I gave her on 20 October 2008, Official Report, column 4.

Industrial Health and Safety: Qualifications

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the recommendations of the 2006 Carpenter Report, if he will support a set of core criteria for health and safety pre-qualifications, as a baseline for recognising competences across different pre-qualification schemes. [246829]

Jonathan Shaw: The Government already support a set of core criteria for assessing the competence of individuals and organisations prior to their appointment to carry out construction work. They are set out in the Approved Code of Practice (ACoP) which provides advice on compliance with the provisions of the Construction (Design and Management) Regulations 2007 (CDM2007). These core criteria are based on the criteria recommended in the Carpenter Report. As well as forming part of the practical advice that the ACoP provides on compliance with the competency provisions of CDM2007, the core criteria aim to provide a basis for simplifying the wide variety of competence assurance schemes operated by the construction industry. Since publication of the ACoP, the Government have supported the work the industry is doing to both raise standards and simplify assessments in this area.

Pension Funds

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the effect on pensioners of the Government Actuary's decision to reduce draw-down rates from pension funds; and if he will make a statement. [247211]

Ian Pearson: I have been asked to reply.

Tables drawn up by the Government Actuary's Department on behalf of HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) determine the rates for income withdrawal rates from pension funds. The current tables took effect on 6 April 2006 and have not subsequently been changed by the Government's Actuary. The tables are used to calculate the maximum level of unsecured pension or alternatively secured pension that may be paid in light of the pensioner's age, gender and the prevailing yield figure on UK gilts. The rates of pension that can be provided using these tables have changed along with movement in gilt yields.

Flexibility in the withdrawal rules allows pension schemes to pay between 0 and 120 per cent. of amounts shown by the Government Actuary's tables to members under the age of 75; and so, in most cases, to pay as much income as if an annuity had been purchased.

Poverty: Children

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps are being taken to reduce levels of relative child poverty in (a) the Vale of York and (b) England. [247608]

Kitty Ussher: We have made substantial progress in tackling child poverty. 600,000 children have been lifted out of relative poverty since 1998-99. As a result of the support we have introduced, families with children in the poorest fifth of the population, including those in the Vale of York, are, on average, £4,100 a year better off than in 1997. The measures we announced in the pre-Budget report 2008 will increase this to £4,400 from April 2009. In addition, Government measures over the past two years will result in lifting around a further 500,000 children from relative poverty. Our plans for reducing levels of child poverty in England were set out in 'Ending child poverty: everybody's business' which is available in the Library.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many children classified as being in relative child poverty were of (a) white, (b) Pakistani or Bangladeshi and (c) black non-Caribbean ethnicity in (i) the Vale of York and (ii) England in the latest period for which information is available. [247611]

Kitty Ussher: Available information is given in the table. Child poverty statistics, published in the Households Below Average Income series, only allow a breakdown of the overall number of children in relative poverty at Government Office Region level or for Inner or Outer London. This means information for the Vale of York is not available.

Numbers of children living in households with incomes below 60 per cent. of median from 2004-05 to 2006-07 for white, Pakistani/ Bangladeshi and black non-Caribbean ethnic groups, before housing costs, England

Ethnic group of household reference person	Number of children (million)
White	1.7
Pakistani/Bangladeshi	0.2
Black non-Caribbean	0.1

Notes:
1. These statistics are based on Households Below Average Income, sourced from the Family Resources Survey.
2. Small differences should be treated with caution as these will be affected by sampling error and variability in non-response.
3. The reference period for Households Below Average Income figures are single financial years. Three sample years have been combined as regional single year estimates are subject to volatility.
4. The income measures used to derive the estimates shown employ the same methodology as the Department for Work and Pensions publication 'Households Below Average Income' series, which uses net disposable household income, adjusted (or "equivalised") for household size and composition, as an income measure as a proxy for standard of living.
5. Incomes have been equivalised using OECD equivalisation factors.
6. Numbers of children have been rounded to the nearest 100,000 children.
7. Children have been classified according to the ethnic group of the household reference person. The household reference person is classified as the highest income householder without regard to gender. This is consistent with the Households below Average Income publication.

Social Fund

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the contribution credit unions can make to the delivery of the Government's social fund; and what discussions he has had on this matter. [248161]

Kitty Ussher: An informal consultation paper, "Social Fund: A New Approach" was published on 1 December 2008 discussing a number of reforms to the social fund. One of the reforms on which initial views were sought was contracting with credit unions or other external organisations to provide credit in place of social fund loans. The intention is to move from a scheme that provides only loans to people on benefit to one that also connects our customers to organisations with whom they can maintain a relationship when they move off benefit and into work which could include better financial advice and support. The views expressed through the consultation, including those from the Credit Union movement, will inform the next steps in developing this type of scheme.

In the mean time the Government are taking the opportunity offered by the Welfare' Reform Bill to take powers to work in partnership with organisations capable of delivering interest free external provider social loans.

Social Fund: Greater London

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in each London borough received a crisis loan in each of the last five years. [247033]

Kitty Ussher: The information is not available broken down by local authority.

Social Fund: Lancashire

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average time was for decisions to be taken on crisis loan applications in Lancashire in each month of 2008; and if he will make a statement. [247430]

Kitty Ussher: The information requested is not available.

Crisis loan applications for Lancashire are processed at Chorlton benefit delivery centre. However, Chorlton benefit delivery centre does not only process applications from Lancashire.

Social Security Benefits: Fraud

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much the Targeting Benefit Thieves section of his Department's website costs to run each year; and what the initial implementation cost of this section of the website was. [249019]

Jonathan Shaw: There are no separately quantifiable set-up or running costs for the Targeting Benefit Thieves section of the Department's website.

Maintenance of DWP websites is mostly carried out by the Department's own in-house digital media team. It is not possible for us to quantify internal staff costs, because in most cases, staff are engaged in more than one role. In addition, we are unable to establish accurately our infrastructure costs because they form part of a wider departmental IT contract.

DWP is currently working with the COI to develop a standardised method for quantifying website costs across Government. We will be implementing this standard from March 2009 in line with the current timetable.

Social Security Benefits: Overseas Residence

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 15 December 2008, Official Report, columns 419-20W, on social security benefits: overseas residence, what the outcomes of his Department's consideration of the implications of the European Court's decision are for UK citizens who live in another EEA state area or in Switzerland and who wish to claim a disability benefit; and if he will make a statement. [249398]

Jonathan Shaw: We expect to set out entitlement conditions for those wishing to claim from abroad shortly. The Directgov website will be updated at that time. The site can be found at:

www.direct.gov.uk

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 420W, on social security benefits: overseas residence, how many of the 1,700 requests for payment of (a) disability living allowance (care component), (b) attendance allowance and (c) carers' allowance made by people who previously lived in the UK and are now living in another EEA state or Switzerland have been granted; and if he will make a statement. [249454]

Jonathan Shaw: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave him on 15 January 2009, Official Report, column 982W.

Working Conditions: Temperature

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he plans to issue guidelines to employers on reducing exposure of employees to high temperatures in the workplace. [249053]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 15 January 2009]: Guidance is already available to employers in 'Heat stress in the workplace. What you need to know as an employer' and in detailed supporting information which is on the Health and Safety Executive website.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Fuel Smuggling

5. Mr. Syms: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of the quantity of fuel smuggled between the Republic of Ireland and Northern Ireland in the last 12 months. [248303]

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent estimate he has made of the trends in the level of fuel smuggling into Northern Ireland. [248304]

Paul Goggins: Latest HMRC figures indicate that the amount of fuel used but not sourced in NI is reducing. However, the OCTF is not complacent, during 2007-08 HMRC seized 0.82 million litres of fuel, disrupted eight laundering plants and seized 844 vehicles.

Unemployment

6. Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the most recent Northern Ireland quarterly employment survey findings on levels of unemployment in Northern Ireland. [248305]

Paul Goggins: While this is a devolved matter for Northern Ireland Ministers, I understand from the statistics that have been published today that the seasonally adjusted number of people claiming unemployment related benefits in Northern Ireland stands at 35,900 which represents an unemployment rate of 4.2 per cent.

Saville Inquiry

7. Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent estimate he has made of the final cost of the Saville inquiry. [248306]

Mr. Woodward: I have taken urgent steps to ensure the remaining running costs are kept as low as possible. A package of measures has been agreed with the inquiry to reduce the projected cost by approximately £1 million—a 20 per cent. reduction for the remaining stages. The revised estimated final cost is now £190 million.

Security Situation

8. Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the threat to security in Northern Ireland arising from the recent threat by the Real IRA to fight the long war. [248307]

Mr. Woodward: As the Chief Constable and Garda Commissioner have indicated, dissident republicans remain a serious and continuing threat with a determination to kill or injure police officers. These criminal gangs are isolated within the wider community and law enforcement agencies on both sides of the border remain resolute in their determination to tackle such criminality.

11. Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent assessment he has made of the security situation in Northern Ireland. [248310]

Mr. Woodward: Dissident republicans remain active and committed to killing or injuring police officers. Progress from loyalists towards decommissioning has been disappointing and I would again encourage them to take advantage of the extension to the decommissioning amnesty.

Public Spending

9. Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what discussions the Government had in June 2008 with representatives of the Democratic Unionist party on public spending in Northern Ireland. [248308]

10. Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what discussions the Government had in June 2008 with representatives of the Democratic Unionist party on public spending in Northern Ireland. [248309]

Mr. Woodward: I have regular meetings with all the Northern Ireland political parties which cover a range of issues relating to Northern Ireland. These discussions have included the post-devolution policing and justice budget. However, public spending on devolved matters is a matter for the Northern Ireland Executive.

Offenders

12. John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent steps he has taken to strengthen the supervision of offenders following their release from prison. [248311]

Paul Goggins: The statutory arrangements for the supervision of offenders are kept under regular review. I am introducing a range of new measures to strengthen the management of offenders and protect the public. This includes: tightening the framework for managing dangerous offenders; increasing the scope of offender supervision; and implementing new technology.

Policing and Justice: Devolution

13. Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what account he plans to take of the discovery of Semtex and detonators in the Republic of Ireland in December 2008 in his plans for devolution of policing and justice responsibility. [248312]

Mr. Woodward: While I have no reason to believe this find is inconsistent with the previous comments made by the IMC, the Commission will wish to consider carefully the outcome of the Garda investigation when it is complete.

Economic Situation

14. Mr. Bailey: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent discussions he has had with the Northern Ireland Executive on the economic situation in Northern Ireland. [248313]

Mr. Woodward: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State and I have regular discussions with Northern Ireland Ministers on a wide range of subjects including economic matters, which are of course devolved. I met the Minister for Finance and Personnel yesterday to discuss economic matters relating to Northern Ireland.

Departmental Data Protection

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many members of staff in his Department have been (a) investigated, (b) suspended and (c) dismissed for losing (i) memory sticks, (ii) laptop computers, (iii) desktop computers and (iv) mobile telephones belonging to his Department in each year since 1997. [248257]

Paul Goggins: There have not been any such cases in the Northern Ireland Office since 1997.

Electronic Equipment

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland with reference to the answer of 12 November 2008, Official Report, column 1211W, on electronic equipment, for what reasons electronic equipment with a value of more than £1,000 is classed as capital expenditure. [243437]

Paul Goggins: Electronic equipment with a value of more than £1,000 is classed as capital expenditure in line with the departmental accounting policy which sets the threshold for capitalising items at £1,000.

Prisoners: Per Capita Costs

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average daily cost of keeping a person in prison in Northern Ireland was in the last period for which figures are available. [247044]

Paul Goggins: The average daily cost of keeping a person in prison in 2007-08 was £222.

SCOTLAND

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland on how many occasions in the last 12 months Ministers in his Department have used their discretion to rule that a parliamentary question for written answer should be answered because it would be in the public interest to do so, even though to do so would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold of £700. [249126]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office has not answered any written questions when the cost of preparing the answer would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold as the Minister did not believe it to be in the public interest to answer such questions irrespective of cost.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Manpower

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the strength of reserve units in Her Majesty's Armed Forces based in Ashford constituency is; and how many personnel from such units have been deployed on operations overseas in the last 12 months. [249189]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There are two Territorial Army sub-units of 103 Battalion REME in Ashford, namely 133 Workshop Company, REME and 103 Battalion REME Stores Section RLC. The units have a strength of 79 and nine personnel respectively. During the last 12 months, five members from those units were deployed on operations overseas.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) directly-operated and (b) franchised catering outlets his Department and its agencies provides for staff. [249071]

Mr. Kevan Jones: This information is not held in the format requested. Catering in MOD establishments is usually provided as part of facility management multi-activity contracts, or is contracted out under the Pay As You Dine initiative. Details of the outlets are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on how many occasions in the last 12 months Ministers in his Department have used their discretion to rule that a parliamentary question for written answer should be answered because it would be in the public interest to do so, even though to do so would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold of £700. [249137]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The information requested is not recorded.

European Fighter Aircraft

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when firm orders will be placed for Tranche 2 and Tranche 3 Eurofighter Typhoon aircraft; in what respects their capabilities will differ from Tranche 1 aircraft; and if he will make a statement. [248632]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The contract for Typhoon Tranche 2 was signed in December 2004 and the first deliveries of aircraft from that tranche commenced in October 2008.

Tranche 1 aircraft are optimised for air-to-air combat; an air-to-surface capability has also been integrated and was declared combat ready by the RAF in July 2008. In common with the Tranche 1 specification, Tranche 2 aircraft have air-to-air capability, and an enhanced air-to-surface capability is scheduled to be integrated on Tranche 2 aircraft from 2012. Negotiations with partner nations and industry are continuing on the Typhoon Tranche 3 contract and decisions will be taken once these negotiations are complete.

NATO Response Force

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which units form the British commitment to the NATO Response Force in 2009. [249734]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: From January to June 2009, the UK's commitment to the NATO Response Force is a Maritime Component Command Flagship with Destroyer/Frigate escort, Mine Hunter and associated logistic support (an Auxiliary Repair Ship, Support Ship and Logistic Ship Dock (Auxiliary) with Boarding Team); and a Deployable Air Operating Base, four Air Defence Aircraft, four Fighter Bomber Aircraft and four Close Air Support Aircraft together with two Transport Aircraft and up to two Airborne Early Warning Aircraft.

From July to December 2009, the UK will contribute a Destroyer/Frigate Escort Ship and a Maritime Patrol Aircraft; a Land Component Command Headquarters and associated support, and a Chemical, Biological, Radiological and Nuclear Company; six Fighter Bomber Aircraft, six Close Air Support Aircraft, two Air-to-Air Refuelling Aircraft, two Transport Aircraft and up to two Airborne Early Warning Aircraft.

Navy: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average unit tour interval was for each ship type in the Royal Navy over the last eight years. [249708]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The average tour unit interval by surface ship type, defined as a ship being away from its base port for more than three months, from 2003 for which information is available is as follows (rounded to the nearest month):

	Months
Land Platform Dock	17
Landing Platform Dock Helicopter	20
CVS	33
Destroyers
T42	16
Frigates
T22	14

HMS Endurance	5

Exceptions

Survey Vessels have up to two and a half year deployments.

River Class Patrol Vessels on Fishery Protection undertake eight week (approx) taskings.

Falkland Island Patrol Vessel permanently deployed.

Spearhead Land Element

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which regiment or battalion forms the Spearhead Land Element (SLE); whether it is fully equipped; whether the present SLE is deployed; and when the future SLE will take over from the present SLE. [249726]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The 3rd Battalion The Rifles forms the Spearhead Land Element (SLE), which is not currently deployed. The SLE is currently fully equipped in accordance with the Joint Rapid Reaction Force Directive and operational mounting instructions. The next SLE will be provided by the 1st Battalion The Royal Anglian Regiment, who will assume this role from 1 March 2009.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Beaches: Naturists

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what his policy is on the provision of naturist beaches. [248130]

Barbara Follett: My officials have consulted colleagues in DEFRA, the Department responsible for beaches, who have advised that there is no specific policy on the provision of naturist beaches.

However, The Marine and Coastal Access Bill will provide for a new right of access to the English coast and the expectation is that most beaches will be included within this, which will not affect any existing rights or permissions for naturists that may exist on the coast.

DEFRA officials are arranging a meeting with British Naturism to hear their views on the coastal access proposals.

Byron Review

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many of his Department's staff provided support for the Byron Review. [247419]

Barbara Follett: Two members of staff (one at Grade A and one at Grade B) provided support for the review as it was conducted.

Departmental Marketing

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much has been spent by his Department on advertising in the last 12 months. [243725]

Barbara Follett: In the period from 1 December 2007 to 30 November 2008, the amount spent by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport on advertising was as follows: (a) public appointments £142,595; (b) communications £14,340; and (c) recruitment £24,343.

Mass Media: Economic Situation

[248976]

Barbara Follett: I have received a number of representations from the television, radio and press sectors on a variety of issues affecting the media industry, including advertising revenues and employment. Full details of recent correspondence in these areas could be identified only at a disproportionate cost.

Public Libraries

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what the aggregate scheduled duration of opening for all libraries per 1,000 population in each local authority was in each of the last three years; [247577]

(2) what proportion of static libraries provided access to (a) internet services, (b) broadband internet services and (c) wi-fi internet services in each local authority area in each of the last three years; [247578]

(3) how many electronic workstations with access to the internet there were in library service outlets per 100,000 population in each local authority area in each of the last three years; [247579]

(4) how many library visits were made per 100,000 population in each local authority area in each of the last three years. [247581]

Barbara Follett: This information is not held centrally. However, the Public Library Statistics, published annually by the Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy (CIPFA), contain similar data to that being sought. The House of Commons Library holds copies for the period in question.

Public Libraries: Standards

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what proportion of requests for books from library service points were met within (a) seven, (b) 15 and (c) 30 days in each local authority area in each of the last three years; [247580]

(3) what proportion of library users aged under 16 years viewed their library service as good in each local authority area in each of the last three years; [247583]

(4) how many items were added through purchase to library service outlets per 1,000 population in each local authority area in each of the last three years. [247584]

Barbara Follett: The information requested is published annually by the Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy (CIPFA) in Public Library Statistics. The House of Commons Library holds copies for the period in question.

Sports: North East

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps his Department is taking in conjunction with Sport England to promote sport participation projects in the North East to meet regional priorities on health and well-being. [245859]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Legacy Action Plan commits to getting 2 million people more active by 2012, and Sport England will deliver 1 million of these through sport. The remaining 1 million is a cross Government target, and Sport England will contribute by making wide links with those involved in promoting physical activity, such as primary care trusts and local authorities, as a platform for many people to become involved in sport.

Sport England is also funding a Facilities Improvement Service designed to assist selected local authorities with their planning tools and ensure that they take a strategic view of facility provision. This service is currently working with Middlesbrough and Gateshead councils. Sport England will additionally invest up to £10 million per year of capital funding in projects to promote a sustainable approach to community facilities throughout the country, including the north east region.

Sports: Public Participation

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will take steps to (a) increase levels of participation in sport and (b) improve the provision of sporting facilities, with particular reference to the North East. [244671]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information is as follows:

(a) Sport England have developed a strategy to create a world leading community sport system. This strategy will deliver 1 million more people playing sport by 2012. As part of this process Sport England have been working closely with 46 national governing bodies (NGBs) to develop new Whole Sport Plans, giving the experts in each sport the opportunity to shape its strategic direction.

(b) Sport England are also funding a Facilities Improvement Service designed to assist selected local authorities with their planning tools and ensure that they take a strategic view of facility provision. This service is currently working with Middlesbrough and Gateshead councils. Sport England will additionally invest up to £10 million per year of capital funding in projects to promote a sustainable approach to community facilities throughout the country, including the north east region.

Tourism

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what reports he has received on the expected level of tourism to the UK in April 2009. [247740]

Barbara Follett: VisitBritain produced a Forecast Report in December 2008 which looks ahead to 2009 and considers what is likely to happen to the volume and value of inbound tourism to the UK. The report can be viewed at the following web link:

http://www.tourismtrade.org.uk/Images/Foresight%2OIssue%2062_tcm12-44469.pdf

Tourism: Coastal Areas

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assistance the Government is providing to coastal towns to increase tourism to such towns in 2008-09. [249777]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 20 January 2009]: VisitBritain is funded by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport to promote Britain overseas as a tourist destination and co-ordinate the domestic marketing of England, with VisitEngland which includes the promotion of coastal towns. In addition, this Department has made available a funding package of £45 million (£15 million p.a. over three years) through the Sea Change Programme which aims to catalyse the regeneration of seaside resorts in England through cultural and heritage projects. This programme will not only benefit the local community, but also help boost the visitor economy of resorts. £14.6 million has been made available to 15 resorts through the programme in 2008-09.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Local Government: Equality

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality which local authorities have not yet (a) undertaken and (b) completed an equal pay review. [247674]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

It is for local authorities, as employers, to work actively with the unions to deal with equal pay in an affordable way. Central Government do not have direct involvement. The Local Government Employers organisation monitors progress in local government towards implementation.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality which local authorities have been permitted to borrow to fund equal pay deals in the last two years; and how much was borrowed in each case. [247786]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

On 26 September 2008, £455 million of capitalisation directions were issued to 34 authorities to enable them to make equal pay back-payments and speed up progress on delivering equal pay. The 2008-09 announcement builds on the £500 million of capitalisation directions allocated to 46 authorities in 2007.

The full list of authorities awarded capitalisation in 2007-08, including the amount of capitalisation used by individual authorities is available at:

http://www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/capital/equalpay0708.pdf

The list for 2008-09 is available at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/news/corporate/977615

however, the amount of capitalisation used by individual authorities in 2008-09 will be published on the Department's website in September 2009.

In order to avoid prejudicing ongoing local negotiations details of the amounts sought by authorities or directions issued, have not been published.

HEALTH

Autism: Health Services

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what services are available for adults with autism in (a) England, (b) the North East, (c) Tees Valley and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland. [249821]

Phil Hope: This information is not held centrally.

At a local level, it is for local health and social care service providers to ensure that people with autism and their carers receive the necessary information and support they require.

We plan to publish commissioning guidance to support local authorities this spring. It will build on the 2006 document

"Better services for people with an autistic spectrum disorder: A note clarifying current Government policy and describing good practice", which clarified the nature and intent of Government policy as it relates to adults with an autistic spectrum condition.

Dementia

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps he has taken to facilitate early diagnoses of Alzheimer's disease and dementia on the part of GPs in the last three years; [249399]

(2) what recent steps he has taken to provide rapid access to effective drug treatment to those diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease and dementia. [249401]

Phil Hope: The importance of early diagnosis, intervention and care options for people with dementia, including Alzheimer's disease, will be emphasised in the national dementia strategy, which will be published shortly.

The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) published technology appraisal guidance on drugs for the treatment of Alzheimer's disease in September 2007. The guidance recommends a number of drugs for use in the moderate stage of the disease and national health service organisations are now statutorily required to make funding available to implement NICE's recommendations. NICE has also published a clinical guideline on dementia, which we expect NHS organisations to implement over time.

Dementia: Care Homes

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) care homes and (b) care home places for people suffering from dementia there were in each local authority area in Kent in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [249188]

Phil Hope: We are informed by the Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI) that it does not register care homes according to the number of people from a specific client group, such as those suffering dementia. CSCI will register a home as being able to care for at least one person from a particular client group. CSCI is able to produce data from 2004 when it was first established. Information from earlier years is not available centrally.

The following table shows the numbers of care homes and registered places in Kent county council. Data for other areas within Kent are not available separately.

Care homes and places in Kent

	As at 31 March:
	2004		2005		2006		2007		2008
	Homes	Places	Homes	Places	Homes	Places	Homes	Places	Homes	Places
All homes	792	15,907	774	15,763	759	15,642	748	15,485	746	15,673
Homes registered to care for people with dementia[1]	122	4,554	125	4,699	127	4,860	131	5,050	134	5,218

[1] Homes do not register the actual number of places they have for each client group. They indicate which groups they can provide at least one place for. The number of registered places shown is the sum of all places in the care home that indicated they provide care for at least one person with dementia.

Dental Services: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many dentists in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire provide NHS treatment to (i) children and (ii) adults; and how many and what proportion of (A) children and (B) adults in the area received NHS treatment from such dentists in the last 12 months. [249087]

Ann Keen: Information is not available in the format requested.

The numbers of dentists with national health service activity during the years ending 31 March, 2007 and 2008 are available in table G1 of annex 3 of the "NHS Dental Statistics for England: 2007/08" report. Information is provided by strategic health authority (SHA) and by primary care trust (PCT). This information is based on the new dental contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006.

Following a recent consultation exercise, this measure is based on a revised methodology and therefore supersedes previously published work force figures relating to the new dental contractual arrangements. It is not comparable to the information collected under the old contractual arrangements. This revised methodology counted the number of dental performers with NHS activity recorded via FP17 claim forms in each year ending 31 March.

This report, published on 21 August 2008, has already been placed in the Library and is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dental0708

These figures relate to headcounts and do not differentiate between full-time and part-time dentists, nor do they account for the fact that some dentists may do more NHS work than others, or between treatments for adults and children.

Under the new dental contractual arrangements, patients do not have to be registered with an NHS dentist to receive NHS care. The closest equivalent measure to 'registration' is the number of patients receiving NHS dental services ('patients seen') over a 24-month period. However, this is not directly comparable to the registration data for earlier years.

The number of patients seen in the previous 24 months in England, as at quarterly intervals, from 31 March 2006 to 30 June 2008 is available in table D1 of annex 3 of the "NHS Dental Statistics, Q1 2008-09" report. Table D2 contains information on the numbers of patients seen as a percentage of the population. Information is provided by PCT and SHA and is available by adult and child patients seen.

This report, published on 27 November 2008, has already been placed in the Library and is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dentalstats0809q1

Health Services: Elderly

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many elderly people have received services under the quality care and support system in (a) England, (b) the North East, (c) the Tees Valley and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency in each of the last five years. [249655]

Phil Hope: The NHS Information Centre for health and social care collects and publishes information on the number of people receiving local authority funded social care in a domiciliary or residential setting in England.

Information is collected from councils with adult social services responsibilities (CASSRs). Data are not collected centrally at constituency level.

The following tables show the number of individuals in England aged 65 and over who received domiciliary or residential care funded wholly or in part by councils with adult social services responsibilities as at 31 March of each year.

Health Services: Ethnic Groups

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government plans to take in response to the Healthcare Commission's finding in its report, Count Me In, that people from an ethnic minority are more likely to be misdiagnosed, overmedicated and placed in seclusion. [249514]

Phil Hope: The Healthcare Commission published its report on the 2008 Count Me In census on 27 November 2008. Count Me In does not collect information about patients' diagnosis or medication. The census reports since 2005 show that there is no consistent picture of differential treatment with regard to seclusion. Different ethnic groups have been recorded as more or less likely to be subject to seclusion each year.

In 2005 the Department launched 'Delivering Race Equality in Mental Health Care' (DRE). DRE is a five-year action plan designed to improve black and minority ethnic (BME) communities' experience of mental health services.

Hospitals: Parking

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what instructions he has given to trusts to (a) allow families to reclaim the cost of hospital car parking charges incurred when visiting their children and (b) provide free car parking bays in hospitals for parents visiting their children. [249783]

Mr. Bradshaw: Car parking arrangements, including charges, are a matter for individual national health service bodies, based on their own local circumstances. However, guidance from the Department to support trusts in implementing parking policies, issued in December 2006, strongly recommends NHS bodies to provide free or discounted car parking to those patients and their relatives or primary visitors who have to use the car park regularly. The Department reminded NHS bodies of this in November 2008.

Mental Health Services: Prisoners

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Caernarfon of 30 October 2008, Official Report, column 1245W, how many of the 926 prisoners with mental illness who were transferred from prison to hospital in 2007 (a) remain in hospital, (b) were returned to prison and (c) absconded. [245964]

Phil Hope: This information is not collected by the Department. The Ministry of Justice (MoJ) have supplied information in respect of individual patients with mental illness transferred from the prison service to hospital.

Further to the answer to the hon. Member for Caernarfon (Hywel Williams) of 30 October 2008, Official Report, column 1245W, the MoJ have revised their data and report that the number of prisoners with mental illness and who were transferred to hospital in 2007 was 934, not 926.

Of these 934 patients, 301 remain in hospital, 167 were returned to prison and one patient absconded and is still at large. Of the remaining 465 individuals, 219 were remitted to a court to deal with as unsentenced prisoners who were awaiting a court appearance when transferred to hospital. A further 242 were either not subject to restrictions at the time of transfer, or saw their restrictions expire after transfer, and would have remained in hospital only so long as their mental condition required it. Of the remaining four individuals, one has been deported and three have died.

These figures include six people who absconded at some point during their stay in hospital and later returned.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department has spent on mental health services for prisoners in each (a) prison and (b) health authority area in each of the last five financial years; and how many prisoners received such treatment in each of these years. [247068]

Phil Hope: Information on spending on mental health services in each prison and health authority between 2002-03 and 2006-07 is shown in the tables, which have been placed in the Library. As of 2007-08, this allocation was baselined to form part of the overall prison health allocation and spending on offender mental health services is no longer referred to separately.

In addition to this recurrent funding, the Department has made two non-recurrent payments totalling £4.2 million in 2007-08 and 2008-09 to targeted establishments for mental health in-reach services.

Information on the number of prisoners receiving mental health services is not collected centrally.

Mid Essex Primary Care Trust

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what reasons were reported to him by the Chief Executive of NHS Mid Essex for the decision to change the name of the Mid Essex Primary Care Trust; and if he will make a statement. [249899]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is not held by the Department.

Primary care trusts (PCTs) have the freedom to choose whether or not they make the transition to the new identity, 'NHS Local' (rather than 'Local' PCT). In order to keep costs to a minimum, we advise that the transition is made when it is practically and economically feasible to do so through planned replacement programmes. This may be by, for example, exhausting existing supplies of stationery and updating property signage.

You may wish to inquire with your local PCT for further information.

Musculoskeletal Disorders

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the total number of people who are affected by long-standing musculoskeletal problems, broken down by (a) condition and (b) age group; and what his Department's definition of a long-standing musculoskeletal problem is. [249248]

Ann Keen: A long-standing musculoskeletal problem is defined as a non time-limited medical condition which predominately affects the muscles, joints and skeleton.

We have made no estimate of the number of people living with long-standing musculoskeletal problems, broken down by condition and age group.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent estimate he has made of the proportion of primary care consultations which relate to musculoskeletal complaints, broken down by the proportion relating to

(a) rheumatoid arthritis, (b) osteoarthritis, (c) osteoporosis and (d) other complaints; and what assessment he has made of future trends in this proportion. [249252]

Ann Keen: Such information is not held centrally.

Musculoskeletal Disorders: Carers

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to train those carers caring for people with musculoskeletal conditions through (a) the Caring with Confidence programme and (b) other means. [249277]

Phil Hope: At a national level the training provided by Caring with Confidence is in two forms—generic and 'tailored'. The generic training is relevant to any carer (i.e. including those caring for someone with a musculoskeletal condition) and has been available since August 2008, the 'tailored' training will meet the needs of specific carers i.e. those who are caring for someone with dementia, or caring for someone of black or minority ethnic background, and will become available over the coming months.

The determination of the carer groups to be provided 'tailored' training was made following consultation with the national carers' charities and providers of training to carers—those with musculoskeletal problems were not identified in this process. Should the need for 'tailored' training for carers of those with musculoskeletal conditions emerge there is flexibility to meet this need within Caring with Confidence's delivery arrangements.

Carers can also access NHS Choices, which has much information on musculoskeletal conditions.

At a local level, it is for local health service providers to ensure that people with musculoskeletal conditions and their carers receive the necessary information and support they require.

Musculoskeletal Disorders: Employment Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people with musculoskeletal problems have participated in condition management programmes under the Pathways to Work scheme in each year since 2006-07; and what proportion of such participants he estimates returned to work after participation. [249273]

Ann Keen: The number of referrals from Jobcentre Plus to the NHS Condition Management Programmes of individuals who had musculoskeletal problems are as follows:

	Referrals
2006-07	2,801
2007-08	5,974
2008 to November 2008	4,485

Job outcome figures are not collected for the Condition Management Programme.

Musculoskeletal Disorders: Health Professions

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the extent to which NHS units treating musculoskeletal conditions in England include representatives of the (a) rheumatology and (b) orthopaedics medical specialties; and if he will make a statement. [249249]

Ann Keen: The Department does not collect centrally information on the representation of different disciplines in musculoskeletal departments. It is for local organisations to decide on the staffing structure of their individual departments. The national musculoskeletal coordinating group includes representation of both the British Society for Rheumatology, British Orthopaedic Association as well as other professional bodies.

Musculoskeletal Disorders: Health Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many clinical assessment and treatment services for musculoskeletal conditions there were in the NHS in (a) 2006 and (b) 2008; and if he will make a statement. [249250]

Ann Keen: The Department does not collect centrally information on the number of clinical assessment and treatment services for musculoskeletal conditions.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to encourage faster referral from GPs to specialists of patients with serious musculoskeletal problems. [249276]

Ann Keen: The Department has developed five orthopaedic commissioning pathways which pertain to musculoskeletal conditions hip pain, knee pain, shoulder pain, chronic pain back pain and carpal tunnel syndrome. These were published as part of 43 18-week commissioning pathways that reflect national good practice. These pathways highlight the types of conditions that need to be referred for specialist assessments as well as stressing clinical urgent conditions (often referred to as red flag patients) that need emergency treatment. A further pathway is currently in development for arthritis.

The pathways are high-level service models to help support and enable commissioners and service providers to challenge existing practice, utilise service improvement tools and techniques, maximise opportunities for transformational change, provide a catalyst for local discussion and challenge in order to deliver 18-week pathways.

From the 1 January 2009, the minimum expectation of consultant-led elective services will be that no one should wait more than 18 weeks from the time they are referred to the start of their treatment, unless it is clinically appropriate to do so or they choose to wait longer.

Musculoskeletal Disorders: Surgery

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what proportion of patients with musculoskeletal problems were listed for surgery by a clinical assessment and treatment service in each year since 2005. [249242]

Ann Keen: The Department does not collect this information centrally.

Neonatal Mortality

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) babies were delivered in each NHS trust and (b) unexplained neonatal deaths there were in each of the last three years. [248217]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated January 2009:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many (a) babies were delivered in each NHS trust and (b) unexplained neonatal deaths there were in each of the last three years. (248217)

ONS does not routinely link information on hospitals to their respective trusts. Therefore figures on babies delivered in each NHS trust are not readily available. Data are however available by primary care organisations in England and local health boards in Wales by residence of the mother and these are shown in attached table for 2005-2007 (latest year for which figures are available).

Figures on unexplained deaths are only available at a national level. Figures for England and Wales are shown in the attached table for 2004-2006 (latest year for which figures are available).

Copies of the tables are available from the Library of the House.

NHS: Manpower

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many staff were employed by the NHS in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire in the most recent year for which figures are available. [249035]

[1] Workforce data is not available at parliamentary constituency area, nor by broad geographical regions. Hemel Hempstead constituency and the area of Hertfordshire are contained within and served by the trusts and organisations provided here.
[2] Figure excludes medical hospital practitioners and medical clinical assistants, most of whom are GPs working part time in hospitals.
Data quality
Workforce statistics are compiled from data sent by more than 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. The NHS Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data. Processing methods and procedures are continually being updated to improve data quality. Where this happens any impact on figures already published will be assessed but unless this is significant at national level they will not be changed. Where there is impact only at detailed or local level this will be footnoted in relevant analyses.

NHS: Pensions

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer of 1 September 2008, Official Report, column 1751W, on the NHS Pensions Agency: resource accounting and benefits, for what reason the NHS pension scheme resource accounts were not published between the 2008 summer recess and the end of the 2007-08 Session; and when he plans to publish them. [249006]

Ann Keen: In his written ministerial statement of 16 December 2008, my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster referred to overpayments made to pensioners of public sector pension schemes, including the NHS pension scheme.

The NHS pension scheme accounts contain reference to these overpayments. The decision was taken not to publish the accounts until such time as we had sufficient information to be able to inform the pensioners. Critical to this decision was the need to avoid unnecessary public concern among the vast majority of national health service pensioners who were entirely unaffected, but who would not have known that had a general announcement been made. Letters were sent to affected pensioners on 15 December and the statement, formally notifying Parliament of the overpayments, was made on 16 December.

The accounts will be now be laid before the statutory deadline of 31 January 2009.

NHS: Resignations

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many chief executives of NHS trusts left their posts in the last 12 months, broken down by reason for departure. [248913]

Ann Keen: This information is not collected centrally.

NHS: Temporary Employment

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many agency staff each NHS trust has used in each of the last 10 years; and at what cost in each such year. [248914]

Ann Keen: The number of agency staff used by each national health service trust is not collected centrally.

A table which shows agency spend for each NHS trust for 2001-02 to 2007-08 has been placed in the Library. Data are not available prior to 2001-02.

NHS: Training

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what requirements are placed on students in receipt of NHS bursaries to work within the NHS. [249801]

Ann Keen: Healthcare students are encouraged and supported to develop at least some of their career within a national health service setting, however, they are not obliged to do so, it is a matter for the individual.

A review of NHS student support was announced in Lord Ara Darzi's "A High Quality Workforce: NHS Next Stage Review" (30 June 2008). A copy of the review has already been placed in the Library. The Department is working in partnership with key stakeholders to undertake the review of existing arrangements for NHS student support and will consider a wide range of options for NHS student support in the future.

Osteopathy

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many osteopaths have been added to the any willing provider lists held by primary care trusts to date. [249552]

Ann Keen: This information is not collected centrally.

Out-patients

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many outpatient appointments were missed (a) in England and (b) in each NHS trust in each year since 1997-98. [249243]

Mr. Bradshaw: The data requested have been placed in the Library.

Pharmacy

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of (a) all medicines dispensed in the community and (b) all medicines for the treatment of musculoskeletal conditions dispensed in the community have been prescribed by supplementary prescribers in each year since 2004-05. [249265]

Phil Hope: The Department does not collect specific information that differentiates prescriptions written by supplementary prescribers.

Physiotherapy

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the proportion of self-referrals of patients to physiotherapists which were found to be inappropriate in the last three years. [249272]

Ann Keen: No estimates have been made centrally. It is for primary care trusts in partnership with local stakeholders, including practice based commissioners, local government and the public to determine where self-referral is clinically appropriate.

Prescriptions

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance his Department provides to healthcare professionals on preventing, prescribing and dispensing errors in relation to immunosuppressant therapies. [249788]

Ann Keen: The National Patient Safety Agency (NPSA) reviews medication errors on an ongoing basis, and prioritises the production of guidance and recommendations based on the level of harm reported to its Reporting and Learning System (RLS), other national and international reporting systems and published literature.

The Agency has also produced a series of design guides in the 'Design for Patient Safety' series, which aim to improve the labelling, and packaging of pharmaceutical products. A copy has been placed in the Library. These have been issued to pharmaceutical companies to assist them produce products that minimise the risk of miss-selection and other patient safety incidents. These materials are also used by national health service (NHS) medicines procurement groups to purchase products which are safer in use. A design guide on The Dispensing Environment which identifies ways that good design of the dispensing environment can help improve the accuracy of the dispensing process has also been produced by the NPSA.

The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) has, as part of an European Union-wide action on two specific immunosuppressant therapies, agreed to send a 'dear Doctor/Healthcare Practitioner letter' to the relevant NHS staff, and made proposals for changes to the packaging for Advagraf to emphasise that it differs from Prograf. In addition, MHRA included the issue in their December edition of the Drug Safety Update, with a further article in the January 2009 edition. These should help to make prescribers, pharmacists, and patients aware of the brand being prescribed, whatever the manufacturer, and the associated dose regimen. MHRA has also highlighted the issue to other information providers, including the British National Formulary and the National Prescribing Centre.

Rehabilitation

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the proportion of NHS rehabilitation services which have been provided (a) in the community and (b) in institutional settings in each year since 1997-98. [249266]

Phil Hope: No estimate has been made of the proportion of rehabilitation services provided in the community and in institution settings.

Shoulder Replacements

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which NHS trusts performed between one and 12 shoulder replacements inclusive in the latest year for which figures are available, as recorded by the Hospital Episodes Statistics database. [249256]

Ann Keen: The requested information has been placed in the Library.

TREASURY

Banks: Regulation

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what steps the Government have taken to encourage banks to assist mortgage payers made unemployed; [248319]

(2) what recent steps the Government have taken to assist people paying their mortgages. [245468]

Ian Pearson: The Government have announced a new Homeowner Mortgage Support scheme, which will enable households that experience a significant and temporary loss of income as a result of the economic downturn to defer a proportion of the interest payments on their mortgage for up to two years.

The Government have also launched a mortgage rescue scheme to help borrowers facing repayment difficulties remain in their homes and this scheme has been extended to include second charge lending. Local authorities and housing associations can either buy a property and then rent it back to them, or buy a share of the property to reduce the household's overall mortgage costs.

The Government also provides direct support to individuals through Support for Mortgage Interest (SMI), which is available to those out of work and pensioners. As a temporary measure, the waiting period has been cut to 13 weeks for all new working age claimants and the Government are broadening the reach of the scheme by increasing the size of the mortgage for which support is payable to £200,000.

The Government have also extended the provision of free impartial debt advice with measures announced in the pre-Budget report.

Construction: Finance

Lorely Burt: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he plans to take to ensure that the £3 billion capital spending which is being brought forward results in construction activity; and which projects will receive a portion of such funds. [247821]

Yvette Cooper: The £3 billion of capital spending brought forward aimed to support a number of different industries and jobs around the country, including through construction activities.

For example, the capital spend being brought forward by the Department for Children, School and Families will provide opportunities for small businesses locally and allow schools and children to benefit early from important projects to further improve school buildings. Decisions on how the funds will actually be used will be made at the local level to meet local priorities.

Details on the capital projects to be funded by the £3 billion spending package can be found in the 2008 pre-Budget report, paragraph 6.13.

Departments are currently working to ensure this money is spent in the appropriate manner and the Treasury is monitoring the development of the capital projects included in the £3 billion package.

Departmental Personnel

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what are (a) his Department's and (b) HM Revenue and Customs' definition of pre-surplus staff; and what the criteria are under which an individual is added to the pre-surplus staff database. [241745]

Angela Eagle: In HM Revenue and Customs, when it becomes clear that work is reducing in a location and the number of posts needed to carry out the work is likely to reduce, senior managers within HMRC will assess whether their business will have a potential staff surplus. Wherever possible, the aim will be to manage the situation before declaring staff pre-surplus. Only permanent HMRC staff are eligible for pre-surplus status.

Where senior managers identify that there is a potential staff surplus they will consult with staff and the unions representing the staff affected, then commence pre-surplus measures. Those measures will include working with other senior managers and HR Business Partners to consider all the options for managing the potential pre-surplus situation.

Staff can be declared pre-surplus in two ways.

All staff in a particular grade, team or location could be declared pre-surplus. Once there has been a sufficient reduction in staff numbers, the remaining staff will no longer have pre-surplus status.

Alternatively, when a specific reduction is needed quickly, senior managers could run a selection exercise to identify which members of staff will fill posts to be retained. The remaining staff are then made pre-surplus.

Once declared pre-surplus, individual staff are added to the pre-surplus database. This ensures they are given priority access to vacancies within HMRC, and vacancies in other Government Departments.

HM Treasury does not use the term 'pre surplus' nor has any equivalent category.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Vara: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on how many occasions in the last 12 months Ministers in his Department have used their discretion to rule that a parliamentary question for written answer should be answered because it would be in the public interest to do so, even though to do so would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold of £700. [249145]

Angela Eagle: Information relating to Ministers' consideration of parliamentary questions is not held in the format requested.

Fisheries: Tax Yields

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent estimate he has made of the contribution of the fishing industry to the Exchequer. [249150]

Angela Eagle: Comprehensive information is not available.

Available information is given as follows:

Income tax (IT) and national insurance contributions (NIC): relevant information is available for income tax (IT) and class 1 contributions deducted through PAYE. These estimates are set out in the table.

2003-04	21
2004-05	21
2005-06	21
2006-07	23
2007-08	24

The estimates for the fishing industry are set out in the following table:

	CT liability (£ million)
2001-02	14
2002-03	15

VAT—Most outputs from the UK agricultural sector fall under the VAT zero rate for food and as such the sector overall receives VAT repayments. The latest data on net receipts for the sector "Fishing and Fish Farms and Related Service Activities" for 2005 is published in the VAT fact sheet:

http://www.uktradeinfo.com/index.cfm?task=factvat

HMRC does not collect information on excise duties and other taxes attributable to purchases of fuel, alcohol etc. by the fishing industry.

Gift Aid

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his Department's projection is of the amount of gift aid that will be paid to charities in each of the next three years; and if he will make a statement. [249222]

Mr. Timms: Information on the cost of gift aid tax relief can be found at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/charities/table10-2.pdf

Income Tax

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he plans to announce changes to the Government's policy on income tax before the forthcoming Budget. [247964]

Mr. Timms: The 2008 pre-Budget report set out the key parameters of the income tax, national insurance and tax credits system for the coming year (2009-10) in the usual way. It also announced the Government's next set of reforms to the tax and benefit system, providing additional help for low and middle income families this year, and setting out changes to income tax and national insurance contributions in 2010-11 and 2011-12.

Landfill Tax

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much landfill tax was paid by each local authority in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09 to date. [249462]

Angela Eagle: It is not possible using landfill tax receipts data to determine how much revenue is received from local authorities. This is because registered landfill site operators pay the tax to HM Revenue and Customs and pass on the cost to their customers through the disposal charges they set. The origin of the landfilled waste is not recorded on the tax return.

Landsbanki

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what reasons he did not ask the International Monetary Fund (IMF) to make full repayment of depositors' monies in Landsbanki a condition of the IMF loan to Iceland. [247569]

Ian Pearson: On 19 November the IMF announced the approval of a $2.1 billion two-year loan for Iceland to support an economic recovery program to help Iceland restore confidence in its banking system and stabilise its currency. This includes Iceland's commitment to

"ensuring the fair and equitable treatment of depositors and creditors of the intervened banks" and Iceland's recognition of its obligations to depositors under the EC Deposit Guarantee Scheme Directive.

Details of the stand-by arrangement are available from the IMF website:

http://www.imf.org/external/pubs/cat/longres.cfm?sk=22513.0

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what progress the Government have made in negotiations with the Icelandic government on the return of funds lost by the depositors in Landsbanki Guernsey. [247570]

Ian Pearson: Landsbanki Guernsey is a subsidiary of the Icelandic parent company, Landsbanki. Landsbanki Guernsey is in administration and is subject to arrangements in Guernsey.

In line with usual constitutional arrangements, the Government will represent the Crown Dependencies in its negotiations with the Icelandic authorities. The focus of the negotiations is to ensure Iceland honours its obligations to depositors under the EC Deposit Guarantee Scheme Directive and ensures the fair and equitable treatment of creditors.

The IMF stand-by arrangement to Iceland, agreed on 19 November, includes Iceland's commitment to

"ensuring the fair and equitable treatment of depositors and creditors of the intervened banks".

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Chope: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to reply to the letter of 25 November 2008 from the hon. Member for Christchurch on behalf of Mr Richard Bell. [248813]

Ian Pearson: Due to the large volume of correspondence received on these issues there has been a delay in sending some responses. The Financial Services Secretary hopes to be in a position to reply to the hon. Member shortly.

Mortgages: Interest Rates

Mr. Baron: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps his Department is taking to encourage lenders to pass on recent Bank of England interest rate cuts to mortgage holders. [249833]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 20 January 2009]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Coventry, South (Mr. Cunningham) on 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 1900W.

National Insurance Contributions

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many letters have been sent in error by HM Revenue and Customs wrongly advising individuals that they have made insufficient national insurance contributions in respect of the financial year 2006-07. [248574]

Mr. Timms: The exercise to issue contributors with deficiency notices advising them of shortfalls in their national insurance contributions for the tax year 2006-07 started on the 31 August 2008 and ended on the 12 January 2009. A total of 2,862,065 letters were issued. No information is held on the number sent in error.

National Insurance Fund

Mr. Swire: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how surplus funds from the National Insurance Fund have been allocated over the last five years. [247559]

Mr. Timms: Under the provisions of Section 161(3) of the Social Security Administration Act 1992, any surplus in the NIF is invested by the Commissioners for the reduction of the national debt (CRND) The role of the CRND is (in accordance with section 161(3) of the Social Security Administration Act 1992) to invest money which is paid over from the fund.

Public Expenditure

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the Government's total expenditure on (a) services to the public and (b) services purchased by the Government has been in each year since 1997-98. [248520]

Yvette Cooper: Total Managed Expenditure (TME) is a measure of total public sector current and capital spending drawn from the National Accounts. It therefore represents total government spending on providing services to the public. TME has most recently been published in Table B1 of the monthly Public Sector Finances Databank at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/psf_statistics.htm.

The purchase of services by the public sector is not separately identified from the purchase of goods. The combined figures were most recently published in Table 5.6 of Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses (PESA) 2008, available at http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/pespub_pesa08.htm.

These figures, as with most in PESA08, are available back to 2002-03. Figures for previous years are not available on a consistent basis.

Sustainable Development: Finance

Colin Challen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to page 125 of the pre-Budget report for 2008, which three years are to be covered by the £50 million of funding for the low-carbon sector; and if he will break down this funding by (a) year and (b) project. [240318]

Angela Eagle: The figure of £50 billion brings together Government spending, fiscal support and private investment driven by Government regulation in energy efficiency, renewable energy technologies and public transport over the period of the comprehensive spending review (2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11). The estimated breakdown for the full three-year period is set out by theme, as follows:

Technology support

Estimated at £1,200 million including the domestic Environmental Transformation Fund, Research Councils, Technology Strategy Board, Carbon Trust, Energy Technologies Institute and Enhanced Capital Allowances.

Renewables support

Estimated at £5,800 million including private sector investment in renewables and the renewables obligation.

Energy efficiency

Estimated at £9,800 million, made up of CERT, the Community Energy Saving Programme, Warm Front, Decent Homes, the Energy Saving Trust, Smart metering for SMEs and public sector sites, Reduced VAT for Energy Savings Materials, Landlord Energy Savings Allowance, incentives for thermal insulation in industrial installations, and the value of CCL exemptions.

Reducing greenhouse gas emissions from municipal waste

Estimated at £2,200 million including PFI programme and capital grants to local authorities for recycling.

Transmission and electricity distribution infrastructure

Estimated at £7,600 million, including funding to link low carbon power generators to the national grid.

Public transport and low carbon and electric vehicles

Estimated at £23,200 million including spending on rail, Crossrail, TFL and public transport in the devolved Administrations, as well as spending on low carbon and electric vehicles.

The figure published is not exhaustive as it does not include:

The value of 'EU ETS allowances' over this period;

'R and D tax credits' for low carbon R and D;

The significant low carbon investment by 'local authorities' or much of the investment by 'devolved Administrations' and 'RDAs';

Low carbon investment driven 'by building standards regulations';

Low carbon investment driven by 'minimum efficiency standards' for products;

Investment in the 'gas distribution grid' even where this brings new homes on to the gas grid, replacing higher CO_2 oil heating systems;

'Stamp duty exemption' for new zero carbon homes;

'Enterprise Investment Scheme' (EIS) and 'Venture Capital Trusts';

Private or public sector spend on other low carbon electricity sources, such as 'nuclear' or preliminary work on the demonstration of 'carbon capture and storage'; and

'UK spend on low carbon technologies in developing countries'.

Tax Credit

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer in how many cases relating to tax credits the Parliamentary Ombudsman has found maladministration as part of the Adjudicator's Office in each year for which figures are available. [245587]

Mr. Timms: In 2007-08, the ombudsman accepted 68 complaints against the Adjudicator for investigation. Further details, including a breakdown of tax credits cases is available upon request to the ombudsman, an officer of Parliament.

Tax Havens: Research

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to questions 245836, 245837, 245838 and 245839, how much was spent on the research study to explore customer experiences of the offshore disclosure facility before work was halted. [249296]

Mr. Timms: The postal cost incurred as a result of HMRC writing to potential participants was £640. The only other HMRC cost was a limited amount of staff time.

Taxation: Business

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many businesses have (a) sought and (b) been granted a deferral of tax liability by HM Revenue and Customs since the pre-Budget report 2008 was published. [249308]

Mr. Timms: HMRC's business payment support service is a demand-led service, available to businesses seeking to defer payment of taxes owed. It is currently receiving, on average, 1,000 calls each day from businesses. Since the introduction of the service at the pre-Budget report, it has helped over 20,000 businesses spread tax payments worth over £350 million through time to pay agreements.

VAT

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment has been made of the effect on the economy of recent changes to value added tax rates; what recent representations he has received on this issue; from whom; what responses he gave; and if he will make a statement. [247994]

Mr. Timms: We reduced the standard rate of Value Added Tax to 15 per cent. from 1 December 2008 to 31 December 2009 as part of a wider fiscal stimulus putting £12.5 billion back into the economy. It would be premature to attempt to make an assessment now of the effect of this 13 month reduction in stabilising the economy.

We have received numerous representations from businesses, business representatives and consumers on issues associated with the reduction in the rate of value added tax to 15 per cent. and its impact. We are acknowledging comments and responding to specific queries.

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent estimate he has made of the cost to the Exchequer of the reduction in value added tax announced in the pre-Budget report 2008 in the next 12 months. [249306]

Mr. Timms: The estimated cost of the temporary reduction in the standard rate of VAT remains as published in table B5 of the 2008 pre-Budget report.

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many businesses have paid value added tax (VAT) receipts to the Exchequer since the pre-Budget report was published; and what estimate he has made of the effect on consumer spending of the reduction in VAT announced in the pre-Budget report 2008. [249307]

Mr. Timms: The total number of VAT registered traders is available from the VAT National Statistics bulletin published at:

http://www.uktradeinfo.com/index.cfm?task=bullvat

An assessment of the anticipated impact of the reduction in the VAT rate on consumer spending behaviour can be found in paragraphs 2.40 to 2.45 in the 2008 pre-Budget report.

VAT: Innovation

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received on the levying of value added tax on payments made to projects under the New Technologies Demonstrator Programme. [249175]

Mr. Timms: Treasury Ministers and officials receive representations from a wide range of organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such representations.

Welfare Tax Credits

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proportion of people in (a) Castle Point constituency, (b) Essex and (c) England are claiming (i) childcare tax credit and (ii) working tax credit. [249642]

Mr. Timms: Take-up rate estimates for the childcare element are not available, and take-up rates of working tax credit are only available down to regional level.

Information on the average number of in-work families benefiting from the childcare element in the areas mentioned based on final family circumstance and incomes is published in the HMRC publication "Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics. Finalised Annual Awards 2006-07 Geographical analyses". This publication is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-quarterly-stats.htm

Estimates of child and working tax credit take-up rates for 2005-06, which are the latest available estimates, are published on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-take-up.htm

Take-up rates for working families with children at regional level are shown in table 9.

Assaults on Police

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many recorded offences of assault on a police constable per 100,000 population there were in each police force area in each year from 2005 to 2007. [247151]

Mr. Coaker: The available information on recorded offences relates to 2005-06 to 2007-08 and is given in the following table. The data covers offences of assault without injury on a police constable. Offences in which police officers suffer injury will be recorded as a more or less serious wounding offence depending on the severity of the injury sustained.

Community Relations: Finance

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what funds (a) her Department, (b) the Association of Chief Police Officers and (c) police authorities contributed to local authority Preventing Violent Extremism projects in 2008, broken down by local authority; and if she will make a statement. [249586]

Mr. Coaker: The information is not available broken down in the form requested as the funding covers a range of national, regional and local projects. The Home Office has announced £23.3 million in 2008-09.

£12.5 million was announced in June 2008:

£1 million for the Channel Project.

£3.5 million to youth offending teams and youth secure establishments on new work to prevent violent extremism, focused on supporting young individuals who have had contact with the criminal justice system.

£7.25 million to the National Offender Management Service and partner agencies, including ACPO, to do further work in prisons and the community to tackle vulnerability to radicalisation among offenders.

£750,000 for the Home Office to fund further grass-roots projects aimed at tackling radicalisation.

A further £10.8 million was announced in December 2008:

£5 million for local authorities, Government offices and the police in support of work in schools and colleges.

£5.8 million over the current CSR (£2.6 million for 2008-09) to fund a wide range of projects to disrupt radicalisers, strengthen institutions and support vulnerable individuals.

Funding was made available to a range of Prevent delivery partners, including but not exclusively, local authorities.

In addition to this, I announced that the Home Office is funding more than 300 new Prevent police posts over three years. £16 million will be spent this year creating new posts across 24 priority forces.

Information about other funds which may have been allocated by police authorities is not held centrally.

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how the £5.8 million fund to disrupt violent extremism will be distributed in 2009-10 and 2010-11; what the breakdown between local and regional projects will be; what type of projects the fund will be used for; what the criteria for making grants will be; how the grants will be evaluated; who will administer the fund; and if she will make a statement. [249590]

Mr. Coaker: £5.8 million will be provided to 33 projects, nationally, regionally and locally between 2008-11. This amounts to £2.275 million in 2009-10 and £918,000 in 2010-11. Of these 33 projects, four are national projects, 12 are regional projects and 17 are local projects. All funding is aimed at delivering objectives 2 and 3 of the Prevent strategy which seeks to:

disrupt those who promote violent extremism projects and support the institutions where they may be active; and support individuals vulnerable to recruitment by violent extremists.

The projects span a variety of fields, from building the local capacity to provide interventions to vulnerable individuals, educational projects, regional immigration pilots, work in prisons, probation and the education sector as well as training and awareness for front-line staff.

Grants are administered by the most appropriate body, for example Government Offices, ACPO or the Home Office. All funding is subject to regular reporting and we ensure each project provides the Home Office reasonable access to data and documentation, and commits to value for money.

Crime Prevention

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what pilot projects to tackle crime and anti-social behaviour have been launched by her Department since 1 January 2006. [245952]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Trialling or piloting systems and processes, or their component parts, is normal practice throughout the lifecycle of projects large and small. Full records of all pilot projects since 1 January 2006 are not held centrally and could be collated only at disproportionate cost.

Crime: Computers

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many convictions have resulted from investigations where police remotely accessed one or more personal computers in each of the last five years. [248935]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not available.

Data on court proceedings reported to the Ministry of Justice does not contain information on the investigations that precede them.

Crime: Statistics

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the Answer of 1 September 2008, Official Report, column 1538W, on crime: statistics, how many (a) offences of soliciting for the purposes of prostitution, (b) incidents of prostitution-related activity and (c) incidents of youth-related anti-social behaviour were recorded by each police force in each of the last five years. [247294]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The available information is given in the following tables. Table 1 gives the number of recorded offences of soliciting for the purposes of prostitution for 2003-04 to 2007-08. Table 2 gives the number of incidents of prostitution related activity. This data has been provided by the National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA) and is only available for 2007-08. Data in table 3 relates to incidents of antisocial behaviour (ASB). This information has again been provided by NPIA and is only available for 2007-08.

The response given on 1 September 2008 stated that data on the number of 'youth-related ASB' is being collected. NPIA have informed officials that this data is not currently collected centrally.

Crimes of Violence: Betting Shops

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will bring forward policies designed to prevent violence against betting shop workers; and if she will make a statement. [247932]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government take the problem of violence against betting shop workers very seriously and work is being undertaken across Government Departments to tackle it. A working group lead by James Purnell, the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions and Pat McFadden, Minister for Employments Relations, and Postal Affairs has recently been established to consider action to be taken to deal with this issue. This will be attended by representatives of the book making industry, the third sector, the police, local authorities and other Government Departments.

Demonstrations

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how much has been spent on policing demonstrations in London on each day since 27 December 2008; [247698]

(2) how much has been spent on policing demonstrations in Manchester on each day since 27 December 2008. [247699]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not held centrally. This is a matter for the police authority and the chief constable or Metropolitan Police Commissioner as appropriate.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many members of her Department's staff are employed in the (a) Programme and Project Management Support Unit, (b) Reform and Change Team, (c) Strategic Policy Team, (d) Delivery Unit and (e) Reform Programme Office of the Strategy and Reform Directorate; and how many are employed in the Directorate in total. [247826]

Mr. Woolas: The following table provides the total number of staff employed by the Strategy and Reform Directorate and the specific directorates requested in the question.

Drugs: Sentencing

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have received the maximum sentence on conviction for dealing in (a) Class A drugs, (b) Class B drugs and (c) Class C drugs in each year since 1997. [248647]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information requested is included in the following table. The data given includes possession with intent to supply, as well as supplying.

These data are based on the principle offence basis. Where an offender is found guilty of two or more offences, it is the offence for which the heaviest sentence is imposed which is recorded. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the one for which the statutory maximum penalty is most severe.

The maximum sentences for trafficking in control drugs are dependent on the class of drug involved. For class A drugs, the maximum sentence is life imprisonment. For class B and C drugs, the maximum sentence is 14 years.

The Government take dealing in illegal drugs very seriously. The maximum sentence for dealing class C drugs was increased to 14 years from five years in January 2004.

Electronic Surveillance

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what legal protections there are for individuals against remote surveillance of their personal computers by third parties. [248637]

Mr. Coaker: Public authority authorisation and use of covert surveillance is strictly controlled by the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 ('RIPA'). RIPA limits the purposes for which such surveillance may be used by specific public authorities and sets out the level and procedures for its authorisation. In particular it expressly requires that its authorisation is both necessary and proportionate with regard to human rights. This reflects the obligation on all public authorities to comply with the European Convention under the terms of the Human Rights Act 1998. RIPA also provides a system of independent oversight by the Office of Surveillance Commissioners and a Tribunal for appeal if anyone believes they have been put under unlawful covert surveillance. The contact details are:

The Investigatory Powers Tribunal
PO Box 33220
London
SW1H 9ZQ
Telephone: 020 7035 3711

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what rights the police and security services have to conduct remote surveillance of an individual's computer use outside the United Kingdom. [248638]

Mr. Coaker: Public authority conduct, under the covert surveillance provisions of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000, includes conduct outside the United Kingdom.

Fraud: Economic Situation

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment she has made of the likely impact on levels of fraud and other financial crime of the downturn in the economy. [246849]

Mr. Alan Campbell: I have regular discussions with the financial sector and law enforcement and continue to monitor trends in fraud and financial crime. However, I have made no specific assessment of the impact of the downturn in the economy on these types of crime.

The Government are determined to tackle fraud and have recently allocated £29 million in new funding to establish the National Fraud programme. As part of this programme the new National Fraud Strategic Authority is working closely with stakeholders across Government, law enforcement and the private sector to drive forwards a concerted UK strategy against fraud and to make the UK a much more difficult place for fraudsters to succeed. In addition to the new authority, the City of London police now has a national remit to tackle serious and complex fraud cases across England and Wales, and to assist other forces in their response to fraud, while a new National Fraud Reporting Centre (NFRC), expected to go live in 2009, will radically streamline the way that the public report fraud to the police. The NFRC will also enable the police to draw together intelligence from separate incidents of fraud and help to form the basis of better prevention advice and alerts for businesses and the public.

Human Trafficking: Prosecutions

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prosecutions for offences relating to the trafficking of human beings were brought in each year since 1997. [240932]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Human trafficking as dedicated offences was introduced in 2004 with the introduction of the Sexual Offences Act 2003 and the Asylum and Immigration (Treatment of Claimants) Act 2004.

While the number of prosecutions since the introduction of this Act are not held centrally by the Home Office there have to date been 92 convictions for trafficking for sexual exploitation and four for trafficking for forced labour.

Immobilisation of Vehicles: Regulation

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress has been made on the Security Industry Authority's feasibility study regarding the regulation of vehicle immobilisation companies who operate on private land. [248936]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Security Industry Authority (SIA) is close to completing the feasibility study on the regulation of vehicle immobilisation companies operating on private land. The SIA will submit the study to Home Office Ministers as soon as it has been completed and approved by the SIA's board.

Internet: Security

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many British Standards Institute kitemarks for internet content control software have been issued, and to whom, pursuant to the initiative announced by the Home Office in December 2006; and if she will make a statement. [246842]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Kitemark for filtering software developed by the Home Office and Ofcom and in partnership with BSI, was launched in April 2008. Currently none have been issued, but the promotion of the Kitemark will form part of the agenda for the industry standards working group within the UK Council for Child Internet Safety. The Government fully support the Kitemark and encourage companies to apply for it.

Offensive Weapons

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were (a) prosecuted for, (b) convicted of and (c) sentenced to prison for knife possession between (i) June and October 2008 and (ii) June and October 2007. [240933]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Data showing the number of people proceeded against at magistrates courts, found guilty and given a custodial sentence at all courts for knife possession, from 1 June 2006 to 31 October 2006 and from 1 June 2007 to 31 October 2007 in England and Wales, are in the following table. Data for 2008 are due to be available in the autumn of 2009.

The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Number of persons proceeded against at magistrates courts, found guilty and given immediate custody at all courts, for knife possession[1], England and Wales for the periods 1 June 2006 to 31 October 2006 and 1 June 2007 to 31 October 2007[2,3]

	2006	2007
Proceeded against	3,258	3,288
Found guilty	2,720	2,729
Given immediate custody	499	480

[1] Includes the following offences and statutes:
Having an article with blade or point in public place—Criminal Justice Act 1988 S.139A (1) (5) (a) as added by Offensive Weapons Act 1996 S.4 (1).
Having an article with blade or point on school premises—Criminal Justice Act 1988 S.139A (2) (5) (b) as added by Offensive Weapons Act 1996 S.4 (1).

[2] The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

[3] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the Written Ministerial Statement of 25 November 2008, Official Report, column 67WS, on the departmental expenditure limit (2008-09), what the reasons were for the reprofiling of £48 million expenditure for the Office for Security and Counter Terrorism programme from 2008-09 to 2009-10. [247439]

Police Stations: Essex

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police stations in Essex were operational in each of the last 10 years. [249646]

Mr. Coaker: The management of the police estate and allocation of resources are matters for Essex Police Authority and the chief constable of Essex, who are responsible for assessing local needs.

Police: Horses

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will bring forward proposals to increase the number of mounted police in police forces in England and Wales. [248355]

Mr. Coaker: The number of mounted police in police forces in England and Wales is an operational matter for chief officers, balancing operational needs against the financial cost of maintaining a mounted unit.

Police: Medals

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will consider the merits of changing to 20 years the period of service of award for the Police Long Service Medal. [248428]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 20 January 2009]: The issue of reducing the qualifying period is the subject of an ongoing review and the Home Office will lead a consultation exercise.

Police: Rural Areas

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent steps she taken to (a) facilitate policing in rural areas and (b) develop methods of assessing levels of public safety in rural communities. [248199]

Mr. Coaker: Following consultation we continue to pay the £30 million rural policing grant in the current CSR period (2008-09 to 2010-11) as part of special formula grant, rather than including it in general formula grant. This ensures that police authorities in more rural areas continue to benefit fully from the provision.

The Policing Pledge, which sets out for the public the service that they can expect to receive from the police anywhere in the country, includes a 20-minute response time for emergency calls from rural areas. Neighbourhood policing teams in rural areas have also been given specific guidance from the National Policing Improvement Agency in recognition that the policing needs in rural areas may differ from those in towns and cities.

Police: Standards

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 8 December 2008, Official Report, column 39WS, on strategic policing priorities, by what means (a) a police force, (b) its police authority, (c) crime and disorder reduction partnerships, community safety partnerships and other local partners and (d) local people are to be involved in setting local policing priorities for 2009-10. [243702]

Mr. Coaker: Every police authority is required each year to produce a three-year plan including their local priorities for policing their area. They are required to consider and include crime and disorder reduction partnerships/community safety partnerships strategies and the view of the public obtained under section 96 of the Police Act 1996. How each authority decides to gather and include this information is a decision for them.

Underpinning this, local—neighbourhood—policing priorities are agreed between the neighbourhood policing teams and their local communities. These priorities will be enshrined in the local part of the Policing Pledge and subject to discussion at the monthly public meetings that all teams now hold.

Digital Technology: Disadvantaged People

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what steps he is considering to facilitate access to digital technologies for disadvantaged groups and individuals; and if he will make a statement. [248878]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The UK Government recently launched their cross-government paper "Delivering Digital Inclusion - An Action Plan for Consultation" which details more than 70 Government actions taking place to advance digital inclusion and future actions being considered by Government to facilitate access to digital technologies for disadvantaged groups and individuals in the annex of the report. The consultation was launched on the 27 October 2008 and finished on the 19 January 2009.

There are significant and untapped opportunities to use technology better on behalf of citizens and communities. These include improved service planning, design and delivery, particularly to address the needs of disadvantaged groups and individuals.

The paper highlights and brings together the activities already happening within the UK to improve access to technology and provide support and training to use information and communication technology (ICT) in order to enhance educational, employment and social outcomes for disadvantaged groups and individuals.

The consultation sought views on both the analysis set out in the consultation paper and on proposals for a new Digital Inclusion Champion supported by an expert taskforce and a research team. Consultation responses are currently being analysed and will be used to inform future work to drive forward digital inclusion across all sectors.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Age: Discrimination

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will take steps to establish a strategy to tackle age discrimination and promote age equality in the provision of goods and services (a) by his Department and (b) within the sectors for which his Department has policy responsibility; and if he will make a statement. [243016]

Mr. McFadden: The forthcoming Equality Bill will enable the Government to make it illegal to discriminate unjustifiably against adults aged 18 and over, because of their age when providing goods, facilities and services. The reforms will apply to all sectors of the economy including those for which BERR has policy responsibility.

BERR aims to have a work force that reflects the diverse community the Department serves. The Department's diversity strategy links into BERR's employment policies and practices; and guidance and training on avoiding all forms of discrimination, including age, is available to all staff.

The Department contractually requires its suppliers and their sub-contractors to adhere to its anti-discrimination policies and broader legislation. The Department will continue to implement emerging best practice in this area.

Defence Export Services Organisation

Mr. Benyon: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many (a) civilian and (b) military staff there were at the Defence Export Services Organisation in July 2007. [247803]

Imports: Manufactured Goods

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps his Department is taking to ensure that imported goods have not been produced by foreign workers who have been exploited. [245025]

Mr. Thomas: The UK Government fully recognise the importance of protecting overseas workers from exploitation.

We fully support the International Labour Organisation (ILO) Decent Work Agenda, which promotes employment, labour standards, social protection and social dialogue; and we actively encourage all ILO member states to improve working conditions and, particularly, to work towards ratifying and implementing the eight ILO core labour conventions, which cover forced and child labour, trade union rights and discrimination in employment.

We also fully support the ILO's Tripartite Declaration of Principles concerning Multinational Enterprises and Social Policy, and the OECD Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises, which are voluntary standards of responsible corporate behaviour. Allegations of breaches of the guidelines by UK companies can be investigated by the UK's National Contact Point.

We also fund the Ethical Trade Initiative, an alliance of businesses, trade unions and charities. This initiative works to secure better conditions for workers in supply chains making products for export to the UK and other countries; for example, workers who make clothes, shoes, toys and food items.

In addition, the EU's special incentive arrangement for sustainable development and good governance (GSP+) incentivises economically vulnerable countries to improve their labour standards by allowing preferential access to EU markets if they ratify and effectively implement key international instruments including the eight ILO conventions.

Given the size and complexity of many supply chains, the Government strongly believe that this approach are more practical and effective than a UK-based monitoring system.

Insolvency: Prosecutions

Peter Luff: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many prosecutions there have been for trading when knowingly insolvent in each of the last three years. [249093]

Mr. McFadden: Section 458 of the Companies Act 1985 and section 993 of the Companies Act 2006 create the offence of carrying on a business with the intent to defraud creditors or for any fraudulent purpose. This Department has brought prosecutions in respect of this offence in the following numbers in each of the last complete financial years:

	Number
2005-06	25
2006-07	20

Other prosecuting authorities may also have prosecuted using this offence.

ITV: British Sky Broadcasting

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will instruct BSkyB to divest itself of its shares in ITV. [244863]

Mr. Thomas: The Secretary of State's final decision on the impact of BSkyB's shareholding in ITV was published on 29 January 2008. This includes his decisions as to the remedies appropriate in this case to address the substantial lessening of competition to which he found the shareholding gave rise. The remedies include the requirement on BSkyB to make a partial divestment of its shares in ITV down to a level below 7.5 per cent. We aim to implement the remedies as soon as practicable. The process has, however, been delayed due to the appeal proceedings brought by BSkyB seeking to overturn the decisions. The Competition Appeal Tribunal's judgment upholding the Secretary of State's decisions was published on 29 September. BSkyB subsequently submitted an application for permission to appeal that judgment.

That application was refused on 4 December. On 18 December, BSkyB submitted a further application for permission to appeal direct to the Court of Appeal.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the effects of BSkyB's continuing retention of shares in ITV on competition and the public interest as it relates to the need to ensure a sufficient plurality of persons with control of media. [244881]

Mr. Thomas: The Secretary of State's assessment of the impact of BSkyB's shareholding in ITV was set out in the final decision document he published on 29 January 2008. This included the decisions that BSkyB's shareholding in ITV had resulted in a substantial lessening of competition in the market for all television but that it did not operate against the public interest as it relates to ensuring a sufficient plurality of persons with control of media enterprises. The decision document also sets out the remedies appropriate in this case, including the requirement on BSkyB to make a partial divestment of its shares in ITV down to a level below 7.5 per cent.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what (a) communications he has had from and (b) meetings his Department has had with (i) BSkyB, (ii) News International and (iii) other News Corporation-controlled companies during the last four months; and which of those related to BSkyB's shareholding in ITV. [244882]

Mr. Thomas: My noble Friend, the Secretary of State has had no communications from BSkyB or News International during the period or, to the best of my knowledge, from any other companies controlled by News Corporation. During the period, BERR officials have been in contact with BSkyB about the text of the statutory undertakings we are asking BSkyB to provide to remedy the anti-competitive effects of their shareholding in ITV in accordance with the Secretary of State's final decision on this matter dated 29 January 2008.

As published in the ONS Balance of Payments Pink Book, in 2007 UK exports of services to Israel were worth £475 million and UK imports of services from Israel were worth £305 million.

(b)(1) The Department will spend £1,607,000 on early departure schemes in 2008-09.

(b)(2) The Department has no planned expenditure for early departure schemes in 2009-10.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Community Relations

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what response she plans to make to the recommendation that more Preventing Violent Extremism Pathfinder Fund projects should be targeted at disrupting those who promote violent extremism and those who support the institutions where they are active made on page 62 of the report, Preventing Violent Extremism Pathfinder Fund: Mapping of Project Activities 2007-08 published on 10 December 2008; [249584]

(2) what steps she plans to take in response to the recommendation for increased partnership working with educational establishments, arts and sports providers to deliver the PREVENT strategy made on page 7 of the report Preventing Violent Extremism Pathfinder Fund: Mapping of Project Activities 2007-08 published on 10 December 2008; and if she will make a statement; [249593]

(3) whether her Department plans to undertake research into effective partnership working on the PREVENT strategy as recommended on page 10 of the report Preventing Violent Extremism Pathfinder Fund: Mapping of Project Activities 2007-08 published on 10 December 2008; [249594]

(4) whether she plans to provide further guidance to local authorities on gathering and presenting evaluation evidence on projects funded as part of the PREVENT strategy as recommended on page 10 of the report Preventing Violent Extremism Pathfinder Fund: Mapping of Project Activities 2007-08 published on 10 December 2008; [249595]

(5) what steps she plans to take in response to the recommendation that local authorities should be encouraged to fund more Preventing Violent Extremism projects using mosque-based delivery and electronic and printed materials made on page 10 of the report Preventing Violent Extremism Pathfinder Fund: Mapping of Project Activities 2007-08 published on 10 December 2008; and if she will make a statement; [249596]

(6) what steps she plans to take in response to the recommendation that good practice with respect to Preventing Violent Extremism projects should be shared among local authorities and projects made on page 10 of the report Preventing Violent Extremism Pathfinder Fund: Mapping of Project Activities 2007-08 published on 10 December 2008; [249597]

(7) what steps she plans to take in response to the recommendations that all local authorities and projects should provide a lead name contact responsible for monitoring and evaluation with respect to Preventing Violent Extremism projects made on page 10 of the report Preventing Violent Extremism Pathfinder Fund: Mapping Project Activities 2007-08, published on 10 December 2008. [249598]

Mr. Khan: The Preventing Violent Extremism Pathfinder Fund: Mapping of project activities 2007-08 was one of a number of reviews over the summer which sought to draw out learning and emerging practice on the delivery of activity to prevent violent extremism. Though each review had a different focus, together they provide a useful package of learning material upon which local partners can draw and which will inform the Government's approach to Prevent.

There are a number of common themes which run through all these reviews. Some of these require action from national Government, some from local partners and many from both. We have ensured wide distribution of the Pathfinder Fund Mapping report to enable local partners to benefit directly from information on the range of Pathfinder projects and how they are contributing to the Prevent strategy. We published "Delivering Prevent—Responding to Learning" on 10 December, which sets out the key strands of learning from the reviews and work already under way to address these key themes. We will continue to develop our response to the reviews throughout the year. A copy of "Delivering Prevent—Responding to Learning" has been placed in the House Library and can also be downloaded at:

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when the new Centre of Excellence referred to in her press release of 10 December 2008 entitled Government steps up the fight against extremism, will be set up; how many people it will employ; what support it will provide to whom; what the annual running costs are expected to be; and if she will make a statement. [249592]

Mr. Khan: At the 10 December Prevent 08 Conference the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government stated that over the coming months a 'national centre of excellence' would be developed to be up and running in 2009, that any local area can access for practical advice on Prevent.

We are currently working with local and national partners to agree how the centre will operate.

Community Relations: Islam

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which Muslims participate in the initiative that brings together UK and US Muslims referred to in her press release of 10 December 2008 entitled Government steps up the fight against extremism; how they were selected; how often they meet; what they discuss; and if she will make a statement. [249591]

Mr. Khan: The Government, working with the US, supported an initiative which aims to create a network among British and American Pakistani community figures to share experience and information about integration, and to explore ways in which such communities can promote integration and in doing so, increase their resilience to violent extremism.

A group of US Muslims from a range of vocational backgrounds visited the UK in October 2008. They met with counterparts in the UK. The UK participants were volunteers from a range of backgrounds, but with an interest in community integration issues. During the visit the participants also met with young people to discuss these issues. We envisage there being future engagement between the members of the Pakistani communities from the two countries.

Departmental Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend, East, (James Duddridge) of 6 October 2008, Official Report, columns 304-05W, on departmental public relations, which companies were employed during the period; how much her Department spent on each such contract; and on what project each company worked. [249379]

	Department	Activity	Company	Total (£)

Fire Services: Finance

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much funding from her Department has been allocated to (a) the Fireguard project and (b) regional fire control rooms. [248879]

Mr. Khan: Fireguard is a collaborative project between 33 fire and rescue authorities. The procurement was undertaken at their request, and on a self-financing basis, by Firebuy Ltd., the national procurement body for the fire and rescue service, which is sponsored by my Department. The Department itself has not allocated any funds to this project.

The total cost of the FiReControl project is £380 million. To fund local and regional costs of implementing FiReControl, a total of £42 million has been paid to fire and rescue authorities to date and an additional £66 million has been indicated over the remaining two years of the CSR07 period (2009-10 and 2010-11).

Fire Services: Working Hours

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent assessment she has made of the effectiveness of fire and rescue services' retained duty system; and if she will make a statement. [248671]

Mr. Khan: The retained duty system, which covers 30 per cent. of all firefighters, enables Fire and Rescue Authorities to provide a community based service including fire prevention, protection and emergency response in areas away from main urban centres. I welcome the progress which fire and rescue authorities have made in addressing issues of recruitment and retention, with vacancies falling from over 20 per cent. in 2003-04 to 13 per cent. in 2007-08. The Department will continue to support the Fire and Rescue Service to strengthen the retained duty system.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what implications for retained firefighters she has identified consequent upon implementation of the working time directive. [249898]

Mr. Khan: Implementation of the working time directive, by setting a 48-hour maximum to the working week, would greatly reduce the hours which firefighters working the retained duty system could be available for duty, especially the substantial numbers who work full-time for their primary employer. The UK Government therefore place great importance on retaining its opt-out from the directive, a position that was acknowledged by the European Union Council of Ministers in June when it agreed in the Common Position that it should be retained, and will continue to defend it.

The amendments to the Common Position voted by the European Parliament on 17 December are the latest step in a complex negotiation, the next phase being for the Council of Ministers to consider the amendments, followed by a process of conciliation between both parties, the presidency and the Commission. Officials from my Department will be consulting a range of fire and rescue service stakeholders to ensure that the potential impact is assessed fully; and working with the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, which has the UK lead on the working time directive, to inform the ongoing debate and ensure MEPs and EU member states are briefed appropriately.

Housing: Inspections

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people were training to become a registered home inspector at the latest date for which figures are available. [244747]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to the hon. Member for Montgomeryshire (Lembit Öpik) on 6 June 2008, Official Report, column 1177W. This is the latest date for which figures are available and represents the total number of people registered for home inspector training since its inception in 2004.

Local Government: Disclosure of Information

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what monitoring her Department carries out of the implementation and practice of whistleblowing policies by local authorities; and if she will make a statement. [247816]

John Healey: The Department does not monitor councils' policies on whistle blowing, which are matters for individual councils.

However, on 24 December 2008, we concluded a consultation on introducing a model code of conduct for local authority employees which included a proposed provision that where an employee becomes aware of activities that the employee considers to be illegal, improper or unethical, the employee should report the matter in accordance with the employees rights under the Public Disclosure Act 1998.

We are now considering the responses we have received to the consultation.

Owner Occupation

Michael Jabez Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her latest estimate is of (a) the number of (i) homeowners, (ii) homeowners with mortgages and (iii) repossessions that have taken place in the last 12 months and (b) the number of repossessions which will take place in the next 12 months (A) in total and (B) as a percentage of the number of mortgaged properties. [249650]

Mr. Iain Wright: In 2007, based on estimates from the Labour Force Survey there were 14,733,000 owner-occupiers in England of whom 8,228,000 had a mortgage.

According to data from the Council of Mortgage Lenders, at the end of 2007 there were 11,822,000 homeowners with mortgages in the UK. During that year 26,200 repossessions had taken place[1].

The Council of Mortgage Lenders have forecast that there will be around 45,000 (0.38 per cent. of all mortgages) repossessions occurring during 2008 and 75,000 (0.66 per cent. of all mortgages) during 2009[1].

[1] The CML data on mortgages and repossessions include buy to let mortgages (as well as owner-occupier mortgages). Their forecasts are available on their website at:

http://www.cml.org.uk/cml/publications/marketcommentary/109

Social Rented Housing

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government are taking to provide more social housing in (a) England, (b) the North East, (c) the Tees Valley and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland. [249822]

Mr. Iain Wright: In England, over the three years 2008-11, we are investing over £8 billion in affordable housing through the Homes and Communities Agency (HCA). Around £6.5 billion of this will be directed towards social rented homes.

Of the £8 billion around £170 million is to be used for affordable housing in the North East region. We have not set out funding below regional level. Bids for HCA funds are made on a competitive basis. The HCA will publish quarterly the allocations made as a result of approvals of bids on their website:

www.homesandcommunities.cu.uk

On 2 September we announced a £1 billion market rescue package to increase confidence, stability and fairness in the housing market, building on the previous announcements in May and July. As part of this package, and the pre-Budget report we are bringing forward £550 million in order to deliver up to 7,500 new social homes over the next eighteen months on top of current assumptions.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Nature Conservation: British Antarctic Territory

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department is taking to protect marine wildlife and promote biodiversity in the British Antarctic Territory. [247700]

Gillian Merron: I have been asked to reply.

The UK is committed to ensuring the highest possible standards of environmental protection in Antarctica. The UK Antarctic Act 1994 fully implements the 1991 Protocol on Environmental Protection to the Antarctic Treaty which sets out a framework for the comprehensive protection of the Antarctic environment. The UK is also fully committed to the Convention on the Conservation of Antarctic Marine Living Resources, the key objective of which is the conservation of Antarctic marine living resources. In addition to the science and environmental monitoring activities carried out by the British Antarctic survey, the UK also supports a range of specific environmental projects in the British Antarctic Territory to enhance conservation and raise awareness of the Antarctic environment.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Africa: Overseas Aid

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what support he has made available to those Saharans currently residing in camps (a) in Algeria and (b) displaced elsewhere in Africa. [248172]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development (DFID) supports Western Saharan refugees through its share of the European Community Humanitarian Aid Office's (ECHO) budget, and contributions to the UN Refugee Agency (UNHCR). ECHO provided €10 million in 2008 to support Western Saharan refugees of which the UK share was approximately €140,000. UNHCR continue to provide assistance to Western Saharan refugees with US$7.8 million provided in 2008. DFID does not contribute directly to the UNHCR appeal for Western Saharan refugees, but is the sixth largest donor to UNHCR, providing US$56 million in non-earmarked flexible funding to its annual budget in 2007 and a similar amount in 2008.

Around 90,000 Western Saharan refugees are reported to be living in Algeria; none are reported to be living elsewhere in Africa. Around 600 more are dispersed across other parts of the globe.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Viral Haemorrhagic Disease

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to help alleviate the effects of the Ebola virus in the Democratic Republic of Congo. [247219]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development (DFID) is funding Medecins Sans Frontieres (MSF) Belgium's emergency epidemiological survey and response health project that has responded to the current outbreak with the provision of adapted isolation units and specialist staff. With funds from the humanitarian pooled fund (to which DFID provides 50 per cent. of funding), the World Health Organisation (WHO) is providing additional specialised health input. WHO received $6.3 million from the humanitarian pooled fund in 2008.

The WHO Health Actions in Crisis department (WHO/HAC) in Geneva has sent one of their epidemiologists to the region. DFID is providing £1.95 million to WHO/HAC in 2008.

No requests for any further funding have been received by DFID in response to this current Ebola outbreak. DFID DRC will continue to monitor the situation, and any need for funding, closely.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what (a) directly-operated and (b) franchised catering outlets his Department provides for staff. [249078]

Mr. Michael Foster: There is a staff restaurant in each of our two UK offices. Both of these are operated under contract by Charlton House Catering Services Ltd.

[245700]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The table that appears in answer to the right hon. Member for Wokingham (Mr. Redwood) on 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 992W, on departmental pay, was based on incomplete data and should have read:

	SCS staff not receiving a maximum bonus
	Number	Percentage
2006-07	67 out of 87	77
2007-08	72 out of 96	75

Department for International Development (DFID) senior civil service (SCS) members are eligible for a non-consolidated bonus award. Bonuses are intended to reward delivery of personal business objectives during the reporting year or other personal contributions to wider organisational objectives. In considering SCS members for bonus, an SCS pay committee takes into account:

performance against agreed priority business objectives or targets;

total delivery record over the year;

relative stretch (i.e. the challenge of the job compared to that of others); and response to unforeseen events that affected the performance agreement.

DFID paid a total of £504,000 in non-consolidated bonuses to 62 senior civil servants for the 2006-07 reporting year and £641,510 in non-consolidated performance bonuses to 71 senior civil servants for the 2007-08 reporting year.

The following table gives a breakdown of the number of bonuses, awarded to DFID's SCS, in each category in each year:

	Number eligible for bonus	Number of nil bonuses	Number of low bonuses	Number of medium bonuses	Number of high (maximum) bonuses
2006-07	87	25	n/a	42	20
2007-08	96	25	10	37	24

The highest bonuses for 2006-07 were all fixed at £12,500. The five highest bonuses for 2007-08 were: £22,700; £20,685; £20,048; £18,422; and £14,612.

The process used to determine the level of bonuses in these years differed. In 2006-07 bonuses were paid at a flat rate. In 2007-08 bonuses were paid as a percentage of base salary.

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development with reference to the answer to the right hon. Member for Wokingham (Mr. Redwood) of22 July 2008, Official Report, column 992W, on departmental pay, how many of the staff eligible for bonuses in 2007-08 were based (a) in the UK and (b) overseas. [245701]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The table that appears in answer to the right hon. Member for Wokingham (Mr. Redwood) on 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 992W, on departmental pay, should have read:

	SCS staff not receiving a maximum bonus
	Number	Percentage
2006-07	67 out of 87	77
2007-08	72 out of 96	75

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The following table shows the number of Department for International Development (DFID) staff who are currently on outward secondment to other organisations and the length of time they have been on secondment.

There is no maximum permitted length for outward secondments although best practice would be three-five years maximum.

Length of time on secondment	Number of secondees
0-6 months	18
6-12 months	11
12-18 months	12
18-24 months	8

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) has allocated £270 million for India in the financial year 2008-2009. In addition to this, in the 2008 calendar year, DFID contributed a further £13.2 million through the European Commission.

Somalia: Overseas Aid

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of the humanitarian situation in Somalia; what steps he plans to take to protect food monitors; and if he will make a statement. [248205]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given on 20 January 2009, Official Report, columns 1311-12W, to my hon. Friend the Member for Chorley (Mr. Hoyle).

The Department for International Development (DFID) does not take independent action to protect food monitors on the ground.

Sudan: Overseas Aid

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what aid he is providing to support the process of capacity-building in the build-up to the elections in Sudan as part of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement; [248170]

(2) what assistance his Department is providing to capacity-building projects established in preparation for elections in Sudan in 2009. [248206]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The UK Government are working with the international community and Sudanese counterparts to ensure that an acceptable and peaceful process of elections takes place within the Comprehensive Peace Agreement timeline. Capacity building of key institutions and groups is central to this.

DFID is providing grants of over £1.13 million to media and civil society capacity building programmes in 2008 and 2009. In addition, DFID contributed £1.5 million to the UNDP-managed fund for preparatory support to the elections.

The UK has also provided support to a Swedish-based International Institute for Democracy and Electoral Assistance project to build the capacity of political parties, including £550,000 from the British embassy in first phase (2006-08) and £1 million from DFID has been allocated to the next phase.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when he will assess the effectiveness of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement in Sudan with reference to the support provided by donor nations. [248171]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The core body mandated to assess CPA implementation is the Assessment and Evaluation Commission (AEC). The UK was instrumental in the appointment of Sir Derek Plumbly as its Chair and participates in the Security, Wealth-Sharing, Power-Sharing and the Transitional Areas sub-committees.

Assessment of the effectiveness of the CPA is an ongoing process. The AEC Plenary meets monthly and brings together representatives of the two parties to the CPA. In July 2008, the AEC conducted a mid-term assessment of CPA implementation. This report is a public document and is available on request.

The Multi Donor Trust Funds (MDTFs) (National and South), set up under the auspices of the CPA, are the primary mechanisms for donors to support the reconstruction and development of war-affected regions in Sudan. Both funds are managed by the World Bank, and monitored by an independent agent.

Zimbabwe: Life Expectancy

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what information his Department holds on the average life expectancy of females of child-bearing age in Zimbabwe. [249686]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The World Health Organisation (WHO) estimated in 2006 that the average female life expectancy in Zimbabwe was 34 years of age. This is the most recent estimate. There are no statistics on average life expectancy of women of child bearing age specifically in Zimbabwe. Recent demographic estimates suggest that women of reproductive age have a one in 16 lifetime chance of dying as a result of pregnancy and childbirth.

DFID is providing assistance to support the distribution of antiretroviral drugs (ARVs) to over 40,000 people in 2009 of whom at least 55 per cent. are women. In addition, DFID is spending £25 million on reproductive and maternal health care to help women gain access to contraceptives, essential antenatal care, and emergency obstetric care in order to save lives and protect their health and the health of newborns. We are also working with the UN and others to support broader essential health services, bring the country's worst ever cholera outbreak under control and to provide food aid to over five million Zimbabweans.

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people were diagnosed with prostate cancer in (a) 2001, (b) 2002, (c) 2003, (d) 2004, (e) 2005, (f) 2006 and (g) 2007; and in how many cases in each year the prognosis was that the cancer was terminal. [243167]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 21 January 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many people were diagnosed with prostate cancer in (a) 2001, (b), 2002, (c) 2003, (d) 2004, (e) 2005, (0 2006 and (g) 2007; and in how many cases in each year the prognosis was that the cancer was terminal. [243167]

The latest available figures for newly diagnosed cases of cancer (incidence) are for the year 2006. Table 1 gives the numbers of newly diagnosed cases of prostate cancer in England in (a) 2001, (b) 2002, (c) 2003, (d) 2004, (e) 2005, (f) 2006, the latest available figures.

Information on whether the prognosis was terminal is not available. Whether the cancer was terminal could be indicated by the stage/progression of the disease. The stage data collected is not nationally comparable, and reflects differences in what is meant by "stage" rather than real differences in what clinicians use to classify the patients. The United Kingdom Association of Cancer Registries (UKACR) is investigating what should be counted as a complete stage in an attempt to be able to provide comparable data in the future.

Table 1: Registrations of newly diagnosed cases of prostate cancer[1] in England, 2001-06

	Number
2001	27,724
2002	27,878
2003	28,074
2004	30,320
2005	28,886
2006	30,024

Social Enterprises

Margaret Moran: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many social enterprises were established during 2008. [248219]

Kevin Brennan: The most recent figures suggest that there are at least 55,000 social enterprises in the UK. Social enterprises are not, however, defined by a particular legal form and as a result are not required to register with any one body. Information on the number of social enterprises established in any particular year is, therefore, unavailable.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many social enterprises have (a) been established and (b) ceased operating since 1997. [248220]

Kevin Brennan: The most recent figures suggest that there are at least 55,000 social enterprises in the UK. Social enterprises are not, however, defined by a particular legal form and as a result are not required to register with any one body. Information on the number of social enterprises that have been established or have ceased operating is, therefore, unavailable.

Social Enterprises: Finance

Margaret Moran: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much the (a) Futurebuilders fund, (b) Adventure Capital fund, (c) Community Builders fund and (d) UnLtd have disbursed to social enterprises and social entrepreneurs since each was established. [248215]

Kevin Brennan: The amount of funding from these organisations specifically allocated to social enterprises is not available. Social enterprises are not defined by a particular legal form and as a result are not required to register with any one body or specifically identify themselves as such. However,

(a) Futurebuilders has disbursed £50 million to over 260 third sector organisations looking to build their capacity to compete for and win public service contracts. Of these organisations, we anticipate that many of these investees will be social enterprises.

(b) The Adventure Capital Fund has disbursed a total of £10,279,749 to date. Many of these will also be social enterprises.

(c) The £70 million Communitybuilders fund is currently procuring a national partner and it is intended that the partner will begin disbursing monies in the summer of 2009. It is anticipated that many of the recipient organisations will be social enterprises.

(d) UnLtd is an independent organisation that provides cash funding, practical support and networking opportunities to around 1,000 social entrepreneurs per year across the UK. The Office of the Third Sector does not fund UnLtd grants. Details of UnLtd grant recipients to date are available in their annual report and accounts

Teenage Pregnancy: Essex

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the percentage change in the rate of conceptions among girls aged under (a) 18 and (b) 16 years in (i) Southend and (ii) Essex has been since 2004. [247753]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated January 2009:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking what the percentage change in the rate of conceptions among girls aged under (a) 18 years and (b) 16 years in (i) Southend and (ii) Essex has been since 2004. (247753)

Available figures are estimates of the number of conceptions that resulted in a live birth, stillbirth or legal termination.

Conception rate and percentage change in the rate among girls aged under 18 and under 16 for Southend UA and Essex between 2004 and 2006 (the most recent year for which figures are available), are provided in the attached table.

Conception rate[1, 2] and percentage change[3] in the rate among girls aged under 16 and under 18 for Southend and Essex, 2004-06

	2004 rate	2006 rate	Percentage change
Under 16
Southend UA	9.4	9.3	-0.3
Essex County	5.6	6.3	13.5
Under 18

Essex County	30.5	32.5	6.5

[1] Rates are per 1,000 female population aged 13-15.
[2] Rates are per 1,000 female population aged 15-17.
[3] Percentage change is based on unrounded rates.

Voluntary Organisations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what discussions has he had with representatives of the voluntary sector on the effect of the current economic situation on their activities. [248007]

Kevin Brennan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the right hon. Member for Gordon (Malcolm Bruce) on 14 January 2009, Official Report, column 740W.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Asylum

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of progress by the Afghan government in meeting its commitments to provide land for Afghan refugees under the Land Allocation Scheme; and if he will make a statement. [242182]

David Miliband: The Land Allocation Scheme is an ambitious Afghanistan government program designed to distribute intact and uncultivated government land to landless returnees and internally displaced persons for housing. It is intended to provide a long-term solution to a complex problem.

The UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) is supporting the Afghanistan Ministry of Refugees and Repatriation to strengthen capacity, at national and local levels. Though the scheme is not yet as widespread or effective as the situation requires, according to UNHCR as of June 2008, 32,586 families have received temporary land ownership deeds.

Armed Conflict: Reconstruction

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made on the development of a more deployable UK civilian capability, as referred to in his Department's Autumn 2008 Performance Report. [246257]

David Miliband: A Cabinet Office review of the UK's civilian expert capacity was completed last year. The key Departments responsible for delivery of this capacity, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, the Department for International Development, the Ministry of Defence and the Stabilisation Unit are now taking forward the recommendations to enhance the effectiveness of our deployable civilian capability, both through improving the quality and readiness of deployable civilian experts from current sources and examining the introduction of new processes for identifying and deploying such personnel.

Bosnia: Passports

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of citizens of Bosnia-Herzegovina who have been issued (a) Serbian and (b) Croatian passports since the Dayton Peace Accord of 1995. [240840]

David Miliband: The Government have not made an estimate of the number of citizens of Bosnia and Herzegovina (BiH) who have been issued with Serbian or Croatian passports since 1995. The Bosnian authorities have no formal figures for the number of dual nationals in BiH. BiH has not had a population census since 1991.

British Council: Finance

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what funding his Department has provided for the British Council's Reconnect initiative in each year to 2010-11. [249541]

Caroline Flint: I refer my hon. Friend to the written answer I gave to the hon. Member for Rayleigh (Mr. Francois) on 12 January 2008, Official Report column 355W.

Burma: Politics and Government

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the government of Burma on the rights of people belonging to opposition groups in that country. [249690]

Bill Rammell: In regular contacts between our embassy in Rangoon and the Burmese military government, we continue to stress the need for all political actors, including Aung San Suu Kyi, the National League for Democracy and other democratic groups, to be allowed to play their full part in shaping the country's future. Most recently, our ambassador expressed the UK's deep concern to the Burmese Foreign Minister about the severe prison sentences handed down to democratic and human rights activists in late 2008.

My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister has repeatedly reaffirmed the UK's commitment to democracy in Burma. In May 2008 under UK chairmanship, the UN Security Council reaffirmed its demand for the regime to start an inclusive political process. We still hold to this demand, and continue to support the UN Secretary-General's efforts to break the political deadlock. We continue to lobby countries in the region to bring pressure on the Burmese regime to reform.

Cuba: Overseas Trade

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Government of Cuba on the terms of the trade embargo between the UK and Cuba. [249214]

Gillian Merron: There is no trade embargo between the UK and Cuba. A number of UK businesses operate in Cuba and our embassy in Havana offers assistance to British companies looking to work there. The UK continues to oppose the US trade embargo against Cuba.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Armed Conflict

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the governments of (a) Uganda, (b) Rwanda and (c) Burundi on compliance with UN Security Council Resolution 1807 for the Democratic Republic of Congo. [246295]

Gillian Merron: We have encouraged the governments of Rwanda, Burundi and Uganda to exert tighter controls over their borders to prevent the illegal trade of natural resources and weapons. In particular, we have called on the government of Rwanda to take steps to deter the recruitment activities of illegal armed groups from eastern DRC within their territory. We have called upon the government of Burundi to respond constructively to requests by the UN Group of Experts, which is mandated under UN Security Council Resolution 1870 to investigate the means by which illegal armed groups operating in the Democratic Republic of Congo receive funding, weapons and other support.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the government of Rwanda following the report on 12 December 2008 by the UN panel of experts' (S/2008/773), on that report's allegation that the Rwandan government is supporting the rebel group National Congress for the Defence of the People in the Democratic Republic of Congo; and if he will make a statement. [246296]

Gillian Merron: We are committed to help bring about a peaceful solution to the violence in eastern Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) and have urged the Rwandan authorities to take a constructive approach to dealing with illegal militias and to curtail support for them from within Rwanda. We continue to press both the Rwandan and DRC governments at the highest levels to respond constructively to the UN Group of Experts' recommendations.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Armed Forces

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what military training the UK has given to the Armed Forces of the Democratic Republic of Congo in the Democratic Republic of Congo since 2005. [246294]

Gillian Merron: The UK has provided the armed forces of the Democratic Republic of Congo (FARDC) with several training projects since 2005. These include:

a peacekeeping English language project, which has to date trained over 200 students; training of 20 members of the FARDC as interpreters; and leadership training for 30 FARDC junior officers by Sandhurst instructors.

Training on Security Sector Reform has also been provided for the FARDC Chief of Staff and senior FARDC officers. In addition, the UK has run several individual courses for FARDC officers at African British Training Centres including:

(a) managing defence in the wider security environment;

(b) collective training;

(c) peace support operations;

(d) managing defence within a democracy.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Military Aid

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government has provided assistance to the government of Democratic Republic of Congo on arms stockpile management and weapons import marking. [248686]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The UK is one of the largest bilateral donors in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC), contributing some £70 million this financial year to build a capable and accountable state, reducing violent conflict and its impact. This includes a number of projects designed to promote Security Sector reform. However, we have not provided assistance to the government of the DRC specifically on arms stockpile management or weapons import marking.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Mining

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which UK-based companies have been involved in the exportation of (a) cassiterite, (b) coltan and (c) wolframite from the Democratic Republic of Congo, as referred to in the report of 12 December 2008 by the UN panel of experts (S/2008/773). [246293]

Gillian Merron: We are aware of a number of UK-based companies involved in mining in the Democratic Republic of Congo, although precise details of their activities are not held. Only one—Afrimex, which is involved in the exportation of cassiterite—is referred to by name in the UN panel of experts report.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government supports proposals to widen MONUC's mandate to include the establishment of border-monitoring teams to check goods entering the Democratic Republic of Congo. [246305]

Gillian Merron: We fully support the mandate of the UN mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (MONUC), which was renewed by UN Security Council resolution 1856 (2008) on 22 December 2008. The mandate includes provisions for the mission to inspect without notice aircraft and any transport vehicle using the ports, airports and border crossings into North and South Kivu and Ituri. It also requires MONUC to use its monitoring capacities to curtail the provision of support to illegal armed groups derived from the illicit trade in natural resources.

Recent events in the DRC demonstrate that poor governance of natural resources can act as a significant contributing factor to the resurgence of violence. It is important that DRC's mineral wealth is brought under legitimate control, both as a source of much-needed revenue for the state and to restrict financial support to illegal armed groups.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what percentage of the IT systems in (a) his Department and (b) its agencies are fully accredited to the Government's security standards. [245386]

Gillian Merron: Currently 83 per cent. of the IT systems in the FCO and its agencies are fully accredited to the Government's security standards. The remaining 17 per cent. is being accredited in parallel to deployment.

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many members of staff have been (a) investigated, (b) suspended and (c) dismissed for losing (i) memory sticks, (ii) laptop computers; (iii) desktop computers and (iv) mobile telephones in each year since 1997. [247961]

Gillian Merron: Our records show that since 1997 no members of staff have been investigated, suspended or dismissed for loss of equipment.

Departmental Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make it his policy that temporary and permanent employees of his Department employed at the same grade receive the same hourly rate of pay. [248412]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) pays staff whom it employs directly on temporary contracts exactly the same rates of pay as permanent members of staff.

Some temporary staff are supplied by agencies. These staff are employed and paid by the agency concerned, which then charges a fee to the FCO. Individual agencies determine the rates of pay for their agency staff.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much has been spent by his Department on staff reward and recognition schemes in each of the last three years. [248711]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) uses non-consolidated, non-pensionable bonuses to encourage high performance. We pay annual bonuses to staff in the delegated grades (all except senior managers) based on appraisal evidence of annual performance. The highest rating and bonus award is given only where performance has significantly exceeded challenging objectives and may have radically transformed delivery of policy and/or services.

Variable pay (bonus) arrangements for staff in the Senior Management Structure/Senior Civil Service (SMS/SCS) of the FCO follow a framework set centrally for Whitehall Departments by the Cabinet Office.

The total amounts spent by the FCO in the last three years are as shown in the following table:

2006	5,854,853
2007	6,572,028
2008	6,934,909

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the (a) underspend and (b) overspend on country budgets in his Department was in the last financial year for which figures are available, broken down by country. [242183]

David Miliband: The underspend and overspend, on administration budgets by country, for 2007-08 are shown in the following table. Programme budgets have not been included as they are not readily broken down by country and to do so would incur disproportionate cost.

Departmental Rail Travel

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what date he last used a train in the course of his official duties. [242610]

David Miliband: I last used a train in the course of my official duties on 12 December 2008, returning from Brussels to London, after attending the European Council.

All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the Ministerial Code.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on how many occasions in the last 12 months Ministers in his Department have used their discretion to rule that a parliamentary question for written answer should be answered because it would be in the public interest to do so, even though to do so would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold of £700. [249144]

Gillian Merron: This information is not held centrally, so to provide an answer to the hon. Member would incur a disproportionate cost.

Falkland Islands: Fossil Fuels

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assistance his Department plans to provide to the Falkland Islands government to extract oil and gas. [248351]

Gillian Merron: The Government continue to support the Falkland Islands' right to develop their hydrocarbons resources as my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister restated in his new year message to the Falkland Islanders.

The development of the sector is primarily a matter for the Falkland Islands government. The new Falkland Islands Constitution makes clear—as did the previous Constitution—that the people of the Falklands have the right to dispose of their natural wealth and resources. The Government have a strategic interest in the way in which progress is made, and will continue to provide guidance and advice to ensure that the Falkland Islands government is able to plan for, and manage, all the challenges and responsibilities that come with a hydrocarbons sector including security, health and safety or socio-economic issues.

Holidays Abroad: Health Services

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his European counterparts on the provision of health care for British citizens who are taken ill whilst on holiday in their countries. [240395]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The Foreign Secretary has had no recent discussions of these issues with his European counterparts.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has received from UK organisations on the provision of health care for British citizens who are taken ill whilst on holiday outside the UK. [240396]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 19 January 2009]: We have received no representations from UK organisations on the provision of health care for British citizens taken ill while on holiday overseas.

Intelligence Services

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what protocols and procedures govern the sharing of intelligence by the United Kingdom Intelligence Services with the intelligence services of allied countries. [240999]

David Miliband: It is the long-standing policy of the Government not to comment on operational intelligence matters.

International Relations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made on his Department's Global Dialogue Strategy, as referred to on page 18 of his Department's Autumn 2008 Performance Report; and which 27 target country posts are involved. [240261]

David Miliband: We have begun a dialogue with a number of states on the need to consider whether our current international organisations are best equipped to confront the challenges of the 21st century. The states we have so far engaged are those that play a key role in the existing international system and will have a view on how we can make it more effective in the future.

Jestina Mukoko

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the whereabouts and safety of the human rights activist Jestina Mukoko, Director of the Zimbabwe Peace Project; and what representations he has made to the Zimbabwean authorities regarding her disappearance. [246291]

Gillian Merron: Jestina Mukoko, director of the Zimbabwe Peace Project, was discovered in Matapi prison in Harare on 23 December 2008 by Zimbabwe lawyers for human rights, despite official denials that her whereabouts were known. She has since been transferred between other prisons and charged, with nine others, with recruiting persons to undergo training in Botswana in order to commit acts of armed insurgency. The accused claim to have been beaten while in custody and to have been denied access to doctors. Jestina Mukoko's lawyers have filed a separate application in the High Court for those in need of treatment to be taken to hospital. No date has been fixed for this hearing.

The Government, along with EU partners, made representation to the Zimbabwe authorities demanding the release of Jestina Mukoko and other abductees. On 6 December 2008, and with our full support, the French EU presidency issued a statement expressing the EU's deep concern and calling on the government of Zimbabwe to ensure her immediate freedom. This was conveyed to the Zimbabwean Ministry of Foreign Affairs in Harare in a démarche by the EU Troika on 8 December 2008 and reaffirmed by the European Council on 12 December 2008. On 19 December 2008 we issued a note verbale to the Zimbabwean ambassador demanding investigations be made as to the location of Ms Mukoko and fellow abductees. We deplore this ongoing abuse of the legal and human rights of political prisoners and urge the restoration of internationally-accepted human rights standards in Zimbabwe.

Kosovo: Politics and Government

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the implementation of the conditions set out in the Ahtisaari plan for Kosovo; and if he will make a statement. [242199]

David Miliband: I refer the right hon. Member to my answer of 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 1782W.

Since that date, further progress has been made through the deployment of a police and rule of law mission which will provide assistance to the Kosovan government in policing, justice and customs.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has (a) received from and (b) made to the government of Serbia on the deployment of the EULEX mission in Kosovo; and if he will make a statement. [242201]

David Miliband: I refer the right hon. Member to my answer of 25 November 2008, Official Report, column 1204W.

President Tadic confirmed to EU High Representative Javier Solana on 28 November that Serbia intends to support EULEX deployment throughout Kosovo. Given this, there has been no need for further high level representations on this issue. We have remained in close contact with the Serbian authorities at official level following this welcome commitment.

The deployment of EULEX throughout Kosovo is an important step forward in establishing a single rule of law for all Kosovo's citizens, and one which moves it closer on its path towards the EU. A vital ingredient in the success of this is the continuing commitment of Kosovo's government to work with EULEX.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the legal basis is of the European Union's EULEX mission in Kosovo; and if he will make a statement. [242204]

David Miliband: The EU Rule of Law Mission (EULEX) deployed across Kosovo, including in Northern Kosovo, on 9 December. This is in response to an invitation from the government of Kosovo for an EU police and rule of law mission in accordance with the UN Special Envoy's Comprehensive Settlement Proposal. In cooperation with United Nations Mission in Kosovo, EULEX will take on part of the role envisaged in UN Security Council resolution 1244 (1999) for the international civilian presence, and it accordingly also draws upon the authority of that resolution.

EULEX is established under Title V of the Treaty on European Union. Its mandate is defined by Joint Action 2008/124/CFSP, approved by the European Council on 4 February 2008.

Kosovo: Serbia

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his Russian counterpart on the future of Serbian citizens whose homes are in Kosovo. [249212]

Caroline Flint: This issue has not been on the agenda of recent ministerial discussions with Russia. However, My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary regularly raised the importance of ensuring protection of minority rights in Kosovo, including of the Kosovo Serb community, with interlocutors in the governments of both Kosovo and Serbia.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to protect the interests of Serbs within Kosovo. [249213]

Caroline Flint: The Kosovo constitution, which entered into force on 15 June 2008, includes provisions to ensure equal rights for all citizens in Kosovo, in line with the Comprehensive Settlement Proposal of UN Special Envoy Martti Ahtisaari. The Kosovo government has also adopted legislation to implement protection of minority rights, including of the Kosovo Serb community. I have engaged closely with the government of Kosovo to encourage and support continued commitment in this area.

Nigeria: Oil

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he has taken to press the Government of Nigeria to clean up oil pollution in the Nigerian Delta region. [247978]

Gillian Merron: The Government continue to raise with the Nigerian authorities our concerns at the ongoing political, security, social and environmental problems in the Niger Delta. A lasting solution will require a systematic approach on security, governance and development. We welcome the fact that President Yar'Adua has made tackling the problems of the Niger Delta a priority, and that he has just established a new Ministry and appointed a dedicated Cabinet Minister to take this work forward. We hope that there will soon be an opportunity for all stakeholder groups in Nigeria to engage in peaceful dialogue on these issues.

Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will place in the Library a copy of a tri-departmental delivery plan on improving the UK's capability to prevent, manage and resolve conflict and build peace, referred to in his Department's Autumn 2008 Performance Report. [246280]

David Miliband: The tri-departmental delivery plan for Public Service Agreement (PSA) 30: Reduce the impact of conflict through enhanced UK and international efforts, referred to in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's Autumn 2008 Performance Report, is a classified document. I am therefore unable to place a copy of this document in the Library.

Rose Kabuye

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the French Government on the case of Rose Kabuye, charged with crimes associated with the Rwandan genocide. [248730]

Gillian Merron: We have not made representations to the French Government regarding the Rose Kabuye case. This is a judicial matter for the French courts, which we hope will be resolved speedily. However, we have continued to encourage France and Rwanda to rebuild their relations and any progress towards a resolution is to be encouraged.

Serbia: Politics and Government

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his Department's policy is on Serbia's proposal for renegotiating the 1999 Kumanovo agreement; and if he will make a statement. [240839]

David Miliband: The North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (NATO) has not received a formal request to amend the 1999 Kumanovo Military Technical Agreement (MTA). No action is currently being taken to revise the MTA.

Somalia: Armed Conflict

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he expects Ethiopian troops to leave Somalia; and what assessment he has made of the likely effects of such withdrawal on Eritrea and other neighbouring states. [249349]

Gillian Merron: Ethiopian troops have now withdrawn from the capital, Mogadishu. According to the African Union Mission to Somalia (AMISOM) the Ethiopian bases have now been occupied by forces supporting the Transitional Federal Government of Somalia and the Alliance for the Re-liberation of Somalia, who agreed in November 2008 to establish a Unity Government under the UN-sponsored Djibouti Process. Although the departure of the Ethiopians could risk further worsening the security situation in South Central Somalia, it also offers an opportunity to find a Somali-led political solution to the conflict and may relieve a point of aggravation between Ethiopia and Eritrea. A more stable Somalia would ultimately have a positive impact on the security and prosperity of the region.

St Helena

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what meetings he has had with officials from St. Helena in the last two years. [240872]

Gillian Merron: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not had any meetings with officials from St. Helena in the last two years.

As the Minister responsible for Overseas Territories, I met Councillor William Drabble during the Overseas Territories Consultative Council in October this year, and the then Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, my hon. Friend the Member for Sheffield, Heeley (Meg Munn), met Councillor Brian Isaacs at the same event in December 2007. Foreign and Commonwealth Office and other Government officials are in regular contact with St. Helena officials.

Sudan: Armed Conflict

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent steps the Government has taken to monitor the situation in Darfur. [244988]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 12 January 2009]: My noble Friend, the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, Lord Malloch-Brown, discussed the situation in Darfur with Djibril Bassolé, African Union/UN Chief Mediator for Darfur, in London on 15 December 2008, and we are in regular contact with his office. Our ambassador in Khartoum and her staff maintain close contact with all main political groups in Darfur, non-governmental organisations working in the region, and the AU/UN peacekeeping mission in Darfur. Officials have visited all three states of Darfur in the last three months for meetings with a variety of humanitarian, civil society and political figures.

Sudan: Politics and Government

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the political situation in (a) the Nuba Mountains, (b) Abyei and (c) northern Sudan; what reports he has received of inter-community tensions; whether he plans to take steps in response to such reports; and if he will make a statement. [244329]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 17 December 2008]: We monitor intercommunity tensions throughout Sudan through the UN Mission in Sudan (UNMIS), the Security Working Group of the Assessment and Evaluation Commission (AEC) and those NGOs we work with on community peace-building and conflict resolution projects.

We monitor southern Kordofan, including the Nuba mountains, and Abyei closely. Our ambassador visited the region in November as chair of the AEC Security Working Group. The group assessed that, although there was no immediate risk of major conflict, tensions in the area remained high and the international community and UNMIS would need to continue to observe the situation closely.

We encouraged the UN to prioritise its resources in high-risk areas including the Nuba mountains and Abyei when the Security Council discussed the Secretary-General's report on Sudan in November.

Trade: Economic Situation

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what effect he anticipates the economic downturn will have on the number of business travellers from the UK to Nordic countries. [245412]

Caroline Flint: The Government does not capture statistics on business visitors to Nordic countries so would not be able to anticipate the specific effect of the economic downturn on this group. Some companies will be tempted to spend more time in the market, trying to boost exports, whilst others will respond to the downturn by cutting back on travel to overseas markets.

World War Two: Anniversaries

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received on commemorating the 70th anniversary of the Kindertransport since July 2008; and if he will make a statement. [247760]

Gillian Merron: We are not aware of any representations to my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary since July 2008 on the 70th anniversary of the Kindertransport. However, we welcome the commemoration of this event and others of this kind to ensure that we never forget the horrors of Nazi occupation and the holocaust. It is also important to celebrate the humanitarian acts that saved lives and helped refugees to start anew.

Zimbabwe: Diamonds

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate has been made of the profits accrued from the illegal diamond trade in Zimbabwe in the latest period for which figures are available; and what proposals the Government has put forward to stop the trade. [246298]

Gillian Merron: There have been reports of an influx of thousands of illegal panners and dealers to the Marange/Chiadzwa diamond field to extract and export diamonds outside the Kimberley Process. There are no accurate data available on the value of such illicit diamond trading, but estimates are that it could run to millions of dollars.

Reports indicate that the military have brutally stamped down on mining activities in the area. Hundreds are reported to have been killed. The use of such extreme force indicates the lengths to which the regime will go to regain control of the diamond fields.

The UK, represented by the EU, is working with Kimberly Process partners and civil society groups to determine the most effective way of resolving the situation.

Zimbabwe: Politics and Government

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his EU counterparts on the political situation in Zimbabwe. [247838]

Gillian Merron: Ministers are in regular contact with EU counterparts to discuss the political and humanitarian situation in Zimbabwe. The issue was on the agenda at the General Affairs and External Relations Council in July, September, November and December during the French presidency and has come up in many other contexts. It is once again on the agenda for the General Affairs and External Relations Council later this month.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent steps the Government has taken to monitor the political situation in Zimbabwe. [248109]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 19 January 2009]: We are following the situation in Zimbabwe very closely, including through our embassy in Harare, as well as our other missions in the region, which continue to monitor the situation. Ministers maintain a keen interest in developments and are regularly briefed on the political and humanitarian situation. We are continuing to work with states in the region and the wider international community to encourage a durable solution.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Building Schools for the Future Programme

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many jobs have been created by the Building Schools for the Future programme in each year since its establishment; and in which sectors those jobs were created. [248736]

Jim Knight: No data are available on the number of jobs created by the Building Schools for the Future (BSF) programme in each year since its establishment. So far, construction jobs are supported by capital allocations and commitments of £7,617 million to Wave 1 to Wave 6 of the BSF programme. This figure includes both capital grant and the capital value of PFI contracts. A tentative estimate of the number of jobs that have been and will be created across the period of construction of Wave 1 to Wave 6 is 95,000.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many One School Pathfinder projects have been set up by his Department under the Building Schools for the Future programme; and how many of those (a) have received formal guidance from Partnership for Schools and (b) have had a Partnership for Schools Director appointed to guide the project. [249639]

Jim Knight: There are 39 One School Pathfinder projects. These are not part of the Building Schools for the Future programme.

The One School Pathfinder programme is a devolved programme that allows local authorities to rebuild one school with the highest level of building need that fits their long term strategic plans for education. The programme allows the local authority an opportunity to set up and test its approach to educational transformation in advance of joining the full Building Schools for the Future programme.

We believe that local authorities are best placed to make local decisions, and so expect authorities to manage single school projects themselves. Partnerships for Schools do not manage the One School Pathfinder programme and has not produced guidance.

Charities

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families to which charities his Department has provided funding of £100,000 or more in each of the last three years; and how much was given to each charity. [242085]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry [holding answer 10 December 2009]: The information requested can only be collated at disproportionate cost.

Child Support Agency: ICT

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how much the most recent Child Support Agency computer update cost; [240288]

(2) what the Child Support Agency caseload was on the most recent date for which figures are available; and what the caseload is expected to be once the update of the Agency's IT systems is fully implemented. [240289]

Kitty Ussher: I have been asked to reply.

The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance system. I have therefore asked the Child Maintenance Commissioner to write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 21 January 2009:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner as the Child Support Agency is now the responsibility of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how much the most recent Child Support Agency computer update cost [240288]; and

You also asked what the Child Support Agency caseload was on the most recent date for which figures are available; and what the caseload is expected to be once the update of the Agency's IT systems is fully implemented. [240289]

The most recent update to the Child Support Agency's computer systems was successfully implemented on 27th October 2008. This update supported the repeal of Section 6 to the Child Support Act 1991, which removed the compulsion from parents with care in receipt of income based benefits to make a claim for child maintenance through the Child Support Agency. The cost of this upgrade to our system is estimated at around £7m however final invoices have yet to be received from our IT suppliers.

At the end of September 2008, the latest date that figures are available, the Agency had a total of 1,339,600 cases registered as live across the CSCS and CS2 computer systems. The Agency also had a total of 44,000 live clerical cases of which a significant number will be included in the cases shown as registered on the computer systems. These are cases which are being progressed clerically but remain registered on the computer systems.

The repeal of Section 6 allows all parents to choose the child maintenance arrangements that best suit their circumstances, whether private arrangements or through the statutory maintenance schemes. The size of the future caseload of the statutory maintenance schemes is therefore dependant on the choices that parents make. Information on the size of the Agency's caseload is published each quarter in the Child Support Agency Quarterly Summary of Statistics and the next edition containing information on the impact of the recent changes is due to be published at the end of January 2009.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Children: Databases

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he expects the ContactPoint database to become operational; and if he will make a statement. [249435]

Beverley Hughes: We announced, in August 2008, that ContactPoint would be deployed from January 2009. We are on track to deploy the first phase from that date and will continue to keep Parliament informed of key developments.

Children: Health

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families on what date he expects the Child Health Strategy to be published. [249009]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The Child Health Strategy is being developed jointly by the Department for Children, Schools and Families and Department of Health and will set out the Government's long-term strategy to support children's and families' health. It will be aimed at the NHS, local government and partnership organisations, and build on the work already being delivered through Every Child Matters and the National Service Framework for Children, Young People and Maternity Services. We hope to be in a position to publish the Child Health Strategy in February.

Children: Protection

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many established child protection officer posts there are in each local authority; and how many child protection officers each local authority employed at the latest date for which figures are available. [248164]

Beverley Hughes: Although the number of child protection officers in each local authority is not collected by the Government, the NHS Information Centre does collect and publish data relating to the number of social care staff directly employed by councils. The number of child protection officers is collected as part of this larger group of social care staff, although child protection officers and senior child protection officers are recorded in different categories (as follows). However, it is not possible to split child protection officers from these groups.

Child protection officers are part of the category 2.35—child protection, family placement, juvenile/youth justice workers. Senior child protection officers are part of the category 2.31—assistant team managers/senior social workers.

Table 1 shows the total headcount of staff for each local authority in England under these two categories as at 30 September 2007.

SSDS001 Return, 2008

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children have been made subject to child protection plans in Doncaster in each of the last five years. [248762]

Beverley Hughes: The numbers of children who have been made subject to child protection plans in Doncaster, in each of the last five years, are shown in table 9a of the following Statistical First Release:

Referrals, Assessments and Children and Young People who are the subject of a Child Protection Plan, England—year ending 31 March 2008 .

Children's Centres: Rotheram

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much has been spent on children's centres in Rotherham Metropolitan borough council area in the last 12 months. [247818]

Beverley Hughes: As part of our commitment to reduce the burden on local authorities, we no longer request quarterly financial returns for Sure Start, Early Years and Childcare Revenue Grant. Consequently, information on total amounts spent on Sure Start Children's Centres during the last 12 months will not be available until after October 2009 when we should receive the 2008-09 audited reports from local authorities.

However, for the 2007-08 financial year, Rotherham metropolitan borough council declared expenditure of £3,884,703 and £2,301,390 on children's centres revenue and capital respectively.

Note:

1. The £3,884,703 for children centres (revenue) declared by Rotherham metropolitan council includes £1,702,534 spent on Sure Start local programmes.

Children's Centres: Warrington

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much funding children's centres in Warrington will receive in 2009-10. [250576]

Beverley Hughes: The funding allocated for children's centres for Warrington local authority in the next financial year (2009/10) are:

Revenue	2,498,955
Capital	568,502

This represents an increase of 29 per cent. for revenue and 100 per cent. for capital on the previous year (2008/09).The allocations quoted are included within the wider Sure Start Early Years and Childcare Grant Main Revenue and Main Capital funding for Warrington of £3.9 million and £1.27 million respectively. Funding in these blocks is not ring fenced and the authority has the freedom to decide how much to spend on each area supported by the grant, in line with local priorities.

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of interventions by the Connexions service involved face-to-face contact in the latest period for which figures are available. [249238]

Education Maintenance Allowance

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many applications for the education maintenance allowance for 2008-09 are being processed. [248602]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the education maintenance allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). The helpline, assessment and payment function for EMA has transferred to Capita from 28 November 2008. Mark Haysom, the LSC's chief executive, will write to the hon. Member for Bognor Regis and Littlehampton with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in the House Libraries.

Every Child Matters Scheme: Finance

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much funding the Government has given to support the Every Child Matters scheme. [249456]

Beverley Hughes: Every Child Matters (ECM) is the Government's approach to the well-being of children and young people from birth to age 19. The Government's aim is for every child, whatever their background or their circumstances, to have the support they need to: be healthy; stay safe; enjoy and achieve; make a positive contribution; and achieve economic well-being. How this work is being taken forward is set out in the Children's Plan.

The work of ECM covers the whole of children's services and as such spans the work of Department for Children, Schools and Families, which has a projected annual budget of £53 billion for 2008-09, £55 billion for 2009-10 and £59 billion for 2010-11.

Extracurricular Activities

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what steps the Government has taken to help local authorities make provision for extended school activities; [249458]

(2) how much funding the Government has given to Coventry City Council's Children and Families Education Service to fund after-school clubs; [249455]

(3) what steps the Government has taken to help local authorities provide after-school activities in schools; [249457]

(4) what steps the Government has taken to support local authorities in providing summer activities for children and young people. [249460]

Beverley Hughes: £1.3 billion is being made available to local authorities between 2008 and 2011 to support the continuing development of extended services.

This significant investment will enable all schools to offer access to a core offer of extended services by 2010 which includes the provision of before and after school activities (combined with child care in primary schools) from 8 am to 6 pm and during school holidays where there is demand. For the current financial year (2008-09), Coventry local authority is receiving funding of £1.47 million to support the development of extended services. For 2009-10, this will increase to more than £2.12 million. Allocations for 2010-11 have not yet been finalised.

In addition to funding, local authorities and their schools are supported by Government appointed delivery partners who advise on developing and delivering sustainable extended services. The lead delivery partner is the Training and Development Agency.

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of eligible pupils passed five or more GCSEs at grade A* to C in Eastbourne constituency in each of the last 10 years. [248827]

Gifted Children: Disadvantaged

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether Teach First advocates are being used to mentor disadvantaged gifted and talented students from state schools in (a) London, (b) the Black Country and (c) Greater Manchester. [247405]

Jim Knight: The Teach First Advocates scheme, part of the City Challenge Gifted and Talented Education Strand (City GATES), is now called the Higher Education Access Programme for Schools (HEAPS). HEAPS has been piloted in London and will continue there. It is being rolled out in Greater Manchester from this academic year (2008/09) and will be extended to the Black Country in academic year 2009/10.

Languages: GCSE

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of pupils who gained a GCSE in (a) German, (b) French and (c) Spanish were educated in (i) the state sector and (ii) the independent sector in the latest year for which figures are available, broken down by individual grade. [243853]

Jim Knight: The table shows the number of pupils at the end of KS4 who achieved a GCSE in French, German and Spanish by grade in 2008.

Languages: Teachers

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many secondary school teachers of (a) Mandarin, (b) Urdu, (c) German, (d) Italian and (e) Japanese (i) there are in maintained secondary schools and (ii) qualified in the last year for which data are available. [249230]

Jim Knight: Information on secondary school teachers and the subjects they are teaching is collected in the Secondary School Curriculum and Staffing Survey (SSCSS). The most recent survey was carried out in February 2007, and achieved a sample of 14,137 teachers in 327 schools. Results were grossed up to provide national estimates of the number of secondary school teachers in England by subject area.

The SSCSS survey estimated the following numbers of teachers delivering at least one period a week of the requested subjects[1]:

Number of secondary school teachers of languages

Subject	Count of teachers
German	6,600
Languages/Other Languages	1,000
Italian	280
Japanese	160
Mandarin/Chinese	50
Urdu	50

[1] The table may include some double counting, as teachers are counted once under subject they are teaching. For example, a teacher who teaches Italian and German will be counted once under each subject. The table gives national estimates.

Note:
Data are rounded to nearest 10

Source:
Secondary School Curriculum and Staffing Survey, 2007

The table includes a category of teachers who teach 'Languages/Other Languages'—we do not know which language(s) these teachers are delivering and it is possible that it may include any of the subjects listed in the table. In addition, care should be taken when interpreting national estimates based upon a sample survey.

The number of teachers gaining QTS in Modern Foreign Languages in 2005-06, the most recent year for which data are available, was 1,260 (excluding those on employment based routes). We do not know which specific languages these teachers qualified in.

National Curriculum Tests

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress has been made in the pilots in schools trialling new ways to assess, report and stimulate progress throughout the key stages; and if he will make a statement. [247232]

Jim Knight: The Making Good Progress pilot is a two year pilot, due to run until July 2009. It is being independently evaluated by PriceWaterhouseCoopers. The interim report on the first year of the pilot was published on the 18 December 2009 and a copy was sent to the chairman of the Select Committee for Children, Schools and Families. A copy will be placed in both Libraries.

A final evaluation report which will make an assessment about the effectiveness of the pilot and its elements over the full two years is due to be published in the autumn of 2009.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what percentage of 11 year olds achieved level 4 or above in (a) English and (b) mathematics in 2008; [247471]

(2) what percentage of 14 year olds achieved level 5 or above in (a) English, (b) mathematics and (c) ICT in 2008. [247472]

Jim Knight: The percentage of pupils achieving level 4 or above in the KS2 English and mathematics tests in 2008 are:

English: 81 per cent.

Mathematics: 78 per cent.

These figures are based on provisional data.

The Department's key stage 2 provisional tests results for 2007-08 were published on 5 August 2008 and can be found at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000804/index.shtml

The percentage of pupils achieving level 5 or above in the KS3 English and mathematics tests in 2008 are:

English: 73 per cent.

Mathematics: 77 per cent.

The Department's key stage 3 provisional tests results for 2007-08 were published on 12 August 2008 and can be found at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000805/index.shtml

Key stage 3 ICT results are based only on teacher assessments. The 2008 key stage 3 teacher assessments data, including ICT, will be published in February 2009.

However, compulsory testing of pupils at key stage 3 has been ended.

My right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State, stated, on 16 December, Official Report, column1002, that he had decided not to proceed with collating and publishing key stage 3 performance tables at the school-level for 2008, as to do so would place a disproportionate burden on secondary schools when we are no longer proceeding with KS3 tests.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families in how many schools less than 50 per cent. of pupils achieved level 5 or above in (a) English, (b) mathematics and (c) science in 2008. [247473]

Jim Knight: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, announced on 14 October 2008, Official Report, column 673, that secondary schools will no longer be required to enter pupils for national tests at the end of key stage 3.

My right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State, stated, on 16 December, Official Report, column 1002, that he had decided not to proceed with collating and publishing the key stage 3 achievement and attainment tables for 2008 as to do so would place a disproportionate burden on secondary schools in the light of the decision to abandon national tests at the end of key stage 3.

However, key stage 3 school-level test data will be available from the Department on request once we have completed processing the data. Currently, we expect this to be in March 2009.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families on what date he expects primary schools to receive the results of the 2009 national tests; and if he will make a statement. [249438]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) is responsible for the administration of the key stage 2 (KS2) national curriculum tests. QCA advise that marked scripts and results will be returned to schools by 7 July 2009.

Schools

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools are in the National Challenge; and if he will make a statement. [249436]

Jim Knight: The final 2008 GCSE results show that the number of schools where fewer than 30 per cent. of pupils attain five higher grade GCSEs including English and Maths has fallen to 440 compared to 631 last year and 783 two years ago.

The 2008 figure represents about 14 per cent. of maintained secondary schools compared with an equivalent proportion of over 50 per cent. in 1997. In addition, the National Challenge is providing support for some schools which are above the 30 per cent. floor target in order to secure or consolidate their performance. Some of these schools were in the National Challenge in 2007, but are continuing to receive support. Others are schools which were identified by their local authority because, although they are not in the National Challenge, they would benefit from the types of support it can offer to help them to raise attainment further.

Schools: Buildings

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what private finance initiative contracts have been entered into relating to school building and refurbishment projects since 2001. [248569]

Jim Knight: To date, 111 PFI deals have been signed since 2001 (19 of these PFI deals have been signed through the Building Schools for Future programme).

Schools: Capital Investment

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families in which local authority areas those school capital projects which will receive brought forward capital expenditure are located. [249114]

Jim Knight: We are awaiting bids and further information from some authorities, and are in correspondence with others. We will publish revised allocations as soon as allocations are confirmed.

Schools: Islam

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his Department's policy is on female Muslim teachers and teaching assistants wearing the full burka while interacting with children in schools. [249515]

Jim Knight: It is for the employer, as part of the terms and conditions of employment agreed with employees, to establish an appropriate dress code relevant to the individual setting taking into account the requirements of the post and equality and diversity matters. The Department for Children Schools and Families has not issued any guidance on this matter.

Schools: Repairs and Maintenance

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether funding for the increased number of school repairs to help create jobs under the Government's plans to create up to 100,000 new jobs through public works will come from the budget of the Building Schools for the Future programme. [248735]

Jim Knight: Generally, repairs are of a revenue nature and are financed by revenue funding.

Local authorities are being offered an advance of capital funding from the financial year 2010-11 to 2009-10 to (a) make capital improvements at an earlier date, and (b) support local jobs. The advances of capital funding will be made from allocations devolved to local authorities, also voluntary aided schools, and in some instances from primary capital funding. A tentative estimate of the number of jobs that will be created in 2009-10 is 10,000. The Building Schools for the Future programme is unaffected.

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number of jobs that will be created by increased funding for school repairs in (a) 2009, (b) 2010 and (c) 2011 under the Government's plans to create up to 100,000 new jobs through public works; and what proportion of those jobs he estimates will go to British workers. [248748]

Jim Knight: Generally, repairs are of a revenue nature and are financed by revenue funding.

Local authorities are being offered an advance of capital funding from the financial year 2010-11 to 2009-10 to (a) make capital improvements at an earlier date (b) support local jobs. The advances will be repaid in 2010-11 by way of a corresponding reduction in funding, and will not affect total allocations in the spending review period 2008-09 to 2010-11. A tentative estimate of the number of jobs that will be created in 2009-10 is 10,000. There are no estimates on the number of jobs that will go to British workers.

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has to increase capital expenditure on a school repairs programme as part of the Government's plans to create up to 100,000 new jobs through public works. [248751]

Jim Knight: Generally, repairs are of a revenue nature and are financed by revenue funding.

Local authorities are being offered an advance of capital funding from the financial year 2010-11 to 2009-10 to (a) make capital improvements at an earlier date (b) support local jobs. The advances will be repaid in 2010-11 by way of a corresponding reduction in funding, and will not affect total allocations in the spending review period 2008-09 to 2010-11. A tentative estimate of the number of jobs that will be created in 2009-10 is 10,000.

Planned capital allocations during this period amount to some £21.9 billion, and include some of the largest school building programmes ever undertaken.

Schools: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effect on a school's staffing levels of designating it as a national challenge school; and if he will make a statement. [248634]

Jim Knight: Over £50 million has been allocated in this academic year to support national challenge schools. This includes funding for extra teachers and teaching assistants, where schools and local authorities have identified the need. Further details will be made available in local authority plans, which will be published by local authorities today.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the impact on school performance of being placed in the national challenge; and if he will make a statement. [248636]

Jim Knight: The final GCSE figures for 2008 show that there has been a substantial fall in the number of schools below the floor target of 30 per cent. 5A*-C including English and Maths, from 631 in 2007 to 440 in 2008. This reduction is a reflection of the hard work of staff and pupils and the success of our policies for raising standards. The National Challenge is accelerating progress by providing each school below the 30 per cent. threshold and those at risk with a National Challenge adviser and a bespoke package of support, targeted at the particular needs of each school.

Social Services: Doncaster

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when Paul Gray's term as Interim Director of Children's Services in Doncaster is due to expire. [248778]

Beverley Hughes: Dr. Paul Gray was recruited by Doncaster Metropolitan borough council in April 2008 to take up the position of Director of Children's Services (DCS) on an interim basis. It is for the council and Paul Gray himself to agree the length of Paul Gray's term as DCS in Doncaster.

Teachers: Part-time Employment

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the reasons are for the time taken to publish official guidance for the implementation of the provisions of the 2008 School Teachers' Pay and Conditions document in relation to the pay and working time of part-time teachers. [248549]

Jim Knight: The School Teachers' Pay and Conditions Document 2008 (STPCD) came into force on 1 September 2008, Section 3 of which comprises statutory guidance including guidance on part-time teacher remuneration and working time. The statutory provisions of the STPCD and the statutory guidance were the subject of statutory consultation.

Additional non statutory guidance on the new part-time arrangements was made available on Teachernet on 8 October. Following the identification of a technical error within the STPCD, this guidance was withdrawn on 4 November 2008 and replaced on 13 January 2009.

Teachers: Pensions

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to the Answer of 1 September 2008, Official Report, column 1638W, on teachers' pensions: resource accounting and budgeting, for what reason the teachers' pension scheme resource accounts were not published between the 2008 summer recess and the end of the 2007-08 session; and when he plans to publish them. [249008]

Jim Knight: My right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office referred to some overpayments made to pensioners of public sector pension schemes, including the Teachers' Pension Scheme in a written ministerial statement on 16 December 2008, Official Report, column 111WS.

The Teachers' Pension Scheme resource accounts contain reference to these overpayments. The decision was taken not to publish the accounts until such time as we had sufficient information to be able to inform the pensioners. Critical to this decision was the need to avoid unnecessary public concern among the vast majority of teacher pensioners who were entirely unaffected, but who would not have known that had a general announcement been made. Letters were sent to affected pensioners on 15 December and the statement, formally notifying Parliament of the overpayments, was made on 16 December .

The accounts will now be laid before 31 January.

Teachers: Primary Education

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many primary school teachers have been employed in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) nationwide in each year since 1997. [249466]

Young People: Crime

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he is taking to discourage young people in deprived areas from becoming associated with criminal activity. [249847]

Beverley Hughes: The Youth Crime Action Plan, published in July 2008, set out the Government's plans for tackling offending by young people. It detailed our plans for a 'triple track' approach of tough enforcement, non-negotiable help and support, and early intervention and prevention. It also states our ambition to reduce the rate of young people entering the criminal justice system by one fifth by 2020. This is supported by close to £100 million over the next three years, in addition to the existing investment in children's and youth services, to support local authorities in making inroads into youth crime locally. This funding is weighted towards areas facing higher levels of crime, antisocial behaviour, fear and deprivation.

The Youth Crime Action Plan builds on the already significant investment committed to programmes aimed at preventing young people's involvement in criminal activity in deprived areas. Key examples of this are the almost £700 million we are spending in 2008-11 to help young people take part in structured positive activities and to improve facilities in deprived areas through the Positive Activities for Young People and Myplace programmes.

In addition, the Youth Justice Board are investing £33 million per year through Youth Offending Teams to deliver targeted prevention programmes such as youth inclusion programmes (YIPs), youth inclusion and support panels (YISPs) and parenting programmes. These are focussed on areas of highest need and many programmes operate in some of the most deprived areas of England and Wales.

Young People: North East

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps the Government is taking to improve understanding of financial matters amongst teenage mothers and young people in the (a) North East, (b) Tees Valley district and (c) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency. [249651]

Beverley Hughes: Young people should have a planned and coherent programme of personal finance education, so that they leave school with the skills and confidence to manage their money effectively. This is being provided through the new 'economic well-being and financial capability' strand of personal, social, health and economic (PSHE) education, which was introduced into all secondary schools in September 2008. In addition, there are opportunities within a number of subjects across the curriculum to learn about financial matters, including citizenship, mathematics, business studies and enterprise education.

We are also funding the My Money Programme, which has an established network of support for local authorities through regional consultants—including the north east—who are building capacity among local authorities to support schools in delivering personal finance education.

Positive parenting education is available to teenage mothers and pregnant teenagers in the north east region as part of local provision to engage them in learning. This would generally include financial education covering issues such as managing money on a budget and avoiding debt.

Youth Justice Unit

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what funding his Department has provided for the Youth Justice Unit in the last 12 months; and what funding it plans to provide for the Unit in the next three years. [247262]

Beverley Hughes: The Department for Children, Schools and Families has provided the Youth Justice Board with £33,961,201.52 for the financial year April 2008 to March 2009.

Final budgets for 2009-10 and 2010-11 will be allocated at the beginning of the financial year.

JUSTICE

Approved Premises

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many bail hostels were opened in Eastbourne in each of the last five years; what the location is of each; and if he will make a statement; [248821]

(2) what criteria are employed in selecting which offenders to place in a bail hostel; what account is taken of potential risk to the public in those criteria; and if he will make a statement; [248822]

(3) what steps his Department takes to consult local authorities on the location of bail hostels; and if he will make a statement; [248823]

(4) what mechanisms are in place for his Department to oversee the operation of Clearsprings; and if he will make a statement; [248824]

(5) what steps his Department is taking to ensure that members of the public are made aware of the identity and location of bail hostels in their area; and if he will make a statement; [248825]

(6) how many bail hostels are planned to be opened in each constituency in the next five years. [248826]

Mr. Hanson: I take all of the hon. Gentleman's questions to relate to the accommodation and support service provided by ClearSprings. The service provides small houses and flats which are the private rented homes of those receiving the service. There are currently none in Eastbourne. If a property becomes available for this service in his constituency I will write and inform him.

Those who are sex offenders or who are charged with sex offences, and those who have committed arson of buildings in the past 10 years, are excluded from the service. Sentenced prisoners who are not eligible for home detention curfew are excluded. In addition, ClearSprings will not accept those whom they deem to pose an unacceptable risk to the public, to other service users or to ClearSprings' staff.

That ClearSprings will accept a person does not guarantee that person's release. The courts decide whether a defendant can be bailed. In making its decision the court will consider the risk of offending and the extent to which the ClearSprings service would mitigate that risk. The court makes its decision in knowledge of any previous convictions and submissions by the prosecution and the defence. The court can impose other conditions, such as electronic monitoring. Decisions to release prisoners on home detention curfew are made by prison governors. All those applying for home detention curfew are risk assessed before release and probation assess the suitability of the proposed address for the individual offender.

ClearSprings is contractually obliged to consult local authorities, probation and the police, inviting them to comment on the suitability of the proposed location of a property to be leased for this service.

The service is managed regionally by NOMS Regional Offender Managers and Directors of Offender Management, who have monthly operational meetings and quarterly review meetings about regional performance. Additionally there are monthly contract meetings between a NOMS director and ClearSprings senior management.

We do not disclose the private addresses of defendants or offenders. Neighbours are provided with details to enable them to contact ClearSprings staff in the event of any concerns about behaviour.

Regional Offender Managers identify the requirement for this service by town, not constituency. A list of towns where properties were expected to be needed was published on 21 January 2008, Official Report, column 1653W. A list of the constituencies with properties currently provided was published on 15 January 2009, Official Report, column 911W.

Cannabis: Misuse

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent representations he has received on the potential use of penalty notices for disorder for cannabis possession offences. [248654]

Maria Eagle: We have received representations from the Association of Chief Police Officers and the Magistrates Association on the potential use of penalty notices for disorder for dealing with cannabis possession offences.

Corporate Manslaughter and Corporate Homicide Act 2007

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many charges have been brought under provisions of the Corporate Manslaughter and Corporate Homicide Act 2007. [248656]

Maria Eagle: The Corporate Manslaughter and Corporate Homicide Act 2007 came into force on 6 April 2008 and only applies to offences committed after that date.

Charging data are not held by the Ministry of Justice. Prosecution data are normally provided in lieu. Court proceedings data for 2008 will not be available until the autumn of 2009.

Courts: Fees and Charges

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average fee charged to local authorities on receipt of an application for care proceedings to the courts is. [249903]

Bridget Prentice: The fee to issue an application under section 31 of the Children Act 1989 is fixed at £2,225. Two additional fees may be charged at a later stage of the process if the stages are required. A full list of fees for family proceedings is set out in the Family Proceedings Fees Order 2008, this order came into force on 1 May 2008.

Debt Collection: Regulation

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps the Government plans to take to improve regulation of bailiffs in the next 12 months. [248317]

Bridget Prentice: As detailed in the response to Consultation—Regulation of Enforcement Agents dated 18 March 2008 the preferred option for regulation of the industry, for those enforcement agents who are not Crown Employees, is by the Security Industry Authority (SIA). The SIA has produced a business case on the way forward, which will be reviewed and final decisions taken in February 2009.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many special advisers were employed in his Department at each pay band on 30 November 2008; and what his Department's total expenditure on special advisers was in 2007-08. [243568]

Mr. Straw: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the Parliamentary Secretary to the Cabinet Office my hon. Friend the Member for West Bromwich, East (Mr. Watson) on 15 January 2009, Official Report, column 870W.

The Government are committed to publishing an annual list detailing the number and costs of special advisers. Information for 2007-08 was published by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 22 July 2008, Official Report, columns 99-102WS.

Departmental Pay

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much has been spent by his Department on staff reward and recognition schemes in each of the last three years. [248707]

Mr. Wills: Reward and recognition schemes within the Ministry of Justice are partly implemented through the payment of 'special' or 'small' bonuses to staff. These bonuses are paid in the form of an 'in year' bonus, paid to recognise exceptional achievements during the performance year. Reward and recognition is also implemented through the organisation of team awards and events, loyalty awards and locally purchased gifts or vouchers.

The figures are presented separately for staff previously on former DCA terms and conditions and by staff in the public sector Prison Service (NOMS). The figures for staff previously on former DCA terms and conditions prior to 2007-08, exclude payments to former magistrates courts staff. They also exclude staff in the Tribunals Service who joined former DCA on 1 April 2006 from other Government Departments about whom information is not available prior to 2007. The figures do not include any 'year-end' bonuses as these are paid separately to the reward and recognition budget.

The senior civil service (SCS) are also not included in these figures as they receive bonuses at 'year-end' and these are not paid through the reward and recognition budget.

Reward and recognition payments (excluding 'year end' bonuses) awarded during the past three years to staff previously on former DCA terms and conditions (not SCS)

Awarded in financial year	Total amount awarded (£)
2005-06	467,753
2006-07	594,169
2007-08	[1] 2,348,520

[1] Reflects increased staff complement through the inclusion of staff on former MCS terms and conditions and those who joined former DCA from the Tribunals Service.

Reward and recognition payments (excluding 'year end' bonuses) awarded during the past three years to staff previously in the public sector Prison Service (NOMS):

Awarded in financial year	Total amount awarded (£)
2005-06	817,302
2006-07	1,681,914
2007-08	2,665,212

The payment of these 'in-year' bonuses, which are non-consolidated and non-pensionable, recognises exceptional commitment and performance by individuals as part of the Department's reward strategy. The other elements of the reward and recognition scheme (such as trips, team events and loyalty awards) also serve this function. Such payments are a cost-effective means of encouraging and rewarding exceptional performance.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans he has to consult the relevant trades unions on (a) his Department's budget and (b) planned reductions in that budget for (i) 2009-10 and (ii) 2010-11. [247071]

Mr. Straw: Planning work has been under way since September 2008 to determine how the Ministry of Justice will live within its spending review settlement, secure £1 billion of savings by 2010-11 and improve performance levels. We have agreed a revised consultative framework with the unions and have held regular meetings with them throughout this period, with the next planned meeting at the corporate level provisionally scheduled for 22 January 2009; we are awaiting confirmation of departmental trade union side availability.

We have now completed the process of due diligence which has enabled us to set budgets for business groups for 2009-10. These have been published in the MOJ Corporate Plan on 19 January, a copy of which together with other performance and efficiency related communications to staff will be shared with the unions ahead of wider circulation. The Corporate Plan will also be available in the Library of the House. Budgetary allocations will be discussed with the unions at our next meeting.

Following issue of the Corporate Plan, business groups will work in earnest to develop their own business plans. These plans will address in detail how the Department will meet the performance and efficiency challenges. Going forward and under the provisions of the Consultative Framework, consultation will take place with the unions at a local level or, when appropriate, at a corporate level.

The recent pre-Budget report contained an announcement of an additional £5 billion value for money saving to be delivered in 2010-11 across the public sector. Decisions have yet to be made as to how those savings will be allocated between Departments but once this is clear we will need to consider the implications for us. This means it will be a little while before we can publish figures for that year. Once they have settled, we will share again details of the allocations with union colleagues.

Legal Aid Scheme

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the merits of reducing the interest rate applied to statutory charges for legal-aided clients. [248682]

Mr. Malik: The Department is currently considering the merits of altering the interest rate applied to the statutory charge.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many times the interest on Legal Services Commission charges has been reviewed and changed to reflect the economic climate in the last five years. [248341]

Mr. Malik: The statutory charge interest rate has been reviewed once in the last five years. The rate was changed in 2005.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people have had a Legal Services Commission legal aid charge postponed and attached to their property after a family proceeding in the last three years. [248342]

Mr. Malik: At 31 March 2008, there were 8,253 open statutory charges that had been postponed and attached to a property after a family proceeding between 2005-06 and 2007-08. Each statutory charge relates to a case rather than a person.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether the Government plan to reduce the interest rate applied to legal aid charges to the Legal Services Commission to reflect Bank of England interest rate reductions. [248345]

Mr. Malik: The Department is currently considering the merits of altering the interest rate applied to the statutory charge.

National Offender Management Service: Manpower

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many (a) former Probation Service and (b) former Prison Service staff by grade are working in the Financial Management Unit under the auspices of the Chief Operating Officer at the National Offender Management Service; [248461]

(2) how many former (a) Probation Service and (b) Prison Service staff of each grade are working in the (i) Office of Information and Technology, (ii) Office of Financial Control and Accountancy, (iii) Office of Shared Services, (iv) Commercial and Competitions Unit, (v) Audit and Corporate Assurance Office, (vi) Strategy and Effectiveness Group, (vii) Programme and Project Services Group and (viii) Procurement Group under the auspices of the Director of Finance and Performance at the National Offender Management Service; [248462]

(3) how many former (a) Probation Service and (b) Prison Service staff of each grade are working in the (i) Estates Planning and Development Group under the auspices of the Director of Capacity Programme and

(ii) Safer Custody and Offender Policy Group under the auspices of the Director of Commissioning and Operational Policy at the National Offender Management Service; [248463]

(4) how many staff of each grade working in National Offender Management Service headquarters previously worked for the (a) Probation Service and (b) Prison Service; [248464]

(5) how many former (a) Probation Service staff and (b) Prison Service staff of each grade are working in the office of the (i) Chief Operating Officer, (ii) Finance and Performance, (iii) Human Resources, (iv) the Capacity Programme, (v) Commissioning and Operating Policy, (vi) the office of the Director of Offender Health, (vii) the office of National Commissioning under the auspices of the Chief Operating Officer and (viii) the office of Performance Delivery under the auspices of the Chief Operating Officer at the National Offender Management Service. [248465]

Mr. Malik: Information on the number of former probation and prison staff that are now employed by each directorate, headquarters group and the National Offender Management Service Headquarters broken down by grade, is contained in the following tables.

The information includes a number of staff (792) who are employed in the units specified who were neither former Prison Service or Probation Service staff. These staff were previously employed in the former NOMS HQ.

The new NOMS HQ was formed from all staff from the National Probation Directorate and Prison Service Headquarters, as well as staff from the former NOMS HQ. Inevitably the majority were former Prison Service staff. This is because the Probation Service headquarters was significantly smaller as many staff are employed in probation boards and trusts. What matters is that all employees in NOMS HQ recognise that they are now working for a new agency and whatever their past employment history they are focused on public protection and reducing re-offending through integrated offender management.

Offences Against Children: Convictions

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people have been convicted of (a) child abuse and (b) murdering a child in each of the last five years. [248763]

Maria Eagle: The number of persons aged 18 and over convicted at all courts for offences relating to child abuse from 2003 to 2007 in England and Wales can be viewed in the following table. As there is no specific offence of "child abuse", statistics are only provided where the victim can be identified as a child from the description of the offence. Child abuse can be covered by a number of offences, including the Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004 S.5 which came into force on 21 March 2005.

These data are on the principal offence basis. The figures given in the table on court proceedings relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the offence selected is the one for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Court proceedings data for 2008 will be available in the autumn of 2009.

Political Parties: Finance

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the de minimis £200 threshold for recording political donations contained in the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000 would be now if it had been indexed to (a) the gross domestic product deflator and (b) average earnings since its introduction. [249081]

Mr. Wills: The Political Parties Elections and Referendums Act 2000 (PPERA) received Royal Assent in the final quarter of 2000. Using that as the starting point and the third quarter of 2008 as the end point for the comparison, £200 in 2000 would now be worth £245 if indexed to the gross domestic product deflator. If indexed to whole economy average earnings, £200 in 2000 would now be worth £269.

As I indicated in a previous answer on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 518W, the Government will consider whether it is appropriate to raise the £200 threshold for recording donations contained in the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000, and we are open to representations on this point.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Government Policy Statements

5. Mr. Harper: To ask the Leader of the House what recent discussions she has had with ministerial colleagues on ensuring that statements on significant developments in Government policy are made to the House. [250015]

Chris Bryant: My right hon. and learned Friend and I have regular discussions with ministerial colleagues when deciding whether an oral statement should be made to announce Government policy. This is done against the general principle set out in the ministerial code that when Parliament is in session, the most important announcements of Government policy should be made in the first instance, in Parliament, and taking into account the importance of the issue and the other business before the House.

The hon. Gentleman may wish to know that there were 88 oral statements last Session, more than one every other sitting day, and already this Session there have been 14 statements in just 18 sitting days.

Programme Motions

6. Mr. Amess: To ask the Leader of the House what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of arrangements for programming of Bills; and if she will make a statement. [250016]

Chris Bryant: My right hon. Friend has made no formal assessment of the operation of programming, but it has a number of advantages, including greater certainty about the timing of debates on specific areas of a bill and the timing of bills.

The introduction of programming is one of a number of recent reforms to the legislative process such as pre-legislative scrutiny and evidence-taking public Bill committees.

Governance of Britain Green Paper

7. Mr. Allen: To ask the Leader of the House what progress has been made on the proposals in the Governance of Britain Green Paper which fall within her area of responsibility. [250017]

Chris Bryant: The House has agreed proposals for regional select and Grand Committees and we expect the committees to be nominated soon. In response to the Modernisation Committee's recommendations on revitalising the Chamber, we have introduced topical questions and debates.

Government Bills

8. Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Leader of the House if she will review the proportion of House of Commons time allocated to Government Bills. [250018]

Chris Bryant: In 2006-07, the last Session for which published figures are available, the House sat for a total of 1,118 hours and 52 minutes. It spent 298 hours and 11 minutes on Government Bills, around a quarter of the total.

This does not include time spent in Committee off the floor of the House, nor on pre-legislative scrutiny of draft Bills for future Sessions.

This compares with around 188 hours on private Members' business, around 17 per cent. of the total sitting time, and 118 hours and 35 minutes on Opposition business, around 10 per cent. of the total.

Members' Expenses

9. Simon Hughes: To ask the Leader of the House what assessment she has made of public opinion on arrangements for the publication of information on hon. Members' expenses. [250019]

Chris Bryant: The Government brought forward proposals to exempt information about payments made to hon. Members from the provisions of the Act in the belief that they would command general support in all parts of the House. When it became clear that they did not, we withdrew the proposals.

We are still proposing a new publication scheme, with more categories of voluntary publication than ever before, and a rigorous system of audit and assurance of hon. Members' allowances.

John Mann: To ask the Leader of the House (1) what discussions she has had with other hon. Members in advance of her decision to propose the exemption of hon. Members from provisions of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 in relation to claims for expenses; [250204]

(2) how many letters she has received from hon. Members requesting exemption or partial exemption from the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act 2000; [250205]

(3) which external bodies she consulted on her proposal to exempt hon. Members from provisions of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 in relation to hon. Members' claims for expenses. [250381]

Chris Bryant: My right hon. Friend has frequent private communications with Members from all parts of the House on a range of issues relating to her ministerial responsibilities.

No external bodies were consulted about the tabling of the draft Freedom of Information (Parliament) Order 2009.

Ministerial Statements

Andrew Selous: To ask the Leader of the House what recent discussions she has had with Ministerial colleagues on the criteria to be used in deciding whether an announcement should be made by means of an Oral Statement. [250014]

Chris Bryant: My right hon. and learned Friend and I have regular discussions with ministerial colleagues when deciding whether an oral statement should be made to announce Government policy. This is done against the general principle set out in the Ministerial Code that when Parliament is in Session, the most important announcements of Government policy should be made in the first instance, in Parliament, and taking into account the importance of the issue and the other business before the House.

Written Questions

Mr. Vara: To ask the Leader of the House on how many occasions in the last 12 months Ministers in her Office used their discretion to rule that a parliamentary question for written answer should be answered because it would be in the public interest to do so, even though to do so would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold of £700. [249146]

Chris Bryant: None. The situation described has not arisen. We aim to publish as much information as possible and would consider providing an answer, despite it exceeding the disproportionate cost threshold, if it was deemed to be in the public interest.

OLYMPICS

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what expert advisers have been commissioned by her Office since its inception; on what topic each was commissioned; and whether the adviser so appointed made a declaration of political activity in each case. [246966]

Tessa Jowell: No expert advisers have been commissioned by my Office.

Departmental Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Minister for the Olympics if she will make it her policy that temporary and permanent employees of her Office employed at the same grade receive the same hourly rate of pay. [248406]

Tessa Jowell: Both temporary and permanent staff are placed on the appropriate pay band for their grade. The same bands apply equally to permanent and temporary staff.

Olympic Games 2012: Construction

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister for the Olympics on what date the relocation of Thornton Fields railway sidings was completed. [249794]

Tessa Jowell: The Olympic Delivery Authority completed construction of the new sidings at Orient Way in May 2008. This was announced on 7 July 2008. The completion of Orient Way allowed work to begin early on the clearance of the Thornton's Field site. That in turn was completed on 31 October 2008.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister for the Olympics on what date the contract to construct the velodrome for the London 2012 Olympics was awarded. [249798]

Tessa Jowell: The Olympic Delivery Authority selected the British company ISG Interior Exterior in May 2008 for the Velodrome contract, with the contract being signed on 10 June 2008. ISG will set up on the Olympic Park site next month and the project remains firmly on track.

CHURCH COMMISSIONERS

Churches: Listed Buildings

Mr. Hunt: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners how many church buildings are listed. [250272]

Sir Stuart Bell: The Church of England is responsible for approximately 13,000 listed buildings. This represents about 45 per cent. of all the grade I listed buildings in England.

TRANSPORT

Aviation: Carbon Emissions

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport over what period the data was collected which underlies Figure (a) 1.1, (b) 1.2 and (c) 1.3 in his Department's publication, UK Air Passenger Demand and carbon dioxide forecasts. [250393]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The period over which the data underlying Figures 1.1, 1.2 and 1.3 of 'UK Air Passenger Demand and CO_2 Forecasts 2009' were collected is set out in Chapter 2 of the same report, with further detail in Annexes A-D.

Box 2.2 (p. 16) explains that the forecast shown in Figure 1.1 is based on data from the period 1984-2004. Page 26 explains that the airport choice model used in producing the forecast shown in Figures 1.2 and 1.3 is based on cross-sectional data for 2005.

Figure 1.3 illustrates the forecasting model's success in predicting movements in passenger demand since 2005.

Dartford-Thurrock Crossing: Tolls

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much revenue has been generated by tolls on the Dartford-Thurrock crossing in each year since its opening. [249979]

Paul Clark: For the period of the Extension Agreement—between 1 April 2002 and 31 March 2003—the Highways Agency records show annual revenue of £68,363,698.02. Records of annual revenues before this date are not held centrally by the Department for Transport.

Details of the annual total revenues from the Dartford Crossing from 2003-04 onwards are placed in the House Library (Dartford-Thurrock Crossing Charging Scheme—Annual Accounts).

Departmental Catering

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which (a) food and (b) drinks suppliers have been used by his Department in each of the last three years; and how much his Department paid to each such supplier in each of those years. [248381]

Mr. Hoon: The requested information, where recorded, has been placed in the Library of the House.

Driver Information Systems: Licensing

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many licences for dynamic route guidance systems his Department has issued in each year since 1997. [249321]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The following table shows the number of licences issued since 1997.

	Number of licences
1997	1
1998	0
1999	0
2000	1
2001	0
2002	1
2003	1
2004	2

Driving Under Influence

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent steps the Government has taken to reduce the incidence of drink driving. [249481]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I would refer my hon. Friend to section 3 of the Department for Transport's Road Safety Compliance Consultation document, published on 20 November 2008, which sets out the Government's latest proposal to deal with drink driving. A copy of the document is in the Library of the House and it can also be found on the Department's website.

Driving: Licensing

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to review the system of self-certification for the renewal of driving licences for those over 70 years of age. [250371]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Driving and Vehicle Licensing Agency, in conjunction with the Department for Transport, has been reviewing the system in place in Great Britain for ensuring that all drivers are fit to drive.

The review on health and driver licensing has been used to inform a public consultation.

I can confirm that the Department for Transport is currently preparing for a public consultation.

Railways: Bus Services

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for what reason his Department has decided to run a rail replacement bus service on Tuesday mornings from Ealing Broadway station to Wandsworth Road station; for what reason this service is not advertised; how long he intends that this replacement bus service should operate; what the estimated monthly cost of this service to the public purse is; and how much of this cost has so far been recouped in terms of passenger revenue. [249217]

Paul Clark [holding answer 19 January 2009]: Mindful of the requirements of relevant legislation, the Department for Transport is currently funding a rail replacement bus service between Ealing Broadway station and Wandsworth Road station. This service, which is a temporary measure until the Department can arrange a replacement rail service in this area, has been operating since 14 December 2008 at a four-weekly cost of £1,880 to the Department for Transport.

The Department for Transport does not recoup any revenue from this service. As a rail replacement bus service, a rail ticket has to be purchased for travel on the bus, therefore revenue will be directed to the appropriate train operator for that area.

The Department for Transport intended the bus service to be advertised from 14 December 2008. Following a contractual delay, the bus service has been advertised, from this week, at the stations it is contracted to call at which are Ealing Broadway, Kensington Olympia and Wandsworth Road.

Road Traffic Offences: Elderly

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what information his Department holds on the number of prosecutions for road traffic offences that are not proceeded with annually on the grounds that the driver has subsequently surrendered his licence on grounds of old age. [250369]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) does not hold this information.

Road Traffic Offences: Fixed Penalties

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of appeals against fixed penalty notices to traffic adjudicators were upheld in each of the last five years in each region of England; and if he will make a statement. [247900]

Paul Clark: This information is not collected centrally by the Government, but the available figures for the number of appeals made against the issuing of Penalty Charge Notices and the number of appeals upheld for each local authority are set out in the annual reports of the traffic adjudicators: the Parking and Traffic Appeals Service (PATAS) for London; and the Traffic Penalty Tribunal (TPT) for outside London.

The reports of the PATAS are available at:

www.parkingandtrafficappeals.gov.uk

The reports of the TPT are available at:

www.trafficpenaltytribunal.gov.uk

Roads: Accidents

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what information his Department holds on the number of road traffic accidents which are recorded annually as being the fault of drivers aged over (a) 70 years and (b) 80 years. [250370]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested is not held centrally.

The Department for Transport publishes the number of drivers of different age groups involved in reported personal injury road accidents in table 38a of the publication "Road Casualties Great Britain - annual report 2007". Fault is not assigned to participants in these collisions. However, information on the contributory factors is collected and published in article 4 of the same report. Table 4h of this article provides the most frequently recorded contributory factors for car drivers by age group.

Copies of the report have been deposited in the Libraries of the House. The report is also published on the Department for Transport web site at the following link:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/statistics/datatablespublications/accidents/casualtiesgbar/roadcasualtiesgreatbritain20071.

Shipping: Lost Property

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many shipping containers have been lost overboard in UK waters in each year since 2006. [249471]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA) does not have a separate database to record the loss of containers. The MCA operates databases to record incidents, including recording where containers are lost overboard.

The MCA relies on ships reporting loss of containers in accordance with national and European legislation.

To give a specific number would require a manual interrogation of the incident recording system and that would incur disproportionate costs.

Speed Limits: Schools

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his policy is on encouraging local authorities to apply 20 mph zones around schools; and if he will make a statement. [248622]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport encourages local authorities to introduce 20 mph zones in areas where vulnerable road users are present, including the roads around school premises.

This view is reflected in the Department for Transport guidance to local authorities on setting local speed limits, published in August 2006. In addition, Traffic Advisory Leaflet 9/99 provides best practice guidelines on setting 20 mph speed limits and 20 mph zones. Copies of the leaflet are in the Library of the House.

Vehicle Certification Agency

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend East of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 199W, on departmental official residences, for what purposes Vehicle Certification Agency staff are based in (a) the United States and (b) Japan. [250046]

Mr. Hoon: Vehicle Certification Agency (VCA) staff are based in the United States and Japan to carry out their operational duties as a United Kingdom (UK) type approval (TA) authority to conduct and witness tests to European Community (EC) and United Nations Economic Commission for Europe (UNECE) directives and regulations on vehicles coming into Europe from those countries.

VCA does not have any official residences anywhere.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Advertising: Economic Situation

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps his Department is taking to support the advertising industry; and if he will make a statement. [249810]

Andy Burnham: The Government are committed to supporting the creative industries, including the advertising industry. Last year this Department launched Creative Britain, a strategy setting out in 26 commitments the Government's determination to move the creative industries from the margins to the mainstream of the UK economy. The commitments cover education and training, research and innovation and intellectual property.

The Government also provide targeted support to help companies start, survive and succeed. This is available to all businesses, including those in the advertising sector, via Business Link www.businesslink.gov.uk.

On 14 January the Government launched a support package which consists of loan guarantees and a new Enterprise Fund aimed at helping companies struggling to access finance for working capital and investment.

Arts: Local Government Finance

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much local authority funding was provided for the arts in England in each year since 1980. [246419]

Barbara Follett: The Department for Communities and Local Government collects data on revenue and capital expenditure by local authorities. Expenditure on the arts by local authorities is only available on a consistent basis since 2004-05. The net current expenditure for 'arts development and support' is set out in the following table.

	Net current expenditure (£ million)
2004-05	121
2005-06	118
2006-07	118
2007-08	120

Arts: Schools

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport by what date he expects the baseline data for the Find Your Talent pilots to be established. [249225]

Barbara Follett: The baseline position of the Find Your Talent pathfinder areas is currently being established. An independent evaluation team of SQW Consulting and Ipsos MORI will measure baseline participation in a representative sample of young people in the 10 areas and the results of this survey will be available in May 2009.

Charities

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport to which (a) charities and (b) voluntary organisations his Department has provided funding in the last five years; and how much funding was provided to each. [247362]

Barbara Follett: The Department provides funding to charities and voluntary organisations through grant in aid, specific grants, strategic commissioning and the procurement of services, but it does not record the status of all bodies that it makes payments to, and the information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The Department does record the charitable status of those bodies that it provides substantial financial support to, and I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport to the hon. Member for Winchester (Mr. Oaten) on 15 December 2008, Official Report, columns 353-54W, which includes a table of payments to charities where the charity received more than £100,000 in any one year.

Churches: Conservation

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much of the Heritage Lottery Fund has been allocated to preserving historic churches in each of the last five years. [247833]

Barbara Follett: The Heritage Lottery Fund provides funding to places of worship, including historic churches, through its Repair Grants for Places of Worship scheme. The allocation for this scheme over the last five years is set out in the following table. Historic churches have also been eligible to apply to the fund's other grants programmes if they met the criteria, and provided that any application for outstanding repair works could not be tackled via the Places of Worship scheme.

Financial year	Heritage Lottery Fund Repair Grants for Places of Worship budget (£)
2004-05	20,000,000
2005-06	20,000,000
2006-07	20,000,000
2007-08	20,000,000
2008-09	18,000,000

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent assessment he has made of the long-term sustainability of historic churches; and if he will make a statement. [247834]

Barbara Follett: The Secretary of State relies on the advice of English Heritage in relation to the condition and sustainability of historic buildings. In 2005, English Heritage and the Council for the Care of Churches commissioned a Fabric Needs Survey, which aimed to establish the cost of all major repairs needed to bring all listed places of worship in England into good repair. The survey concluded, based on a sample of buildings, that £925 million over five years was necessary.

As part of its Heritage at Risk programme, English Heritage is undertaking an assessment of the condition and level of use of listed places of worship, the results of which are due to be published in 2010. This research will to give a national perspective on the physical condition of these buildings and inform DCMS, English Heritage and all partners across the sector, regarding the current and future prospects for sustainability.

Churches: Grants

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the effect of the reduction of the Heritage Lottery Fund's available funds on grants to church buildings; and if he will make a statement. [247835]

Barbara Follett: The Heritage Lottery Fund (HLF) has always recognised that places of worship are a very special part of the United Kingdom's heritage, and it therefore continues to ring-fence funds for them. Although the Fund's grant budgets will reduce from 2009-13, a higher proportion of its overall budget has been set aside in recognition of the role these buildings play in community life.

The Heritage Lottery Fund and English Heritage remain committed to providing grants to historic places of worship. The joint Heritage Lottery Fund and English Heritage funding scheme has offered over £133 million for the repair of historic places of worship since it began in 2002. In 2009, £25 million will be offered to listed places of worship: £17.5 million will go to Grade I and II* buildings, and £7.5 million to Grade II buildings. £15 million of this is provided by the HLF, and £10 million by EH. Both bodies anticipate continuing this grant scheme at its current level until 2010-11.

Churches: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport where those offices established to advise on the maintenance and repair of church buildings will be located. [248228]

Barbara Follett: On 12 December 2008, English Heritage launched a scheme to provide funding for Support Officers for historic places of worship. To date, six Support Officer posts have been established in Brighton and Hove, Exeter, Coventry, Carlisle, the North-West region and Worcester. Posts are established in response to applications from dioceses; denominations; faith groups and other organisations or partnerships which have a role in the care of historic places of worship anywhere in England. The response to the scheme has been very positive and all nine English Heritage regions are now in discussion with potential partners. A wide geographical, denominational and multi-faith coverage is expected.

The Churches Conservation Trust is launching its Community Regeneration Task Force to work with the congregations of vulnerable church buildings where the building might end up vested in the Trust were it to become redundant.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps (a) his Department and (b) English Heritage are taking to assist church maintenance pilot projects in the dioceses of (a) Gloucester and (b) London. [248229]

Barbara Follett: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport provides grant-in-aid to English Heritage, the Government's statutory adviser on all matters concerning the conservation of England's historic environment.

The schemes in the Church of England dioceses of Gloucester and London are two of three pilot maintenance projects, which English Heritage has supported with funds and advice, the third being in the Church of England diocese of St. Edmundsbury and Ipswich. A model scheme will be developed from the lessons learnt from the pilot projects, which other dioceses and organisations will be encouraged to adopt, with funding from English Heritage for the set-up costs where possible.

Crown Lands and Estates

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the cost to the public purse of each royal property is in 2008-09. [247976]

Barbara Follett: The royal household receives £15 million a year from my Department to meet the costs of property maintenance; utilities; telephones and related services at the occupied royal palaces in England. As given in the Royal Public Finances Annual Reports 2007-08, copies of which are in the Libraries of the House (http://www.royal.gov.uk/output/page3954.asp), the maintenance costs of the occupied royal palaces for the year to 31 March 2008 (the most recent year for which there are figures) were:

	Maintenance costs (£ million)
Buckingham Palace	5.9
Buckingham Palace Mews and Gardens	2.1
St. James's Palace	1.5
Clarence House and Marlborough House Mews	0.8
Kensington Palace	0.7
Hampton Court Mews and Paddocks	0.3
Windsor Castle	3.7
Windsor Castle Royal Mews	0.7
Windsor Home and Great Parks	0.7

Most of these costs were met from the grant in aid, the remainder from income from a facilities management charge paid by the Royal Collection Trust, £1.8 million in 2007-08.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much has been spent on (a) departmental Christmas parties and (b) staff entertainment in the last three years. [243743]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The annual DCMS staff Christmas party is self-funded by staff at no cost to the public purse. No expenditure has been incurred on staff entertainment in the last three years. All expenditure on official entertainment is made in accordance with published departmental guidance on gifts and hospitality, based on principles set out in Managing Public Money and the Treasury handbook on Regularity and Propriety.

Departmental Public Appointments

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what progress has been made in appointing a research consortium to review his Department's participation research; when he expects the consortium to be appointed; and what time frame he plans to set for its deliberation; [249426]

(2) what progress has been made in appointing a research consortium to review his Department's participation research; when he expects the consortium to have been appointed; and what time frame will be set for its deliberation. [249796]

Barbara Follett: We recently announced that the university of London's EPPI-centre and Matrix Knowledge Group have been appointed to conduct the first phase of the research. This phase is due to last one year. For further details on the new 'Culture and Sport Evidence Programme' (CASE, formerly referred to as the 'joint research programme') please see the new webpage at:

www.culture.gov.uk/case

Departmental Public Bodies

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress has been made towards the target of reducing by 20 per cent. the number of unnecessary transactions required to be carried out by his Department's public bodies; if he will make it his policy to eliminate all unnecessary transactions; and if he will make a statement. [248919]

Barbara Follett: During the course of 2008, DCMS delivered a 9 per cent. reduction in the number of reports required of public bodies. We are pursuing further reductions with the aim of meeting the 20 per cent. target during 2009. Our oversight of each body is linked to a thorough risk assessment, so that a report should not be requested if the degree of risk does not justify it.

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what percentage of people responding to his Department's Taking Part survey said that they had participated in an active sport during the preceding four weeks in each year since 2005. [249356]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The 'Taking Part' survey is a continuous household survey providing national data on participation in culture, leisure and sport by adults aged 16 and over.

The following table shows the percentage of adults who participated in an active sport in the four weeks prior to interview.

Participation in active sport in past four weeks

Percentage

	2005-06		2006-07		2007-08
	%	+/-	%	+/-	%	+/-
Adults (16 and over)	53.7	0.8	53.4	0.9	53.6	0.8

Horserace Totalisator Board: Recruitment

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many applications were received by his Department for posts of (a) members of the Independent Strategy Board of the Gambling Commission and (b) non-executive directors of the Tote; how many positions are available for each; and when he expects to make the appointments. [247354]

Mr. Sutcliffe: For the Independent Strategy Board of the Gambling Commission, nine vacancies were advertised and 50 applications were received. Appointments are expected to be made in time for the first board meeting on 4 March 2009.

For the non-executive directors of the Horserace Totalisator Board, two vacancies were advertised and 72 applications were received. I anticipate making these appointments by February 2009.

Listed Buildings: Liverpool

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what grants his Department and English Heritage have awarded for the maintenance of grade I listed buildings in Liverpool in the last two years; how much was awarded in each case; and if he will make a statement. [248325]

Barbara Follett: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport provides no direct Exchequer funding for the maintenance of listed buildings. Government funding is provided as grant in aid to English Heritage.

English Heritage advises that they have offered the following grants to grade I listed buildings in Liverpool in the last two years. English Heritage's grant schemes are primarily for major urgent structural repair projects rather than ongoing maintenance.

Grade I building	Grant type	Date grant offered	Amount of grant offered (£)
St. John the Baptist Church, Tuebrook	Repair Grant for Places of Worship	19 December 2008	112,000
Cathedral Church of Christ in Liverpool	Grants for Cathedrals	19 December 2008	50,000
Princes Road Synagogue	Repair Grant for Places of Worship	21 December 2007	112,000
St. Georges Church, Everton	Repair Grant for Places of Worship	28 November 2007	73,000

National Lottery: Voluntary Organisations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps he plans to take to assist voluntary organisations in applying for Heritage Lottery Fund grants. [248230]

Barbara Follett: This is a matter within the operational responsibility of the Heritage Lottery Fund. The fund has advised that it is committed to providing efficient and simple ways of funding voluntary organisations throughout the UK, and it produces a range of guidance, including some designed to help groups carrying out heritage projects for the first time.

The Government have encouraged all lottery distributors, including the Heritage

Lottery Fund, to ensure that the application process is as simple as possible. The lottery distributors have set up a website http://www.lotteryfunding.org.uk which has proved very successful in letting potential applicants know about the relevant lottery programmes, including those run by the Heritage Lottery Fund.

Sports: Clubs

Mr. Breed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport with reference to the answer of 10 November 2008, Official Report, columns 484-5, on the Subs for Clubs campaign, what progress has been made in talks between his Department and HM Treasury. [258344]

Mr. Sutcliffe: DCMS officials have discussed the Central Council of Physical Recreation's (CCPRs) 'Subs for Clubs' proposal to allow community amateur sports clubs (CASC) to claim gift aid on junior subscriptions with HMT.

A decision was made against implementing this proposal at the current time. DCMS officials are in discussion with CCPR to identify ways of encouraging more clubs to register for the CASC scheme and to maximize the use of the existing benefits that CASCs enjoy.

To date the CASC scheme has now registered over 5,000 clubs receiving rate relief and other benefits. As of December 2009 Deloittes estimate that it has saved grassroots sports more than £48 million since its inception. This money has gone back into sport and has enabled clubs to spend it on everything from facilities to kit. Additionally, all community sports clubs will benefit over the next year from the reduction in VAT from 17.5 per cent. to 15 per cent. which will help to increase the funds available to clubs, and moreover provide more money in the pockets of potential donors.

Sports: EC Action

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on what dates since March 2008 (a) he and (b) the Sports Minister have met with their European counterparts to discuss the European White Paper on sport. [258271]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I have met with my European counterparts to discuss the White Paper at two EU Informal Sports Ministers' meetings on 16-17 March 2008 and 27-28 November 2008.

The Secretary of State has had no such discussions.

Sports: North East

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much public money was spent per capita on sporting infrastructure in (a) the north-east and (b) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency in each of the last five years. [245015]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Sport England have provided the following figures, based on Exchequer data held for the last five financial years from 2003-04 to the second quarter of 2008-09:

(a) Capital Exchequer awards to the north-east

Financial Year	£ Per capita based on 2001 census
2003-04	0.33
2004-05	0.46
2005-06	0.52
2006-07	0.69
2007-08	0.76
2008-09	0.18
Total	2.94

(b) Capital Exchequer awards to Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland

Financial Year	£ Per capita based on 2001 census
2003-04	0.56
2004-05	0.00
2005-06	0.00
2006-07	0.26
2007-08	0.00
2008-09	0.59
Total	2.01

The constituency and region will also have benefited from lottery funding for sporting infrastructure during this period.

Sports: Public Participation

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what percentage of (a) all adults and (b) each priority group participated in active sport in the last four weeks. [245967]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The 'Taking Part' survey is a continuous household survey providing national data on participation in culture, leisure and sport by adults aged 16 and over.

The following table shows the percentage of all adults, and those from each priority group, who participated in an active sport in the four weeks prior to interview.

Participation in active sport in past four weeks

St George's Day

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many items of correspondence he has received on (a) St. George's Day and (b) St. Patrick's Day in the last 12 months. [247741]

Barbara Follett: As at 13 January we have identified 14 items of correspondence from the last 12 months which have St. George's Day as the main subject and one item of correspondence that has St. Patrick's Day as the main subject.

It is possible that further correspondence could mention St. George's Day or St. Patrick's Day as secondary issues, but this correspondence could be identified only at disproportionate cost.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans his Department has to promote St George's Day in 2009. [247743]

Barbara Follett: On 23 April, the Department for Culture, Media and Sport will fly the St. George's Flag alongside the Union Flag to celebrate St. George's Day.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much public funding is available from his Department to groups wishing to celebrate St George's Day. [247744]

Barbara Follett: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport has no public funding available to groups wishing to celebrate St. George's Day.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether his Department has had discussions with tourism agencies about marking St. George's Day in 2009. [248360]

Barbara Follett: DCMS has had no specific discussions with tourism agencies about marking St. George's Day in 2009. However VisitEngland and some individual regions will have celebrations to mark St. George's Day in 2009. For example VisitEngland will highlight St. Georges Day events on enjoyengland.com as well as hosting Enjoy England Awards for Excellence on this date.

Taking Part Survey

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the average standard deviation was of the datasets of his Department's Taking Part survey in each year since 2005. [247334]

Barbara Follett: The term 'standard deviation' refers to the variance, or spread, of data around the mean (standard deviation is the square root of the variance). Standard deviations can be calculated for individual estimates from Taking Part, rather than the overall dataset.

Confidence intervals are derived from the variance and the sample design, and are published for all Taking Part estimates. These indicate the range in which true percentages could fall.

To see an example, please refer to the latest report at:

http://www.culture.gov.uk/reference_library/publications/5653.aspx

Taxis

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department spent on taxis in each of the last three years. [247585]

Barbara Follett: All official travel is undertaken in accordance with rules set out in the Department's staff guide under Travel and Subsistence and is consistent with the Civil Service Management Code.

The expenditure on taxis by the Department in each year since 2005 is set out in the following table. These figures represent expenditure on taxis and black cabs. In addition, some expenditure on black cabs and taxis is included in general travel and subsistence account and cannot be separately identified except at disproportionate cost.

	Amount (£)
2007-08	36,359
2006-07	38,421
2005-06	21,759

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Biofuels: Wood

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the accuracy of data on the availability and use of wood and its contribution to the sustainability of future biomass energy projects. [249125]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Estimates of the availability and use of wood have been published by the Forestry Commission over a number of years. DEFRA has not undertaken an assessment of this information. The Forestry Commission publishes on its website the details of the methodologies used to compile the figures so that those using the information can make their own assessment of its accuracy.

Carbon Emissions: Rural Areas

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what account his Department takes of the capacity of rural areas to absorb carbon dioxide in formulating its climate change policy. [249987]

Huw Irranca-Davies: My Department is undertaking further work to understand the realistic potential of the natural environment to act as a sink or store of carbon dioxide and also the greenhouse gas emissions resulting from management of the land. This takes account of the role of forests, soils, land-use and agriculture. My Department also supports a Rural Climate Change Forum to consider the ways in which rural areas can help mitigate and adapt to climate change. We will take all of this information into account as part of the Government's approach to meeting their commitments under the Climate Change Act.

Common Fisheries Policy

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what his estimate is of the number of boats in the UK that would require a licence or other form of authorisation to facilitate recreational fisheries under Article 47 of the Council Regulation establishing a community control system for ensuring compliance with the rules of the Common Fisheries Policy; [249749]

(2) what the estimated cost is of implementing and enforcing Article 47 of the Council Regulation establishing a community control system for ensuring compliance with the rules of the Common Fisheries Policy in the UK; [249750]

(3) what assessment he has made of the likely effects of the provisions of Article 47 of the Council Regulation establishing a community control system for ensuring compliance with the rules of the Common Fisheries Policy on the marine environment; and if he will make a statement; [249752]

(4) what his estimate is of the number of people who will require a licence under the terms of Article 47 of the Council Regulation establishing a community control system for ensuring compliance with the rules of the Common Fisheries Policy; [249753]

(5) what assessment he has made of the likely effects of the proposals under Article 47 of the Council Regulation establishing a community control system for ensuring compliance with the rules of the Common Fisheries Policy on tourism; and if he will make a statement; [249754]

(6) what assessment he has made of the effects of the proposals in Article 47 of the Council Regulation establishing a community control system for ensuring compliance with the rules of the Common Fisheries Policy on compliance with the rules of the Common Fisheries Policy; and if he will make a statement; [249757]

(7) what his assessment is of the likely effects on (a) the economy, (b) jobs and (c) the number of recreational sea anglers of the provisions of Article 47 of the Council Regulation establishing a Community control system for ensuring compliance with the rules of the Common Fisheries Policy; and if he will make a statement. [249759]

Huw Irranca-Davies: In England there are some 400 charter angling vessels that would require an authorisation under Article 47 of the proposal as currently drafted, plus an as yet unquantified number of privately owned vessels. As part of the process of negotiating this proposal we shall be seeking clarification from the Commission on a number of issues relating to Article 47. Until we have that clarification it is difficult accurately to assess its potential impact in the areas referred to in these questions. We shall be seeking stakeholders views on these points and considering them in more detail in the impact assessment that my officials are drawing up and which we shall publish as part of the formal consultation procedure.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) when (a) he and (b) his officials were consulted on the terms of Article 47 of the Council Regulation establishing a community control system for ensuring compliance with the rules of the Common Fisheries Policy; and if he will make a statement; [249755]

(2) when he expects Article 47 of the Council Regulation establishing a Community control system for ensuring compliance with the rules of the Common Fisheries Policy to be (a) (i) discussed in and (ii) approved by the Council of Ministers and (b) implemented and transposed; and if he will make a statement. [249758]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Neither I nor my officials were consulted before the Commission published the current proposal on 17 November. The proposal is scheduled for initial discussion by Ministers at the June Fisheries Council although I would not expect it to be approved then. The proposal has an envisaged implementation date of 1 January 2010, subject to negotiation.

Construction: Thames Gateway

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the dredging of the Thames in Castle Point constituency as part of the Thames Gateway port development will commence. [250069]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Consents to undertake dredging to develop and subsequently maintain navigational areas within the London Gateway Port are given by the London Gateway Port Harbour Empowerment Order 2008 and issued by the Department for Transport. They came into force on 16 May 2008.

The timing of the proposed dredging is a commercial decision for the Harbour Authority, London Gateway Port Ltd.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of contractors and suppliers to (a) his Department and (b) its agencies has reported compliance with the Government's security standards following publication of the report, Data Handling Procedures in Government, and the accompanying document, Cross-departmental Actions: Mandatory Minimum Action, on 25 June 2008. [245322]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The information is not available in the form requested. Since 1 July 2008 the DEFRA delivery network has been using the standard OGC security clauses for all new contracts and has also checked the compliance of its strategic IT partner with all the mandatory requirements of the Data Handling Review. In addition we have asked all information asset owners, responsible for assets containing personal protected information across the DEFRA network, to seek assurances from any other contractors or suppliers handling information on their behalf. Assurances have been received from all bar one of the owners in core DEFRA, and in respect of all executive agencies, except the Rural Payments Agency. In both cases the process of confirming assurances is under way but not yet complete.

Departmental Public Consultation

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on which occasions his Department has convened a citizens' jury or randomly drawn panel of people to aid the Department's policy making since 2000; whether the participants were paid in each case; and if he will make a statement. [243038]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA was formed in June 2001. However, inquires with policy leads have revealed the following examples of where DEFRA has convened a Citizen's Jury since 2001:

In December 2005-January 2006, the Air and Environment Quality Division (now Atmosphere Quality and Industrial Pollution programme) ran a Citizen's Jury to explore public views on air quality in order to inform the development of future policies and strategies. Members of the jury were paid to participate in the event.

In November 2007, a DEFRA-funded research project (WU0112) employed a Citizen's Jury approach to explore people's understanding of risk associated with the microbial pollution of water courses; public attitudes to culpability given the current scientific and policy evidence base, particularly as this related to the role of livestock farming; where public priorities were in terms of appropriate level and types of policy intervention and mitigation; and views regarding responsibilities for taking action to reduce microbial risks. Members of the jury were paid to participate in the event.

When used carefully and appropriately, Citizens' Juries can be a helpful way of eliciting public preferences to factor into policy decision making.

Departmental Telephone Services

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many telephone numbers for which callers are charged at the rate applicable to 0845 numbers are used by (a) his Department and (b) its executive agencies for public access to services. [248980]

Huw Irranca-Davies: From information held centrally, there are 38 telephone numbers for which callers are charged at the rate(s) applicable to 0845 numbers—four for core-DEFRA, 14 for DEFRA's executive agencies and 20 for non-departmental public bodies. None of the numbers are revenue sharing.

Members of the public using these numbers are charged by their telephone providers at their agreed rates. On 8 January 2009, BT announced that its consumer customers will no longer pay these charges from 16 January 2009. As from this date 0845 numbers will be included in their calls packages. Those not on a calls package and business customers will continue to pay the applicable or agreed 0845 rates.

Fishing Catches

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the (a) monetary value and (b) weight of fish landed in the UK for domestic consumption was in the last 12 months, broken down by country of registration of fishing vessel. [248985]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The live weight and value of fish landed into the UK for domestic consumption in 2007 are shown in the following table:

Vessel nationality	Live weight (Thousand tonnes)	Value (£ million)
UK	439.8	535.0
Faroes	22.1	14.0
Norway	21.6	6.1
Irish Republic	17.6	10.9
France	17.0	19.0
Denmark	12.4	5.4
Russia	6.4	7.1
Belgium	4.6	12.7
Spain	3.5	5.5
Netherlands	1.1	2.0
Poland	1.0	0.6
Germany	1.0	1.0
Sweden	0.9	0.3
Belize	0.7	1.0
Total	549.6	620.8

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the (a) tonnage and (b) monetary value was of landings at UK ports by EU vessels in 2008 of fish caught in (i) the North Sea and (ii) UK home territorial waters. [249046]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Information on the tonnage of fish landings by EU vessels from the North sea as a whole for 2006, the latest year for which such information is available, is provided in the following table.

Landings by EU member states of fish caught in the North sea (ICES area IV):

Member state	Landings in 2006 (tonnes live weight)
Belgium	9,728
Denmark	593,375
Germany	83,758
Ireland	7,280
France	50,653
Lithuania	6,989
Netherlands	152,185
Poland	2,093
Portugal	1,060
Sweden	48,491
United Kingdom	250,796
EU total	1,206,406

Source:
Eurostat.

The value of the fish involved and details of those caught in UK territorial waters is not readily available. Such information can be made available only by contacting the individual member states and third countries concerned. This would include requesting information on the value of catches by vessels of other member states and third countries that fish within that part of the North sea bounded by the UK's 200 mile fisheries limit. However, such information is only available in terms of the totals for the sea areas involved, and only for the quantities of fish involved rather than value. As such, the information requested is not available.

Fishing Catches: North Sea

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the assessed economic value of fisheries catch in each North Sea fisheries box that falls partly or wholly within the UK's 200 mile zone is. [248988]

Huw Irranca-Davies: To produce the requested information would require information on the value of catches by vessels of other member states and third countries that fish within that part of the North Sea bounded by the UK's 200 mile fisheries limit. However, such information is only available in terms of the totals for the sea areas involved, not at the level of the individual rectangles that make up this area, with these totals only being available for the quantities of fish involved rather than value. As such, the information could only be made available by contacting the individual member states and third countries concerned.

Fishing Catches: Shellfish

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what tonnage of (a) lobster, (b) shellfish and (c) shrimp was landed by the UK fishing fleet in the most recent 12 month period for which figures are available. [249051]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Live weight landings of shellfish into the UK and abroad by UK registered fishing vessels for 2007 are shown in the following table.

Species	Live weight (Thousand tonnes)
Lobster	2.8
Shrimps	1.4
Other shellfish	141.6
Total	145.8

Fishing Grounds

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many fishing vessels are operating in UK home territorial waters from EU Eastern European Baltic accession countries that prior to accession fished in the Baltic Sea. [249083]

Huw Irranca-Davies: No fishing vessels from EU Eastern European Baltic accession countries that prior to accession fished in the Baltic Sea are operating in UK territorial waters (within the 12 mile limit).

Three Polish vessels have fished within the UK 200 mile fishery limit since January 2008.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which fisheries boxes would fall (a) completely and (b) partially within the UK 200 mile/median maritime control limit in the absence of the common fisheries policy. [248989]

Huw Irranca-Davies: A copy of the map of the UK 200 mile fishery limits showing the statistical rectangles covered either fully, or partially, by the limit will be placed in the Library of the House.

Fishing Vessels

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many and what tonnage of foreign-registered fishing vessels are operating in UK home fishing waters. [249048]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The number of foreign registered fishing vessels operating in the UK 200 mile fishery limit is very fluid and constantly changing in response to fishing opportunities. Their presence is recorded through a combination of obligatory satellite monitoring systems and through sightings of vessels made during aerial and naval reconnaissance activity carried out by, or on behalf of, UK fisheries administrations.

Based on the information collected as above, it is estimated that the number of foreign fishing vessels that operated in the UK 200 mile fishery limit in 2008, produced from sightings and satellite data, was 2,886. Of these, the vast majority (2,321 vessels) were registered fishing vessels from other member states. This includes fishing vessels identified as present within UK fishery limits but not carrying out fishing activities (e.g. Russian registered vessels).

The tonnage of those vessels involved is not readily available and could be produced only at disproportionate cost.

Hague Preferences

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what his Department's policy is on invoking the Hague Preferences; [248990]

(2) what extra total allowable catch accrues to UK fishing vessels through his Department's use of the Hague Preferences in this year. [249000]

Huw Irranca-Davies: For some time, the Government have been concerned that the Hague Preference mechanism does not provide the necessary support to coastal communities in the UK and Ireland that it was intended to do. We have, therefore, sought to open discussions with the Irish on suitable replacement arrangements. To date, they have been reluctant to engage. We will, however, continue to press them on this, and plan to explore options with the Commission and other member states in due course.

In recent years, we have limited our actions to offsetting the impacts of Irish invocation in the Irish Sea and adjacent areas to ensure the UK fleet is not put at a disadvantage. However, in the December 2007 EU Fisheries Council, we also invoked on both North Sea haddock and whiting, in recognition of the particular importance of these stocks to UK fishermen, and the concerns expressed within the industry that the scientific advice (on which the quotas were based) was somewhat at odds with fishermen's experience on the ground. For the same reasons, we repeated these invocations last December. In both years however, we restricted the scale of our invocations, recognising the concerns of other member states who lose out as a result of our actions.

The effects of the December 2008 EU Fisheries Council invocations on the scale of UK quotas for the stocks in question, are included in the following table:

		Hague Preference
		UK Quota Pre-HP	UK Quota Post-HP	Gain/Loss
Irish Sea, Celtic Sea and West of Scotland
Area VIa cod	Counter-invocation	159	181	+22
Area VIIa cod	Counter-invocation	384	259	-125
Area VIa haddock	Counter-invocation	3,701	2,737	-964
Area VIa saithe	Counter-invocation	2,312	3,617	1,305
Area VIIa whiting	Counter-invocation	111	81	-30
Area VIIa plaice	Counter-invocation	731	432	-299
North Sea
Area IV haddock	Invoke 30 (%)	25,371	27,507	2,136
Area IV whiting	Invoke 30 (%)	6,647	8,426	1,779

Litter: Fast Food

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with Keep Britain Tidy on fast food outlets causing litter on streets. [248787]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Keep Britain Tidy (also known as ENCAMS) surveys show that fast food related litter is found in approximately a quarter of sites surveyed across England, with incidences increasing year-on-year.

For this reason, the voluntary code of practice for 'Food on the Go' was developed by Keep Britain Tidy on behalf of DEFRA, recognising that industry has an important role to play in tackling litter issues. In January 2009, Keep Britain Tidy published results of a survey into the most frequently found brands among fast food litter as part of its latest litter campaign. The results of the survey are available on their website:

www.encams.org.

DEFRA currently grant-aids £5 million per annum to Keep Britain Tidy to help meet the Government's aim of an improved local environment. DEFRA officials meet regularly with colleagues in Keep Britain Tidy, and Lord Hunt, Minister for local environmental quality, is planning to meet with them in the near future. Each year Ministers also agree priorities for the grant spend.

Rural Areas: Employment

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the effect of the economic downturn on employment opportunities in rural areas; and if he will make a statement. [248186]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Evidence shows that the economic downturn is likely to affect urban and rural areas. DEFRA is working closely with the regional development agencies and the Commission for Rural Communities, as well as with those Departments with policy responsibility, i.e. BERR and DWP, to make sure that the National Economic Council has access to high quality intelligence regarding the economic situation in rural areas.

Total Allowable Catches: North Sea

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of current North Sea (a) haddock, (b) cod, (c) herring and (d) plaice total allowable catch comes from boxes which fall (i) completely and (ii) partially within the UK 200 mile limit. [249184]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The information requested is not available. The process for the production of estimates of total allowable catch (TAC) for each stock involves the scientific assessment of the state of the stock at the level of the overall sea areas covered by each stock definition. As such, the process does not incorporate any apportionment, or derivation, of the TAC at the level of detail of the individual fisheries rectangles within the sea areas involved.

Water Charges

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will commission research on the effects of the introduction of surface area water charges for churches, community and voluntary groups which own property used exclusively to further their causes. [248858]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Government are aware of the problem of affordability faced by some customers as a result of the switch to site area charging for surface water drainage and are looking at what can be done.

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what response his Department has made to representations made by sports clubs affected by increases in charges following the revision of the surface water charging element. [250359]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Ministers have received a range of representations from sports clubs about the move from charging based on rateable value to site area charging for surface water drainage. The Government are aware of the affordability issues faced by some customers as a result of the switch to site area charging and are currently reviewing their position. While the issue is under consideration, letters will continue to be acknowledged, and I will respond in full in due course.

Water Companies: Flood Control

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 13 January 2009, Official Report, columns

612-13W, on water companies: flood control, what powers local authorities will have in circumstances where water companies do not co-operate, share information or take action which an authority considers to be necessary. [249747]

Huw Irranca-Davies: This issue is being considered as part of the forthcoming draft Floods and Water Bill, due to be published in spring 2009.

PRIME MINISTER

Departmental Official Hospitality

Grant Shapps: To ask the Prime Minister how much has been spent on (a) departmental Christmas parties and (b) staff entertainment in 10 Downing Street in the last three years. [243733]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Member for Cardiff, West (Kevin Brennan), Parliamentary Secretary to the Cabinet Office, on 13 January 2009, Official Report, column 582W.

JUSTICE

Antisocial Behaviour: Penalty Notices

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many fines for the non-payment of penalty notices for disorder (PND) were registered by the courts in each of the last four years, broken down by (a) the offence for which the PND was issued and (b) how many fines were paid on time in full. [250390]

Mr. Straw: The number of persons against whom a fine was registered following the issue of a penalty notice for disorder (PND), by offence, in England and Wales for the years 2004 to 2007 can be viewed in the following table. Data for 2008 will be available in the autumn of 2009.

Significant improvements are being achieved by the courts in the collection of fines. The Courts Act 2003 introduced a series of measures aimed at improving fine collection including deduction from earnings and benefits, seizure of goods and clamping of vehicles. We do not identify separately the payment rate of fines arising from PNDs, but the latest enforcement rate for all financial penalties is 85.2 per cent. for the period April to December 2008. The payment rates for the last four years are shown in the following table.

	Payment rate (Percentage)

[1] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Compensation: Enforcement

Mr. Timpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average cost of enforcing a compensation order was in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [250108]

Bridget Prentice: Information on the costs of collection of compensation orders is not collected. Data on the costs of collection of compensation orders is not held by either the Ministry of Justice or HMCS. Information on the enforcement rate of financial penalties imposed by courts is held but cannot make the distinction between compensation orders and other financial penalties and to use this figure to estimate the collection of compensation orders would be misleading.

It is therefore not possible to establish the average cost of collecting compensation orders.

The payment rate for financial impositions that includes compensation, costs, fines and the victims surcharge was 95 per cent. in 2007-08.

Coroners

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many open verdicts were recorded by coroners in each year between 2002 and 2008, broken down by area. [250401]

Bridget Prentice: Statistics on the number of open verdicts returned by coroners in England and Wales in each year between 2002 and 2007, broken down by area, have been placed in the Library of the House. Figures for 2008 are not yet available, but are due to be published on the Ministry of Justice website in May.

Coroners: Ethnic Groups

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what progress has been made by his Department on the recording of ethnicity data by coroners. [250400]

Bridget Prentice: At present coroners do not collect data on the ethnicity of the deceased in deaths which are referred to them. As part of our work to implement the coroner reforms included in the Coroner and Justice Bill we will be reviewing the statistical data currently collected by coroners and considering whether any changes are required.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what expert advisers have been commissioned by his Department and its agencies since 1997; on what topic each was commissioned; and whether the advisers so appointed made a declaration of political activity in each case. [246664]

Mr. Straw: Lord Lester acted as the Secretary of State's expert adviser on constitutional reform between July 2007 and November 2008, and made a declaration of political activity prior to his appointment.

The Ministry of Justice does not hold a central list of all expert advisory appointments made by it and its agencies since 1997. The Department makes a number of appointments to public bodies, including advisory non-departmental public bodies, and compiling such a list would incur disproportionate cost. Since 2003 the Government have published on an annual basis the names and overall cost of special advisers and the number in each pay band.

Written Questions

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice on how many occasions Ministers in his Department have used their discretion to rule that a parliamentary question for written answer should be answered because it would be in the public interest to do so, even though to do so would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold of £700 in the last 12 months. [249143]

Mr. Wills: In the last 12 months, the Ministry of Justice has answered one written parliamentary question for which the cost of answering the question exceeded the disproportionate cost threshold as the Minister responsible believed it to be in the public interest to do so.

Freedom of Information Act

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 476W, on the Freedom of Information Act 2000, when the public consultation on section 5 of the Act concluded; and when he plans to publish his response. [249331]

Mr. Straw: The public consultation on section 5 of the Freedom of Information Act concluded on 1 February 2008. The Government continue to assess the merits of designating additional public authorities under the Act and will publish their response to the section 5 public consultation by the summer.

Offender Group Reconviction Score System

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what risks are taken into account in assessments made under the Offender Group Reconviction Score system; and what assessment he has made of the average level of accuracy of evidence upon which such assessments are made. [249927]

Mr. Hanson: The Offender Group Reconviction Scale (OGRS) calculates the probability that a convicted offender will be convicted at least once within two years of their release from custody or from the start of their community sentence for any type of offence. The latest version (OGRS 3) is based on:

age at the date of the current caution, non-custodial sentence or discharge from custody;

gender;

the type of offence for which the offender has currently been cautioned or convicted; the number of times the offender has previously been cautioned and convicted; and the length in years of their recorded criminal history.

Guidance for practitioners emphasises the strengths and limitations of OGRS and reminds them that while research shows OGRS to be a strong predictor of proven re-offending it is an aid, not a substitute for judgment.

Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Probation assess whether likelihood of reoffending is comprehensively and accurately assessed as part of their Offender Management inspections and their reports are made public.

Prisoners: Childbirth

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many children were born to mothers in custody in each of the last 10 years. [248679]

Mr. Hanson: Women in prison have a right to the same medical provision as women in the community and do not give birth in prison as a matter of course.

The number of babies born to mothers in custody since November 2006, when the Prison Service began collecting the relevant information centrally, is as follows:

	Number of babies born
April 2006 to March 2007	37
April 2007 to March 2008	102
April 2008 to December 2008	75

Prisoners: Education

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice in respect of what schemes to tackle intolerance amongst prisoners pilots have been initiated. [249880]

Mr. Hanson: Race and Equalities Action Group (REAG) have been developing a twin-track approach the primary focus of which has been tackling racial intolerance. The first stage consists of detection and disruption measures. Guidance provided asks staff to risk assess and subsequently categorise the offender. The second stage moves from detection to intervention. REAG has developed an education set accredited through the Open College Network, available to education departments within establishments.

The education sessions have piloted in three establishments, the complete scheme will be piloted this year

Probation Service for England and Wales: Finance

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what projections he has made of trends in the level of demand for services provided by (a) the Probation Service, (b) HM Courts Service and (c) HM Prison Service as a result of the economic downturn; and what consideration he has given to allocating additional resources to each in this respect. [246953]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice has not produced any projections of demand for services provided by (a) the Probation Service, (b) HM Courts Service and (c) HM Prison Service as a result of the economic downturn. However, the Department's Ministers and Corporate Management Board are supplied with regular statistical information about both the downturn itself, and areas of that Department's business where demand for services might be affected. This ensures that timely action can be taken where necessary.

Changes in demand for services are taken into account when agreeing allocations to departmental business groups, along with other factors such as policy considerations, inflationary pressures and the potential for efficiency savings.

The Department remains committed to living within its budget as set out in the Comprehensive Spending Review 2007. We are currently looking hard at the services we provide in order to find new ways to improve how we deliver them, while ensuring that we focus on our frontline services. We aim to drive out inefficiencies, overlap and duplication and to reduce our overheads, especially in our headquarters areas. This work should help the Department to ensure that we are able to redeploy staff to the frontline as and where appropriate.

Probation Service: Manpower

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average caseload of members of Probation Service staff was in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07 and (c) 2007-08. [249616]

Mr. Hanson: The National Offender Management Service does not produce statistics on the average caseload of probation staff. However, data are collected on the number of offenders supervised by the National Probation Service (NPS) and, separately, on the number of staff in post.

The total number of offenders supervised by the NPS on 31 March 2006 was 227,654, on 31 March 2007 it was 237,796 and on 31 December 2007 it was 242,722. This information is taken from the Probation Statistics Quarterly Brief, which can be found at the following website:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/probationquarterly.htm

The number of NPS staff in post at 31 March 2006, 31 March 2007 and 31 December 2007 are set out in the following table. Data for the quarter ending 31 March 2008 are not yet available as they are still being validated.

Rape: Prosecutions

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) successful and (b) unsuccessful prosecutions for rape were made in each police authority area in each year since 1997. [248509]

Mr. Straw: The number of proceedings at magistrates courts not leading to a finding of guilt, and the number of defendants found guilty at all courts, for rape offences, from 1997 to 2007 (latest available), are given in the following table.

The figures relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the offence selected is the one for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Centrally collected data are available at police force area level which are given in the table.

[3] Staffordshire police force were only able to submit sample data for persons proceeded against and convicted in the magistrates courts for the year 2000. Although sufficient to estimate higher order of data, these data are not robust enough at a detailed level and have been excluded from the table. (See also footnote [3])
[4] These data are on the principal offence basis.
[5] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Repossession Orders: Chelmsford

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many court orders have been issued for the repossession of homes in West Chelmsford constituency in each of the last five years. [249978]

Bridget Prentice: Although figures for the West Chelmsford constituency are not available, the following tables show the number of mortgage and landlord possession orders made in Chelmsford county court from 2003 onwards.

The civil procedure rules state that all claims for the repossession of land must be commenced in the district in which the land is situated. However, Chelmsford county court covers areas other than West Chelmsford and therefore not all possession actions at this court will relate to this constituency.

Court level statistics on mortgage and landlord repossession actions from 1987 to 2007 are available on the Ministry of Justice website at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/mortgagelandlordpossession.htm

These figures do not indicate how many homes have actually been repossessed. Repossessions can occur without a court order being made, while not all court orders result in repossession.

[1] Mortgage possession data include all types of lenders whether local authority or private.
[2] Landlord possession data include all types of landlord whether social or private.
[3] Includes orders made through both standard and accelerated procedures. Landlord actions via the accelerated procedure enables the orders to be made solely on the basis of written evidence and shorthold tenancies, when the fixed period of tenancy has come to an end.
[4] Includes outright and suspended orders, the latter being where the court grants the claimant possession but suspends the operation of the order. Provided the defendant complies with the terms of suspension, which usually require the defendant to pay the current mortgage or rent instalments plus some of the accrued arrears, the possession order cannot be enforced.
[5] The court, following a judicial hearing, may grant an order for possession immediately. This entitles the claimant to apply for a warrant to have the defendant evicted. However, even where a warrant for possession is issued, the parties can still negotiate a compromise to prevent eviction.
[6] Figures for 2008 are provisional.

Royal Family: Wills

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) if he will publish sealed Royal Wills in cases where such Wills were sealed prior to 1990. [249315]

(2) if he will review his policy on the practice of allowing Royal wills to be sealed. [249316]

Mr. Straw: The power to seal and unseal all Wills is exercised by the court. The decision whether or not to permit inspection of a Will of a senior member of the Royal Family that has been sealed by the court is a matter for the President of the Family Division upon application.

The President is currently considering setting up a committee to review the Non-Contentious Probate Rules 1987, which will include consideration of the current rules relating to the inspection and/or publication of Wills. The power to make new rules is vested in the President with the concurrence of the Lord Chancellor.

Sentencing

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners were released on home detention curfew in each year since 1999 have served (a) one quarter of their sentence, (b) 90 days less than half their sentence and (c) 30 days of their sentence; for what offences were prisoners in each of those three bands originally convicted; and what the average length of the original sentence handed down to the offender in each of those three bands was. [250392]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested on length on time served prior to release on Home Detention Curfew (HDC) could be provided by examining individual prisoner records only at disproportionate cost. However information is available on the number of prisoners released on HDC in each year from 1999-2007 by sentence length band, as shown in the following tables. These figures can be found in Prison Statistics England and Wales, 1999-2002 and Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2003-07, copies of which can be found in the House of Commons Library, and also on the Ministry of Justice website at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/prisonandprobation.htm.

Eligible prisoners are not released on HDC unless they have served a minimum of one quarter of their sentence in custody, subject to a minimum of 30 days.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Trade Unions

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what meetings staff of the Courts Service have had with the relevant trades unions to discuss resources for the Courts Service in (a) 2009-10 and (b) 2010-11 in the last 12 months; [248343]

(2) what plans he has to consult the relevant trades unions on (a) his Department's budget and (b) planned alterations to that budget for 2009-10 and 2010-11. [248344]

Mr. Straw: Planning work has been underway since September 2008 to determine how the Ministry of Justice will live within its spending review settlement, secure £1 billion of savings by 2010-11. Regular meetings have been held with the unions throughout this period, with the next planned meeting at the corporate level provisionally scheduled for 22 January 2009. Regular engagement has also been maintained at the business group and business area levels, where business area specific issues have been consulted, including HM Courts Services (HMCS).

The budgets for business groups for 2009-10 will be published in the MOJ Corporate Plan on 19 January 2009, a copy of which together with other performance and efficiency related communications to staff will be shared with the unions ahead of wider circulation. The Corporate Plan will also be available in the Library of the House.

Following issue of the Corporate Plan, business groups will work in earnest to develop their own business plans. These plans will address in detail how the Department will meet the performance and efficiency challenges. Going forward consultation will take place with the unions at a local level or, when appropriate, at a corporate level. For example the chief executive of HMCS plans to discuss budgetary allocations with the unions on 17 February.

The recent pre-Budget report contained an announcement of an additional £5 billion value for money saving to be delivered in 2010-11 across the public sector. Decisions have yet to be made as to how those savings will be allocated between Departments but once this is clear we will need to consider the implications for us. This means it will be a little while before we can publish figures for that year. Once they have settled, we will share again details of the allocations with union colleagues.

Tribunals Courts and Enforcement Act 2007

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will place in the Library a copy of each of the responses to his Department's recent consultation on the implementation of the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007. [243975]

Bridget Prentice: There have been several consultations by the Ministry of Justice (MoJ) relating to the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007. The consultation "Transforming Tribunals Implementing Part 1 of the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007" ran from November 2007 to February 2008. Responses were published on the 19 May 2008. A copy of the response document was placed in the Library of both Houses.

The consultation "Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007— Eligibility for judicial appointment" ran from February to April 2008 and responses were published on the 27 August. The response document is available on the MoJ website at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/consultations-with-response.htm.

A copy of the response document will be placed in the Library of both Houses.

The consultation "Administration and Enforcement Restriction Orders: setting the parameters" ran from January to April 2008 and a response paper will be published shortly.

As with most MoJ consultations, all of these consultation papers contained a standard confidentiality clause. The individual responses of consultees, that did not indicate to the contrary, would therefore be available in an anonymised version from the MoJ for the first two consultations mentioned above. The response paper for the "Administration and Enforcement Restriction Orders: setting the parameters" consultation has not yet been published.

Victim Support Schemes

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how much has been distributed from the Victims Fund in each year since its creation in 2004; [249662]

(2) which specialist services for victims of particular types of crime have received funding from the Government in each of the last five years; and how much was granted in each case. [249663]

Maria Eagle: Organisations providing specialist services for victims of crime receive resources from a wide range of funding streams. Information on this funding is not collated or held centrally.

The Victims Fund was established in 2004 to help top-up local funding for specialist services for victims of crime. The following table shows the total distribution since its commencement:

2004-05	1.25 million	Sexual Violence Third Sector
	280,000 to date	Hate Crime and Homicide initiatives
Total	1.53million
2005-06	1.25 million	Sexual Violence Third Sector
	550,000	Hate Crime and Homicide initiatives
Total	1.8 million
2006-07	1.25 million	Sexual Violence and Abuse Third Sector
2003-06 to 2006-07	4 million	Sexual Assault Referral Centres and Sexual Violence Third Sector

Young Offenders: Reoffenders

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps the Government is taking to reduce reoffending among young offenders. [249479]

Mr. Hanson: There has been an 18.7 per cent. reduction in the frequency rate of youth reoffending between 2000 and 2006. The Youth Crime Action Plan, published in July 2008 details the cross-Government approach to reducing youth crime, including youth reoffending. It sets out a 'triple track' approach of enforcement and punishment where behaviour is unacceptable, non-negotiable support and challenge where it is most needed, and better and earlier prevention. The Youth Justice Board leads on the target of a 10 per cent. reduction by 2011 of the frequency rate of youth reoffending against the 2005 baseline, and is working with Departments, to influence the key services to ensure young people have access to mainstream and specialist services before, during and after justice.

HEALTH

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people aged 11 to 18 years resident in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire were treated for alcohol-related problems in each of the last five years. [249063]

Dawn Primarolo: Information is not available in the format requested. Data are available for treatment of alcohol-related health problems, the number of admissions to hospital for alcohol and alcohol-related health problems. An individual may account for more than one admission.

While it is possible to analyse the admissions data to determine the number of individuals aged 11-18 years admitted to hospital for alcohol and alcohol-related health problems, this could be done only at disproportionate cost.

The following table gives the number of alcohol-related finished admissions for patients aged 11-18 by primary care trust (PCT) in the Hertfordshire area for each year from 2002-03 to 2006-07. 2006-07 is the latest year for which data are available. The figures relate to the number of admissions rather than the number of individuals: an individual may account for more than one admission.

Number of alcohol-related finished admissions for patients aged 11 to 18 resident in Hertfordshire

East and North Hertfordshire	104	94	104	99	102
West Hertfordshire	107	110	114	82	122

Notes:
Includes activity in English national health service hospitals and English NHS commissioned activity in the independent sector.
Small numbers
To protect patient confidentiality, figures between 1 and 5 have been suppressed and replaced with "*" (an asterisk). Where it was possible to identify numbers from the total due to a single suppressed number in a row or column, an additional number (the next smallest) has been suppressed.
Alcohol-related admissions
The number of alcohol-related admissions is based on the methodology developed by the North West Public Health Observatory (NWPHO). Following international best practice, the NWPHO methodology includes a wide range of diseases and injuries in which alcohol plays a part and estimates the proportion of cases that are attributable to the consumption of alcohol. Details of the conditions and associated proportions can be found in the report Jones et al. (2008) "Alcohol-attributable fractions for England: Alcohol-attributable mortality and hospital admissions".
Figures for under-16s only include admissions where one or more alcohol-specific conditions were listed. This is because the research on which the attributable fractions are based does not cover under-16s. Alcohol-specific conditions are those that are wholly attributed to alcohol—that is, those with an attributable fraction of one. They are:
Alcoholic cardiomyopathy (142.6)
Alcoholic gastritis (K29.2)
Alcoholic myopathy (G72.1)
Alcoholic polyneuropathy (G62.1)
Alcohol-induced pseudo-Cushing's syndrome (E24.4)
Degeneration of nervous system due to alcohol (G31.2)
Mental and behavioural disorders due to use of alcohol (F10)
Accidental poisoning by and exposure to alcohol (X45)
Ethanol poisoning (T51.0)
Methanol poisoning (T51.1)
Toxic effect of alcohol, unspecified (T51.9).
Number of episodes in which the patient had an alcohol-related primary or secondary diagnosis
These figures represent the number of episodes where an alcohol-related diagnosis was recorded in any of the 14 (seven prior to 2002-03) primary and secondary diagnosis fields in a Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) record. Each episode is only counted once in each count, even if an alcohol-related diagnosis is recorded in more than one diagnosis field of the record.
Finished admission episodes
A finished admission episode is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one health care provider. Finished admission episodes are counted against the year in which the admission episode finishes. Admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.
Primary diagnosis
The primary diagnosis is the first of up to 14 (seven prior to 2002-03) diagnosis fields in HES data set and provides the main reason why the patient was in hospital.
Secondary diagnoses
As well as the primary diagnosis, there are up to 13 (six prior to 2002-03) secondary diagnosis fields in HES that show other diagnoses relevant to the episode of care.
Data Quality
HES are compiled from data sent by more than 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. Data is also received from a number of independent sector organisations for activity commissioned by the English NHS. The NHS Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.

Antidepressants

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the cost to the NHS of anti-depressant drugs prescribing in (a) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency, (b) the Tees Valley, (c) the North East and (d) England in the last 12 months. [249542]

Dawn Primarolo: The following table provides the net ingredient cost (NIC) of anti-depressant drugs prescribed in the community listed in British National Formulary (BNF) section 4.3 for the latest available 12 month period. Information is only available by health area and the information provided best fits the areas requested.

Aphasia: Research

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department has commissioned into the causes and treatment of aphasia. [249823]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department's National Institute for Health Research (NIHR) has funded the following current or recently completed projects of relevance to aphasia:

assessing the effectiveness of communication therapy in the North West (Dr. Audrey Bowen, university of Manchester);

the phoneme factory: producing a multimedia screening and therapy system for children with phonological disorders (Professor Sue Roulstone, North Bristol NHS Trust); speech-driven environmental control systems: new assistive technologies for disabled and elderly people (Professor Mark Hawley, university of Sheffield and Barnsley Hospitals NHS Trust); and evaluating communication impairment using technology-based transcriptionless discourse analysis measures: a demonstration of reliability and validity (Dr. Marian Brady, Glasgow Caledonian university).

The NIHR clinical research network is also supporting a number of related studies. Details are available on the network's portfolio database at:

www.ukcrn.org.uk/index/clinical/portfolio_new.html

The Medical Research Council (MRC) is one of the main agencies through which the Government support medical and clinical research. The MRC is an independent body that receives its grant in aid from the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills.

Over the last five years, the MRC has funded four projects relevant to aphasia:

finding the right words: predicting, and treating, spoken language production deficits after aphasic stroke (Dr. J. Crinion, University college London); normal and disordered language comprehension: a cognitive science approach (Professor L. Tyler, Birkbeck college); neural basis of words, meaning and syntax (Professor F. Pulvermuller, MRC Cognition and Brain Sciences Unit); and stroke recovery (Professor R. Wise, MRC Clinical Sciences Centre).

Chronic Disease Management

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many Expert Patients programme course places there have been in each year since the programme was established; and what proportion of these course places were specific to musculoskeletal problems. [249268]

Ann Keen: Expert Patients Programme Community Interest Company was established in April 2007. For the period April 2007 to March 2008 they report that the number of course places delivered was 24,660. Figures for 2008-09 are not yet available. The Expert Patients Programme is a generic course and is open to anyone with a long term condition. Details are not available relating to the specific conditions that course participants live with, however Expert Patients Programme Community Interest Company estimate that 25 per cent. of course places are taken by people with musculoskeletal conditions.

Chronically Sick: Pupils

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent guidance his Department has given to primary care trusts on advice and support for teachers in (a) developing school policy and (b) providing support to individual pupils to assist children and young people discussed with long-term conditions to manage their condition effectively in schools. [250602]

Ann Keen: In March 2005, the Department of Children Schools and Families (DCSF) published "Managing Medicines in Schools and Early Years Settings" with contributions from Department of Health. However, that guidance was for teachers rather than primary care trusts (PCTs). The National Service Framework for Children, Families and Maternity (Children's NSF), published in 2004 included guidance for health and social care professionals as well as parents and children on managing long term conditions. For children with diabetes, the report 'Making every young person with diabetes matter' included a generic specification for children and young people. This included a section on managing diabetes in schools and early years settings. A copy of the report has already been placed in the Library.

Creutzfeldt Jakob Disease

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the estimated cost is of testing for vCJD all those considered potentially at risk of having contracted vCJD after using infected blood products under the NHS; and if he will make a statement; [247050]

(2) how many and what proportion of those considered to be potentially at risk of having contracted vCJD after using infected blood products under the NHS have been informed of their at risk status; and if he will make a statement; [247051]

(3) how many haemophiliacs are estimated to be potentially at risk of having contracted vCJD after using infected blood products under the NHS; and if he will make a statement; [247052]

(4) how many people are estimated to be potentially at risk of having contracted vCJD after using infected blood products under the NHS; and if he will make a statement. [247053]

Dawn Primarolo: There are between 4,000 and 5,000 people, mostly haemophiliacs, currently considered at risk of variant Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease because of exposure or potential exposure via blood products. The haemophiliacs have been informed of their risk status by the haemophilia doctors managing their care, and the general practitioners of those who are not haemophiliacs have been informed of the need to advise their patients appropriately. The cost of testing this group, should suitable tests become available, has not been estimated.

Dental Services: Fees and Charges

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) in what circumstances a dentist may charge a patient for (a) descaling and (b) cleaning and polishing after the first-tier check up; [247537]

(2) if he will initiate an investigation into the practice of dentists charging patients for descaling, cleaning and polishing following the first-tier check up; and if he will make a statement; [247538]

(3) how many NHS dental patients (a) were charged for and (b) received free under the NHS descaling, cleaning and polishing following the first-tier treatment in the latest period for which information is available. [247626]

Ann Keen: The information is not available in the format requested. However, the number of courses of treatment delivered to charge payers and non-charge payers by treatment band in 2007-08 is available in Table 25 of "NHS Dental Statistics for England: 2007-08".

This publication has already been placed in the Library and is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dental0708.

National health service dental contracts require dentists to provide all proper clinically necessary dental care and treatment that the patient is willing to undergo. A band 1 course of treatment (diagnosis, treatment planning and maintenance) includes examination, diagnosis (for example x-rays), advice on how to prevent future problems, and scaling and polishing if clinically needed. Fee paying NHS patients will be charged £16.20 for a band 1 course of treatment. Those exempt from NHS charges receive treatment without charge.

Patients who are assessed as not clinically needing a scale and polish are free to obtain it privately. As with any treatment if there is no clinical need for the patient to receive a scale and polish it is entirely appropriate that it is provided, if at all, outside the NHS.

We take very seriously the need to ensure that all NHS patients receive clinically appropriate treatment. A dentist who identified a clinical need for a scale and polish under NHS treatment and then refused such care would be potentially in breach of contract. The NHS Business Services Authority is enhancing the role of the dental reference service to ensure that primary care trusts (PCTs) have the tools to check that dental care provided is appropriate to patients' needs. Patients who have concerns about any aspect of their dental care should in the first instance raise this with the practice and then if not satisfied, with the PCT.

The independent review of NHS dentistry chaired by Professor Jimmy Steele will also look at how we can ensure that NHS dentists deliver consistently high quality care and provide the right level of preventative work. Professor Steele is due to publish his findings later in the year.

Direct Payments

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in England are eligible to receive direct payments; and how many of them have taken them up. [250173]

Phil Hope: Since 2003, councils have had a duty to offer direct payments to people found eligible for social services support. During 2007-08, around 1.75 million people of working age and older people used social care services either provided by their local council or commissioned on their behalf from private and voluntary organisations. As at March 2008, 73,540 people, including carers, used direct payments to buy the help they wanted.

Diseases: Children

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the incidence of (a) diphtheria, (b) tetanus and (c) pertussis, (d) Haemophilus influenzae type b, (e) polio, (f) meningitis C, (g) measles, (h) mumps, (i) rubella and (j) acellular pertussis was amongst children in (i) London and (ii) the rest of England in each of the last three years. [249793]

Dawn Primarolo: The information given is for the last three years for which data is available, and is set out in the following table. Data included in this table refers to the incidence of infections in children up to 15 years of age.

	2005		2006		2007
	London	Rest of England	London	Rest of England	London	Rest of England

Rubella[3]	2	5	1	1	2	5

[1] Isolation of toxigenic Corynebacterium diphtheriae or C ulcerans.
[2] Notified cases of whooping cough. Acellular pertussis is a vaccine not a disease.
[3] The number includes cases confirmed by both oral fluid IgM antibody tests and other laboratory reported cases.

Diseases: EU Action

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking in response to the European Commission's November 2008 Communication 'on Rare Diseases, Europe's Challenges, COM (2008) 679. [249521]

Dawn Primarolo: We broadly welcome the Council's Communication on Rare Diseases and the opportunity it presents for gathering further expertise, exchange of information and best practice between member states. United Kingdom Government representatives are now involved in continuing negotiations at the European Council about an EC recommendation about action on rare diseases, which we understand is intended to be published under the Czech presidency.

Health Hazards: Lighting

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department has (a) evaluated, (b) commissioned and (c) undertaken on the effects of the use of low-energy fluorescent bulbs on public health. [249874]

Dawn Primarolo: The Health Protection Agency (HPA) advises the Department on scientific matters concerning optical radiation including low energy light bulbs. The HPA tested a sample of compact fluorescent light bulbs (CFLs) and found that some emitted ultraviolet radiation which could, under certain conditions, expose people above international guidelines. As a result of its findings, the HPA issued precautionary advice on 9 October 2008 to the general public concerning the use of open CFLs in close-working situations. The HPA's advice can be found at:

www.hpa.org.uk/webw/HPAweb&HPAwebStandard/HPAweb_C/1223445516605?p=1153822623869

The HPA's research was considered alongside other available evidence to inform a report by the European Commission's Scientific Committee on Emerging and Newly Identified Health Risks (SCENIHR). SCENIHR's opinion on light sensitivity can be found at:

http://ec.europa.eu/health/ph_risk/committees/04_scenihr/scenihr_opinions_en.htm

During 2008, the Department undertook a literature review on lighting and light sensitive and neurological conditions.

HIV Infection

Mr. Borrow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how he intends to respond to the resolution of the European Parliament of 20 November 2008, addressed to all member states, on HIV/AIDS: early diagnosis and early care. [248328]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department is already responding to the actions for member states set out in the European Parliament's resolution on HIV and AIDS. HIV testing remains free and confidential and the Department continues to fund awareness campaigns for men-who-have-sex-with-men and African communities, the groups most at risk of HIV in the UK. These awareness campaigns are additional to the Condom Essential Wear campaign which targets young adults. The Department also funds the National AIDS Manual and the Terrence Higgins Trust for information and helpline services on HIV treatment and living with HIV. This year, the Department is also investing £1.4 million in new work to reduce undiagnosed HIV.

The Disability Discrimination Act provides protection for people with HIV in employment, education and in the provision of goods and services. There are no restrictions on the freedom of movement of people with HIV in the United Kingdom.

Mental Health Services: Prisoners

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many prisoners have been transferred from prison to hospital for psychiatric care since 1997. [242408]

Phil Hope: The following table shows the number of transfers of mentally ill prisoners to more appropriate care in hospital under the Mental Health Act:

	Number of prisoners
1997	757
1998	737
1999	732
2000	664
2001	670
2002	723
2003	786
2004	891
2005	900
2006	961
2007	926

Source:
Ministry of Justice.

In 2007 the Department launched guidelines and conducted 17 pilots across the country to test more efficient protocols for speedier transfer. Since then the guidelines show a 28 per cent. improvement in transfer times and the Department plans to consider how this improvement could be rolled out across all prison sites.

Musculoskeletal Disorders

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what national public health information his Department has provided to patients on the self-management of musculoskeletal conditions since publication of his Department's Musculoskeletal Services Framework on 12 July 2006. [249156]

Ann Keen: In October 2006 the Department in conjunction with the Arthritis and Musculoskeletal Alliance (ARMA) published, Information for people with bone and joint problems, this document has been placed in the Library. The NHS Choices website also gives guidance on the self-management of long-term conditions which can be found at:

www.nhs.uk/YourHealth/Pages/Livingwithyourcondition.aspx.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people with joint pain he estimates referred themselves to a (a) physiotherapist, (b) chiropractor and (c) osteopath without first visiting a GP in each year since 2005. [249251]

Ann Keen: The Department has made no such estimates.

Musculoskeletal Disorders: Health Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what national data are available to support primary care trusts in benchmarking local intervention rates in trauma and orthopaedics, as referred to on page 46 of his Department's Musculoskeletal Services Framework of July 2006. [249160]

Ann Keen: The 18 week programme has developed over 43 common commissioning pathways to support primary care trusts in commissioning services for their populations. In relation to trauma and orthopaedics pathways have been developed for carpal tunnel syndrome, hip, knee, shoulder and back pain which primary care trusts are using to plan for and manage demand for local services.

National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Health by what means the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence assesses the implementation of its guidelines; and whether there are any plans to change those procedures. [248840]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) does not routinely monitor the uptake or implementation of guidance by individual national health service organisations as this is currently the role of the Healthcare Commission.

NICE's clinical guidelines are developmental standards for NHS organisations and the Government expect them to be fully implemented over time. In 2006-07, NHS organisations were asked to assess themselves against the 'clinical and cost-effectiveness' developmental standard which takes account of NICE's clinical guidelines. The self-assessments were independently validated by the Healthcare Commission and showed that 90 per cent. of NHS organisations were making excellent, good or fair progress towards implementing NICE's clinical guidelines.

From April 2009, the Care Quality Commission will take over from the Healthcare Commission and will consider, in discussion with stakeholders including NICE, how to take account of NICE guidance as it develops its compliance criteria.

Prostate Cancer

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer of 23 October 2008, Official Report, columns 523-4W, on prostate cancer, when the most recent round of peer review visits were carried out; what percentage of prostate cancer patients are being managed by multi-disciplinary team meetings; and what percentage of primary care trusts are managing all their prostate cancer patients by multi-disciplinary team meetings throughout their care. [250415]

Ann Keen: The most recent round of national cancer peer reviews took place from November 2004 to March 2007. Peer review looks at multi-disciplinary teams (MDTs) by cancer network not by primary care trust.

The most recent round of national cancer peer review showed that in 90 per cent. of local urology MDTs and in 94 per cent. of specialist urology MDTs, all new urological patients, including prostate cancer patients, were reviewed by the MDTs.

The information requested on the management of patients by MDTs throughout their care is not available centrally.

Rheumatoid Arthritis

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many admissions to hospital for rheumatoid arthritis there were in each year since 1991-92, broken down by (a) sex, (b) age and (c) primary care trust area. [249254]

Ann Keen: Unfortunately we are unable to provide time series data as far back as 1991-92 as the quality of coverage of primary care trust of residence reduces heavily. Data from 1996-97 to 2006-07 have therefore been placed in the Library.

Smoking: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the (a) number of regular smokers in (i) Hemel Hempstead and (ii) Hertfordshire and (b) number of people who have given up smoking in each of these areas over the last 12 months. [249056]

Dawn Primarolo: Information is not available in the format requested. Data are available for West Hertfordshire Primary Care Trust (PCT) and East and North Hertfordshire PCT. Hemel Hempstead is covered by East and North Hertfordshire PCT.

Estimated prevalence of smokers among adults aged 16 and over, along with associated confidence intervals for West Hertfordshire PCT and East and North Hertfordshire PCT are available from "Healthy Lifestyle Behaviours: Model Based Estimates, 2003-2005. 2006 Health Hierarchy" and can be viewed at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/statisticsanddatacollections/populationandgeography/neighbourhoodstatistics/neighbourhood-statistics:-model-based-estimates-of-healthy-lifestyle-behaviours-at-pco-level-2003-05

Information on the number of people who successfully quit smoking at the four week follow up (based on self report) in West Hertfordshire PCT and East and North Hertfordshire PCT in the last year 2007-08 are available from the "Statistics on NHS Stop Smoking Services: England, April 2007 to March 2008", Table 3.5, pages 28-30. This publication has already been placed in the Library.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many adults aged 35 years and over were admitted to hospital with diseases caused by smoking in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire in (i) 1996-97 and (ii) 2006-07. [249062]

Dawn Primarolo: Information is not available in the format requested. Data for 1996-97 are unavailable. Data is not collected for Hemel Hempstead and Hertfordshire. Data for East and North Hertfordshire Primary Care Trust (PCT) and West Hertfordshire PCT are available for 2006-07. Hemel Hempstead is covered by East and North Hertfordshire PCT.

Figures are available and provided on the number of admissions in national health service hospitals for those aged 35 and over with a primary diagnosis of diseases that can be caused by smoking and estimates of the number of those admissions that are attributable to smoking.

The following table shows the number of admissions for those aged 35 and over with a primary diagnosis of various diseases that can be caused by smoking and estimates of the number of those admissions that can be attributed to smoking. Figures have been provided for 2006-07 in East and North Hertfordshire PCT and West Hertfordshire PCT. It is acknowledged that not all of the observed admissions included in the table will be attributable to smoking as there are other contributory factors to these diseases. Therefore the relative risks of these diseases for current and ex-smokers, compared to non-smokers have been used to estimate smoking-attributable admissions.

NHS[1] hospital admissions[2] for primary diagnosis[3] of diseases that can be caused by smoking and those attributable to smoking, 2006-07

Number

	Observed admissions[4]	Smoking attributable admissions[5]
East and North Hertfordshire	11,733	3,400
West Hertfordshire	12,834	3,500

[1] The data include private patients in NHS hospitals (but not private patients in private hospitals)
[2] A finished admission episode is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.
[3] The primary diagnosis is the first of up to 20 (14 from 2002-03 to 2006-07 and 7 prior to 2002-03) diagnosis fields in the Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) data set and provides the main reason why the patient was admitted to hospital.
[4] Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data. Observed admissions only includes those where gender was recorded.
[5] Estimated attributable number, rounded to the nearest 100.
Notes:
1. Figures exclude records where gender was unknown or not specified as relative risks used to calculate attributable admissions are gender specific.
2. Figures exclude records where country of residence was not confirmed as England.

Social Services: Standards

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of care services met each of the Commission for Social Care Inspection's national minimum standards in (a) England and (b) each local authority area in 2007-08. [249803]

Phil Hope: We are informed by the Commission for Social Care Inspection that information is available broken down by type of service—each has its own set of national minimum standards—for the most recently completed inspection year, which ended on 31 March 2008.

This information has been placed in the Library.

Suicide

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment he has made of the cost to primary care trusts of carrying out suicide audits; and if he will make a statement; [250394]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effect of removing suicide audits from the star ratings performance assessment of primary care trusts in ensuring primary care trusts undertake comprehensive suicide audits; and if he will make a statement; [250395]

(3) how many primary care trusts conducted suicide audits in each year from 2002 to 2008; and if he will make a statement. [250396]

Phil Hope: No assessment on either the cost to primary care trusts (PCTs) in carrying out suicide audits or the effect of removing suicide audits from the Annual Health Check performance assessment of PCTs has been made. The mental health National Service Framework, published in 1999, made it a requirement for all local services to develop a local system for suicide audit to learn lessons from suicides and take necessary action. We published a toolkit "Suicide audit in Primary Care Trust localities" in October 2006 to support them in this task. A copy has been placed in the Library. The information on the number of PCTs conducting suicide audits is not collected centrally.

Tuberculosis: Vaccination

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which health authorities in Greater London provide free BCG vaccinations to all children. [248491]

Dawn Primarolo: Information on Bacillus Calmette-Guérin (BCG) vaccinations in London is available by primary care trust (PCT). The following PCTs in the London strategic health authority provide BCG vaccinations to all children:

Brent;
Camden;
City and Hackney;
Ealing;
Greenwich;
Hammersmith and Fulham;
Haringey;
Harrow;
Hillingdon;
Hounslow;
Islington;
Kensington and Chelsea;
Lambeth;
Lewisham;
Newham;
Redbridge;
Southwark;
Tower Hamlets;
Waltham Forest; and Westminster.

Vaccination: Religious Practice

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the vaccines for (a) diptheria, (b) tetanus, (c) pertussis, (d) polio, (e) Haemophilus influenza type b, (f) pneumococcal conjugate, (g) meningitis C, (h) MMR and (i) HPV available for use by GPs are halal; what halal alternatives are available for those which are not; and if he will make a statement. [247899]

Dawn Primarolo: Vaccines for diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis, polio, Haemophilus influenzae type b, pneumococcal, Meningitis C, and HPV do not contain gelatine according to the summary of product characteristics provided by the manufacturers. Two MMR vaccines are available; one MMR vaccine—MMRVAXPRO—contains gelatine, the other MMR vaccine—Priorix—does not contain gelatine.

Vaccines that contain gelatine may not be considered halal. However, the Muslim Council of Britain supports the use of these vaccines and has always advised that vaccination must always be offered to all individuals identified to be at risk of communicable disease in order to prevent disease and deaths and have urged the Muslim community to continue to participate in the immunisation programmes to protect our children and adults from serious and potentially fatal infections.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Departmental Catering

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which (a) food and (b) drinks suppliers have been used by his Department in each of the last three years; and how much his Department paid to each such supplier in each of those years. [248390]

Mr. Scott: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which (a) food and (b) drinks companies have supplied the Prime Minister's Office in each of the last three years; and how much was paid to each of those suppliers in each of those three years. [248791]

Kevin Brennan: The Prime Minister's Office forms an integral part of the Cabinet Office. The Cabinet Office's Total Facilities Management (TFM) contract is with EcovertFM. Other companies that have been used to supply food and drink can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Fuels: Excise Duties

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what recent representations he has received on the effects on the voluntary sector of increased fuel duty. [250356]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

Treasury Ministers and officials receive representations from a wide range of organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such representations.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Members: Security

John Mann: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, how many representations have been received by the House authorities from back-bench hon. Members on security matters relating specifically to (a) themselves, (b) their family and (c) their property in the last five years. [250382]

Nick Harvey: It is not the policy of the House authorities to answer questions on security matters.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Human Trafficking: Prosecutions

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were prosecuted for offences relating to the trafficking of human beings for (a) the sex trade and (b) illegal labour in each year since 1997. [241045]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Human trafficking was criminalised with the introduction of the Sexual Offences Act 2003 and the Asylum and Immigration (Treatment of Claimants) Act 2004.

While the numbers of prosecutions for the offences of human trafficking is not held centrally by the Home Office there have to date been 92 convictions for trafficking for sexual exploitation and four for trafficking for forced labour.

Police Stations: Essex

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police stations in Essex were not open to the public in each of the last 10 years. [250151]

Mr. Coaker: The management of the police estate and allocation of resources are matters for Essex police authority and the Chief Constable of Essex, who are responsible for assessing local needs.

Police: Dual Jobholding

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidelines apply to police officers on involvement in business activities outside their employment within the police force; and whether she plans to revise those guidelines. [249816]

Mr. Coaker: Under the Police Regulations 2003 police officers must declare and obtain approval from their chief police officer for undertaking business interests. We have no plans to change existing policy.

Stop and Search

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) people and (b) people under 18 years of age have been stopped and searched under the Terrorism Act 2000 in each of the last eight years. [250309]

Mr. Coaker: Information on the number of persons stopped and searched under section 44 (sections 1 and 2) of the Terrorism Act 2000, from 1999-2000 to 2006-07 (latest available) are provided in the following table.

From the information reported to the Home Office it is not possible to separately identify the age of persons searched.

Searches of pedestrians, vehicles and occupants under sections 44(1) and 44(2) of the Terrorism Act 2000[1], 1999-2000 to 2006-07, England and Wales

Stops and searches in order to prevent acts of terrorism	Total searches
1999-2000	1,900
2000-01	6,400
2001-02	10,200
2002-03	32,100
2003-04	33,800
2004-05[2]	37,000
2005-06	50,000
2006-07	41,900

[1] Formerly sections 13A and 13B of the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1989 and repealed under the Terrorism Act 2000 (which came into force on 19 February 2001).
[2] Figures updated since publication of the 2004-05 Bulletin.

Telecommunications: Databases

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the estimated (a) set-up and (b) running costs of the interception modernisation programme are. [250530]

Mr. Coaker: The Interception Modernisation Programme (IMP) will require a substantial level of investment which will need to tie in with the Government's three year CSR periods. The scale of overall economic investment is very difficult to calculate because of the complexity of the programme and wide ranging implementation solutions currently being considered.

Given the commercial and national security sensitivities, the precise costs of the programme cannot be disclosed. Further detail on budgetary estimates for the IMP will however become available once the public consultation process (announced by the Home Secretary on 15 October 2008) commences.

Terrorism

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the proportion of an anti-terrorist police officer's time taken up (a) by anti-terrorist work and (b) in the detection of other forms of criminal activity. [249878]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office does not hold such information centrally. Significant Government investment has enabled the police service to establish a network of dedicated police counter terrorism units. Specialist officers within those units, while focused on counter terrorism work, remain under the direction and control of local chief officers.

TREASURY

Bank Services: Overseas Workers

Sir Alan Beith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the impact of money laundering prevention measures on the availability of UK bank accounts to UK citizens living and working abroad. [244994]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 18 December 2008]: I am advised that money laundering requirements, principally the Money Laundering Regulations 2007, and other anti-money laundering and counter-terrorist finance legislation, are not a determining factor in banks' decisions to make available UK personal current accounts or savings accounts to persons without an address in the UK. I understand that decisions are taken largely on commercial grounds.

Banks: EU Grants and Loans

Mr. Moore: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the monetary value of the loans made available to United Kingdom banks by the European Investment Bank (EIB) under the scheme announced on 30 October 2008 was on 12 January 2008; which United Kingdom banks have applied for funds; when each first applied; how much each received from the EIB; how many businesses have accessed the funds from each; and what the average number of employees of these businesses is. [248586]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 19 January 2009]: Since 30 October 2008, the following EIB loans for SMEs have been agreed between the EIB and UK banks:

Barclays signed a £150 million loan on 16 December 2008;

HBOS signed a £250 million loan on 18 December 2008; and RBS signed a £250 million loan on 23 December 2008.

This means that since the reform by the EIB of its SME financing products in September 2008, a total of £1 billion of EIB loans for SMEs were made available by the end of last year. Further negotiations with a number of UK banks for additional new lending are ongoing.

The Government do not currently hold information on the number of firms to have accessed the agreed funding. The Government continue to work closely with all UK banks to monitor their progress on drawing down and disbursing EIB loans.

With regard to the number of employees of recipient SMEs, EIB rules state that its funding is available for businesses with 250 employees or less, consistent with the European Commission's definition of SMEs.

Banks: Government Assistance

David Howarth: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the oral statement of 19 January 2009, on financial markets, by what authority he has authorised the Bank of England to create the £50 billion fund to purchase corporate assets from banks. [250206]

Ian Pearson: Arrangements for the Debt Management Office (DMO) to make finance available to the Bank of England are set out in paragraph 6.9 of the Debt and Reserves Management Report 2008-09.

Banks: Guernsey

Sir John Butterfill: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what conditions the Financial Services Authority attached to its approval of the sale by the Portman Building Society of its Guernsey subsidiary to Landsbanki; [248334]

(2) what discussions the Financial Services Authority (FSA) had with the Portman Building Society on its application to establish a wholly-owned banking subsidiary in Guernsey; and what assurances the FSA received in respect of (a) the terms of business of the subsidiary and (b) the protection and indemnification of depositors. [248336]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 19 January 2009]: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave him on 13 January 2009, Official Report, column 569W.

Banks: Iceland

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has made on behalf of (a) Guernsey, (b) Jersey and (c) the Isle of Man to the Icelandic Government on the consequences of the Icelandic banking collapses in 2008. [249182]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 19 January 2009]: In line with usual constitutional arrangements, the Government will represent the Crown Dependencies in its negotiations with the Icelandic authorities.

Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings and discussions with a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings and discussions.

Jersey does not have a branch or subsidiary of an Icelandic bank, and is therefore not part of these discussions.

Banks: Isle of Man

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will take urgent steps to protect UK citizens who had deposits in Isle of Man banks. [247845]

Ian Pearson: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave the hon. Member for New Forest, West (Mr. Swayne) on 5 November 2008, Official Report, column 539W.

Sir John Butterfill: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what discussions the Financial Services Authority (FSA) had with the Derbyshire Building Society on its application to establish a wholly-owned banking subsidiary in the Isle of Man; and what assurances the FSA received in respect of (a) the terms of business of the subsidiary and (b) the protection and indemnification of depositors; [248335]

(2) what conditions the Financial Services Authority attached to its approval of the sale by the Derbyshire Building Society of its Isle of Man subsidiary to Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander. [248337]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 19 January 2009]: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Great Grimsby (Mr. Mitchell) on 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 1902W.

Banks: Regulation

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what meetings Ministers in his Department have held to review (a) capital ratios and (b) liquidity requirements for banks in the last three months. [249553]

Ian Pearson: As the Memorandum of Understanding between HM Treasury, the Bank of England and the FSA sets out, the tripartite authorities have regular meetings to work together towards the common objective of financial stability in the UK.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what provisions the Government is making for any future (a) losses and (b) capital requirement of banks in which UK Financial Investments has a stake; [249556]

(2) how his Department plans to account for any (a) profits earned and (b) losses sustained by (i) the Royal Bank of Scotland and (ii) Northern Rock. [249559]

Ian Pearson: UK Financial Investments Limited (UKFI), which is wholly owned by the Government, manages the Government's investments in the recapitalised banks but ownership of the shares of the recapitalised banks still lies with HM Treasury.

The Government will assess the need for any impairment or profit on our investments in the banks in accordance with our accounting policies and in accordance with the Financial Reporting Manual (FReM). Any amounts will be disclosed in HM Treasury's Resource Accounts in due course.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what instructions the Government has issued to the Royal Bank of Scotland in the last six months; [249563]

(2) how many meetings Ministers in his Department have held with (a) staff and (b) directors of the Royal Bank of Scotland in the last six months. [249564]

Ian Pearson: Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings and discussions with a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings and discussions.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many meetings Ministers in his Department have had with (a) directors and (b) staff of Northern Rock since its entering into temporary public ownership; [249565]

(2) what the policy of Northern Rock is on the payment of bonuses to (a) staff and (b) directors in respect of (i) 2008 and (ii) 2009; [249600]

(3) how many (a) employees and (b) directors of Northern Rock were paid more than £100,000 in 2008; [249601]

(4) what Northern Rock's level of mortgage lending is; and what it was in January 2008. [249602]

Ian Pearson: During this period of temporary public ownership, Northern Rock is managed by its Board at arm's length from the Government on commercial principles. It is a matter for the company's management to release specific business updates or provide any required disclosures in their audited annual report and accounts.

Under the Northern Rock Shareholder Relationship Framework Document the Government require that executive incentivisation be linked to delivery of the objectives set out in the business plan. Individual executive bonuses are for the Board's Remuneration Committee to determine, taking account of performance against the objectives set in the business plan. Staff pay and incentivisation arrangements are a matter for the company.

Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings with a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what investigations (a) his Department, (b) the Bank of England and (c) the Financial Services Authority have made into securitisation practices (i) in the UK and (ii) by British companies internationally. [249657]

Ian Pearson: The tripartite authorities have been working in both national and international forums to produce analysis and policy recommendations on improving the operation of securitisation markets and enhancing transparency and valuation. Details of these can be found in 'Financial stability and depositor protection: strengthening the framework', published in January 2008 (Cm7308), 'Financial stability and depositor protection: further consultation', published in July 2008 (Cm7436). Furthermore, on 9 April 2008, the Chancellor announced that Sir James Crosby would provide advice to the Government on options for improving the function of mortgage finance markets, working closely with mortgage industry experts. This was published alongside the 2008 pre-Budget report on 24 November and sets out Sir James' recommendations.

The documents can be found at:

Child Tax Credit

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 275W, how much his Department has spent on child tax credit payment to individuals subject to control orders in each year since 2005. [249499]

Mr. Timms: The information is not available in the format requested. Applications for child tax credit do not establish whether an applicant is subject to a control order. This information is therefore not readily available.

Churches: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to issue a report on funding assistance for the repair of church buildings. [248147]

Barbara Follett: I have been asked to reply.

Work to finalise a report jointly written by Government Departments and the Church of England is ongoing. Its primary purpose is to explore and address any barriers that exist to places of worship accessing funding to support community action projects.

The report will set out the funding assistance available to faith-based and other third sector organisations to support community initiatives that could be used for enhancements to places of worship.

The report will be published in the coming weeks and I will arrange for copies to be laid in the Libraries of both Houses.

Derbyshire Building Society

Sir John Butterfill: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he is taking to ensure that guarantees by Derbyshire Building Society which were transferred to the Icelandic government are honoured in full. [249669]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 20 January 2009]: Derbyshire Offshore (the trading name for Derbyshire Building Society's Isle of Man subsidiary) was established in the Isle of Man in 1990 and was regulated by the Isle of Man Financial Supervision Commission.

Arrangements for depositors in banks in the Isle of Man are a matter for the Government of the Isle of Man.

In line with usual constitutional arrangements, the UK Government will represent the Crown dependencies in their negotiations with the Icelandic authorities.

Economic and Monetary Union

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had with the President of the European Commission on Britain's prospective membership of the euro. [249540]

Ian Pearson: Treasury Ministers discuss a wide range of issues with their counterparts in other countries, as well as the European Commission. The Government's policy on membership of the single currency is unchanged. It remains as set out by the Chancellor in his statement to the House of Commons in October 1997, and again in the Chancellor's statement on the five tests assessment in June 2003.

Financial Services Compensation Scheme

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received on the terms on which (a) banks and (b) building societies will contribute to the Financial Services Compensation Scheme levy; and if he will make a statement. [250372]

Ian Pearson: The Financial Services Compensation Scheme is an independent organisation set up under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000. It is responsible for setting levies on firms within the rules and limits set by the Financial Services Authority. These rules also specify the levies that may be collected from each class of firm and the apportionment of levies between individual firms within each class.

Treasury Ministers and officials receive representations from a wide range of organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such representations.

Government Contracts

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the Office of Government Commerce's guidance on including general break clauses in government contracts. [250483]

Angela Eagle: The guidance has been placed in the Library.

Income Tax

Stephen Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many higher rate income tax payers there are in each parliamentary constituency. [249694]

Mr. Timms: The number of individual income taxpayers by constituency can be found in table 3.15 'Income and tax by Parliamentary Constituency' on HM Revenue and Customs' website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/income_distribution/menu-by-year.htm#315

Estimates are based on the Survey of Personal Incomes, of which 2005-06 is currently the latest available. Estimates for 2006-07 will be published at the end of January.

Reliable information on the number of higher rate taxpayers at constituency level is not currently available.

Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander: Isle of Man

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the potential liability to the public purse of guaranteeing the deposits of UK citizens in the Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander Isle of Man bank for (a) all deposits, (b) deposits up to £50,000 and (c) deposits up to £100,000. [247844]

Ian Pearson: Deposits with Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander, Isle of Man, will be subject to the Isle of Man Deposit Compensation Scheme. This scheme is administered by the Isle of Man authorities.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he is taking to protect investors who originally banked with the Derbyshire Building Society but who subsequently found themselves customers of Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander Isle of Man bank. [247846]

Ian Pearson: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Great Grimsby (Mr. Mitchell) on 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 1902W.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with the Isle of Man authorities on UK citizens' savings that were deposited with Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander Isle of Man bank. [247848]

Ian Pearson: Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings and discussions with a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings and discussions.

Sir John Butterfill: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had with the government of the Isle of Man regarding funding to enable the Isle of Man to compensate British depositors with Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander. [249670]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 20 January 2009]: Arrangements for depositors in banks in the Isle of Man are a matter for the Government of the Isle of Man.

Deposits with Kaupthing, Singer and Friedlander, Isle of Man, will be subject to the Isle of Man deposit compensation scheme.

Landsbanki: Guernsey

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the cost to the Exchequer of the collapse of Landsbanki Guernsey. [243801]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 15 December 2008]: Arrangements for depositors in banks in Guernsey are a matter for the Government of Guernsey.

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will meet representatives of UK nationals who were depositors with Landsbanki Guernsey to discuss their position. [249894]

Ian Pearson: Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings and discussions with a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings and discussions.

In line with usual constitutional arrangements, the UK Government will represent the Crown dependencies in their negotiations with the Icelandic authorities.

Members: Correspondence

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to reply to the letter of 27 October 2008 from the hon. Member for Hazel Grove on a constituent's difficulties regarding the collapse of Lansbanki. [249299]

Ian Pearson: Due to the large volume of correspondence received on these issues there has been a delay in sending some responses. The Financial Services Secretary hopes to be in a position to reply to the hon. Member shortly.

Clare Short: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when a reply will be sent to the right hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood's letter of 28 November 2008 on behalf of Gordon Ferguson of the Kaupthing Banking Group. [249558]

Ian Pearson: Due to the large volume of correspondence received on these issues there has been a delay in sending some responses. The Financial Services Secretary hopes to be in a position to reply to the right hon. Member shortly.

Public Sector: Procurement

Mr. Evans: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the merits of proposals to introduce a single on-line pre-qualification questionnaire for small businesses to access public procurement projects. [249843]

Angela Eagle: The Glover Committee report, "Accelerating the SME Economic Engine" published on the HMT website in November 2008, made 12 recommendations to improve SME access to public procurement including:

"Qualification criteria that are not specific to a sector should be standardised and incorporated in all pre-qualification questionnaires so that businesses do not need to repeatedly submit the same core information in different formats."

Government are currently implementing these recommendations.

Revenue and Customs: Leicester

David Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of (a) redundancy payments to staff who are unable to relocate and (b) daily travel allowance payments to staff relocating to other offices resulting from HM Revenue and Customs' decision to close two offices in Leicester; and what the estimated annual saving in accommodation costs as a result of the closure of these two offices is. [249414]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 19 January 2009]: HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) is vacating one office in Leicester, Attenborough House. Enkalon House, which formerly housed one member of HMRC staff, has already been vacated.

HMRC expects staff to relocate with their teams to another office within reasonable daily travel, almost all of them to one of the two offices in Leicester that are being retained, Saxon House and City Gate House. Daily Travel Assistance (DTA) may be payable to individual members of staff who incur additional costs in commuting to a new office. The total cost of DTA for staff relocating from Attenborough House will not be known until solutions have been found for all staff involved, but is unlikely to be substantial. As HMRC expects that staff will relocate, no estimate has been made of potential redundancy costs.

The closure of Attenborough House, Leicester will contribute to estimated estate savings of £10.4 million per year in the east midlands. These savings are only part of the overall savings HMRC expects to achieve as a result of business efficiencies arising from restructuring.

HMRC is unable to disclose the estate savings for a particular office on grounds of commercial sensitivity.

Revenue and Customs: Telephone Services

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if HM Revenue and Customs will establish a hotline for hon. Members to contact them on behalf of constituents on matters other than tax credits. [249660]

Mr. Timms: A list of HMRC helplines for hon. Members is available on the parliamentary website.

HMRC operates a child benefit helpline for hon. Members as well as one for tax credits. There are no current plans to expand telephone hotline services for hon. Members but the situation is kept under review.

Stamp Duty Land Tax

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the revenue received by the Exchequer in stamp duty land tax since the announcement of the stamp duty holiday in September 2008; what recent estimate he has made of the cost to the Exchequer of the stamp duty holiday; and what assessment he has made of the effect of the stamp duty holiday on the housing market. [249305]

Ian Pearson: Since the advent of the stamp duty land tax holiday in September stamp duty land tax receipts for the three months from September to November 2008 have amounted to £1.1 billion.

The estimated exchequer cost of the stamp duty land tax holiday, published in the pre-Budget report, was £280 million.

It is too early to make an assessment of the effect of the stamp duty land tax holiday on the housing market.

Tax Credit

Steve Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the effect on public expenditure of removing the second income threshold on tax credits and applying a consistent taper rate of (a) 46 per cent., (b) 45 per cent., (c) 44 per cent. and (d) 43 per cent. in each of the next five years; if he will estimate the number of people who would no longer be eligible for tax credits in each case; and if he will make a statement. [249567]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 20 January 2009]: The estimated saving, in 2009-10 to 2013-14, of removing the second income threshold and applying a consistent taper rate at each of the rates requested, is provided in the following table. No account has been taken of possible behavioural effects.

Effect on expenditure

£ million

Taper rate	2009-10	2010-11	2011-12	2012-13	2013-14
46 per cent.	-2,590	-2,670	-2,670	-2,750	-2,810
45 per cent.	-2,380	-2,460	-2,460	-2,520	-2,570
44 per cent.	-2,160	-2,230	-2,230	-2,280	-2,310
43 per cent.	-1,930	-2,000	-1,990	-2,020	-2,040

These changes would not affect the number of claimants eligible for tax credits. However, they would increase the number of claimants with awards reduced to zero.

Taxation: Part-time Employment

Mr. Evans: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the merits of providing tax exemptions to encourage part-time work, with particular reference to the likely effects of such a policy on small businesses. [249840]

Mr. Timms: The decision to employ part- or full-time employees is a commercial decision, specific to the circumstances of the employer.

National insurance contributions are paid proportionately on the hours an employee works, whether part- or full-time.

The Part Time Workers Directive means that part-time workers cannot be treated any less favourably than comparable full-time workers.

Taxation: Self-assessment

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many taxpayers were penalised £100 for late tax returns for the tax year 2006-07; and how many of them appealed (a) successfully and (b) unsuccessfully against that penalty. [250199]

Mr. Timms: HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) issued penalty notices for failing to file 2006-07 Income Tax self-assessment tax returns on time to 1,110,023 customers to the end of December 2008.

Information on the number of appeals resolved (either successfully or unsuccessfully) is not available. However, 85,175 customers had their penalty notices cancelled in that period and 317,849 customers had their penalties capped.

Taxation: Small Businesses

Mr. Evans: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received advocating the reduction of payroll taxes for small businesses; and what assessment he has made of those representations. [249841]

Mr. Timms: Treasury Ministers and officials receive representations from a wide range of organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such representations.

Terrorism: Finance

Mr. Leech: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much funding has been frozen in the UK in each of the last five years due to suspected or proven links to terrorist organisations. [248993]

Ian Pearson: The Treasury reports quarterly to Parliament on the exercise of its powers under these orders. This report includes the total amount and number of funds frozen as at the end of each period. As of 30 September 2008, a total of 252 separate accounts containing approximately £670,000 of suspected terrorist funds were frozen in the UK. The next report, covering the period October 2008 to December 2008, will be laid shortly.

The figure is based on balances reported at the time of freezing and represents funds frozen under the Terrorism (United Nations Measures) Orders 2001 and 2006 and the Al-Qaeda and Taliban (United Nations Measures) Orders 2001 and 2006. Money may be frozen under these orders on a number of different grounds, not all of which require a suspected or proven link to a terrorist organisation.

The figure does not include action taken under other counter-terrorist legislation which are not within the remit of HM Treasury.

The Treasury does not publish a historic breakdown of frozen or unfrozen funds for each year, due to the need to avoid the identification, directly or indirectly, of personal or operationally sensitive information.

Written Ministerial Statements

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer at what time his Department makes written ministerial statements available to (a) hon. Members and (b) members of the press; and if he will make a statement. [250426]

Angela Eagle: Announcements are made in accordance with the provisions set out in the ministerial code.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Fuel Poverty

7. Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what his most recent estimate is of the level of fuel poverty in the UK. [249990]

Joan Ruddock: The most recently published estimate of fuel poverty shows that there were around 3.5 million fuel poor households living in the UK in 2006.

Carbon Dioxide Emissions

10. Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what progress has been made towards the Government's target of reducing carbon dioxide emissions by 20 per cent. by 2010; and if he will make a statement. [249993]

Joan Ruddock: We expect CO_2 emissions to fall to about 15 per cent. below 1990 levels by 2010, taking into account the impact of credits surrendered through the EU emissions trading scheme. Our goal, which we adopted in 1997, was challenging, but that was its purpose. It was designed to give a clear signal of the direction in which policy was moving, allowing long term planning and stimulating innovative responses. In these respects it has been successful.

Nuclear Power

13. Andrew Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent discussions he has had on Government policy for the future of nuclear power; and if he will make a statement. [249996]

Edward Miliband: Government are engaging regularly with a wide range of stakeholders on the future of nuclear new build in the UK, including industry.

I have had meetings on numerous matters concerning my energy portfolio which includes nuclear power.

Domestic Energy

14. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent estimate he has made of the average annual cost of domestic energy to consumers. [249998]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department publishes estimates of annual bills in its publication Quarterly Energy Prices and on the web. The estimates are based on annual usage of 3,300 kWh for electricity and 18,000 kWh for gas. These show that in 2008 the average bill for a consumer paying by standard credit was £975 (£405 for electricity and £570 for gas). Data split by region and by other payment methods are available in the publication.

Nuclear Generation

15. Mr. Don Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the nuclear generation capacity that will come on-stream in the next 10 years. [249999]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Our modelling projects that at the end of 2025 total nuclear capacity in most scenarios is expected to be at least 10GW, just a little lower than the current level of 11GW.

Electricity Generation

16. Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of the effect of the current economic climate on levels of expenditure on new electricity generation plants. [250000]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Along with the regulator Ofgem, I am closely monitoring the effects of the current economic climate on the energy sector, including on investment plans. There are signs of the willingness of investors to continue to develop new generation capacity with some 9 gigawatts of new electricity plant currently under construction. In addition some 3 gigawatts of new plant has received consent, while consent applications with a further 4.5 gigawatts have also been received.

Electricity Generation

17. Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent estimate he has made of (a) the UK's electricity generation capacity and (b) the spending required to sustain that capacity over the next 10 years. [250001]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The UK currently has 75 GW of installed electricity generating capacity.

There are various estimates but some industry estimates suggest that up to £100 billion investment in new electricity generation capacity will be required over the next 10 years to replace those power stations expected to close and build the new renewable generation needed to meet the electricity sector's contribution towards the EU's 2020 target for 20 per cent. of energy consumption in the UK to come from renewable energy sources.

On-Shore Wind Farms

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change when he next expects to meet representatives of local authorities in East Anglia to discuss on-shore wind farms in that area. [249992]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change has no planned meetings with representatives of local authorities in East Anglia to discuss onshore wind farms in that area.

Save Energy Save Money Campaign

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Government's Save Energy Save Money advertising campaign; and if he will make a statement. [249994]

Joan Ruddock: The Government launched the new phase of the Act On CO_2 campaign in September 2008. Initial evaluation of the campaign has shown a favourable response with over 550,000 unique visitors to the campaign website since its launch and over 270,000 calls to the Act On CO_2 advice line between August and November 2008. This is more than double the number of calls the line received over the same period in 2007.

Smart Meters

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what plans his Department has to encourage the provision of smart meters for domestic energy customers. [249995]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Government announced on 28 October last year that we will mandate the provision of smart meters to all households. We have also set out an indicative timetable for this programme under which roll-out would be completed by the end of 2020.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Democratic Republic of Congo: Armed Forces

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of whether the Government of the Democratic Republic of Congo has taken steps to establish an independent and effective vetting process to exclude individuals suspected of having committed crimes under international law or other human rights violations from its security forces. [246314]

Gillian Merron: The Government of the Democratic Republic of Congo has yet to make a serious effort to implement vetting mechanisms called for in UN Security Council resolutions 1856 (2008), 1794 and 1820.

We support ongoing work by the UN integrated Human Rights Office to document abuses by individuals in the armed and security forces, which could usefully inform work on a future vetting mechanism. We have raised the issue with Congolese authorities. Most recently, our ambassador in Kinshasa referred to the importance of vetting in the armed forces in a speech to the Congolese Parliament at the showing of a documentary on sexual violence.

Embassies: Finance

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the answer of 26 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1048-9W, on exchange rates, which 10 overseas posts have had the greatest reduction in the purchasing power of their local budgets; and what the reduction has been in each case. [242706]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office maintains an overseas pricing movement (OPM) mechanism, intended to negate the impact of changes in exchange rates on the budgets of overseas posts. The OPM increases or decreases the sterling budget of posts when there is a change in the value of sterling relative to local currencies. This ensures that posts purchasing power is kept consistent.

The following table shows the 10 posts most affected by exchange rate fluctuations and the resulting change in budget due to the last OPM exercise completed in October 2008.

Ranking	Country	Post	Initial budget (£)	OPM uplift (£)	New OPM uplift (percentage)	New budget (£)
1	Moldova	Chisinau	276,425	94,596	34.22	371,021
2	Czech Republic	Prague	1,367,901	453,943	33.19	1,821,844
3	Poland	Warsaw	1,899,370	615,929	32.43	2,515,299
4	Georgia	Tbilisi	751,724	221,919	29.52	973,643
5	Slovakia	Bratislava	514,504	149,465	29.05	663,969

9	Brazil	Rio de Janeiro	1,361,791	259,488	19.05	1,621,279

Ethiopia: Eritrea

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the UK's role is in resolving the Ethiopia-Eritrea border dispute; and what (a) funding and (b) staff resources he has allocated to this function. [249350]

Gillian Merron: The UK's policy towards the Ethiopia-Eritrea border dispute has three aims: to avoid any return to war; for the border to be demarcated; and for the parties to normalise their relations. Ethiopia and Eritrea should agree a way forward to allow demarcation to proceed and for a normalisation process to begin, as set out in the Algiers Agreements of June and December 2000, to which both Ethiopia and Eritrea are signatories.

My right hon. Friend the Member for Harrow, East (Mr. McNulty) the then Minister for Counter Terrorism and Immigration discussed the border issue when meeting the Ethiopian Prime Minister Meles Zenawi on a visit to the horn of Africa in June 2008. My noble Friend, the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, Lord Malloch-Brown also discussed this issue with the Eritrean ambassador in December 2008. In addition, Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) officials regularly reiterate these messages to both the Ethiopian and Eritrean ambassadors to London and to their interlocutors in the Governments of Ethiopia and Eritrea in Addis Ababa and Asmara respectively.

From July 2000 to July 2008, we funded the United Nations Mission in Ethiopia and Eritrea (UNMEE) through our assessed contributions. Our embassies in Addis Ababa and Asmara along with other members of the FCO are involved in efforts to resolve the dispute. However, as this is one of many issues with which they have to deal with, it is difficult to offer a precise figure for resources used for this purpose.

Greece: Macedonia

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what diplomatic steps his Department has taken to encourage agreement between Greece and the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia (FYROM) in their negotiations on the name of FYROM. [247729]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 15 January 2009]: UN Special Representative, Matthew Nimetz, mediates negotiations between Greece and Macedonia seeking to resolve their bilateral dispute over the 'name issue'. The UK supports this process and we regularly encourage both Greece and Macedonia to work seriously and flexibly to find a solution. Since the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation summit last year, Ministers and officials have discussed the matter with both our Greek and Macedonian counterparts. Our ambassadors in Athens and Skopje also regularly raise the issue at the most senior levels.

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the prospects for agreement between Greece and the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia (FYROM) on the name of FYROM being reached in the near future; and if he will make a statement. [247730]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 15 January 2009]: Negotiations between Greece and Macedonia on the 'name issue' are ongoing under the auspices of UN Special Representative, Matthew Nimetz. The UK is not party to the detail of these negotiations or the position taken by the two parties in the negotiations and therefore any assessment of the prospects for agreement would necessarily be speculative. However, we continue to encourage both Macedonia and Greece to engage flexibly in the negotiations and hope that they will be able to find an early solution.

Holidays Abroad: Health Services

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what support his Department provides for the families of those whose relatives (a) are taken ill and (b) die whilst on holiday abroad. [248394]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 19 January 2009]: Consular staff in London and around the world can offer advice and support to the families of those whose relatives are either taken ill or die while they are overseas. In the case of illness or injury, with the individuals' permission, we can inform family and friends and keep them up to date with developments. We can also help transfer money from friends or relatives in the UK to meet any necessary costs.

In the event of a death overseas, we ask the UK police to contact the next of kin as soon as possible. Consular staff do their best to ensure that the family's wishes are carried out, for example regarding burial, cremation or bringing the body home. We can put the family in touch with local lawyers and local and international funeral directors. As with hospitalisation, we cannot pay expenses, but we can help transfer money from friends or relatives in the UK.

If the death occurred under suspicious circumstances, we can assist the family in dealing with the local police—and staff are available to meet family representatives in London. When there is an ongoing investigation overseas, we can ask a local UK police force to consider providing a family liaison officer, who advises and helps the family in dealing with the investigation.

Nigeria: Corruption

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Nigerian Government about tackling corruption in that country. [248544]

Gillian Merron: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and my noble Friend the Minister of State for Africa, Asia and the UN, Lord Malloch-Brown, both discussed corruption with the Nigerian Foreign Minister, Chief Ojo Maduekwe, when he visited London on 10 December 2008. Our high commissioner and senior officials also continue to raise corruption issues with the Nigerian Government on a regular basis. The Government welcome President Yar'Adua's public commitment to the rule of law, reform and tackling corruption. We continue to work with the Nigerian Government to build an effective institutional framework to tackle corruption. This includes cross-Whitehall co-operation with the Nigerian authorities to bring individual cases to prosecution.

Somalia: Armed Conflict

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on Islamist forces allegedly taking control of bases in Mogadishu vacated by departing Ethiopian troops. [249832]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 20 January 2009]: The security situation in south central Somalia remains extremely challenging following the withdrawal of the Ethiopian troops. It is difficult to verify the divergent reports emerging from Mogadishu. However, on 16 January, the African Union Mission in Somalia (AMISOM) released a press statement saying that, contrary to some press reporting, areas vacated by the Ethiopian troops have now been occupied by Transitional Federal Government (TFG) and Alliance for the Re-liberation of Somalia (ARS) forces, who are working together under the Djibouti peace process. Ethiopia's withdrawal presents a security challenge, but it also offers an opportunity for progress towards a Somali-led, long-term political solution to the conflict.

Uganda: Armed Conflict

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of (a) the activities of the Lords Resistance Army (LRA) and (b) the prospects that the LRA leader Joseph Kony will rejoin peace talks. [248729]

Gillian Merron: We strongly condemn the indiscriminate attacks by the Lords Resistance Army (LRA) on Congolese and South Sudanese civilians which have occurred over the last month. Reports of these attacks vary widely, but the UN have estimated the attacks have resulted in around 500 casualties and 400 abductions.

The Government of Uganda remains committed to the Juba Peace Process. They have publicly stated that the aim of the current military operation against the LRA is to put further pressure on Joseph Kony to sign the Final Peace Agreement, already negotiated and agreed on in Juba, including by the LRA. David Matsanga, the LRA spokesperson, has called for an immediate ceasefire, to enable the LRA to return to the negotiating table under new conditions.

WALES

Revenue and Customs

Mrs. Betty Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales pursuant to the answer of 11 December 2008, Official Report, column 260W, on Revenue and Customs: Wales, what arrangements other business units relocating from Bangor have in place to ensure continuation of the provision across north Wales of the Welsh language service. [246788]

Mr. Timms: I have been asked to reply.

HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) provides a comprehensive Welsh language service across all business areas in line with the Welsh Language Act 1993. The majority of HMRC's Welsh language services are provided from its offices in Porthmadog and Cardiff. These offices continue to be able to recruit Welsh speaking staff. They are being retained and the services they provide to Welsh speaking customers who telephone, visit or write, will be unaffected by the regional review decisions for Wales.

Those business units currently located in Bangor which offer services to external customers (principally Debt Management and Banking, Local Compliance and Benefits and Credits Delivery) are committed to the continued provision of a Welsh language service in accordance with HMRC's Welsh Language Scheme. Details of the scheme are published on the HMRC internet site at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/cymraeg/welsh-language-scheme-english.pdf

As my hon. Friend confirmed in her earlier answer of 11 December 2008, Official Report, column 263W, face to face inquiry services in Bangor will continue to be provided for Welsh language speakers either from the same building or from another building nearby.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Crime Prevention

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the performance of the Lock Out Crime Scheme against its objectives. [248427]

Paul Goggins: Over a three year period, the lock out crime scheme has contributed to a 24.5 per cent. reduction in domestic burglary against a target of 2.1 per cent. and has improved security in approximately 17,000 homes across Northern Ireland against a target of 7,000 to 10,000 homes.

Feedback from the beneficiaries of the scheme has indicated that a majority enjoy an increased level of personal security as a direct result of this initiative.

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much his Department's central media and communication unit spent on public surveys in each of the last three years. [248027]

Paul Goggins: The total expenditure by the Northern Ireland Office's central media and communication unit on public surveys in each of the last three years is set out in the following table.

Financial year	NIO Total expenditure on public surveys (£)
2006-07	21,385
2007-08	65,565
2008-09 (to date as at January 2009)	21,385

Police Service of Northern Ireland: Finance

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of the effect on the Northern Ireland policing budget if devolution of policing and justice takes place during the current Comprehensive Spending Review period. [248929]

Paul Goggins: The total allocation for PSNI is in excess of £1.1 billion for each of the three years of the comprehensive spending review (CSR). In providing for the CSR settlement, the Government took account of expectations in relation to the devolution of policing and justice.

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what level of resource expenditure on the part of the Police Service of Northern Ireland he estimates there will be in the current three year comprehensive spending period. [249015]

Paul Goggins: The Police Service of Northern Ireland was allocated the following resource budget in the current three year comprehensive spending period:

	Police Service of Northern Ireland (£ million)
2008-09	1,199
2009-10	1,184
2010-11	1,159

Prisons: Cannabis

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps are being taken to ensure the amount of cannabis used in Northern Ireland's prisons is reduced. [248115]

Paul Goggins: On 21 July 2008 I published a comprehensive report on measures to tackle the flow of drugs into prison establishments.

Since then, significant steps have been taken to ensure that the volume of drugs including cannabis entering prisons is reduced. These include:

Stringent new measures to manage inmates' personal cash accounts including restrictions on the passing of money into or out of the prison;

Further training and deployment of specialist search staff, including use of specialist staff at visits entrances;

Specialist training for new support grade staff;

Enhanced observation of prisoners visits;

Improved sharing of intelligence and closer co-operation with PSNI in identifying potential traffickers;

Improved arrangements for the arrest and prosecution of individuals suspected or identified smuggling drugs into prisons.

Re-offenders

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 203W, on re-offenders, what the release dates are for the 13 people still in custody. [250494]

Paul Goggins: Only three of the persons referred to in the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 203W, currently have release dates—April 2009, February 2012 and May 2012 respectively.

If the hon. Gentleman would like further information he may care to write to me.

Young Offenders: Convictions

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many juveniles were convicted of a criminal offence in Northern Ireland in the last 12 months for which figures are available, broken down by category of offence. [250535]

Paul Goggins: The following table gives the number of juveniles (aged 10 to 17 years) convicted of an offence broken down by offence classification.

Data are for the calendar year 2006 (the latest year available) and are collated on the principal offence rule; so only the most serious offence with which an offender is charged is included.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Electric Cables

Chris Huhne: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what steps are taken to test and improve the fire resistance to EU standards of electrical cable that is (a) manufactured in the UK, (b) imported from another EU member state and (c) imported from outside the EU (i) at point of import or manufacture and (ii) at other times before installation of the cable; [247114]

(2) what steps are being taken to ensure that fire-resistant electric cable imported for use by the UK construction industry meets EU standards. [247118]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have been asked to reply.

Fire resistance for electric cables is covered by European standards developed under the Construction Products Directive (89/106/EEC). The 1991 UK Construction Products Regulations (SI 1620) implement this directive in the UK, and require that all products used in construction works must satisfy essential requirements (including safety in fire) for their use, where that use is regulated. In turn, the England and Wales Building Regulations (regulation 7) require that products must be fit for purpose in use. The guidance to this functional requirement states that testing and certification to a harmonised EU standard is one way of demonstrating compliance. In addition, the guidance to part B of the Building Regulations (Fire Safety) states that cables showing the appropriate classification against harmonised EU standard (BS EN 50200:2006) can be deemed compliant with the relevant requirements of part B. Scotland and Northern Ireland have similar provisions. These conditions apply equally to products manufactured in the UK or imported from either the EU or elsewhere. These requirements govern the fire resistance of cables in use: there is no mandatory requirement for testing or certification at point of manufacture or marketing.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Africa: International Assistance

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress has been made to date towards meeting the G8 Gleneagles pledge to (a) increase official development assistance (ODA) by $50 billion, (b) increase ODA to Africa by $25 billion and (c) cancel 100 per cent. of heavily indebted poor countries' debt by 2010; what steps are being taken to ensure that the G8 meets these targets by 2010; and if he will make a statement. [248507]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: According to the latest available data from the OECD Development Assistance Committee (DAC), ODA from DAC members increased from $79 billion in 2004 to $104 billion in 2007, and ODA to Africa has increased from $30 billion in 2004 to $39 billion in 2007.

The Multilateral Debt Relief Initiative agreed at Gleneagles in 2005 has delivered an additional $42 billion of debt cancellation to 23 countries including 19 in Africa. Non-DAC donors are also contributing to meeting the targets. The ODA increases by the G8 and other donors towards the 2005 targets are monitored by the DAC, the European Commission and by civil society, and are discussed in intergovernmental bodies including the United Nations, the G8, the European Council, and DAC High Level meetings. The UK Government is continuing to work with others to ensure effective delivery of the commitments made in 2005.

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the UK's agreed contribution was towards the G8 Gleneagles pledge to (a) increase official development assistance (ODA) by $50 billion and (b) increase ODA to Africa by $25 billion by 2010 (i) as a percentage of each total and (ii) in monetary terms expressed in (A) US dollars and (B) pounds; and if he will make a statement. [248508]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: At Gleneagles, the UK announced a timetable to provide 0.7 per cent. of gross national income (GNI) as official development assistance (ODA) by 2013. The European Union agreed to provide 0.56 per cent. of its GNI as ODA in 2010, with at least half of the increase allocated to sub-Saharan Africa. On the basis of these commitments, and those of other donors, the OECD estimated that total annual ODA would increase by around $50 billion between 2004 and 2010, and annual ODA to Africa would increase by $25 billion.

In the comprehensive spending review settlement announced in October 2007, the Government announced that DFID would spend £7.9 billion in 2010-11, and projected that total UK ODA would reach £9.1 billion (0.56 per cent. of projected GNI), compared to ODA of £4.3 billion in 2004. This projected increase of £4.8 billion is equivalent to US$7.3 billion at today's exchange rates, about 15 per cent of the $50 billion increase expected to result from the Gleneagles commitments. The Government has not announced a projection of total UK ODA to Africa, but has announced that DFID will increase its total multilateral and bilateral aid to Africa from £1.3 billion in 2004 to more than £3 billion in 2010—equivalent to $2.6 billion at today's exchange rates, and over 10 per cent. of the $25 billion increase for Africa announced at Gleneagles commitments.

Bangladesh: Overseas Aid

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much funding his Department has allocated to development projects in Bangladesh in each of the last five years. [248934]

Mr. Michael Foster: Details on DFID's bilateral expenditure and imputed share of multilateral Official Development Assistance (ODA) are contained in the DFID publication 'Statistics on International Development'. This publication is available from in the Library and online at:

www.dfid.gov.uk.

Relevant figures are produced in the following table.

DFID expenditure in Bangladesh, 2003-04 to 2007-08

£000

	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Total DFID bilateral programme	55,383	127,904	123,368	109,313	129,392
DFID imputed multilateral shares	26,967	19,951	37,860	42,029	—

Note:
Imputed multilateral figures for 2007-08 are not yet available.

Burundi: Overseas Aid

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what aid his Department is providing to build capacity in Burundi, with particular reference to assistance to the parliamentary authorities in that country. [248613]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development (DFID) is working with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and development partners in Burundi to help build state capacity in the health, education and justice sectors. For example, within the education programme which will provide £6 million over three years, we are strengthening the ministry's capacity for policy making and management of the education system. Technical assistance to the Ministry of Finance and our health and education sector programmes all include components to strengthen the government's public financial management and procurement capacity.

With regard to parliamentary strengthening, the All-Party Parliamentary Group on the Great Lakes is planning to visit Burundi in February 2009 to provide support to a cross-party group of MPs through an FCO-sponsored workshop, which will also strengthen ties between our two parliaments. DFID is complementing capacity-building support to the Burundian parliament, provided by other donors, through our £6 million over six years Joint Governance Programme with the Swedish International Development Agency. This aims to reinforce other institutions important for transparency and accountability—the media, civil society, oversight institutions—by building their capacity to scrutinise government action. This should help create a more conducive environment for parliament to play its role.

Departmental Air Travel

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many journeys (a) he and his predecessors and (b) his officials made by aeroplane in the course of their duties in each of the last five years. [246667]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Travel by Ministers and civil servants is undertaken in accordance with the "Ministerial Code" and the "Civil Service Management Code" respectively.

The information requested could not be provided without incurring disproportionate costs.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much has been spent on (a) maintaining, (b) decorating and (c) otherwise improving departmental buildings in the last five years; how much has been spent on wallpaper since 2001; and what plans there are for further spending on departmental decoration. [248057]

Mr. Michael Foster: The total amounts spent on maintaining the Department for International Development's (DFID) two UK headquarters in the last five years are as set out in the following table.

These sums include all costs associated with planned preventative maintenance, and items such as spare parts, health and safety equipment, subcontracted maintenance contracts and costs associated with the internal reorganisation of the buildings.

	Total (£)
2004-05	992,252
2005-06	1,031,561
2006-07	1,013,528
2007-08	920,701
2008-09	994,774

In addition to the above, we spent £4,980,789 in 2004-05 and £1,285,379 in 2005-06 on a major refurbishment project of our East Kilbride headquarters, which included major construction and refitting costs.

There are currently no specific plans for further redecoration other than general maintenance.

Departmental Catering

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which (a) food and (b) drinks suppliers have been used by his Department in each of the last three years; and how much his Department paid to each such supplier in each of those years. [248382]

Mr. Michael Foster: DFID operates a staff restaurant in each of its two UK offices. In the three last three financial years 2005-06 to 2007-08 these were operated under contract by Yes Dining Ltd. until December 2008 when the contracts were re-tendered and awarded to Charlton House Catering Services Ltd.

The amount paid in each year was as follows:

2005-06	384,403
2006-07	376,487
2007-08	350,300

These amounts include the subsidy paid for the operation of the restaurants, including staff and other running costs, and costs of refreshments at official meetings and events. It is not possible to separately identify costs of food and drinks, or of the individual suppliers used by the catering contractors.

Departmental Official Cars

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many hybrid vehicles his Department (a) owns and (b) owned in 2007-08. [246869]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development owns no hybrid vehicles.

Developing Countries: Foreign Investment

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the likely effects of the global economic situation on the level of foreign direct investment from the United Kingdom to developing countries in 2009; and if he will make a statement. [248781]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The main source for data on Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) flows is the annual World Investment Report (WIR) published by the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development:

http://www.unctad.org/en/docs/wir2008_en.pdf

WIR 2008 predicted that the global financial crisis would result in FDI flows for the whole of 2008 falling 10 per cent. from the 2007 level, although the report also suggests that FDI flows to developing countries are less likely to be affected.

According to the Office of National Statistics FDI surveys, UK companies have invested £96 million in Africa and £7.3 billion in Asia in 2007.

DFID maintains a substantial investment climate reform programme to help improve the environment for both foreign and domestic investment flows. This includes a three-year £17 million commitment to the Investment Climate Facility for Africa.

Development Aid

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the likely effects of global economic conditions on the level of remittances from the United Kingdom to developing countries in 2009; and if he will make a statement. [248780]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 17 November 2008, Official Report, column 119W.

Recently the World Bank, in the publication 'Outlook for Remittance Flows 2008-2010' estimated UK remittances outflows at $5 billion for 2007. World Bank analysis of 'EU-15', that includes the UK, states that "outward remittances from the EU-15 countries are expected to decline by nearly eight per cent. in 2009, primarily due to a strengthening of the US dollar".

The World Bank's central estimate is that remittance flows to developing countries will fall by 0.9 per cent. this year. However, this could go down further as the impact of the financial crisis deepens, with a worst case scenario according to the Bank of a fall of six per cent.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what information he has on the impact of the Israeli military attack on the Palestinian territories in Gaza in December 2008 on British-supported aid projects in Gaza; what the cost of damage to such projects is; and what representations he has made to the Israeli government on the matter. [248614]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: I refer the hon. Member for Blaenau Gwent to my statement of 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 20WS.

Middle East: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what funding his Department has given to the UN Development Programme Trust Fund to support the role of the Quartet Middle East Envoy since June 2007; what such funding is planned for 2009; and if he will make a statement. [248782]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: In 2007-08, the Department for International Development provided £400,000 to the UN Development Programme Trust Fund to support the office of the Quartet Representative in Jerusalem. We will continue to keep funding requirements for the post under review and will consider support, as necessary.

Mozambique: Police

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether he has made representations to the government of Mozambique in support of police reform in that country; and if he will make a statement. [249005]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The UK Government are concerned about human rights violations and lack of police accountability of the kind described in the Amnesty International report on Mozambique—'Licence to Kill'. In July 2008 the Secretary of State wrote to the government of Mozambique, highlighting some of the key measures required in order to make demonstrable progress in tackling corruption—including in the policing and justice sectors—and to strengthen the legislative framework to eliminate any idea of impunity under the law in Mozambique. The British high commissioner has also raised the issue of police accountability and reform with relevant Ministries on a number of occasions in 2008.

In the process of drawing up its Country Assistance Plan in 2007, the Department for International Development (DFID) decided not to enter the justice sector in Mozambique as a number of major donors—including the World Bank, UNDP, the European Commission, USAID, the Netherlands and Denmark—were already actively engaged. However, well established donor co-ordination mechanisms in Mozambique allow for regular technical dialogue between donors and with government, throughout the year, on the justice and other sectors. UK concerns about policing issues are also specifically raised with the Mozambique government through the EU and high commission.

Overseas Aid

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department plans to take to improve the UK's position in the Centre for Global Development's Commitment to Development Index. [245267]

Mr. Michael Foster: The 2006 White Paper "Making Governance Work for the Poor" set out the Government's commitment to promoting coherent support for development across a wide range of international policies. One of DFID's Departmental Strategic Objectives for the three year period 2008-11 is to:

"develop a global partnership for development (beyond aid)".

Progress in this area is reviewed annually in DFID's Annual Report which is available on the DFID website:

www.dfid.gov.uk

Sri Lanka: Politics and Government

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment has been made of the humanitarian situation in the Vanni area of Sri Lanka following (a) the government of Sri Lanka's order to UN agencies and humanitarian non-governmental organisations to withdraw their staff and operations from the region on 5 September 2008 and (b) the flooding from Cyclone Nisha in November 2008. [246290]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development's (DFID) latest field assessment visit in September reinforced our considerable concern about the 230,000 or more displaced people and vulnerable residents in the Vanni and the lack of humanitarian assistance. Without regular direct access the detail of conditions in the Vanni is difficult to monitor. However, we remain in close contact with humanitarian agencies and plan another humanitarian mission in mid-February.

We have continually pressed for all parties to the conflict to respect International Humanitarian Law and for humanitarian convoys to be allowed to deliver assistance more predictably. A full UN-led needs assessment is essential, especially after Cyclone Nisha.

DFID has allocated £2.5 million to the UN, the International Red Cross and the International Organisation for Migration to help support the immediate needs of displaced and vulnerable residents in the Vanni and elsewhere in Sri Lanka. The problem, however, will not be resolved by funding alone and we are resolute in pressing for better humanitarian access and safe humanitarian space. I and other Ministers have pressed the Sri Lankan Government to allow this.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Allotments

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many allotment allocations are vacant, in each constituency. [250378]

Mr. Iain Wright: We do not have centrally held figures for the number of allotment vacancies. Local authorities are responsible for keeping figures on vacancies and we do not require them to provide central Government with these figures. The number of vacancies changes regularly in line with local demand.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what sets of criteria local authorities use to determine allotment allocations. [250379]

Mr. Iain Wright: Under section 23 of the 1908 Allotment Act, when selecting tenants for allotments, local authorities are obliged to select only people resident within their area. There is no universal classification used by local authorities to allocate allotments. Most local authorities will allocate allotment plots according to the date of first application. Preference may be given by some local authorities to persons having special needs, such as old age pensioners, disabled persons or unemployed persons, but that is the decision of the local authority.

Council Tax: Eastbourne

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many summonses to court for council tax arrears were issued in Eastbourne constituency in each of the last five years; [248831]

(2) how many bailiff visits there were for the collection of council tax arrears in Eastbourne constituency in each of the last five years; [248832]

(3) how many householders have been declared bankrupt because of council tax arrears in Eastbourne constituency in each of the last five years. [250738]

John Healey: The administration of council tax is a matter for individual local authorities. The information requested is not collected or held by Communities and Local Government. Data on council tax enforcement is published by CIPFA.

Empty Property

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of empty habitable houses in (a) northern England, (b) the Midlands and (c) the South East and South West; and how many such houses are (i) publicly owned, (ii) privately owned and (iii) owned by housing associations. [249881]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information on the total number of empty habitable dwellings and the number of privately owned empty habitable dwellings is not held centrally; however, an estimate of the number of empty habitable dwellings owned by local authorities and registered social landlords is held and these figures are shown in the following table:

Region	Estimates of local authority habitable vacant dwellings (as at 1 April 2007)	Estimates of Registered Social Landlord habitable vacant dwellings (as at 31 March 2007)
North	7,800	5,150
North East	1,910	780
North West	2,870	2,770
Yorkshire and the Humber	3,020	1,590
Midlands	3,810	2,010
East Midlands	1,950	560
West Midlands	1,860	1,450
South East	1,430	1,310
South West	960	740

Housing: Rural Areas

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to increase (a) the availability of and (b) access to affordable housing in rural areas. [248183]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Homes and Communities Agency has been set a national target to provide 10,300 affordable homes in smaller rural communities from 2008-09 to 2010-11 for both social rent and low cost home ownership. Grant will be allocated to those schemes which meet the needs of local people, the regional strategy and demonstrate strong value for money from the £8 billion National Affordable Housing Programme. The target itself is a significant increase in comparison with previous delivery and represents a significant challenge, by its focus on completions not allocations. However, given current market conditions, it is too early to predict outputs with certainty over the period to 2010-11.

In addition, provisions in the Housing and Regeneration Act 2008 will enable all providers of shared ownership houses to restrict the equity share which shared owners may acquire in order to retain the benefit of the shared ownership homes for future purchasers in areas, such as small rural settlements, where replacement would be difficult.

The Government are also committed to helping the development of a viable, well managed and financially robust Community Land Trust sector. Community Land Trusts have the potential to get the weight of the community behind the development of affordable housing and bring forward land for development, particularly in rural areas. We recently published a consultation on the development of a viable Community Land Trust sector and we have received 63 responses from a wide range of stakeholders which we are currently analysing. We will publish the results in the near future.

Access to social rented housing is determined by the allocations legislation. This is designed to ensure the widest possible access whilst ensuring that priority goes to those people who are in the greatest housing need.

Access to low cost home ownership schemes funded through the Affordable Housing Programme is open to first time buyers with an annual household income of £60,000 or less who are unable to buy a home in the market.

The Prime Minister commissioned a report from the hon. Member for Truro and St. Austell (Matthew Taylor) who has been looking at how land use and planning can better support rural business and deliver affordable housing in rural communities. His report, published in July 2008; provides a comprehensive review of the issues that our rural communities face, including access to affordable housing, and provides a number of practical recommendations. We are looking at the report in detail and will publish a full response shortly.

Infrastructure Planning Commission: Recruitment

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what information the recruitment consultants for the post of Chairman of the Infrastructure Planning Commission (IPC) provided to candidates for the post on the conditions governing early termination of the employment contract, including compensation payable, in the event of abolition of the IPC. [248459]

John Healey: The information pack provided to all candidates draws attention to the Government's intention to conduct a review of the Commission two years after it first becomes operational but does not set out the conditions that would govern any early termination of the employment contract or any compensation payable. These will be set out in the contract of employment in accordance with the provisions of the Planning Act 2008 (Schedule 1 paragraph 5). The terms will be agreed with the successful candidate before appointment.

Local Government: Billing

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued to local authorities in England on the payments of invoices within 10 days; what assessment her Department has made of the extent to which local authorities are meeting this target; and what steps her Department has taken to facilitate local authorities in England paying suppliers within 10 days of receipt of invoice. [250210]

John Healey: In the pre-Budget report, in order to help businesses manage their cash flow, the Government announced that they would aim to pay their suppliers as soon as possible and within 10 days. This commitment has been adopted by a number of local authorities.

Local Government: Suffolk

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects the Boundary Committee for England to report to her on options for the local government structure of Suffolk. [249817]

John Healey: The Boundary Committee has been requested to provide advice to the Secretary of State no later than 13 February 2009 on proposals for unitary local government in Suffolk.

Locla Government Finance: Bexley

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent representations she has received on the local government finance settlement for the London borough of Bexley in 2009-10. [248492]

John Healey: One representation was received from the London borough of Bexley during the consultation period on the local government finance settlement for 2009-10 which ended on 7 January 2009. Issues raised in the representation included the level of the floor and efficiency savings.

Views were also received from the Member for Bexleyheath and Crayford (Mr. Evennett) after the consultation period ended.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when the Minister for Housing will reply to the letters of 5 November 2008 and 5 December 2008 from the hon. Member for the Forest of Dean, reference FD1764, on rent increases for tenants of housing association properties. [250408]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have replied to the letters from the hon. Member.

Non-domestic Rates: Small Businesses

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many businesses have been granted small business rate relief in each year since its introduction in April 2005, broken down by local authority area; what the value was of such relief in each authority area in each year; and if she will make a statement. [247898]

John Healey: I have placed in the Library of the House a table showing (a) the number of businesses that were in receipt of small business rate relief in each local authority in England as at 31 December 2006, the only year for which this information is currently available and (b) the total relief granted in each local authority in England in 2005-06, 2006-07 and 2007-08.

Planning Permission: Inland Waterways

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what planning guidance exists on residential mooring; and if she will make a statement. [250094]

Mr. Iain Wright: No national planning guidance has been published on the provision of residential moorings. That is not to say, however, that development plans should not address the issue of residential moorings where local planning authorities feel it is appropriate to do so.

Social Rented Housing

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to buy stocks of land for social housing in the current economic situation. [248127]

Mr. Iain Wright: We recognise the difficulties the housing market as a whole is currently experiencing and that is why we are committed to taking action. In May, July, September and at pre-Budget report last year we announced measures to tackle the downturn in the housing market. We are responding to the short-term market conditions by introducing measures to provide extra help for first time buyers, homeowners facing difficulties, and keeping housing supply, especially social housing supply, as high as possible. We are bringing forward from 2010-11 £550 million to provide around 7,500 social rented homes 18 months earlier than they would otherwise have been delivered.

The new Homes and Communities Agency, which was established on 1 December 2008, is the Government's key delivery partner in relation to housing and regeneration. It has the ability to acquire land in support of its statutory objects and some of that land will be used for affordable housing. In addition, the HCA is responsible for the management of the programme for the delivery of more and better homes on surplus public sector land, with a target of 200,000 homes by 2016, of which the aspiration is that up to 50 per cent. of homes delivered will be affordable homes. In the current market, we are, however, keeping all options under constant review and the HCA is actively engaged in discussions with the industry.

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 13 January 2009, Official Report, column 619W, on council housing: construction, which local authorities have made (a) bids and (b) successful bids for social housing grants to the Homes and Communities Agency. [249746]

Mr. Iain Wright: The first bids from local authorities for social housing grant from the Homes and Communities Agency will be submitted after we make the necessary changes to the revenue and capital rules described in the previous answer. We issued a consultation on these changes on 21 January. However, seven arm's length management organisations and other local authority wholly-owned special purpose vehicles have bid for grant, of which six have been successful and the other is awaiting assessment. Social homes owned by local authority vehicles of this nature are not subject to the revenue and capital rules which currently apply to council houses owned by the local authority itself.

Unitary Councils

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the reasons were for her decision to issue additional guidance to the Boundary Committee on 8 December 2008 to the effect that they should assess the affordability of and support for new unitary local authorities in (a) Devon, (b) Norfolk and (c) Suffolk in aggregate rather than by individual proposed authority. [248661]

John Healey: We decided it would be helpful to the Boundary Committee to provide the additional guidance on the approach we are seeking for assessing unitary proposals involving two or more unitary councils, as from the financial information published by the Committee on 21 November, it was not clear that such assessments would be on the basis set out in the original request to the Committee of considering such a proposal in aggregate across all the unitary councils involved.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to support the creation of new unitary local authorities in (a) Devon, (b) Norfolk and (c) Suffolk. [248662]

John Healey: My right hon. Friend will take her decisions under the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 on whether or not to implement any unitary proposals she has received from the councils or the Boundary Committee after the end of a period of six weeks, as required by that Act, following the date on which the Boundary Committee has been requested to provide advice to the Secretary of State.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the (a) affordability and (b) level of support for new unitary local authorities in (i) Devon, (ii) Norfolk and (iii) Suffolk. [248663]

John Healey: Such an assessment was made of those proposals for new unitary authorities submitted by Exeter city council, Ipswich borough council and Norwich city council which we made against the five criteria, including affordability and a broad cross section of support, set out in the October 2006 'Invitation to councils in England to make proposals for future unitary structures', and which we made prior to asking the Boundary Committee for advice on proposals for unitary local government in the three county areas of Devon, Norfolk and Suffolk.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether it is her Department's objective in creating new unitary local authorities that all authorities so created are financially viable. [248664]

John Healey: Our "Invitation to councils in England to make proposals for future unitary structures", published in October 2006, set out five criteria, including criteria on affordability and value for money local services, against which proposals for unitary local government would be assessed.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what regiments are based in Afghanistan; and where they are situated. [248158]

Mr. Hutton: I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement given by my predecessor on 8 July 2008, Official Report, column 71WS.

With regard to the location of troops, I have nothing to add to the answer I gave on 18 November 2008, Official Report, column 414W, to the right hon. and learned Member for Devizes (Mr. Ancram).

Antarctic: Navy

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the Royal Navy currently stations any vessels in the British Antarctic Territory. [248003]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Royal Navy does not station any vessels in the British Antarctic Territory. Construction of the necessary infrastructure required to support a permanent naval presence would not be permitted under the Antarctic Treaty.

However, the British Antarctic Survey provides a permanent scientific presence in the British Antarctic Territory and Her Majesty's Government are aware of the strategic importance of also maintaining a sovereign presence in Antarctica through Royal Navy patrols of the waters of the Territory in the austral summer.

Armed Forces: Housing

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the level of uptake was for each scheme to encourage home ownership among service personnel and veterans in each of the last three years. [249695]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my predecessor gave on 2 June 2008, Official Report, columns 674-75W, to the hon. Member for Westbury (Dr. Murrison).

The figures for financial year 2008-09 will be available in May 2009.

Armed Forces: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what percentage of armed forces personnel were fit for task in each year since 2001. [249718]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The MOD collates, on a quarterly basis, management information on the number of Service personnel 'fit for task', which provides a measure of the medical fitness of all trained armed forces personnel. These figures are broken down into three categories: Medically Fully Fit, Medically Not Fully Fit and Medically Unfit. It should be noted that the majority of those personnel who fall under the category of Medically Not Fully Fit remain fit enough to work in some capacity and therefore continue to make a contribution to operational effectiveness, often within theatres of operation.

Prior to 1 April 2006 information was collected by the single services for internal management purposes, but was not required to be reported centrally in a standardised format. It would therefore incur disproportionate cost to retrieve this information and collate it into comparable figures.

Medically fit for task figures from the first quarter of 2006-07 through to the second quarter of 2007-08 can be found in the following table. Personnel numbers are rounded to the nearest 10, and percentages rounded to one decimal point. For information on the period covering the third quarter of 2007-08 through to the second quarter of 2008-09 I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 20 January 2009, Official Report, columns 1262-64W.

[1] Figures for the Naval Service not available due to change over from legacy systems to the Joint Personnel Administration system.
[2] Since 2007 the Army have collated figures for their deployable elements only not their total trained strength.

Since 1 April 2007 the Army has collated quarterly figures for its deployable elements only, rather than for its total trained strength. For this reason the figures are not comparable to those provided by the Navy and RAF in the same period. The Army's deployability returns provide a snapshot, on a specific day, of the deployability of Army personnel broken down into the following categories: fully deployable; limited deployability (LD); personnel unable to deploy (PUD). Many of those personnel classed as LD can and will deploy to operational theatres, likewise PUDs will be able to undertake non-deployed duties.

The following table provides the figures for calendar years 2007-08, personnel numbers are rounded to the nearest 10, and percentages rounded to one decimal point. It should be noted that since September 2008 the deployability return has extended the categories it collects against with the intention of providing greater granularity to limited deployability and PUD data. As result the September and December returns report against different metrics which may account for the increase in numbers.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles: Repairs and Maintenance

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much was spent on armoured vehicle maintenance in each year since 2001. [249705]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Army: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of each Army corps did not meet (a) harmony guidelines for tour intervals and (b) separated service guidelines in each year since 2001. [249701]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Historical data to support the percentage calculation of breaches in harmony guidelines for tour intervals and separated service guidelines for each Army corps in each year since 2001 are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The percentage of each Army corps (for which we record tour interval information), failing to meet harmony guidelines for tour intervals, as at December 2008, is:

Corps	Percentage breaching harmony guidelines
Royal Artillery	55
Royal Armoured Corps	[1]33
Infantry	[2]53

[1]Excludes 2 Royal Tank Regiment as it has not deployed as a formed unit since 2003.
[2]Excludes 1 and 2 Lancs due to their amalgamation (1 Korbr, 1 Kings and QLR) in 2006.

The unit tour interval is a less relevant measure when applied to other corps (such as Royal Engineers and the Royal Corps of Signals). This is due to the frequency with which personnel move between formed units within these corps (the personnel deployed with a unit will be substantially different from the personnel deployed with the same unit on a previous occasion). Unit tour interval data for these Corps are not, therefore, routinely collated.

The latest available data (as at December 2006) recorded separated service guideline breaches at an average of 10.3 per cent. across the Army. It is hoped that separated service data will, in future, be provided by the Joint Personnel Administration System.

Astute Class Submarines: Procurement

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the orders for boats five, six and seven of the Astute class are expected to be placed. [248533]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Three Astute class submarines are on order with BAES (Submarine Solutions), and a further order was placed on 21 May 2007 to commence the build of the fourth boat. Long lead orders have been placed for items in respect of boats five and six. The intent is to place the first long lead order for boat seven before 2010.

As the hon. Member may be aware from the answer I gave on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 71W, to the hon. Member for Bromsgrove (Miss Kirkbride), there has been some delay to the Astute programme. We are re-baselining the programme and I will make an announcement in due course.

Astute-Class Submarines

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what timetable has been set for the completion of the construction programme for Astute-class submarines and the commencement of the programme to construct Trident II submarines in the same facility. [249003]

Mr. Quentin Davies: There has been a delay to the Astute programme. It is currently being re-baselined and an announcement will be made in due course. Lessons learnt from the programme are, however, being applied to the design and build phase of the Future Submarine programme as part of normal business between closely related programmes.

The Future Submarine programme to procure a new class of submarine to replace the Vanguard-class is at an early stage and no decisions have yet been taken on where the submarines will be built.

AWE Burghfield: Nuclear Weapons

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the resilience to nuclear accidents of the proposed main process facility for assembling and dis-assembling nuclear warheads at AWE Burghfield. [248173]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The proposed main process facility for the assembly and disassembly of nuclear warheads at the Atomic Weapons Establishment (AWE) Burghfield is designed in accordance with internationally recognised standards and codes of practice that are applicable to any facility containing explosives and nuclear hazards. These standards have been developed and refined from experience across the nuclear field following research conducted into a number of accident scenarios, to ensure a demonstrably acceptable risk to the public, the work force and the environment.

Given the existence of robust recognised standards, further research is not currently required. Extensive analysis has, however, been conducted by experts at AWE to substantiate the building design and to meet the requirements of the Health and Safety Executive's nuclear installations inspectorate and hazardous installations directorate.

Chad: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department's financial contribution will be in support of the EU military mission to Chad and Central African Republic under the 2004 Athena mechanism. [249715]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Under the Athena mechanism, the UK's share of the approved budget for the EU military operation in Chad and Central African Republic is expected to be £14.7 million on the planned conclusion of the mission in March. This funding comes from the UK Government Peacekeeping Budget which is jointly managed by MOD, DFID and FCO and funded directly from the Treasury reserve.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British armed forces personnel have served as part of EUFOR TChad/CAR in each of the last 12 months. [249717]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Over each of the last 12 months, the UK has maintained a contribution of four military officers as part of EUFOR TChad/Central African Republic (CAR): two officers in the operational HQ at Mont Valerien in Paris and two officers in the force HQ in Chad. These staff officers are being provided under standing EU headquarters augmentation procedures.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Russian (a) military and (b) civilian contracted helicopters are currently used by EUFOR Tchad/CAR; and on how many occasions British personnel have flown in each. [249741]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Russian contingent provides four military and no civilian contracted helicopters for current use by EUFOR Tchad/Central African Republic (CAR). No British personnel have flown in these helicopters.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many RAF (a) C-17 Globemaster, (b) C-130K Hercules, (c) C-130J Hercules, (d) Tristar, (e) VC-10 and (f) other aircraft of each type have flown to the (i) Democratic Republic of Congo, (ii) Rwanda and (ii) Burundi since 21 November 2008. [249716]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: No RAF C-17 Globemaster, C-130K and C130-J Hercules, Tristar, VC-10 or other RAF aircraft have flown to the Democratic Republic of Congo, Rwanda or Burundi since 21 November 2008.

Departmental Consultants

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of each management consultancy study commissioned by his Department from (a) McKinsey and Co, (b) PA Consulting, (c) KPMG and (d) PricewaterhouseCoopers since 2005. [249721]

Mr. Kevan Jones: This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Data Protection

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, columns 94-6W, on departmental data protection, how many (a) desktop computers, (b) laptop computers, (c) hard drives and (d) memory sticks have gone missing from (i) his Department and (ii) each of its agencies in each year since 2003. [249148]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The following tables show the number of officially issued assets centrally reported as missing (lost and stolen) from the MOD and its agencies since 2003. The figures in the following tables reflect the latest data held centrally as at 20 January 2009.

Departmental Finance

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether his Department's underspend of £1.75 billion in 2007-08 against its budget is to be carried forward to 2008-09; and what the reasons are for this underspend. [249004]

Mr. Hutton: The Department's final audited outturn underspend for 2007-08 comprised principally depreciation charges and movements on provisions, requested in the spring supplementary estimate through request for resources 1 (RfR1—provision of defence capability), that did not materialise. This underspend was in indirect resource which, as non-cash, does not contribute to the Department's spending power. Moreover, it was agreed in comprehensive spending review 2007 that any RfR1 non-cash resource underspend would be set at zero at the start of 2008-09 and could not therefore be subject to end year flexibility (EYF), with any requirement for further non-cash provision to be considered with the Treasury when it arose.

A small proportion of the 2007-08 underspend was attributable to RfR2 (peacekeeping and operations), for which the Department is not entitled to claim EYF.

Departmental Pay

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much has been spent by his Department on staff reward and recognition schemes in each of the last three years. [248713]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Department has spent the following on reward and recognition schemes in the past three years.

£000

Reward scheme	Financial year 2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Staff suggestion scheme awards	n/a	41	172
Minor Award Scheme awards	738	219	548
Total	738	260	720

n/a = Not available.

The figures exclude the MOD's trading fund agencies, which are outside the Department's accounting boundary.

Departmental Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend East of 11 November 2008,

Official Report, column 1001W, on departmental public relations, which areas of work or projects the external public relations firm worked on; and for what reasons in-house communications staff were not used for such work. [249021]

Mr. Hutton: Biss Lancaster have been used by the Army's Recruiting Group: to provide strategic advice in the development of its recruitment marketing communications plan to support specific recruitment projects; to generate through the media interest among the recruitment target audience; and to obtain positive coverage of careers in the Army.

In-house communications staff provide essential knowledge of the Army's business. However, the use of Biss Lancaster provides the Army with particular expertise and experience in the specialised recruitment field, offering best value for money to the taxpayer for this type of work.

EC Defence Policy

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the Government's policy is on the provisions of the so-called reciprocity clause contained in the recent EU Directive on the coordination of procedures for the award of certain public works contracts, public supply contracts and public service contracts in the fields of defence and security; and if he will make a statement. [249739]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The directive will provide member states with common procurement rules for defence and security which take account of the special features of that market. This will enable them to open up the majority of their defence procurements (apart from certain sensitive contracts) to competition. The aim is a more effective, open and transparent European defence equipment market and the innovation that will bring.

The Recital in question seeks to outline the importance of the creation of a globally competitive European Defence Industrial Base but importantly does not require member states to purchase defence equipment exclusively from within the European Community. We will continue therefore, as now, to look to the global market to meet our capability needs.

HMS Endurance

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what his most recent assessment is of the extent of damage to HMS Endurance; and what his most recent estimate is of the cost of repair; [248805]

(2) what his Department's plans are for the future of HMS Endurance; [248806]

(3) how and when HMS Endurance will be returned to the UK. [248807]

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment has been made of the extent of the damage to HMS Endurance as a result of the recent flooding incident; what method will be used to return the vessel to the United Kingdom; and whether repair or replacement will be the more economical long-term option. [248532]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: HMS Endurance suffered extensive damage to her engine room and some accommodation areas during the flooding incident in December. Subject to further assessments, our intention is that the ship will return to the UK, by heavy lift repair ship or barge, for repair prior to her return to service, at a date to be agreed. I am withholding the projected repair costs as they are commercial-in-confidence.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how the operational duties of HMS Endurance will be carried out when she is out of commission. [248808]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Her Majesty's Government are aware of the strategic value of sovereign presence in the South Atlantic and Antarctic regions. A number of options are under consideration but it is not yet clear how long the repairs to HMS Endurance will take. HMS Endurance normally undertakes her duties in the austral summer so this year's patrol has, through force of circumstance, been curtailed. Operational deployments are continually weighed against defence responsibilities around the world and therefore it would be inappropriate to provide detail at this point in the planning stage for HMS Endurance's repairs and return to duty.

Investment Approvals Board

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's current Investment Approvals Board forward programme. [249724]

Mr. Quentin Davies: I am withholding this information because the forward programme contains commercially sensitive information, and its release would be prejudicial to the effective conduct of public affairs.

Lynx Helicopters: Procurement

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 11 December 2008, Official Report, columns 65-67WS, on defence equipment, what effect the reduction of the planned production order from 70 airframes to 62 airframes will have on the procurement cost of the Future Lynx programme; and when the decision to reduce the order was taken. [248849]

Mr. Quentin Davies [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The reduction of the planned production order will save some costs, however the extent and breakdown of these savings is commercially sensitive and if released could prejudice our commercial interests. The decision was taken as part of the examination of the equipment programme.

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his Statement of 11 December 2008, Official Report, columns 65-67WS, on defence equipment, on what date the decision was taken to reduce the number of airframes to be procured under the Future Lynx programme from 70 to 62. [248907]

Mr. Quentin Davies [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The decision to reduce the number of aircraft was taken as part of our recent examination of the equipment programme.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to reply to the letter of 9 December 2008 from the hon. Member for Billericay and others on the subject of nuclear test veterans. [249297]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I expect to reply shortly.

Military Aircraft

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many transport and tanker aircraft were available for deployment by the armed forces in each year since 2001. [249703]

Mr. Quentin Davies: I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of the letter in the Library of the House.

RAND Corporation

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the value of contracts given by his Department to the RAND Corporation was in each financial year since 1997-98. [249725]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The value of new contracts awarded by the Ministry of Defence to the RAND Corporation in each of the financial years since 1997-98 is set out in the following table:

Current prices

	Number of new contracts	Value of new contracts (£)
1998-99	2	30,000
1999-2000	0	0
2000-01	0	0
2001-02	3	850,000
2002-03	6	950,000
2003-04	3	1,370,000
2004-05	0	0
2005-06	2	60,000
2006-07	2	440,000
Total	18	3,700,000

These figures include contracts awarded directly to the RAND Corporation, RAND Europe and RAND Europe Cambridge Limited. Contract values have been rounded to the nearest £10,000. The figures do not cover contracts which are awarded to suppliers on behalf of other Government Departments; by the MOD's Trading Funds and Non-Departmental Public Bodies (which lie outside the MOD's accounting boundary); locally by the Department under low-value procedures; or in relation to those collaborative projects where the payments are made through international procurement agencies or overseas governments.

Reserve Forces: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many personnel there are in each service of the volunteer reserves; and what the equivalent figures were for 1997. [249696]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Data on the number of personnel in each service of the volunteer reserves as at 1 April 2008 and 1 April 1997 are available in Table 2.17 of UK Defence Statistics 2008 (UKDS), which can be found at:

http://ww.dasa.mod.uk/UKDS2008/c2/table217.html

Copies of UKDS are also available in the Library of the House.

In addition, DASA produces an Army Personnel Statistics Report on a monthly basis, which includes the Territorial Army. The total number of personnel in the Territorial Army (TA) as at 1 November 2008 was 35,920[1, 2]. There are no equivalent publications for the Naval Service or Royal Air Force, therefore the latest available data for these services are those published in UKDS.

[1] Due to ongoing data validation issues within the Joint Personnel Administration system, TA figures are provisional and subject to review.

[2] Denotes provisional.

USA: Foreign Relations

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he next plans to meet his US counterpart in Washington DC. [249205]

Mr. Hutton: I have regular meetings with Secretary Gates. I expect to see him at the NATO Ministerial meeting at the end of February and I also intend to visit Washington DC in the near future.

Warships: Procurement

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which vessels are currently on order for (a) the Royal Navy and (b) the Royal Fleet Auxiliary; and what the anticipated in-service date is of each. [248531]

Mr. Quentin Davies: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 19 January 2009, Official Report, columns 1053-54W, to the hon. Member for Chorley (Mr. Hoyle) which provides details of Royal Navy vessels currently on order and the in-service dates.

Vessels procured as part of the Military Afloat Reach and Sustainability (MARS) Programme will replace elements of the Royal Fleet Auxiliary. As the hon. Member will be aware from the Equipment Examination announcement on 11 December 2008, Official Report, column 65WS, we are currently reviewing the overall MARS requirement and procurement options, and any resultant implications for the current international competition for the Fleet Tanker element. We expect to determine a way forward later this year.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Children: Maintenance

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission may take when it has good reason to believe that a parent with liability to pay child maintenance plans to leave the country. [249622]

Kitty Ussher: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance system. I have therefore asked the Child Maintenance Commissioner to write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner. The Child Support Agency is now the responsibility of the Child Maintenance Enforcement Commission.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what steps the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission may take when it has good reason to believe that a parent with liability to pay child maintenance plans to leave the country. [249622]

The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission has no powers to impede or to take any action simply on the basis of a current liability to pay child maintenance should a non-resident parent plan to leave the country. If a non-resident parent does not owe arrears of child maintenance payments through the Child Support Agency, then the Commission, quite rightly, has no power to prevent parents from moving abroad.

In cases where a non-resident parent has fallen into arrears, the Commission's current enforcement powers may in some cases make it more difficult for a non-resident parent to realise any assets and leave the country without settling outstanding child maintenance arrears. Whilst a non-resident parent both resides overseas and either has no assets in the UK or does not work for an employer based in the UK, there is no mechanism by which either the Commission or the parent with care may enforce the collection of Child Support Agency debt that accrued whilst the non-resident parent resided in the UK.

New enforcement powers provided by the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008, which are yet to be commenced, will allow the Commission to apply to a court to seek an order disqualifying non-resident parents who have wilfully refused or culpably neglected to pay child maintenance from holding or obtaining a travel document (such as a passport).

If a non-resident parent has left the Commission's jurisdiction, the Official Solicitor and Public Trustee is the authority in England and Wales responsible for the enforcement of maintenance orders overseas. The UK has reciprocal arrangements with more than 100 countries, which enable maintenance obligations to be established or recognised and enforced if the non-resident parent resides in one of those countries. The parent with care may apply to a magistrate's court for a maintenance order to be enforced overseas and procedures also exist to enable the parent with care to ask the foreign authorities to create an order for maintenance on their behalf. This route cannot be used to enforce Child Support Agency debt that was incurred prior to the non-resident parent's move abroad.

Further information on the reciprocal enforcement of maintenance orders can be found at:

http://www.officialsolicitor.gov.uk/os/remo_role.htm.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the (a) planned and (b) actual cost of each IT project completed by his Department and its agencies since 1997 was; what costs have been incurred on IT projects not yet completed; what the estimated cost of each incompleted project is; and if he will make a statement. [246904]

Jonathan Shaw: Although the Department for Work and Pensions does not have any discrete IT projects, it has a number of projects and programmes that include changes to, or new, IT to a greater or lesser extent.

The Department for Work and Pensions was created in June 2001, prior to that arrangements were the responsibility of different Departments and Agencies. The provision of actual costs for all such projects completed by the Department and its Agencies since then would only be available at a disproportionate cost. We have provided such information as is readily available in the two following tables. The first includes:

The projects and programmes currently on the Department's current portfolio where the IT element of the project or programme results in the development and/or implementation of services that underpin the delivery of departmental business.

The planned and actual investment costs of the current portfolio and the estimated cost on completion.

Table 2 details recently closed projects including planned and actual investment costs on completion. The costs of running the solutions implemented by the projects and programmes are not included in either table as in the vast majority of cases they are more than compensated for by the financial and non financial benefits they generate.

Initiatives that are associated with ongoing system improvements or enhancements as part of business as usual are also excluded.

Disability Living Allowance

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what procedures are in place to verify and monitor the accuracy of disability living allowance award entitlement decisions. [246579]

Jonathan Shaw: The Pension, Disability and Carers Service (PDCS) has in place a number of procedures to verify and monitor the accuracy of disability living allowance (DLA) award entitlement decisions.

PDCS has a dedicated national checking team that continuously monitors a randomly selected sample of DLA outcome decisions and appeal submissions. In addition to this, DLA Operations have their own Quality Improvement Support Team that performs random checks on a sample of all recent DLA outcome decisions from each operational unit. Local operational managers also have technical checking teams who target areas of known difficulty before decisions are issued.

Each year, PDCS also performs 12,000 random case interventions under the Right Payment Programme, to ensure the accuracy and correctness of the DLA live load.

To encourage consistency of approach and better quality decisions, PDCS has introduced Customer Case Management (CCM), which provides comprehensive medical guidance for decision makers on the effects of disability, and guidance on focused further evidence gathering including more direct contact between decision makers and customers. To complement the existing checking regime, work is underway to introduce post decision checks targeted at those decisions that do not appear to conform to the medical guidance.

Jobcentre Plus

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the total budget forecast for Jobcentre Plus for the next calendar year was (a) in August 2008 and (b) following the Pre-Budget Report. [245037]

Mr. McNulty: The Department's published three year plan is available in the Library and sets out the planned expenditure of Jobcentre Plus as part of the 2007 comprehensive spending review. The Department will publish a revised plan before the end of the current financial year providing further details on future Jobcentre Plus expenditure.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what the (a) average, (b) lowest and (c) highest salary paid to a Jobcentre Plus personal adviser is in each region; [246580]

(2) what the minimum educational requirements necessary to become a Jobcentre Plus personal adviser are; [246586]

(3) how many and what proportion of Jobcentre Plus staff are paid at the minimum wage rate. [246587]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions asking what the (a) average, (b) lowest and (c) highest salary paid to a Jobcentre Plus personal adviser is in each region; what the minimum educational requirements necessary to become a personal adviser are; and how many and what proportion of Jobcentre Plus staff are paid at the minimum wage rate. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The pay scales for personal advisers are those for Executive Officer Band C. Details of the pay scales are in the following table.

	National	Inner London	Outer London	Specified locations
Minimum	19,650	23,240	21,910	21,620
Maximum	23,990	27,850	26,680	26,210

Specified locations pay zones are those where recruitment difficulties historically have led to an increase in local salary scales. Generally these apply across much of the South East, outside the London pay zones.

Our payroll system does not identify staff by job role and so it is not possible to provide an average salary for personal advisers.

Jobcentre Plus, in line with DWP-wide policy, uses competency based recruitment for all recruitment, rather than education attainment or qualifications. A few exceptions exist for specialist posts, but for personal advisers there is no minimum educational requirement.

No Jobcentre Plus staff are paid at the national minimum wage rate; all our pay rates are above the national minimum wage.

National Insurance: Fraud

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of (a) national insurance (NI) numbers in use, (b) unused NI numbers and (c) fake or fraudulently obtained NI numbers in each of the last five years. [245252]

Mr. McNulty: The latest available figures (2007) show a total of 76.8 million national insurance number (NINO) records on the Department's Customer Information System (CIS). These consisted of:

55.1 million Active accounts—i.e. those showing current or recent use of the NINO.

16.8 million accounts relating to people who are now deceased.

4.9 million Inactive accounts—i.e. those showing no recent activity (and which do not fall into the deceased person account category) such as people who have moved abroad.

Estimates of the number of fake or fraudulently obtained NINOs are not available. DWP has robust checks in place to verify identity prior to the allocation of a NINO and to prevent NINOs being used fraudulently within the benefit system.

Where the Department identifies that a NINO has been used for attempted benefit fraud or may be vulnerable to fraudulent use, the relevant NINO record is annotated accordingly. Any subsequent benefit claim using that NINO would automatically be subjected to close scrutiny and, if appropriate, referral to the Department's Fraud Investigation Service.

The number of NINO accounts annotated for these reasons over the last five years is in the following table:

	Number of marked accounts
2003-04	2,341
2004-05	1,087
2005-06	2,521
2006-07	2,965
2007-08	3,234

Notes:
1. Each year runs from 1 April to 31 March.
2. The table is derived from management information held by Jobcentre Plus National Identity Fraud Unit.

New Deal Schemes

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many participants in the New Deal for (a) Young People, (b) 25 Plus, (c) 50 Plus, (d) Disabled People, (e) Lone Parents, (f) Partners and (g) Musicians entered into work for 13 weeks in each (i) quarter and (ii) year since the scheme's inception; what proportion of participants this figure represented in each case; and if he will make a statement. [246949]

Mr. McNulty: Available information has been placed in the Library.

Pension Credit

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will undertake a review of the regulations governing the way in which the notional return for savings in excess of £6,000 are assessed for those aged over 60 and applying for pension credit. [245478]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 12 January 2009]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Christchurch (Mr. Chope), on 13 January 2009, Official Report, column 578W.

Pensioners: Payments

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many pensioners had payment of their pension suspended as a result of their mail being returned by the post office to a Pensions Office in the last 12 months. [247897]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 21 January 2009]: The information requested is not available.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make it his policy that pension payments continue to be made in circumstances where mail sent to pensioners is returned to a pensions office at least until the reasons for the return of mail have been established. [247819]

Ms Rosie Winterton: It is the current policy within the Department for Work and Pensions that if mail that has been sent to our customer is returned, as it appears they are no longer at that address, then inquiries are conducted before any decision to suspend payment is considered by the decision maker. These inquiries will include; telephoning last known number, a referral to local service and making inquiries of local social services to see if they know of the customer.

Post Office Card Account

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the Statement of 13 November 2008, Official Report, columns 965-82, on the Post Office Card Account, for what reason the addition of the ability to make direct debit payments through the Post Office Card Account would have made it more difficult to award the contract to the Post Office without completing the tender process. [245494]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 12 January 2009]: We concluded that the contract for the Post Office card account should be awarded to the Post Office without completing the tender process. In reaching that conclusion, we took into account that the Post Office card account is a simple product—essentially a means of paying benefit—and that it provides an important social service to vulnerable people, particularly in rural and deprived urban areas. Direct debits, and other additional functionality, are already available through the basic bank accounts which can be accessed at Post Office branches. And we hope, over time, that the Post Office will be able to develop accounts with wider features, on a commercial basis.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent progress has been made on finalising the terms and conditions of the Post Office Card Account contract; in what respect the contract will differ from the existing contract; and when he expects negotiations to conclude. [248889]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 19 January 2009]: Good progress is being made with both parties working together towards finalising the terms and conditions of the new Post Office card account contract. Negotiations will be concluded as soon as possible.

We hope that, subject to contractual discussions with Post Office Ltd., the new product will offer some enhancements to the existing Post Office card account. These should include: a simpler opening process for customers; faster clearance of payments into an account; access via cash machines; and the ability to correct mistakes, for example if the customer withdraws more than they intended to and wants the money immediately put back into their account.

Poverty: Children

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many children in (a) the Vale of York and (b) England were considered to be in severe poverty in (i) 1999 and (ii) 2007; [247609]

(2) how many children were estimated to be in relative poverty in (a) Vale of York constituency and (b) England in each of the last three years. [247613]

Kitty Ussher: There is no official or agreed definition of severe poverty. Child poverty statistics, published in the Households Below Average Income series, only allow a breakdown of the overall number of children in relative poverty at Government office region level or for inner or outer London. This means information for the Vale of York is not available.

Numbers of children living in households with incomes below 60 per cent. of median in 1999-2000, 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2006-07, before housing costs, England

	Number (Million)
1999-2000	2.8
2004-05	2.3
2005-06	2.4
2006-07	2.4

Notes:
1. These statistics are based on Households Below Average Income, sourced from the Family Resources Survey.
2. Small differences should be treated with caution as these will be affected by sampling error and variability in non-response.
3. The reference period for Households Below Average Income figures are single financial years.
4. The income measures used to derive the estimates shown employ the same methodology as the Department for Work and Pensions publication "Households Below Average Income" series, which uses net disposable household income, adjusted (or 'equivalised') for household size and composition, as an income measure as a proxy for standard of living.
5. Incomes have been equivalised using OECD equivalisation factors.
6. Number of children have been rounded to the nearest 100,000 children.

Households Below Average Income, 2006-07.

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many children were living in poverty in Glasgow in (a) January 2007, (b) January 2008 and (c) January 2009. [248538]

Kitty Ussher: The information requested is not available.

Our child poverty statistics, published in the Households Below Average Income series, only allow a breakdown of the number of children in poverty at Government office region/national level.

Social Fund: Complaints

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) complaints and (b) requests for a review of decision have been received by the Social Fund in each month since Jobcentre Plus assumed responsibility for handling the initial application process; and if he will make a statement. [241446]

Kitty Ussher: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking how many (a) complaints and (b) requests for a review of decision have been received by the Social Fund in each month since Jobcentre Plus assumed responsibility for handling the initial application process; and if he will make a statement. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus was introduced on 1st April, 2002 and it assumed immediate responsibility for the Social Fund application process. I have placed the available information in the Library.

Social Security Benefits

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what is the maximum period of time within which (a) benefit claimants are able to make backdated claims for benefit entitlement and (b) for which his Department may seek repayments of overpayments made in error. [247042]

Mr. McNulty: Each benefit has a prescribed time within which a claim must be made in order to establish entitlement—in most cases, three months. With income support and jobseeker's allowance a claim can be backdated for up to three months in certain circumstances.

There is no time limit to the period that the Department can seek to recover an overpayment, just as there is no time limit on the payment of arrears of benefit where the Department is responsible for an underpayment.

Social Security: Private Sector

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the cost of public regulation of private sector contracted welfare services in each of the next five years. [247210]

Jonathan Shaw: DWP providers are subject to external inspection by Ofsted in England and Estyn in Wales to provide assurance that publicly funded provision is delivering a quality experience to all our customers.

During 2008-09 DWP will pay Ofsted £2,800,051 and Estyn £235,000 for external inspection and inspection related activity. The budget for 2009-10 and beyond has not yet been formally agreed.

Territorial Army

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many members of the Territorial Army have been made redundant from their civilian posts in each year since 2001. [248666]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I have been asked to reply.

This information cannot be provided as there is no requirement for employers or reservists to report redundancies.

UN Convention on Disability Rights

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will undertake to ratify the UN Convention on Disability Rights by spring 2009. [247012]

Jonathan Shaw: The Government's intention is to achieve ratification of this important convention at the earliest practicable opportunity, and our ambition is to do so in the spring of 2009.

Unemployed: Voluntary Organisations

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what procedures are in place in each Jobcentre Plus district to arrange for liaison with voluntary agencies for the provision of (a) weekend food and (b) other emergency support for Jobcentre Plus customers who are not in receipt of benefit or assistance from the Social Fund. [241441]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 9 December 2008]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what procedures are in place in each Jobcentre Plus district to arrange for liaison with voluntary agencies for the provision of (a) weekend food and (b) other emergency support for Jobcentre Plus customers who are not in receipt of benefit or assistance from the Social Fund. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

There are no such formal arrangements in place between Jobcentre Plus and voluntary agencies. Crisis Loans from the Social Fund exist to meet these needs.

Jobcentre Plus does provide emergency support through our Social Fund and Out of Hours Service. This can be accessed at weekends through third parties such as the police and social services departments where they determine that a crisis loan may help to prevent serious risk to health and safety. Referrals are made to the Out of Hours Service by telephone and our officers may then visit a customer in their home to make a determination of need and make a payment.

Unemployment

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the likely rate of unemployment in each month of 2009. [248683]

Mr. McNulty: The Government set out their assessment of prospects for the economy in the pre-Budget report. As has been the practice of previous Governments, we do not publish forecasts for unemployment.

Vacancies

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the projected numbers of full time equivalent posts in Jobcentre Plus are in each of the next five years; when the projections were last revised; and what the projections were before that revision. [244216]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what the projected numbers of full time equivalent posts in Jobcentre Plus are in each of the next five years; when the projections were last revised; and what the projections were before that revision. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Projections for numbers of full time equivalent posts in Jobcentre Plus are only available for the three years covered by the Department's Comprehensive Spending Review (CSR) 07. We do not have future information yet about the next CSR settlement. The table below shows the original numbers of full time equivalent posts in Jobcentre Plus projected in each of these years and how these numbers have been revised from November 2008 in light of the pre Budget Report statement. Numbers for March 2011 are under review and a firm figure is not yet available.

March each year	Original Projected Number	Revised Estimated Number (as at December 2008)
2009	65,453	69,000
2010	61,985	72,700
2011	58,529	—

Winter Fuel Payments

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) which constituencies are covered by each weather station used to calculate cold weather payments; [243133]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of (a) cold weather payments made and (b) recipients of cold weather payments in each of the last five years, broken down by constituency. [243134]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 15 December 2008]: The information requested is available only at disproportionate cost.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Apprentices

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many apprentices with each sponsoring employer were aged over 25 years (a) in 2007-08 and (b) to date in 2008-09. [250211]

Mr. Simon: Table 1 shows the total number of apprenticeship starts for those aged 25 or over at the start of their course in the 2007-08 academic year and August-October 2008 (2008-09), the latest period for which published information is available.

This information was published in a statistical first release on 18 December 2008. Information is not available by individual employer.

Table 1: Number of apprenticeship starts for learners aged 25 and over at the start of their course.

Level	2007-08[1]	2008-09[2]
Apprenticeship (level 2)	14,600	9,100
Advanced Apprenticeship (level 3)	12,600	7,700
Total	27,200	16,800

Notes:

2. Higher Level Apprenticeships are included with Advanced Apprenticeships.
3. Provisional data for 2008-09 are subject to a data lag in the region of +5 per cent.

WBL Individualised Learner Record

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) how many of the 35,000 extra apprenticeship places for 2009-10 referred to in the departmental press release of 7 January 2009 are additional to those referred to in the most recent annual grant letter to the Learning and Skills Council of 18 November 2008; [250346]

(2) how many of the additional apprenticeship places referred to in the departmental press release of 7 January 2009 are expected to be in (a) the public sector and (b) the private sector. [250373]

Mr. Simon: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister announced a £140 million package to provide an extra 35,000 apprenticeship places over the coming year in both the public and private sectors to help strengthen the country's competitiveness. The 7 January Press release by my Department provided further information about the package.

All of the extra 35,000 places announced as part of the £140 million package will be available for new places in 2009-10 are additional to those places outlined in the Department's 18 November 2008 Grant Letter to the Learning and Skills Council.

While we expect the public sector to deliver a significant proportion of the additional opportunities, we have not set a target for the balance between public and private sector which will be determined by employer demand.

Departmental Work Experience

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many internships were (a) offered by and (b) taken up within the Department in 2007-08; and how many have been (i) offered and (ii) taken up to date in 2008-09. [250212]

Mr. Simon: The Department made a combined bid with the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) for 30 interns from the Cabinet Office Summer Development and Placement Programmes. The Department bid for four interns and placed three of them in summer 2008. In addition, the Department placed two students on the Windsor Fellowship in summer 2008 which is a leadership programme offering six week internships to talented undergraduate students from ethnic minorities.

The Department has made a similar bid with the DCSF for 15 Summer Development Interns and 15 Summer Placement Interns for summer 2009. The number to be offered places in the Department is yet to be confirmed. We expect the process to be completed by Easter with a view to interns taking up posts in July and August 2009.

The Department has also offered two places to students on the Windsor Fellowship which commences in summer 2009.

Foundation Degrees

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what proportion of the Higher Education Funding Council for England's annual budget was spent on the provision of foundation degrees in each year since the introduction of that qualification. [249108]

Mr. Lammy: The following table shows the percentage of the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE)'s annual budget represented by recurrent teaching allocations explicitly associated with foundation degree students since 2001-02 when foundation degrees were formally established. The latest data available are for 2006-07.

	Foundation funding as a percentage of total HEFCE budget
2001-02	0.2
2002-03	0.6
2003-04	1.0
2004-05	1.6
2005-06	2.2
2006-07	2.7

Higher Education: Admissions

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many people enrolled on a higher national diploma course in each year since 2001; and what the drop-out rate has been in each year since 2001. [249107]

Mr. Lammy: Table 1 shows the number of enrolments on higher national diplomas (HND) since 2001/02. 'Foundation Degrees 2008/13' is the latest report from HEFCE, however, this does not contain figures for HND students. Therefore figures for the 2006/07 academic year are the latest available.

Table 1: Home, EU and overseas enrolments on higher national diplomas English higher education institutions and further education colleges, academic years 2000/102 to 2006/07

Academic year	Enrolments
2001/02	63,285
2002/03	57,720
2003/04	49,215
2004/05	39,980
2005/06	34,005
2006/07	25,815

Notes:
Number of overseas enrolments for 2005/06 and 2006/07 has been estimated by assuming they represent the same proportion as for the previous years students, that is 4.8 per cent for full-time and 1.7 per cent for part-time.

'Foundation degrees 2007/03' report published by Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE). Columns 1 + 2 of HESES and HEIFES (2006/07 values are provisional).

Table 2 shows the latest information on the progression of higher national diploma students. 'Foundation Degrees 2008/13' is the latest report from HEFCE, however, this does not contain figures for HND students. Therefore figures for the 2003/04 year of entry are the latest available.

Table 2: Home higher national diploma students by progression and institution type English higher education institutions and further education colleges year of entry 2003/04

Institution type	Progression	Number	Percentage
FECs	All FEC entrants	9,915	100
	of which:
	Change to FE Level course	410	4
	Not studying	3,140	32
HEIs	All HEI entrants	12,635	100
	of which:
	Change to FE Level course	165	1
	Not studying	1,915	15

Notes:
1. Institution type refers to the institution the student is registered with.
2. Study in the following year includes students registered for any FE or HE study in HEIs in the UK, and students registered for any HE or FE study in FECs in England. Any study outside this coverage is not included and the students will be categorised as 'not studying'.

Source:
'Foundation degrees 2007/03' report published by Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE)

Figures in Table 1 cover Home, EU and Overseas enrolments, whereas figures in Table 2 cover Home entrants only.

The number of students on foundation degrees programmes now exceeds the number of students studying for HNDs. However, this growth has taken place against a background of declining numbers of students studying towards HNDs and HNCs. This decline predates the introduction of foundation degrees. According to a study by the Learning and Skills Development Agency (LSDA), even when foundation degrees were first introduced, this was not the main reason for institutions discontinuing HND and HNC provision (LSDA 2002). Since then the decline in HND and HNCs has accelerated, at least in part due to the growth in foundation degrees.

Higher Education: Finance

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills when he plans to send the annual grant letter to the Higher Education Funding Council for England for 2009-10. [250215]

Mr. Lammy: The annual grant letter to the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) for 2009-10 was published today 22 January 2009. I have placed a copy in the Library.

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will list each successful application to the Higher Education Funding Council for England for projects (a) to be funded, (b) to be partly-funded and (c) to be funded by loans via the strategic development fund during (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008; and how much funding was sought in each case. [250446]

Mr. Lammy: The Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) has published a list of projects funded by the Strategic Development Fund on its website at:

http://www.hefce.ac.uk/finance/fundinghe/sdf/

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what applications to the Higher Education Funding Council for England for projects (a) to be funded, (b) to be partly funded and (c) to be loan funded via the Strategic Development Fund were not accepted during (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008. [250530]

Mr. Lammy: This information is not held in the form requested. Proposals to the Strategic Development Fund are developed iteratively between the HEIs and the Council's institutional teams, sometimes over a lengthy period. Projects that then come forward for funding have been thoroughly tested and hence are very rarely rejected. HEFCE's institutional teams have regular informal discussions with HEIs to discuss emerging proposals and many are turned back at that stage, and are not recorded.

Higher Education: Student Numbers

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many people normally resident (a) in Jarrow constituency, (b) in South Tyneside, (c) in the north-east and (d) nationwide have been registered at university in each year since 1997. [249562]

Mr. Lammy: The latest available information is given in the table. Comparable figures for the 2007/08 academic year will be available on 29 January 2009.

[2] Figures for the 1997/98 and 1998/99 academic years relate to the north of England, rather than the north-east due to a change in the classification of government office regions. Therefore, figures for this region from these two years cannot be directly compared to other years in the time series.

Notes:
Figures are on a snapshot basis as at 1 December excluding those writing up, on sabbatical or dormant and are rounded to the nearest five.

Overall, for all students from England, the UCAS figures show that, compared to 2007, applicants to full-time undergraduate courses who had been accepted for entry in 2008, rose by 7.4 per cent. to 329,700, the highest ever. This comes on the back of a rise in accepted applicants of 6.1 per cent. between 2006 and 2007.

Intellectual Property

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will reconsider his response to the recommendations contained in the Gowers report on intellectual property. [249476]

Mr. Lammy: A functioning intellectual property system is an essential enabler to encourage innovation and economic recovery. The Gowers Review concluded that the intellectual property framework in the UK was broadly right. It did however highlight a number of areas for reform which it set out in a number of specific recommendations. Over half of these recommendations have been implemented. Work is continuing on the remainder. Meanwhile, the Government continue to attach priority to IP issues. The Creative Britain Report recognised the importance of IP, in particular copyright to the creative industries. As part of this report the Government have improved IP crime intelligence gathering and coordination of enforcement agencies. I also recently announced a broad review of the future of copyright to ensure that it continues to support creativity, promote investment and job growth while also inspiring business and consumer confidence.

Outdoor Education

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what assessment he has made of the merits of fieldwork and out-of-classroom activity in developing practical skills for use (a) at undergraduate level, (b) at postgraduate level and (c) in employment; and if he will make a statement. [247954]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: I have been asked to reply.

The Department has not made a formal assessment of the benefits of fieldwork and out-of-classroom activity. However, there is a body of research that demonstrates the value of learning outside the classroom to which the Department has contributed; key reports can be found at:

www.lotc.org.uk/resources/research

Ofsted's report "Learning outside the classroom: how far should you go?" was published on 2 October 2008. A key finding is

"When planned and implemented well, learning outside the classroom contributed significantly to raising standards and improving pupils' personal, social and emotional development."

To support and develop teachers in using fieldwork as high quality learning experiences, a network of science learning centres provides a range of continuing professional development opportunities throughout the year. These cover chemistry, physics and biology and all key stages of the science curriculum.

Through the Government funded Action Plan for Geography, the Royal Geographical Society and the Geographical Association have developed online resources and guidance. These are available at:

http://www.geographyteachingtoday.org.uk/

and include a virtual fieldwork and local learning centre to help teachers make the most of geography in their local areas. The website contains expert advice on embedding fieldwork in the curriculum.

The Department has made no assessment of whether the encouragement of fieldwork as a teaching method is adequately supported by teacher training courses. However, the current standards for the award of qualified teacher status (QTS) set out what trainee teachers must demonstrate before they can be recommended for the award. QTS Standard Q30 requires that all trainees demonstrate that they can "establish a purposeful and safe learning environment conducive to learning and identify opportunities for learners to learn in out-of-school contexts".

Training and Development Agency for Schools guidance to this standard states that

"trainees should be able to identify opportunities for children and young people to learn in the school grounds and in out-of-school contexts such as museums, theatres, field centres and work settings".

All initial teacher training provision is inspected by Ofsted to ensure that training is designed and delivered to enable every trainee to meet all of the QTS standards, including standard Q30 that relates to learning outside of the classroom.

Through the manifesto for learning outside the classroom, DCSF is supporting "Teaching Outside the Classroom" at:

which facilitates placements for trainee teachers in settings such as museums, city farms and field study centres.

The Government have no plans to commission research to evaluate the strengths and weaknesses of the state of fieldwork in secondary science education for 14 to 19-year-olds.

Students: Loans

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) what his latest estimate is of the amount overpaid in student loan repayments due to late notification of the Student Loans Company by HM Revenue and Customs of the full repayment of a loan in the last 12 month period for which data are available; [248551]

(2) what his latest estimate is of the average time taken for HM Revenue and Customs to notify the Student Loans Company that a student loan has been repaid in full. [248552]

Mr. Lammy: Repayment of student loans depends on the income of the borrower: the repayment rate is 9 per cent. of income over the equivalent of £15,000 per annum which is collected through HM Revenue and Customs alongside income tax and national insurance contributions. The repayment amount therefore varies according to their income.

The Student Loans Company (SLC) reconciles borrowers' loan accounts at the end of each financial year. There may be overpayments when a borrower comes to the end of repaying their loan, which are refunded with interest, but these are not caused by late notification by HM Revenue and Customs.

The SLC is putting a number of measures in place to help customers avoid overpayment by giving them the option to make final repayments outside the tax system, via direct debit, to ensure they do not overpay. SLC have also introduced new guidance and tools, including an online calculator, to help customers work out their loan balance, and therefore when they are likely to pay their loan in full.

Work Experience

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what estimate he has made of the number of internships offered nationwide in 2007-08. [250213]

Mr. Lammy: The value of internships for undergraduates and for graduates is well established. That is why we want to increase internship opportunities for unemployed graduates, as just one part of this Government's overall package to support individuals through the economic downturn. We have not made an estimate of the number of internships offered in 2007-08 but a significant proportion of the larger graduate employers offer such places as part of their recruitment processes. We will build on such existing good practice as we work with relevant stakeholders to develop our proposals.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Academies: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which academies are categorised in the national challenge; and if he will make a statement. [248635]

Jim Knight: There are 32 Academies (listed in the following table) where fewer than 30 per cent. of pupils achieved five or more A* - C grades including English and mathematics at GCSE in 2008 and which are categorised in the National Challenge.

Barnsley Academy
Bradford Academy
Business Academy, Bexley
Capital City Academy
City Academy, Bristol
Eastbourne Academy (Darlington)
Folkestone Academy
Gateway Academy
Grace Academy, Solihull
Haberdashers' Aske's Knights Academy
Harefield Academy
Harris Academy, Peckham
Havelock Academy
John Madejski Academy
Marlowe Academy
New Line Learning Academy
North Oxfordshire Academy
Oasis Academy, Immingham
Oasis Academy, Winteringham
Northampton Academy
Sheffield Park Academy
Sheffield Springs Academy
Stockport Academy
St. Francis of Assisi Academy
St. Mark's Academy
St. Matthew Academy
St. Michael's and All Angels Academy
Stockley Academy
Swindon Academy
Thomas Deacon Academy
Westminster Academy
Unity Academy

Academies are leading the way in reducing low attainment. For the 36 academies with results in both 2007 and 2008 there has been an increase of 4.3 percentage points in the FIVE or more A* to C figure, including English and maths, compared to 2.5 percentage points nationally.

Audit and Risk Assurance Committee

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of his Department's Audit and Risk Assurance Committee; and if he will make a statement. [247265]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Formal reviews of the effectiveness of the Department's Audit and Risk Assurance Committee have been undertaken periodically at the request of the chair since 2005 in line with H.M. Treasury Guidance within the Audit Committee Handbook. The most recent was delivered in February 2008. Feedback for these reviews is provided by board members, other senior departmental managers, and the independent committee members.

Care Proceedings

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many applications for care proceedings were made by local authorities in November (a) 2007 and (b) 2008. [248904]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

The number of public law care and supervision applications under section 31 of the Children Act 1989 in November 2007 and November 2008 are given in the following table. Public law cases are those brought by local authorities or an authorised person (currently only the NSPCC). Figures relate to the number of children that are subject to each application and have been rounded to the nearest 10. Please note that 2008 figures are provisional.

Comparisons between single months should be made with caution as the monthly figures are subject to more volatility than those covering longer time periods.

Number of public law care and supervision applications under section 31 of the Children Act 1989 England and Wales; county courts and family proceedings courts

	November 2007	November 2008
Family proceedings courts[1]	920	1,090
County courts[2]	240	160
Total	1,150	1,240

[1] There have been data quality issues with figures for family proceedings courts. A new method of collection was introduced in April 2007 which has improved the coverage and completeness of data.

[2] Research undertaken on behalf of Ministry of Justice has identified that some cases that have transferred from the family proceedings court to the county court have been incorrectly recorded as new applications in the county court, thus inflating the reported number of new applications through double counting (see Masson et al 2008).

Charities

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families to which (a) charities and (b) voluntary organisations his Department has provided funding in the last five years; and how much funding was provided to each. [247365]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The information requested can be collated only at disproportionate cost.

Children: Protection

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children on the Child Protection Register were taken into care in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [241400]

Beverley Hughes: The information requested is not collected centrally.

The number of children who were the subject of a child protection plan at 31 March and who were also looked after on that date is shown in the following table.

Children who were the subject of a child protection plan (CPP) who were also looked after on that date[1]: Years at 31 March 1997 to 2008—Coverage: England

	Numbers	Percentage of total who were the subject of a plan[2]
1997	7,900	24
1998	7,800	25

2000	7,100	23
2001	5,400	20
2002	4,600	18
2003	4,200	16
2004	3,400	13
2005	3,000	12
2006	2,600	10

2008	2,200	8

The latest figures on the numbers and percentage of children subject to child protection plans or placed on the Child Protection Register were published in a Statistical First Release (SFR) 24/2008 'Referrals, Assessments and Children and Young People who are the subject of a Child Protection Plan, England—Year ending 31 March 2008' on 16 September 2008. A copy of this release is available on my Department's website:

www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many children were the subject of a child protection plan at 31 March 2008; [247004]

(2) what percentage of children referred to children's social care received an initial assessment within seven working days in 2007; [247006]

(3) what percentage of child protection plans last for two or more years; [247387]

(4) what percentage of children became the subject of a child protection plan for a second or subsequent time in 2007; [247388]

(5) what percentage of core assessments for children's social care were carried out within 35 working days of their commencement in the last three years. [247389]

Beverley Hughes: 29,200 children were the subject of a child protection plan at 31 March 2008. In the year ending 31 March 2008:

71 per cent. of children referred to children's social care received an initial assessment within seven working days.

5 per cent. of children whose child protection plan was discontinued were a subject of a plan for two or more years.

14 per cent. of children became the subject of a child protection plan for a second or subsequent time.

80 per cent. of core assessments for children's social care were carried out within 35 working days of initial assessments in the year ending 31 March 2008, 78 per cent. in the year ending 31 March 2007 and 74 per cent. in the year ending 31 March 2006.

These figures have been taken from the statistical first release "Referrals, Assessments and Children and Young People who are the subject of a Child Protection Plan, England—year ending 31 March 2008", which can be found at the following link:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000811/index.shtml.

Figures are for England only.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 18 December 2008, Official Report, column 1114W, on children: protection, how many representations concerning child protection his Department has referred to the Commission for Social Care Inspection or Ofsted since its inception. [247865]

Beverley Hughes: It is not possible to quantify the number of cases referred to inspectorates by the Department for Children, Schools and Families. The Department receives representations across a wide range of issues including on child protection, mostly in the form of correspondence. Some of these are shared with inspectorates for information whilst other matters may be passed to them on a more formal basis where specific action may be appropriate. In addition, local authorities are required in particular circumstances to notify Ofsted of the details of particular events, including those relating to serious incidents involving children or with respect to incidents occurring in settings for which Ofsted has regulatory functions. Other issues raised by correspondents with the Department may be pursued directly with local authorities or other agencies through the Department's regional Government office network.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he plans to take to assist social workers in protecting children. [247943]

Beverley Hughes: In April 2008, we announced a £73 million package of support for social workers who work with children and families. This package includes the Newly Qualified Social Worker pilot programme which will support social workers in their first year of practice including through improved supervision by their managers. Other pilot projects will seek to address the development needs of those in the second and third years of practice; to recognise and encourage more experienced and skilled social workers to stay in frontline posts; and to develop management and leadership skills. More information on this package of work which is being delivered by the Children's Workforce Development Council can be found here:

http://www.cwdcouncil.org.uk/social-work

In December 2008 we announced a Social Work Taskforce which will consider what makes a difference to outcomes for children in terms of social work practice. The taskforce will make recommendations to Government later this year.

Meg Munn: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what research his Department is funding into effective child protection practice; and which such research it has funded in the last three years. [249533]

Beverley Hughes: Under the Safeguarding Children Research Initiative DCSF, in partnership with the Department of Health, have commissioned a suite of studies to support the Government's programme of reform to improve early recognition and cost-effective interventions to protect children. The Safeguarding Children Research Initiative runs until 2010 and includes 11 studies covering three themes: recognition of neglect and emotional abuse; impact of interventions; and inter-agency working. In addition, the Department has commissioned various other projects to inform effective practice in safeguarding children.

The following table gives a full list of studies.

Ministers will decide shortly the form of any intervention that may be necessary to bring about swiftly the required improvements to the service and improve outcomes for children and young people.

Children: Sport

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress has been made towards meeting the targets to provide every child with the opportunity to participate in five hours of sport every week; and if he will make a statement. [246996]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The PE and Sport Strategy for Young People came into operation from September 2008. At its heart is a commitment to provide two hours of high quality PE and Sport each week within the school day, for all five to16-year-olds, and up to a further three hours of sporting opportunities beyond the school day for all five to19-year-olds. We expect to have data for the first year of the new strategy in autumn 2009.

[248250]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Since the Department was created in July 2007, there has been one investigation into the temporary loss of a laptop computer. Disciplinary action in relation to this new case has begun, but is not yet completed.

The Department takes any breach of security very seriously and may take disciplinary action against those who commit such breaches. Policies and guidance on IT security are available to all staff on the departmental intranet. Logging into the Department's IT system requires that staff agree to abide by these policies.

Departmental Equality

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the progress made against his Department's Equality and Diversity Delivery Plan. [247188]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department's Diversity Delivery Plan has recently been sent to Cabinet Office for review and therefore it is too early to make any assessment against progress. We will evaluate the plan later in the year and review its impact on a yearly basis.

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much has been spent by his Department on furniture made by (a) British firms, (b) Remploy and (c) overseas firms since it was established. [244361]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department for Children, Schools and Families was created on 28 June 2007. The total expenditure on office furniture for its headquarter buildings in 2007-08 was £2,323,834. All of the furniture was manufactured by British firms. No furniture was made by Remploy or overseas firms.

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme (PCSPS) is a multi-employer occupational pension scheme for civil servants employed by Government Departments, including the Department for Children, Schools and Families, as well as some other public bodies.

The payments from the PCSPS are contained in the Cabinet Office: Civil Superannuation Resource Accounts, which are laid before Parliament each year. These accounts do not contain breakdowns for individual employers.

(2) how many people have yet to receive an education maintenance allowance payment to which they are entitled. [249228]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the education maintenance allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). Mark Haysom, the LSC's chief executive, will write to the hon. Member with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in both Libraries.

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many people (a) in Jarrow constituency, (b) in South Tyneside, (c) in the North East and (d) nationwide have received education maintenance allowance in each year since its inception. [249560]

[249187]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the education maintenance allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many local education authorities have encouraged schools to use the Expect Respect education toolkit; [247668]

(2) what guidance his Department has provided to local education authorities on use of the Expect Respect education toolkit. [247669]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department does not collect information on how many local education authorities have encouraged schools to use the Expect Respect education toolkit, nor do we endorse or recommend any particular provider or approach to the use of external education materials. We believe that schools and local authorities are best placed to decide which resources/materials to use and support.

Global Fellowships Programme

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effects of the Global Fellowships programme's initiative to provide young people with work and cultural experiences in (a) China, (b) India and (c) Brazil; and if he will make a statement. [247271]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: An interim evaluation of the Prime Minister's Global Fellowship will be published by the Department and the British Council in the spring.

Graduate Leader Fund

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what funding his Department has allocated to the Graduate Leader Fund over the next three years; [247417]

(2) how much he expects to be available from Graduate Leader Fund in the next 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [247288]

Beverley Hughes: The Department has allocated £305 million to the Graduate Leader Fund for the three years 2008-2011. This includes £232 million to be allocated via local authorities for early years settings in the private, voluntary and independent (PVI) sectors to recruit and retain graduate practice leaders and £73 million to enable the Children's Workforce Development Council (CWDC) to establish a supply of professionals with Early Years Professional Status.

Mathematics

Mr. Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress is being made in the implementation of recommendation 3 of the Williams Review of Mathematics Teaching in Early Years Settings and Primary Schools. [247332]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Williams Review recommended that a maths specialist teacher should be available to every primary school by 2019. A small pathfinder project is currently running to test issues relating to the training for maths specialists. This was launched in October 2008 and involves seven LAs with eight schools in each, and a total of 56 trainee teachers. Early evidence shows a positive reaction from the teachers involved and the training improving their confidence, enjoyment and understanding of mathematics.

National Apprenticeship Service

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he expects the National Apprenticeship Service to be established. [247242]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: 'World-class Apprenticeships' announced that from April 2009 there would be a separately branded, customer-facing National Apprenticeship Service (NAS) which will have end-to-end responsibility for the apprenticeship programme in England, including ultimate accountability for the national delivery of targets.

Good progress is being made in setting up the NAS and the chief executive, Simon Waugh, will take up post on 2 February. The NAS is on track to be fully operational from April 2009.

Excellent progress is also being made on the National Apprenticeship Vacancy Matching Service (NAVMS). The web-based matching service was launched on 12 January and the full service to employers and would-be apprentices will be in place in April 2009.

National Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics Centre

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) whether he expects the National Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics Centre to open in 2009; [247407]

(2) what estimate he has made of the (a) capital and (b) annual running cost of the National Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics Centre. [247408]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The National Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics Resource Centre is grant funded by the Gatsby Charitable Foundation rather than the Department for Children, Schools and Families. I am unable to confirm when it is due to open and have made no estimate of the capital and running costs involved.

Pupils: Broadband

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his most recent assessment of the level of access to broadband at home is for (a) all primary school pupils and (b) primary school pupils from lower income households. [250606]

Jim Knight: The most recent research[1] published by the Department found that 90 per cent. of parents of school-aged children in England reported that they had computer and internet access at home. Among parents of primary age children the figure was 89 per cent. for parents of children in Key Stage 1, and 88 per cent. for children in Key Stage 2.

[1] Peters et al, Parental Involvement in Children's Education, London, DCSF, 2007

www.dcsf.gov.uk/research/data/uploadfiles/DCSF-RR034.pdf

The research showed a variation in connectivity by social class. Among parents in social class E, 69 per cent. had a computer with internet access. The research did not distinguish broadband and dial-up connectivity. However Government statistics[2] show that most UK households with internet connectivity have a broadband connection: 65 percent of households had any Internet access and 56 per cent. had broadband access.

Schools: PFI

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many contracts with private providers under private finance initiative schemes have been signed for school capital projects in each of the last six months. [249101]

Jim Knight: The following contracts have been signed which include private finance initiative in each of the last six months:

Islington—July 2008

Kent—October 2008

Schools: Pigmeat

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of pork served in schools in (a) East Devon constituency, (b) the South West and (c) England was locally sourced in the last five years. [247561]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department does not collect this information. Decisions on food procurement are down to individual schools and local authorities. To assist them in this the School Food Trust has published "A fresh look at school food procurement: efficiency and sustainability"—guidance for schools and local authorities on how efficient and sustainable food procurement can be pursued in tandem.

The guidance actively promotes the Public Sector Food Procurement Initiative (PSFPI), which aims to increase tenders from small and local producers and improve their ability to do business. The guide encourages buyers to identify and reduce barriers to small and medium-sized local enterprises (which may prevent them from tendering) and recognises that smaller suppliers can compete with larger businesses. It also recognises that their participation in the public sector supply chain can benefit local and regional economies. The Trust's website also contains a number of case studies where local authorities and schools demonstrate how they have successfully tendered for local produce for their meals' service.

Schools: Racial Discrimination

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families by what means his Department monitors and records the number of racially-triggered events occurring in schools; how many such events there were in maintained schools in Norfolk in the last 12 months; what steps he is taking to reduce the number of such events in the future; and if he will make a statement. [247763]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department for Children, Schools and Families issued its 'Recording and reporting racist incidents guidance' in December 2006. It is for individual local authorities to record, monitor and investigate the number of incidents in their schools.

Between 1 April 2008 and 13 January 2009, Norfolk county council has stated that 283 racist incidents were reported by schools. Between April 2007 and March 2008, 293 incidents were reported.

Schools: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools in the National Challenge programme were oversubscribed in September (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; and if he will make a statement. [249972]

Jim Knight: Data on schools that are oversubscribed are not collected centrally.

Schools: Vetting

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he expects all Criminal Records Bureau checks on existing (a) head teachers, (b) teachers and (c) non-teaching school staff to have been completed. [249570]

Jim Knight: Schools are not required to obtain CRB enhanced disclosures on staff who have been in post since before the CRB was established in 2002, although schools are required to check that such staff are not barred from working with children. When the new Vetting and Barring Scheme is introduced, such staff will be required to register with the Independent Safeguarding Authority and to obtain a CRB enhanced disclosure. The new scheme will be phased in over a period of up to five years, but staff—including school staff—who have never had a CRB disclosure will have high priority in the phasing-in process. Although we cannot say precisely when this will be complete, staff without CRB disclosures will be taken early in the phasing process. The arrangements apply equally to head teachers, teachers and other staff.

Science: GCSE

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of pupils eligible to receive free school meals attained a GCSE in (a) physics, (b) chemistry and (c) biology at grade A* in the latest year for which figures are available. [243852]

Jim Knight: The table shows the number and percentage of pupils achieving grade A* in Physics, Chemistry and Biology by eligibility of free school meals in 2008 as a proportion of pupils at the end of KS4.

	Non-FSM		FSM		Total
	Number	Percentage	Number	Percentage	Number	Percentage

Social Services: Children

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his assessment of the availability of emergency accommodation for children or young people who need an immediate place of safety is in each children's services area. [250604]

Beverley Hughes: The provision of emergency accommodation for young people who need it is the responsibility of local authorities. Support services for runaways should be determined and run through local children's trusts and other stakeholders, according to local service needs. Local authority children's services are therefore best placed to assess the type and levels of support required, including, where appropriate, accommodation. This could include emergency foster care or short-term placement in a children's home, as well as counselling and mediation services, but the exact mix will vary, according to locally determined need.

The National Indicator NI71: Children missing from home or care, becomes effective from 1 April 2009. Local authorities will be asked to self assess the services, information and processes that they have in place to respond to the needs of young runaways using a self assessment tool developed for this purpose.

In order to support local authority children's services in their provision of emergency accommodation my Department is funding research that will identify successful and cost effective commissioning models using services provided by the voluntary sector, and by helping commissioners at every level understand more about young people's perceptions of different models of emergency accommodation.

Social Services: Doncaster

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what reports have been produced by Paul Gray on the state of children's services in Doncaster; and if he will make them public. [248698]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The Department does not hold this information since Dr. Paul Gray, interim Director of Children's Services for Doncaster Metropolitan borough council, does not report directly to the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families. Assessment of the performance of children's services in Doncaster is carried out by means of OfSTED inspections, the most recent of which was the 2008 Annual Performance Assessment (APA). Doncaster's APA letter was published on 17 December 2008. It can be found at:

http://www.ofsted.gov.uk/oxcare_providers/la_download/(id)/4722/(as)/APA/apa_2008371.pdf

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many Sure Start centres were built in each of the last 12 months. [249302]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The figures in the following table show the number of new Sure Start Children's Centres designated each month throughout 2008. These figures include centres where some activities take place in pre-existing, refurbished buildings, for example, at a school site.

Teachers: Offenders

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many teachers in the maintained sector have received an (a) conviction and (b) police caution. [248326]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not held centrally.

Teachers: Pay

Colin Burgon: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effect on teachers of the end of management allowance safeguarding on 31 December 2008 and the introduction of teaching and learning responsibility payments; and how many teachers are affected by (a) that change and (b) the change in the amount of pay received by teachers as a result of the new time limit on safeguarding. [249013]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not available centrally, however based on a sample of local authorities we estimate that between 2 and 4 per cent. of teachers may be affected. Management allowances (MA) ceased to exist on 31 December 2005. Under the terms of the School Teachers' Pay and Conditions Document (STPCD) a teacher who was in receipt of a MA on 31 December 2005 was entitled to salary safeguarding for a maximum of three years until 31 December 2008, in which to adjust to the reduction in their income.

Teaching and Learning Responsibility payments (TLR) were introduced from 1 January 2006 and are now well embedded in the system and are being used to properly reward those who are undertaking a significant responsibility beyond those required of all classroom teachers.

United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what reservations his Department is seeking to enter in relation to the ratification of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities; and if he will make a statement. [248194]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement made by my right hon. Friend the then Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mrs. McGuire) on 6 May 2008, Official Report, column 30WS. We are considering the precise wording of any reservation.

Young People: Unemployment

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of 16 to 18 year-olds were not in education, employment and training in each year since April 2001. [249239]

Beverley Hughes: Estimates of participation in education for those of academic age 16-18, including the number and proportion estimated to be Not in Education, Employment or Training (NEET), are published annually by the Department in a Statistical First Release (SFR) each June on the Department's website

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000792/index.shtml.

The historical information sought on the numbers and percentages of young people NEET can be found in the following two excel files downloadable at the link above:

"More detailed participation rates, including tables back to 1985"

and

"More detailed participation numbers, including tables back to 1985"

These provide the following estimates of 16-18 NEET, based on academic age, and relating to a snapshot at the end of each calendar year:

End	Number of 16 to 18-year-olds NEET	Percentage of 16 to 18-year-olds NEET
2001	182,400	9.9
2002	188,400	10.0
2003	183,500	9.5
2004	189,800	9.6
2005	213,700	10.7
2006	209,700	10.4
2007	189,500	9.4

Young People: Voluntary Organisations

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families in what ways his Department is working with national third sector youth organisations to support the training needs of those working in the third sector to achieve the ambitions set out in Aiming High and the Children's Plan. [247185]

Beverley Hughes: Through the current youth workforce reform programme, specific work is underway to identify and meet the training priorities for the third sector so that it can play a full role in the delivery of integrated services for young people. This work is currently examining how these priorities could be met locally by new or existing training and development routes and with new Government investment. Feasibility studies on an accreditation system to accredit existing and prior experience, and the delivery of training resources to support managers in identifying workforce needs for the third sector are also being undertaken. Leaders and managers in the third sector will also have access to a leadership and management programme designed to train up to 5,000 strategic leaders and managers from across young people's services over the next three years, starting this year. In addition the DCSF has recently created the Youth Sector Development Fund, which is designed to promote and support growth and build capacity within third sector organisations, particularly those working with the most vulnerable young people, including supporting the development needs of staff.

Outdoor Education

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what assessment he has made of the extent to which teacher training courses facilitates the use of fieldwork as a teaching method in schools; [247955]

(2) what steps he is taking to improve the confidence of (a) science teachers and (b) geography teachers in using fieldwork; [247956]

(3) if his Department will commission research to evaluate the strengths and weaknesses of the state of fieldwork in secondary science education for 14 to 19-year-olds. [247957]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department has not made a formal assessment of the benefits of fieldwork and out-of-classroom activity. However, there is a body of research that demonstrates the value of learning outside the classroom to which the Department has contributed; key reports can be found at:

www.lotc.org.uk/resources/research

Ofsted's report "Learning outside the classroom: how far should you go?" was published on 2 October 2008. A key finding is

"When planned and implemented well, learning outside the classroom contributed significantly to raising standards and improving pupils' personal, social and emotional development."

To support and develop teachers in using fieldwork as high quality learning experiences, a network of science learning centres provides a range of continuing professional development opportunities throughout the year. These cover chemistry, physics and biology and all key stages of the science curriculum.

Through the Government funded Action Plan for Geography, the Royal Geographical Society and the Geographical Association have developed online resources and guidance. These are available at:

http://www.geographyteachingtoday.org.uk/

and include a virtual fieldwork and local learning centre to help teachers make the most of geography in their local areas. The website contains expert advice on embedding fieldwork in the curriculum.

The Department has made no assessment of whether the encouragement of fieldwork as a teaching method is adequately supported by teacher training courses. However, the current standards for the award of qualified teacher status (QTS) set out what trainee teachers must demonstrate before they can be recommended for the award. QTS Standard Q30 requires that all trainees demonstrate that they can "establish a purposeful and safe learning environment conducive to learning and identify opportunities for learners to learn in out-of-school contexts".

Training and Development Agency for Schools guidance to this standard states that

"trainees should be able to identify opportunities for children and young people to learn in the school grounds and in out-of-school contexts such as museums, theatres, field centres and work settings".

All initial teacher training provision is inspected by Ofsted to ensure that training is designed and delivered to enable every trainee to meet all of the QTS standards, including standard Q30 that relates to learning outside of the classroom.

Through the manifesto for learning outside the classroom, DCSF is supporting "Teaching Outside the Classroom" at:

which facilitates placements for trainee teachers in settings such as museums, city farms and field study centres.

The Government have no plans to commission research to evaluate the strengths and weaknesses of the state of fieldwork in secondary science education for 14 to 19-year-olds.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

BBC World Service

Mr. Hands: Let me begin by clearing up the first point. I did not in any way suggest that the Government intervene in editorial comment; it was more that they might intervene to secure the ability to broadcast, to help with infrastructure and to extend the BBC Russian service.

On the second point, the e-mail that I received was a way of illustrating the problems that one will have with the television service as opposed to the radio service if one is not able to gain access to the country. I was not in any way suggesting that the e-mail represented the sole view about the BBC Russian service.

[Official Report, 16 December 2008, Vol. 485, c. 22WH.]

Letter of correction from Bill Rammell:

An error has been identified in the answer given to the hon. Member for Hammersmith and Fulham (Mr. Hands) on 16 December 2008, Official Report, column 22WH. The full answer given was as follows:

Bill Rammell: ...He asked me several other detailed questions, including whether the advertising process for the director of the World Service will be open, and open to external candidates. I can reassure the hon. Gentleman that, on both points, they will.

[Official Report, 16 December 2008, Vol. 485, c. 22WH.]

I understand that on the 23 December the BBC World Service decided to open the recruitment process up to external candidates. However, at the time of the debate this was not the case. The correct answer should have been:

Bill Rammell: ...He asked me several other detailed questions, including whether the advertising process for the director of the World Service will be open, and open to external candidates. The recruitment will be an open process but the position is open to internal candidates only.

I apologise for any confusion this has caused.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

GCSE: Disadvantaged

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of children obtained five GCSEs at grades A* to C including English and mathematics in schools (a) with fewer than 10 per cent., (b) with more than 20 per cent. and (c) with more than 50 per cent. free school meals pupils in the last three years. [240610]

[Official Report, 11 December 2008, Vol. 485, c. 277W.]

Letter of correction from Jim Knight:

An error has been identified in the written answer to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove) on 11 December 2008. Unfortunately, there were errors in the figures provided for both years because of a common arithmetic error. The result was that the errors a) underestimated the performance of high FSM schools by a considerable amount (incorrectly 13 per cent. rather than 31 per cent.) and b) suggested a decline for the high FSM schools, which was really an increase (incorrectly from 14 per cent. to 13 per cent., rather than from 27 per cent. to 31 per cent.).

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Flood Control: Finance

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department has spent on flood defences in each of the last five years. [233933]

[Official Report, 12 November 2008, Vol. 482, c. 1228W.]

Letter of correction from Huw Irranca-Davies:

An error has been identified in the table provided in the written answer given to the hon. Member for Westmorland and Lonsdale (Tim Farron) on 12 November 2008. The sums listed for the financial years 2007-08, 2006-07 and 2004-05 were incorrect. The correct answer should have been:

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 6 November 2008]: DEFRA provides funding to operating authorities for flood defences from the allocation of funding for Flood and Coastal Erosion Risk Management. Over the past five financial years this allocation totalled:

Financial year	DEFRA funding (£ million)
2007-08	507.5
2006-07	506.0
2005-06	514.8
2004-05	415.4

HEALTH

Departmental Absenteeism

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the rate of staff (a) absence and (b) sickness absence was in (i) his Department and (ii) each of its agencies and non-departmental public bodies in each year since 1997; what the target rates set for his Department are in each case; and if he will make a statement. [238929]

[Official Report, 26 November 2008, Vol. 483, c. 2058W.]

Letter of correction from Mr. Bradshaw:

An error has been identified in the written answer given to the hon. Member for Taunton (Mr. Browne) on 26 November 2008. I am sorry that the figure for average working days lost in PASA in 2005 was incorrect. The answer said that this figure was 15.5 and the correct figure is 5.5. The correct answer is as follows:

Mr. Bradshaw: Information on average working days lost (AWDL) per member of staff due to sickness absence in the Department of Health and its agencies is presented in the following table:

	Coverage	AWDL
2007-08 financial year	Core Department	5.3
2007-08 financial year	Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA)	6.9
2007-08 financial year	NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency (PASA)	4.6
2006-07 financial year	Core Department	6.5
2006-07 financial year	MHRA	6.6
2006-07 financial year	PASA	5.5
2005 calendar year	Core Department only	7.0
2005 calendar year	MHRA	2.9
2005 calendar year	PASA	5.5
2004 calendar year	Department and its agencies	3.8
2003 calendar year	Department and its agencies	5.4
2002 calendar year	Department and its agencies	4.7
2001 calendar year	Department and its agencies	6.8
2000 calendar year	Department and its agencies	5.5
1999 calendar year	Department and its agencies	6.6
1998 calendar year	Department and its agencies	7.3

The change in the figures from calendar years to financial year between 2005 and 2006-07 reflects a change in the annual period covered by the reports. The change between 2004 and 2005 from the Department and its agencies together to the Department and its agencies separately reflects a change in the level of aggregation of information in reporting.

The Department does not report on the rates of other types of absence or set formal targets for rates of absence.

Education Maintenance Allowance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of 16 to 18 year olds have received education maintenance allowance in each year since 2001; and if he will make a statement. [233164]

[Official Report, 10 November 2008, Vol. 482, c. 895W.]

Letter of correction from Jim Knight:

An error has been identified in the written answer to the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) on 10 November 2008. I am writing to clarify information given in the written response.

A caveat was given in table 1 stating:

"Learners who participate in more full-time education and E2E/Programme Led Apprenticeships will appear twice in these figures and may have transferred from one scheme to another during the year".

The correct caveat is given with the table as follows:

Table 1: Learners in receipt of EMA in England since 2001 '

	Number
2001/02	114,254
2002/03	124,351
2003/04	126,871

2005/06	430,327
2006/07[1]	528,403
2007/08[1]	560,045

[1] Young people who have claimed EMA whilst on an E2E programme and then progressed in the same year to a school sixth form or a college course and were still eligible for EMA after income assessment will be counted twice in the yearly figures.

A copy of the final PQ will be place in the House Library.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Jenny Watson

Mr. Purchase: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for how many days a year Ms Jenny Watson is contracted to work for the Audit Commission; and what remuneration she receives for that work. [246858]

[Official Report, 19 January 2009, Vol. 486, c. 1078W.]

Letter of correction from John Healey:

An error has been identified in the written answer given to the hon. Member for Wolverhampton, North-East (Mr. Purchase) on 19 January 2008. The reference to the average amount of time that board members devote to work for the Audit Commission was incorrect. The correct answer should have been:

John Healey: Ms Jenny Watson is not a contractor working for the Audit Commission, but holds office as a member of the Audit Commission having been appointed by the Secretary of State. There are no specific requirements of board members as to the time they should devote to work for the Audit Commission but there is an expectation that this will, on average, equate to three days per month during the course of the year. Ms Jenny Watson receives remuneration of £14,146 per annum, which is the amount specified by the Secretary of State for payment to the majority of the Audit Commission board members.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Departmental Pay

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what proportion of staff of his Department and its agencies did not receive the maximum bonus possible under a bonus scheme applying to them in the last two years. [217417]

[Official Report, 22 July 2008, Vol. 479, c. 991W.]

Letter of correction from Mr. Ivan Lewis:

An error has been identified in the written answer given to the right hon. Member for Wokingham (Mr. Redwood) on 22 July 2008. The entry for the year 2007-08 was incorrect. The correct answer is as follows:

Gillian Merron: The Department for International Development (DFID) operates two separate bonus schemes.

The first is an established bonus scheme for members of the senior civil service (SCS). Bonuses are awarded at three different levels (high, medium or no bonus award). The proportion of SCS members who did not receive the high level (or maximum) bonus in each of the last two years was as follows:

	SCS staff not receiving a maximum bonus
	Number	Percentage
2006-07	67 out of 87	77
2007-08	72 out of 96	75

The second performance bonus scheme is for home civil service staff (HCS) below the SCS. The HCS bonus scheme was introduced under the 2007 pay deal for HCS staff and will come into effect in the 2008-09 performance appraisal year.
